Eucharistic Congress in Chicago Was Scene of Origin of C. A. I. P.

The necessity of preserving Peace in a sorely tried world occupies the center of attention of the heads of many states and of many serious minded ordinary citizens. All other international problems appear to be subordinated to this end of not only removing the hatreds that tend to burst out in deadly combat, but also fostering a spirit of harmony and good-will among the nations of the earth.

It is needless to recall the glorious record of the church in behalf of peace among nations. The Truce of God, the peace treaties of the Middle Ages, the Jesuit Suarez and the Dominican Vitoria, the efforts of Pius X. and Benedict XV. to avert the World War, the work of Pius XI.—are all part of the colorful and important history out of which have come peace organization in Austria, Czechoslovakia, England, France, Germany, Holland, Poland, Switzerland, China, Brazil, and the United States.

The Catholic Association for International Peace came into being during the Eucharistic Congress in Chicago, Illinois, in 1926, when representatives of different nations met with Americans for discussion on world problems affecting Catholics. This organization has grown steadily and through its literature, information service and series of conferences held in important cities several times a year, it has accomplished much in spreading the principles of peace in accord with the principles of the church. Its ultimate purpose is to promote, in conformity with the mind of the church, "the Peace of Christ in the Kingdom of Christ."

This Association, situated in Washington, D. C., constitutes the most significant effort on the part of American Catholics in behalf of this crusade. The most eminent international authorities in the country are officers of the organization. It comprises a group of approximately four hundred representative American Catholics, religious and lay, interests in the study dissemination and application of the principle of natural law and of Christian charity to the international problems of the day.

SOPHOMORE BALLOT IS UNDER SCRUTINY

Rumor Circulating That Illegal Number of Votes Was Turned in At Polls

Last minute news on the elections of the officers for the Class of 1935, held last Thursday, May 16th, are under close scrutiny, due the the fact that it has been rumored among the members of the class that more votes were returned than the approximate count of students voting.

Several of the more politically minded students in the class roster, are attempting to prove that such is the case, and it is understood that in the event that such rumors are proven o be true, the elections will be declared illegal and another count of votes will be taken.

It has been impossible to check through the names of the signed ballots to determine if non voting members of the class were voted for by illegitimate proxies, since the entire returns were burned immediately upon being counted. The elections, which were then quite close, might be in this way proven to be the reverse of class selection; data on this subject, nothing has been definitely proven to be fact.

Although there is much unofficial This must be understood to be as stories, always prevalent at the time of elections.

FACULTY ANNOUNCES LITERARY CONTEST

Gold Medal to Be Presented At Commencement Exercises For Original Essay

In accordance with the usual custom a gold medal will be awarded at the commencement exercises on June 6, 1935, for the best original paper presented by a student of any department here at the college, on one of the assigned topics.

The topics on which the contestants may write are: Methods for stimulating interest in Catholic Literature among the laity, Why is a great Catholic a great author? And is Catholicity an essential for Culture?

The following are rules,

The judges of the contest shall be members of the Faculty.

The subjects for the essay may not be used in fulfillment of any class obligation,

The manuscript must be clearly written or typewritten on only one side of a page, and must noe exceed one thousand (1000) words in length.

The manuscript proper must be unsigned but must be accompanied by the name and class of the student in a sealed envelope. Both manuscript and sealed envelope must be securely clipped together, or enclosed in a second envelope.

The manuscript must be handed in at the office of the Director of Studies, not later than Monday, May 20.

HOLY NAME ELECTS VAUGHN PRESIDENT

Kelly Chosen Vice President, Davis Secretary, DiJoseph Named Treasurer

The Holy Name Society election of officers for the coming year, 1935-36, was held on last Sunday.

The following students, as a result of the balloting, are to serve in the capacity indicated: Wm. Croft Vaughn, Jr., president; Edmund D. Kelly, vice-president; Harvey G. Davis, secretary, and John C. DiJoseph, treasurer.

During the past year the activities of the society have been continually impressive. At the monthly communion - breakfasts, many prominent figures, especially from the sport world, have been guest speakers.

Students at the college have witnessed the presence of such notable gentlemen as Tommy Loughran, heavyweight boxer; Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox; Ira Thomas, scout for the Athletics, and Harry Stuhldreher, Villanova football coach and one time quarter-back of the famed Four Horsemen.

The spirit of the Holy Name Society has dominated the spiritual lives of these men and in their talks they have done much to promote the same feeling among the members of the society at the college.

Thomas Malcolm, president of the group this year, retires as the most active leader the society has ever had at Villanova.

INFANT PARALYSIS CURE EXPLAINED BY DR. JOHN A. KOLMER

Professor of Medicine at Temple University Talks to Capacity Audience

MONKEYS WERE SUBJECTS OF EARLY EXPERIMENTS

By RAYMOND GOMES

Addressing a capacity audience, John A. Kolmer, M.D., D.Sc., LL.D., professor of medicine at Temple University, lectured upon "Susceptibility, Immunity and Vaccination for Infantile Paralysis," last Monday evening, at 8:30 P. M. in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

Dr. Kolmer graduated from Villanova College 15 years ago and most of the delicate apparatus in the Immunology Laboratory has been donated through his generosity.

Rev. Bernard Albers, O. S. A., vice-president of the college, introduced Dr. Kolmer as "a friend and benefactor of Villanova College for a great number of years, well known in the field of scientific research throughout the world, and a recipient of the Mendel Medal a few years ago.

Dr. Kolmer's lecture was clear, interesting, informative, and important. Despite the fact that the topic on which he spoke covers a multitude of technical medical and chemical terms, he used not more than ten of these terms and so clearly and explicity were these explained that the youngest person in the audience found no trouble in comprehending them.

In commencing, Dr. Kolmer declared that infantile paralysis is a disease world-wide in distribution and that "the designation 'infantile paralysis' is not very good for the disease is not confined to infants alone but also to adults, our President as an example, and not always does the disease produce paralysis."

"I medicine infantile paralysis is called 'acute anterior poliomeylitis.' It is caused by an organism so small that no one as yet has seen it or been able to cultivate it artificially and because of this it passes through filters of porcelain. The virus is therefore filterable and to filter it," he continued,

Berkefeld porcelain filters are used

"No districts are free from the danger of this disease and I personally know of no such disease that can strike so much terror into the parents of infants during an epidemic," state Dr. Kolmer.

"Twenty-five to a hundred persons die or are crippled through poliomeylitis every year and the number has increased during the last ten years. During an epidemic 8,200 are afflicted out of every 100,000. There are many reasons to believe that the great majority of people, by the time they have reached adult age, have had an attack of the virus but in a mild unrecognizabel form, however. The problem is what to do to protect children till adult age in order to acquire immunity," Dr. Kolmer went on.

He then explained how methods for the prevention and cure of poliomyelitis had been studied by transmitting the virus through monkeys by injecting the germ into the brains of the animals. "From the respiratory tract the germ gradually works its way into the system and even to the spinal cord where it attacks certain cells that control the muscles of the motor cords and when this happens the nerves are paralyzed and the muscles weakened," showed Dr. Kolmer.

He then continued, "Three years ago my colleagues and I devoted efforts to work a method to change and attentuate the virus to make it safe as a vaccine but leave it alive. After working with numerous chemicals we found that sodium ricinoleate attentuated the virus but kept it living. This vacine was tested on groups of monkeys and proved successful.

Then the preparation of the vaccine was explained by the doctor. After testing with monkeys he thought that he was ready to try the vaccine on himself and he found large amounts of antibodies (that protect one against infection) in his blood as a result. He then fed the vaccine on his assistant and his two children and the results were again satisfactory. At Temple the vaccine was administered to about five hundred children.

"One will inquire how long the antibodies will remain in the blood and how long immunity will remain and the answer to this I do not know," stated Dr. Kolmer. "Only time, experience and experiments can answer that question but if immunity will last over childhood till adolescence or the adult age then it will have accomplished its purpose."

"The whole trouble is that most parents will not have their children vaccinated until an epidemic comes and they do so then through a stimulus of fear and then it is often too late," he cited. "Many physicians would hesitate to vaccinate also."

As a matter of fact I now believe that the virus of poliomyelitis, that we use in preparing the vaccine, taken from the spinal cord of monkeys that have had the disease (that has been passed from monkey to monkey from eight to ten years) has lost its infectivity for human beings and I believe that this virus could be used without attentuation.

"Subcutaneously, the virus has lost its virulence and the next step unfortunate criminal destined to is to try the latter method on an execution," concluded Dr. Kolmer.

Moving pictures were then shown on the different things that he explained, the preparation of the vaccine from diseased monkeys and the administration of the vaccine to case of infantile paralysis.

Fr. Albers in behalf of the Alumni Association then thanked the audience for their presence and expressed his appreciation to Dr. Kolmer for the lecture saying, "I do not overrate Dr. Kolmer when I place him among the famous scientists of the past, Pasteur and our own Augustinian, Fr. Mendel.

The last of the series of lectures to be presented by the Alumni Association will take place in the Commerce and Finance building auditorium next Monday evening, May 27, at 8:15 P. M., where Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., professor of history at Villanova College, will deliver the topic, "Comparative Protestantism."

SELECTED BY MEMBERS TO HEAD CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS

James Downs (left), a junior in the School of Commerce and Finance, who has been elected to lead the Student Council for the 1935-36 term. William Vaughn (right), a junior in the School of Technology, was almost unanimously chosen president of next year's senior class yesterday in a vote by members of that group. He succeeds Robert McGrory as class president. William B. Cleary (middle), a student in the School of Commerce and Finance, won out in the sophomore elections for the class presidency. Mr. Cleary is also Business Manager of the VILLANOVAN.

COUNCIL CHAIRMAN IS JAMES J. DOWNS

Kain Elected to Vice Chairmanship; McGunnigle Is Choice for Secretary

In an election in which there were only three men eligible for office for three chairs the Student Council yesterday voted James J. Downs to the Chairmanship for the 1935-36 scholastic year.

According to James Walsh, present chairman of the Council, only three candidates were eligible for office because those elected to the Council from classes and other organizations of the campus during the current polls do not begin their terms until June 1.

No reason could be advanced in answer to the question as to why the outgoing seniors should elect officers to preside over next year's Council except that it was custom, although those who will be members of the Council next fall have nothing to say as to who will lead them.

The other officers went to Charles Kain, vice-chairman and Raymond McGunnigle, became secretary-treasurer. All three are juniors and had been members of the Council for at least a year. Mr. Downs is a student in the School of Commerce and Finance, Mr. McGunnigle is a member of the School of Arts and Philosophy and Mr. Kain is an Engineering student.

Retiring with Mr. Walsh from the Council are Edmond P. Reiley, former editor of the VILLANOVAN, George Malhame, George Odewalt, Harry Patzsch, and Walter E. Al-

NEW OFFICERS INDUCTED BY SANCTUARY SOCIETY

Father Vrana Supervises Active Campus Organization of 26 Members, Electing New Leaders

Last Monday, the Sanctuary Society of Villanova, the members of which serve at mass and otherwise assist at church services, held an election to replace the present officers who are graduating.

The list of newly elected officers includes: As president, Joseph Arthur; as vice-president, Edward Kelly, and as secretary, William Cleary. All of the new officers are from the business school. As yet the vacancy left by the sacristan has not been filled since it is obtained through appointment rather than election.

The society, composed of 26 members in all, is under the guidance and control of its moderator, Fr. Vrana.

SENIOR AND JUNIOR WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

McGough and Scalera Awarded Six Weeks Tuition At University of Heidelburg

Charles A. McGough, a senior in the School of Technology, and John F. Scalera, junior in the School of Science, were selected to go to the University of Heidleberg on a six weeks' scholarship.

Mr. McGough, who lives at 2031 Reed St., Philadelphia, graduated from St. Joseph's Preparatory in 1930. He is a member of the Villanova Chapter of A. I. E. E., and is the Alumni Editor of the "Engineer," School of Technology publication. Besides this, he presided as chairman of the Phi Kappa Pi dinner dance.

Mr. Scalera, who resides at 366 Clifton Ave., Newark, graduated from Seton Hall Prep with the class of 1932.

Both students will leave New York on the "S. S. Hamburg," June 20th, and will arrive at Hamburg on the 28th of June. The course to be pursued is optional and contains classical, scientific, and technical subjects.

Following his course at the University, Mr. Scalera expects to tour a few European countries, among which will be Italy. The students will also visit various points of interest including the Black Forest. Their return is scheduled for the 29th of August.

but when the polls were opened the battle was on. The chief attraction was that of the presidency and this was not decided until the last ballot was cast. The various schools had at least one office in view and it was this feeling that made the scene around the polls very political. The Science school had as their candidate Mario Troncelitti who ran a close second to the winner, while the Engineers had Aloysius Fitzpatrick who made the race very doubtful for the other candidates.

The vice-presidency was also another close affair and the ballots had to be recounted before the office was definitely determined. Joseph Kane was finally elected to the office by a narrow margin over his rival from the Commerce and Finance schools, Thomas Kennedy. Frank Winterer was also running for the office, but being a member of the same school as Kane split the ticket in favor of his classmate.

Charles Stahlecker, a member of the Arts school, won the office of secretary over Phil Murray, a member of the Commerce and Finance school, and Francis Williams, an Engineering student.

The office of treasurer was won by Lawrance Stead, a member of the Science school, while Gerald Kunz, Engineering student, ran a close second.

The other offices that were voted on were those of student council of which two members were to be selected from the class but due to various conditions that prevailed when the election close, a tie resulted. To remedy this, the Student Council announced that there would be another election for this office, to be held tomorrow during the noon hour in the dining hall.

EXTENSIVE COURSES AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Registration Begins on June 26 With Enlarged Curriculum Featuring Six-Week Session

Villanova College summer school sessions will begin on June 26 and continue until August 10, according to an announcement made yesterday by Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., dean of the summer and extension school.

Many new courses have been added to the curriculum, Father Bartley announced. In the field of education, Dr. William McHugh, professor of education, will give a course in abnormal psychology; Miss Veronica Michaels will conduct a course in visual aids, according to the new requirements of the State Department of Education; Rev. J. F. Hammond will offer a course in teaching sciences in the secondary schools.

Rev. Dr. John Burns, O. S. A., will give a graduate course in general medieval history. Dr. Jeremiah O'Sullivan will give a course in medieval monasticism. Arnold Cabrera, a native of Puerto Rico, will lecture on "Puerto Rico, Her Government and Its Problems, and History of Latin America.

Rev. John M. A. Sparrow, O. S. A., will offer a graduate course in the philosophy of Aristotle. Rev. Howard A. Grelis, O. S. A., will give a course in Christian Latin poetry.

The Villanova summer school was established 16 years ago. All summer courses are of collegiate or graduate grade and carry credit accordingly. Summer courses are on a two-semester hour basis and consist of 30 class-hours.

Summer school registration days will be June 26 to 28 inclusive at Villanova College, and June 29 at Hallahan High School for courses given at that institution.

that of former years, just as the Junior Week this year set several new records and precedents.

It is hoped by the members of the class that there might be more activity for the Seniors than has previously been possible. This hope was strengthened late yesterday, when it was unofficially stated that the Junior Prom had netted the class treasury approximately $300.

This figure it was said by the chairman was not of his issue, although he expected that the amount of clear profit would not come anywhere under the rumored figure. An official announcement will be made within the next 24 hours, when an account of the dance will be given publicly, through the medium of the various bulletin boards of the campus buildings.

A NECESSARY INVESTIGATION

DAILY disclosures in the courts reveal the need for the investigating committee appointed by the County Relief Board to start an immediate inquiry into the fraudulent acceptance of relief funds. Every means should be placed at the disposal of the committee in order that its investigations be complete and conclusive. Embracing if necessary a new check-up upon the economic circumstances of those who are receiving relief.

The "chiseler" who accepts state funds without having any real need for them not only stigmatizes the whole organization and its beneficiaries as being of doubtful honesty, but also turns public opinion against an agency, whose activities at this time are absolutely indispensable. A fact that is bound to have an unwholesome effect, when the continuation of the Relief Administration is dependant upon the public's bearing an increase in taxation. The crime of the "chiseler" is the most contemptible on the list of social evils—it is synonymous with robbing the poor-box, and as such merits the severest punishment.

Although it would be carrying the implications contained in these sordid revelation a little too far to assume that the Philadelphia Relief Administration is passively cognizant of the existing evils, the fact cannot be overlooked that barring political preference, the investigators cannot have adequately fulfilled their obligations to the positions they hold. Otherwise it would be difficult to explain why the large number who are receiving relief without having any actual need for it. Had the investigators exercised more care in their activities, it being unpleasant to think that their delinquencies may be due to any other cause, the State would not be forced to spend additional sums to remove these unprincipled individuals from the rolls, nor would the worthy recipients be forced into a position where their honesty is impugned.

SUNDAY MOVIES

ONE of the most controversial fights in the turbulent history of the Pennsylvania legislature is expected when the bill legalizing Sunday movies comes up for passage this week. Backed by liberal Republican and Democratic blocs the measure is conceded an even chance for victory.

Despite the adamant stand of church organizations, backed by the most powerful lobbying groups in the State, who are waging a desperate counter attack to scuttle the proposed legislation, it is hoped that the legislators will be far sighted enough to put their stamp of approval upon a measure that is long delayed.

With Pennsylvania one of the backward states in social legislation, old age pensions and workmens' compensation, the ban against legitimate Sunday recreation is but another step in relegating our state to the title "Fool of States."

Neighboring metropolitan centers have had a liberal Sunday for decades and there is no discernible evidence of degradation or of the people falling into moral decrepitude. On the contrary there is a greater feeling of relaxation for the laboring thousands who toil all week and desire some legitimate pleasure for one day at least.

On the practical side, much money going to interests outside the state would remain to enrich a sore best business industry. Again theatre tickets could be taxed and thus another source would be found to solve the state's be-muddled financial situation.

We are well advanced into the twentieth century and by any means of discernment it seems absurd, to say the least, that Pennsylvania should be governed by an eighteenth century law. The trend of the times, evidenced by the social legislation and security measures proposed by the national government, is for liberal law making.

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

IT MUST have been a sad blow to the Metropolitan Opera Company, the death of its new general manager, Herbert Witherspoon. He had hardly the time to take hold of the guiding reins of the famous opera house before his untimely death, but in his first few months in charge he had really injected the life-giving serum that was producing resuscitation. Now that he has died with his work undone, we wonder in which direction the opera backers will turn for an individual who will really devote himself to restoring opera to its proper plane in the amusement world.

Things are so dull around the Stock Exchange that the men there have perfected a game which very closely corresponds to actual stock trading. As a matter of fact, it was invented by the floor clerks a couple of years ago, you can imagine how little the floor clerks had to do a couple of years ago, but since then it has been taken up by the brokers themselves.

All that it amounts to is private trading in some hypothetical stock, and the closing price is determined by chance. Nobody knows, though, until trading is ended what the price is. Nineteen slips of paper are numbered from zero to eighteen, and eight slips are picked from the hat by players. The sum of the numbers picked will determine the stocks price, but during the buying and selling each player can only guess from his own slip whether the price will be high or low. Lowest possible total of eight slips would be 28; highest possible 116; average is 72. In the final reckoning, a thousand shares are worth a cent a point.

Trading is stopped by general agreement and the trading slips made out just as they are on the Exchange floor are turned over to a volunteer Clearing House.

CATHOLIC COLLEGE STUDENTS—IT IS YOUR DUTY TO YOUR COUNTRY TO ATTEND THE PEACE CONFERENCE

THE recent collegiate and scholastic demonstrations against war are still fresh in our memories. Students all over the nation marched in parades, gave speeches and forcefully proclaimed themselves for world peace, attacking munitions makers and industrialists as profiteers in war time, destroyers of domestic and international tranquility. It is high time that American students take an active interest in these affairs. For years on end our students were content to be known as "rah-rah" boys. But fortunately for the American Democracy, the depression changed their attitude and a new era is being ushered in. A more sober, serious minded student attends the schools of today. They realize that the world today faces an international crisis not unlike that of 1914. They realize that in 1917 students not unlike themselves were shipped to Eurpoe to be slaughtered or mangled for life. They are aroused to action and hold demostrations. Unfortunately, some were conducted under the auspices of radical groups and few riots followed.

But dishonest government officials and munitions makers now KNOW the attitude of most American students. They are unequivocally set against rearmament or war.

These demonstrations, however, did not officially contain in their numbers members of Catholic institutions. Most of the latter preferred to wait for a saner method of showing their stand against war. And they have not waited in vain, for their opportunity is at hand this Saturday when the Catholic Association for International Peace meets here at Villanova College. The public is invited. Catholic College students should do their utmost to attend the conferences. Men and women prominent in international pacifist organizations will present many current peace problems affecting world peace. Education and action toward a better understanding among nations will be a stressed topic of discussion.

By attending this convention, the Catholic students of today who will be the Catholic leaders of tomorrow will gain a far more valuable perspective on international problems affecting world peace than attendance at numberless "war strikes." It is the duty of Catholic American students to their country and themselves to attend the peace conference here Saturday, May 25.

With the Dorsey Brothers and their orchestra opening at the Glen Island Casino near New Rochelle, New York, next Thursday, Bob Crosby, who has been their featured vocalist, is organizing an orchestra of his own and will immediately play a five-week tour. The Dorseys returned to the air via WJZ-NBC on their opening night, May 16th, and are now heard twice weekly over the NBC other waves, and twice more over WOR-WLW-WGN...A survey conducted by Ruth Etting's sponsor among 7103 persons of all ages, throughout the East, showed Jack Benny's program the most popular, Miss Etting, the favorite woman singer, and Bing Crosby still overwhelmingly in the lead among the male singers...The ten most popular programs, in the order named, were Benny, Cantor, Penner, the Casa Loma Orchestra, Allen, Vallee, Waring, Show Boat, Amos 'n' Andy, and Wayne King. Miss Etting was followed by Grace Moore, Kate Smith, and Annette Hanshaw; Bing Crosby, with more votes than his rivals combined, by Frank Parker, Lawrence Tibbett, and Lanny Ross...

Ray Knight is peeved because the Pulitzer Prize Committee didn't consult him in making its awards. So on May 20th, with the help of his cuckoo, Dr. Knight uproariously named his own ers of Proze. Before awarding the prizes, Dean Knight was quoted as having said, "that it is not true that prizes will be awarded only to my friends. Of course, personal friends will receive first consideration, but then how many friends have I?"

Jack Benny, with Mary and the rest of them, heads into the fourth year of amusing a nation. No comedy on the air has the suave qualities of which Benny can boast. As it is, he keeps smoothing along ranks as radio's top comedian—and you might say, the world's.

He leads the flock because he makes himself the fall guy most of the time—a trick the old burlesque comics had to get sure-fire laughs.

ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGE EDITORS

GOVERNMENT: Of Hearst . . . By Coughlin . . For Huey Long

FOR HOW LONG?

They stood shoulder to shoulder in strangling the World Court—the Publisher, the Priest, and the Politician.

It was embarrassing to be found in the same bed. They blushed becomingly and moved a little apart for awhile ....the Publisher, the Priest, and the Politician.

And now they are together again ....behind the bonus gram....the Publisher, the Priest and the Politician.

Said the Publisher, shyly, in his many papers:

"Why economize only in the case of the Veterans? Why be penurious of them? They have rendered the most signal service that citizens can possibly render to their nation.

"And they are rendering the greatest service of citizenship today..They are the defense of the American faith, the protectors of American liberties, the maintainers of peace and order, the opponents of the enemy from without and from within."

"The Boys" will appreciate that. They will help the Publisher preserve America from rape by Reds.

Said the Priest, shyly, over a nationwide hook-up:

"Go immediately to your telephone or to your telegraph office... ..Wire your Senators and tell them that it is your demand as one of their constituents that they support the Patman plan and not the graft plan ordinarily called the Vinson plan.

The Publisher and the Priest were drawing together again. Wrote the Publisher's Brisbane, shyly, in his TODAY for 30,000,000 of the "People Who Think:"

"An interesting political speech is that of the Reverend Father Charles E. Coughlin, delivered in Cleveland. Referring to his organization, he said:

'Hereafter, anyone who writes a platform for a Presidential candidate must consult the National Union for Social Justice.'

"He added: 'The members of the National Union are stronger than the President!'."

Said the Politician: "Amen and hot dog."

Oh, the Publisher, the Priest, and the Politician, they are together again....hey nonny, nonny....my country 'tis of such as these.

George Washington, Father of our country and patron saint of the Publisher, lies a-whirling in his grave.

There are a few who think—deeply—about the "Unholy Alliance." Unfortunately, undergraduates are the only "thinking Americans" who are young and foolish enough to ACT.

At two colleges, Williams and Amherst, undergraduates have forced their local theatre to stop running the Hearst Metrotone "News." (The quotes are ours.)

At Princeton and Vassar, names are piling up on a petition to the local theatre...STOP THE HEARST "NEWS."

Editor Jane Whitebread writes in the Vassar News:

"Hearst And The Movies"

"First, as students who can read and evaluate, and, second, as Nuernan bill protesters, we have had enough experience with the Hearst outfit to be well aware of what this gentleman feels, and thinks—if we can attribute this last quality to him. With the most honorable motives in the world, so he frequently says, he is keeping America safe for Americans, who, in his terminology, can be defined as the favored few who have had nothing to complain of in the last ten years. He accomplishes this by various means which range from war movies to press campaigns against liberals and foreign countries, and for battleships. He would like to see free speech in this country for himself and his followers at least.

"Mr. Hearst may feel sincerely, as he sits in his California ranch directing a 'buy American' campaign to be printed in his papers, reputedly made from Canadian pulp—that he has a mission to save America. But the fact remains that his papers are building the case for war, for suppression, for the dictatorship of the few. As students and as future job hunters we are going to suffer if Hearst's world comes into being. By supporting the petitions sponsored by the Political Association we shall be taking our stand for journalism based on fact, not fancy, for government which is progressive, not regressive, for justice, not bigotry.

"Theatres are not interested in supporting Hearst in preference to another News feature. Their primary aim is to give the audience what it wants. The support of 1200 people is important to the Poughkeepsie theatres."

As the boycott against the Hearst Metrotone "News" spreads among the colleges in the East, Dr. Charles A. Beard's indictment of the Publisher invades the West, stronghold of the Great White Adopted Father of our country.

Read them again....and again. Editor Gordon Greaves, of the New Mexico Lobo reprints them.

"In the course of the past 50 years I have talked with Presidents of the United States, Senators, Justices of the Supreme Court, members of the House of Representatives, governors, mayors, bankers, editors, college presidents, leading men of science, Nobel Prize winners in science and letters, and I have never found one single person who for talents and character commands the respect of the American people, who has not agreed with me that William Randolph Hearst has pandered to depraved tastes and has been an enemy of everything that is noblest and best in the American tradition. Alfred Smith—a true friend of public education—added to his many deserved laurels when before a cheering multitude in New York he defied Mr. Hearst. The answer of the people of New York was final and conclusive.

"There is not a cesspool of vice and crime which Hearst has not raked and exploited for money-making purposes. No person with intellectual honesty or moral integrity will touch him with a ten-foot pole for any purpose or to gain any end. Unless those who represent American scholarship, science, and the right of a free people to discuss public questions, freely, stand together against insidious influences he will assassinate them individually by every method known to his yellow press. Only cowards can be intimidated by Hearst."

Penned Thoughts

By Ben Maloney

ONE BY ONE

One by one the sands are flowing
In life's hourglass so small;
Some are coming; others going;
No need to grasp them all.

One by one our duties beckon.
We must put our strength to each;
On the future we'll never reckon,
Till we learn what these can teach.

One by one our griefs approach us,
We must face the armed foe,
Lest a braver one reproach us
For flinching as we go.

All these things make up God's token.
We reach Heaven one by one;
Bear them, lest the chain be broken
Ere your earthly journey's done.

As We See It . . . In Conclusion

By HARRY PARKIN

THE pathways of Hell are said to be paved with good intentions—things that never have a more material existence than as figments of the mind—things, that in the contentment of possession, lull the spirit's craving for accomplishment with the promise of future realization. They are the only solace of an indeterminate mind, which failing to reconcile its activities with its conjectures, seeks some consolation in the anticipation of putting them into practice. What, however, is more immediately to the point is our disinclination to have the intentions that prompted the writing of this column fall into that rather dismal category.

During the time that the space allotted to this column was at our disposal, we sought to conduct it with but one purpose in mind, and that was the amusement of the reader. After this rather difficult assignment had been considered, it was intended, providing, of course, that there should be a gram or two remaining to be instructive—not in the formal manner with which we usually associate instruction, but in the friendly, armchair short of fashion that is more to stimulate thoughtfulness on the part of the reader, than it is o reveal the didactic tendencies of the speaker. By choosing subjects which at some time or another are connected with the daily routine of our lives, we have attempted to present them to the reader in the various aspects with which we are accustomed to meet them, and from this consideration to choose a course of conduct which will be most fitting and conducive to a moral and cultured life. If we have failed in this purpose it was more through lack of time and ability than it was personal indisposition.

It seems to be a characteristic of the finest ideals that at times they should become shoddy, but it is similarly, the ability to see through the restrictions that seem to limit them, and the incrustations that appear to hide their actual worth, and to continue striving toward the realization of principles which we know to be inherently noble, that discriminates between the probability of their ultimate accomplishment or failure. For next t. the dignity of our ideals the most important thing the steps we take toward their realization.

In concluding this series of articles we hope that the failings of this year will be but an added incentive toward the improvement of those of the forthcoming year.

In the Library

WHAT PROFIT can the Villanova student receive from a knowledge of fundamentals of cataloguing? Perhaps the most satisfactory answer can be procured from a lower-class man out of business school. For, during the last term they have been instructed by Sister Borremeo on how to use the Villanovan Library. These students report that they have gleaned invaluable information and have expressed nothing but praise for having the opportunity of taking this course. Why, you ask? Here is a very practical reason.

Have you been one of those who have had difficulties in finding material for thesis work or term papers? If you have not, consider yourself lucky. If you are not graduating from these hallowed halls, it is highly probable that you will be at a loss for material before you do graduate. This all brings us to the point. The business men have learned about the new Vertical File Service Catalogue which has recently come into vogue, and which is found on the Index shelf of the library. The Vertical File Service includes a monthly catalogue which records pamphlets available, with descriptive notes and information as to the price and conditions under which they may be secured. There is a pamphlet file in the library and Miss Carlin, Librarian, states that it is of representative size, now. This file contins informative and concise pamphlets pertaining to all current and important questions. If the one you want is not on file, the Librarian will gladly secure it for you.

The business students have found them of use for the writing of papers. Why not take advantage of these pamphlets yourself? Come down to the library and you will find that the staff is only too glad to inform you about the "Vertical File Catalogue" or about any other fundamental relating to the use of the library.

The day is looked for when, at least, all the Freshmen are given a course in how to use the library. For only then will the Villanovan library mean what it should to the Villanova student.

Help Yourself Library

There is a Library containing over 1,000 volumes in the church parish of St. Simon Stock, Putney, England. Would-be borrowers are invited to walk in and help themselves. There is no one in charge, and, although many volumes are borrowed, it is seldom that they are lost. The library is the only one of its kind in the country. (This paragraph abstracted from the magazine entitled "Libraries", is of interest, if true).

If you remember, this column published a list of "lady-like" towns in the United States, taken from the gazetteer of Webster's dictionary. In order that the ladies will not have all the glory of naming towns in the United States, we give you the following: Abie, Neb., Howard, Colo., Stanley, Okla., Percey, N. H., Willard, N. C., Joshua N. Y., Oswald, W. Va., Archie, Mo., Jack, Ala., Ralf, Mich Edward, N. C., Gus, Ky., Adolf, Minn.

Summer school students will be interested to know that the library has recently installed approximately one hundred and fifty volumes which are to be used in conjunction with the courses to be given this Summer. No longer will you have to seek elsewhere for the readings required in these courses.

Speaking of superficial knowledge the "Libraries" quotes a story along this line:

"The other day a young man of culture found himself for an hour in the company of a charming young lady who essayed to be a reader of many books. The conversation soon found a literary channel, when the young man chanced to mention Scott's Lady of The Lake." Oh, I have read it a dozen times, I suppose," was the young lady's exclamation.

"And," continued the young man, "are not his powers of description marvelous? One can almost see the actors and the magnificent mountain scenery portrayed."

"Oh! it is most charming," replied the young lady.

"And Scott's Marmion, I suppose you have read that?"

"Oh, yes! it is simply grand, isn't it?"

"And," proceeded the young man, "Scott's Emulsion?"

"Yes, indeed," the young lady exclaimed, "I believe it is the best thing he ever wrote!"

Seniors, Sister Borromeo urges that you leave a reminder of the days you enjoyed in the library, to the future students of Villanova. And this can best be done by denoting those books which will no longer be of use t. you.

BULLETIN FEATURED BY ORIGINAL WORK

School of Science Publication Emraces Laboratory Experiments and Pictorial Motif

After many weeks of diligent work by the staff, the Mendel Bulletin is finally on the press and it will be ready for distribution on Tuesday, May 28th.

The Bulletin will be unique in contents as it consists mainly of original laboratory work performed by the science students themselves. These theses are accompanied with photomicrographis and actual photographs of the experiments involved.

Besides the students' theses there are three supplementary treatises on the "Polymerization of Isoprene," "Treatment and Care of Patients Inflicted With Cancer," and "The Detection of Isopropyl Alcohol," submitted respectively by Father Hammond, Sister Monica, and Mr. S. H. Fleming.

Supplementing the theses, each performer has his photograph on the page on which the article appears.

Featuring the bulletin are the pictures of Gregor Johann Mendel, Dr. O. F. Rice, winner of this year's Mendel Medal, and a color picture of the Blessed Virgin Mother to whom the issue is dedicated.

The editors, Raffaele Violetti and Augustine Ranieri want to take this opportunity to thank the members of the staff for their cooperation in the editing of the bulletin.

The members of hte staff are as follows: Walter D'Alonzo, Louis D'Angelo, George Covalla, Daniel Fitzpatrick, Pasquale Quarini, John Laurusonis, Joseph Medoff, William Morris, Joseph Popelarsky, Anthony Repici, and Joseph Sciuto.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR NEXT YEAR ACTIVITIES

Fr. Brown Commends Catholic Press Apostolate For Excellent Work

Officers for the forthcoming year were elected at the Catholic Press Apostolate meeting held last Friday.

Those placed in office are: Joseph Arthur, junior in the School of Commerce and Finance, president; Benedict Maloney, sophomore in the School of Arts, vice-president; and Robert Becker, freshman in the School of Arts, secretary.

Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the society, expressed his thanks and commended the members for their excellent work during the past year. Fr. Brown also stated that there are great possibilities for the society next year.

SPEAKER TO BE CHOSEN IN THURSDAY SEMINAR

Outstanding Junior Orator Will Receive Murtaugh Gold Medal At Commencement

On Thursday, May 23rd, at 11:40 A. M., in Room 104, Mendel Hall, the annual Junior Oratorical Contest of the School of Arts and Letters, will be held in conjunction with the weekly seminar. Three men will be asked by Professor Joseph T. Jonas, A. M., M. O., to judge the contest.

R. Martinez Alvarez, John J. Hosey, Jr., and Raymond McGunnigle will be the final members of the Class of 1936 to present their orations before the judges. Messrs Alvarez and Hosey, were formerly connected with the Villanova Literary Society, and have made themselves notable in that line.

The gold medal for this contest, which is known formally as the Award for Excellence in Public Speaking, is given by Rev. Edward J. Murtaugh, O. S. A. Special recognition during the commencement exercises is also given the winner of the contest.

143 STUDENTS GET AWARDS FOR MERIT

Walter Coyle, Senior Engineer, Receives Five; Several Win Four

From the 44 extra-curricula activities of which there are 18 moderators there were 546 students suggested for the honor. In proving the value of such awards one must consider the number that were first submitted for the award from the various schools which they attend. In the first list there were 134 students from the Commerce and Finance school, 74 from the school of Technology, while the Science department ran a close third with 71 students, and the Arts section completed the list with 62. After the scholastic records, chapel, and discipline records were considered the total number of students to receive the awards were 143. Here the standing of the schools changed with the Engineering school leading the list with 38, the Arts with 35, while the Science school had only less for a close third, and the Commerce and Finance school finished the list with 34. A complete list of award winners and their activities appear in the box to the right of this column.

REV. JOHN F. BURNS ENDS SERIES TALKS

Professor of History Speaks On Comparative Protestantism in Final Lecture

The concluding lecture in the annual series of Alumni discussions was delivered last evening when the Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Ph. D., professor of history at the college, presented an address entitled "Comparative Protestantism" in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance School on the college campus.

In concluding the last of three presentations, Fr. Burns ably upheld the reputation of the Villanova faculty by delivering a very interesting discussion on modern day problems. Speaking with an excellent diction and clear voice, the popular campus educator favorably impressed a large Monday evening gathering which filled the spacious room to the doors.

In its two previous presentations, the Alumni had as guest speakers two outstanding professional leaders. David J. Smyth, Esq., City Solicitor of Philadelphia, spoke on City Government and in a learned manner outlined the problems and complications confronting the present day office holder. John A. Kolmer, M. D., D. SC., LL. D., professor of medicine at Temple University, discussed "Susceptibility Immunity and Vaccination for Infantile Paralysis." Endeavoring as far as possible to avoid technical language, Dr. Kolmer enthralled an appreciative gathering with modern methods of combatting one of the most tenacious plagues that has ever confronted mankind. If Dr. Kolmer's hypothesis is correct, infantile paralysis might become a forgotten disease.

Due to the increased interest manifested this year, the Alumni Association will continue the popular series next fall. Although plans are in a tentative stage, it is thought that the presentations will be greatly enlarged with speakers from all walks of life engaging in a forum extending over a period of many weeks.

FR. VRANA GIVES LECTURE

Father Vrana, O. S. A., of Villanova College, gave a lecture with accompanyiing moving pictures based on life at Villanova College at St. Nicholas of Tolentine School in New York city Thursday of last week.

FR. HICKEY RETURNS

Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O. S. A., assistant general with residents of General Curia at Rome, arrived Wednesday, May 8, in New York City. Upon his return to Philadelphia he took up his headquarters at Villanova. Fr. Hickey is a former president of Villanova College.

SPANISH CLUB RECEIVES LETTER OF COMMENDATION

Federico de Onis, Director of Spanish at Columbia University, Says Club Is Promising

The president of the Spanish Club received a letter from Federico de Onis, director of Spanish at Columbia University. Mr. Onis is the Spanish-American representative in America and editor of the "Revista Hispanica Moderna" the magazine of the Spanish club at Columbia University.

In his letter, Mr. Onis stated that he would like to have a resume of the activities of the Spanish Club at Villanova College and also a picture of the members of the club so that he may publish it in the magazine. The Spanish Club was congratulated for its efforts during the past year. He mentioned the fact that "La Prensa", a Spanish newspaper in New York City has recommended the club as one of the most promising and active among Eastern colleges.

Engineers Induct New Term Leaders At Final Meeting

Civil Engineering Group Chooses Monroe As Presiding Officer for Next Year

The American Society of Civil Engineers at its last meeting of the school year, held during the past week, combined nominations and elections to put William Munroe at the helm of the society for the year 1935-36.

Other members of the organization who were elected to office are: Edward McHugh, vice-president; Mario Menacal, secretary, and Jean Sharkey, treasurer. These men replace Guy Dolente, Charles Kain, Thomas McGowen, and Walter Coyle, officers of the past year.

William Munroe distinguished himself during the past year as the chairman of the Committee on Tours and Inspections. Arrangements by Mr. Munroe included trips through the Baldwin Locomotive Works at Chester, the Adam Scheidt Brewery in Norristown, the Philadelphia Sewage Disposal Plants, and the Portland Cement Company.

Further tours of inspection of various engineering factories and plants have been planned by him for the ensuing school season, and the society expects an even more extensive program under the new officers.

TURN IN SCORE CARDS

Unless all score cards are handed in, the Intramural Golf Award will be given to the Dayhops, and the points will go to the Commuters. All score cards must be handed in to Jack Geraghty at the VILLANOVAN office before next Thursday.

NOMINATIONS MADE BY LITERARY GROUP

Moderator Lists Eligible Aspirants and Announces Plans For Coming Year

Nominations for the various offices in the Villanova Literary Society were held during the past week and the following nominees were recorded: For president, John Hallahan, Robert McGrory, Martinez Alvarez; for vice president, John Hallahan, Robert McGrory, Martinez Alvarez, Joseph Carroll, Joseph Denny and Aloysius Fitzpatrick; for recording secretary, corresponding secretary, treasurer and sergeant-at-arms the following members of the society were eligible for office: Victor Ashe, Douglas Brockhurst, Joseph Carroll, Joseph Denny, Aloysius Fitzpatrick, Richard Foote, Joseph Hallahan, Philip Kerr, Robert McGrory, John Simons, Joseph Toland, John Pillion, Emili Matthias and George Matheus.

Members were to sign their names to distributed ballots and hand them in at the book room. At the present time due to the large number of aspirants for office the votes have not been tabulated.

Professor Joseph T. Jonas, A. M. M. O., moderator of the society, announced that the returns will be available within the next few days, and at the same time announced that very ambitious plans of the organization for the coming year are in the tentative stage.

The society beginning with the return of the members to classes next autumn will endeavor to present a representative production, an enterprise which was not produced this year because of lack of facilities.

BELLE AIR WILL APPEAR FOR STUDENTS NEXT WEEK

Editors of Publication Claim This Edition to Be Most Outstanding One

George Malhame, editor of the Belle Air for 1935, announced yesterday that the publication would appear for distribution early next week. According to Mr. Malhame the year book is now being printed but due to the very large range which the material therein had to cover it was impossible for the annual to be at the disposal of the students before the early part of next week.

Francis Bigley, photographic editor, stated that this year's book would show a far greater variety and choice of pictures than has ever been shown in any previous edition. A complete list of athletic pictures as well as events happening right on the campus among the students will make the publication this year more outstanding than ever before.

Dare-Devil of Air Ways Postpones Students' Knife and Fork Ceremony

By RAY GOMES

When a resident student leaves the dining room after finishing his meals, it is customary. But when such a student rushes out in the middle of his repast, that is news.

Such an incident occurred last Sunday during supper time when a deep resounding roar echoed about the campus. Immediately the entire occupants of the dining room, including waiters and all, dashed out upon the campus in front of Mendel Hall to seek the cause of the mysterious disturbance.

Pairs of eyes became glued above the ground where a monoplane dived down over Mendel field like an angry hornet almost touching the ground, brushing the treetops, and polishing the brass knobs on the buildings. For about 15 minutes the hungry Villanovans were entertained by the mad antics and capers of the aviator above.

Several spectators on the field feaering that they might be struck by the plane ducked and scattered. However, the plane after almost stalling twice decided to leave the boys below in peace and left just as noisily as it had arrived.

Another rush ensued to the dining room and forks and knives were once more engaged in serious opcration. It was a lucky thing for the aviator of the plane that no air official was around or he might have had his license suspended. Take heed—air devils.

HERE'S the last column for a long while. Lots of things will be happening and the biggest is Finals. After them, I don't care. This year has seen a great number of new thrills in Villanova sports. Most of them are gone, but not forgotten. But next year, we have a great football outfit coming up, an excellent basketball team, and next spring, baseball looks fair enough. Anyway, this year was good enough, but next year, that'll be twice as good.

This Man Peacock

This man Peacock is all they say he is and more. Consider what the sterling Negro did. He went into the 100 and did it in 9.5. But .1 of a second under the world's record. In this race, Fritz Monahan must be commended. Just a few feet behind the Templar, he stepped along to complete the century in 9.9, ordinarily good enough to win anywhere.

Peacock then went into the javelin throw and took a third. In the broad jump, he broke a meet record for the second time that afternoon. In the high jump, he seconded behind his teammate, Al Threadgill.

—V—

Jim Elliott took two firsts, the 880 and the 440. Peacock won the hundred and the broad jump. They are lined up for the 220, the gun cracks and they're off. Peacock leads, but on the turn, Elliott catches up and passes the brawny black. Jim is giving all he has, but Peacock exerts one last effort and passes Jim ten yards from the finish to win by two feet. The meet is over, and Peacock has beaten Villanova.

—V—

Scout Fever

Frankie Skaff has been hitting them out quite lustily again. In the Boston College game, the dark one slammed five hits, and previously, hit two circuit clouts in the Bucknell game to just about break it up. Frank is leading the collegiate home-run hitters of the nation, and doing quite well, thank you.

With all of Abie Collin's talk about baseball scouts haunting the campus the school is getting spy crazy in a big way. The baseballers are afraid to look crosseyed for fear that it will blank their chances for a major league try-out.

—V—

The scouts seem to have it in for Frankie Skaff, Link Lenzi and Ben Geraghty. The three boys are tops in their positions and deserve all the breaks they can get. Leo Schoppmeyer should be looking for some attention in a few years. He's a nice ball player.

—V—

Orchids

Now for the outstanding athletes of the year.

EDDIE MICHAELS, for his rock of Gibraltar line play, and great breaking up of passes; CHARLIE NOWE, for the topnotch centre play he showed; BILL GRIMBERG, a grand captain; PAT MARQUETTE, who, although very sick, had guts enough to finish out the intramural mile; JOHNNY SHEVLIN for making all the forwards he opposed look very cick; JOHNNY TORPEY, for some nice center jumping; JACK ROBINSON, who took our breath away with his side court shots; BEN GERAGHTY, for basketball and baseball, (two orchids); JOHNNY STRONG, for going through a swimming season almost undefeated; JACK TORPEY, sorry he had to resign as intramural chairman; LARRY KELLY, for the nice take-up job he did; JIM McNERNEY, who won 90 per cent of his matches on the links; JOHNNY DEPERSIO, who was a dark horse in the beginning of the golf season; FRANKIE SKAFF, for lots of things; EDDIE VAUGHN, for a grand pitching job; TOM COLLINS, the pitcher, not the cocktail; LEO SCHOPPMEYER, for making second base look easy; JIM ELLIOTT, as captain of golf and track, he was the best captain on the campus; LOU MARECHAL, a swell exsports editor; FRITZ MONAHAN, who looks great for next year; LINK LENZI, bestest backstop and a .400 hitter.

NINE HAS SIX GAME STREAK

EIGHT MEET MARKS FALL AS OWLS WIN DUAL TILT, 91-35

Peacock, Sensational Negro, Gets 19 Points to Take Individual Honors

JIM ELLIOTT TAKES FIRSTS IN QUARTER AND HALF

Carl Hickey Breaks Pole Vault Mark With Loft Of 12 Ft. 6 In.

Led by Eulace Peacock, sensational speed king, the trackmen of Temple invaded the confines of Villanova last Saturday and annexed their fifth victory in the series of dual meets held annually between the colleges, topping the Wildcats, 91 to 35.

In a thrill-packed afternoon which saw the fall of eight meet marks, Peacock was by far the outstanding performer. Despite an injured leg muscle, the negro star scorched the cinder of the century course in 9.5 seconds, just .1 of a second short of the world record, beating Fritz Monahan, Villanova runner, by three strides. To this Eulace added a win in the broad jump with the record leap of 24 ft. 9¾ in., a first in the 220 yd. sprint, a second in the high jump and a third in the javelin. Peacock collected a grand total of 19 points, to outdistance his rival for individual honors, the Wildcat's "Jumbo" Elliott.

Elliott Wins Two

Elliott ran beautifully in the half-mile, permitting Milliken, of Temple, to set the pace most of the way, but stepping away with ease on the home stretch to win by two feet in 2 minutes, 5.6 seconds. Jim also had no trouble in taking the 440, again beating out Milliken in the time of 53 seconds. Elliott took a second place in the 220, trailing Peacock by a yard. Monahan ran third.

Hickey Breaks Record

Villanova's Carl Hickey, who later placed second to Peacock in the broad jump, shattered the meet mark in capturing the pole vault, topping the bar at 12 ft., 6 in. Hibschmabb, of Temple, was second with 11 ft. Walt Korchinski also knocked a rung off the shelf his event, edging out Hibschmabb by eight inches.

Dave Smuckler, the Owl's football ace, contributed to his team's total by tossing the shotput 48 ft. 3 in., a new Temple as well as meet mark. Leib, of Temple, placed second, while Ed Sullivan won a third for the Wildcats.

Shot put—Won by Dave Smukler, Temple; 48 feet 3 inches; second, John Leib, Temple, 40 feet 1½ inches; third, E. Sullivan, Villanova, 39 feet 11 inches (new meet record).

120-yard high hurdles—Won by Charley Gaige, Temple; second, Donald McKinnon, Temple; third, Sydney Shatrow, Temple. Time, 15.3 seconds (new meet record).

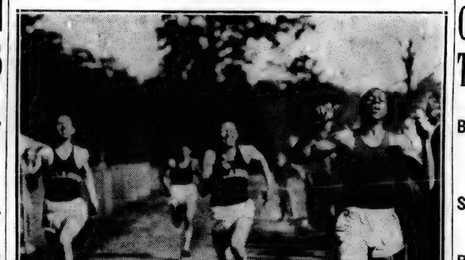
440-yard run—Won by Jim Elliott, Villanova; second, John Milliken, Temple; third, Alex Kramer, Villanova. Time, 53 seconds.

Pole vault—Won by Carl Hickey, Villanova, 12 feet 6 inches; second, Wilcox Hibschmann, Temple, 12 feet 0 inches; third, Joseph Mente, Temple, 11 feet (new meet record).

Mile—Won by Walter Nachoney, Temple; second, Charles Flounders, Temple; third, Michael Graybill, Temple. Time, 5 minutes 8 seconds.

High jump—Won by Alfred Threadgill, Temple, 6 feet ¼ inch; second, Wilcox Peacock, Temple, 5 feet 9 inches; third, Carl Hickey, Villanova, 5 feet 8 inches (new meet record).

One Bird a Cat Couldn't Catch



PEACOCK WINNING 220

Temple's extraordinary athlete, who, after winning the 100-yard dash in 9.5 seconds, comes back to take the 220 in 22.5, just edging out Jim Elliott, 'Cat track captain, who won the 440 and 880. Peacock also won the broad jump, and placed in the high jump and javelin.

Foley Leaves for Baer's Camp Today Conceding Braddock Little Chance

This afternoon at 2:30 P. M. Joseph Foley, coach of Villanova's boxing team will board a train at 30th and Market Sts., for the training camp of Max Baer, heavyweight champion of the world, at Asbury Park, N. J. Foley will arrive in the North Jersey resort late in the afternoon and will probably go into action the following day.

The champ will box six or eight rounds daily. Foley will be used to help increase the speed of Maxie. Two rounds will be allotted to each sparring partner. Foley looks at the fight more less as an exhibition for Herr Maxie. He figures it to go no more than eight rounds.

"Braddock Weak," Claims Foley

"Braddock is a veteran of many years campaigning and his legs will not hold up under the pace that Max will set." "Baer, on the other hand, is only a youngster and is gradually placing himself among the list of heavyweight immortals. He is without a doubt one of the greatest fighters to enter the ring."

For the past three weeks Foley has been keeping in shape by doing four miles of road work daily. In addition he is pounding the bag and doing a bit of shadow boxing.

Joe in Fine Shape

When he arrives at the Baer camp he will be in the best condition of his young career . . . and it would have to be his best condition . . . .for when a fighter is preparing to defend his title he must have the best available help on hand to get him into fighting trim.

The general consensus strings along with Foley in his prediction of the fight not lasting more than eight heats. Braddock has just come out of retirement, recently scoring a fifteen round decision over Art Lasky in Madison Square Garden. On the other hands he is likely to spring a surprise and punch his way into the world's championship, but this is very unlikely.

Boxing Card Announced

Comes the announcement from Coach Foley that the boxing schedule will be one of the toughest on any college roster.

University of Western Maryland from Westminster will be encountered on alien fields. The two large Philadelphia universities, Penn and Temple will be met at the Villanova College gym.

Contact has been made with Penn State College and Yale University. The only hitch is the settling of a date. The State College meet is an outgrowth of the football game and is held for the establishing of relations between the two institutions.

Manhattan College and New York University, both from the New York district, have written for meets but nothing definite has been said about scheduling them.

Thorne Gains Only Singles Win; Villanova Takes Both Doubles Matches

Albright's tennis team took the measure of Villanova last Friday when the 'Cats lost by 5 to 4. Villanova won both doubles matches, and Thorne was the lone singles winner.

Bill Thorne's match was the feature of the meet. Playing against Garrigan, of Albright, he won his first set, 6-3, with ease. In the second set, Garrigan tied up the match by taking it, 4-6, but Thorne came back to smash Garrigan, 6-1.

Villanova took both doubles matches, although hard pressed at times;

Boston College Downed, 13-3; Skaff and Mahan Slug In Seven Runs

SKAFF HITS TWO HOMERS IN BUCKNELL GAME

Providence Humbled, 6-2, As Eddie Vaughn Allows Four Hits

Villanova won its sixth consecutive game last Friday afternoon thereby making it nine out of twelve games played. The thirteen to three victory was gained at the expense of Boston College and was played at Newton, Mass.

Although Tom Collins, the Wildcats' twirler, gave up ten safe blows the final score proves that he was invincible in the pinches, keeping the hits well scattered.

For the first time this year Villanova's two sluggers, Frankie Skaff and Art Mahan, got together and had a field day with their willows, Skaff getting five out of six and Mahan connecteing for three out of four. Skaff's blows were two triples and three singles while Mahan contributed a home run and three singles to the rain of bingles that fell from Villanova's bats.

Scouts at B. C.

While Villanova was pounding the ball to all corners of the field and Boston College was vainly trying to bunch their hits in order that they might win the game a couple of men sat in the stands who probably neither saw nor cared which team won the ball game. They had come to see two men perform and their eyes were filled. One man was a scout for the Boston Red Sox and the other was a scout for the New York Yankees. And the men they had come to see well, there were none other than Villanova's first sacker and the young man who guards the hot corner for the 'Cats.

Vaughan Takes Providence

Stopping off at Providence, R. I., on their New England tour last Thursday, May 16, the Wildcats trounced the Providence College nine 6 to 2. With practically everything in his favor during the two hour and twelve minute fray, Eddie Vaughn, Villanova pitcher, had little trouble in holding the Friars to four hits.

Frank Skaff, third sacker for the Main Liners did not hit his usual homer but with Link Lenzi driving out two triples and a double no one missed Skaff's usual circuit clout. Mahan and O'Meara each collected two hits.

With the score tied at 2-all in the sixth, Villanova got a break in the seventh when Gallagher, the Friars' center fielder, allowed Mahan's single to get by him and three runs to score. Lenzi and Mahan led off in Villanova's first two runs. Lenzi tripled to left in the first and scored on Mahan's fly to center.

Lenzi opened the third with another triple and Gallagher followed with a double, Zimkus singled in the seventh and Geraghty walked. With two down Mahan singled and Gallagher made the misplay that let in the three runs. Providence scored in the fourth on a hit batter, walk and single.

McKeemen Score Easy Victory in Track Meet

Austin Takes Intra-murals With 84; Alumni Second

Christopher Is Outstanding Individual Scorer for Winners; Grimberg Stars For Third-Place Gigolos

880-YARD RELAY PROVIDES THRILL

Austin Hall's track and field aspirants romped off with the Intra-mural Meet, held last Wednesday and Thursday afternoons on the local track. In so doing the Austinites captured six and tied for a seventh of the possible 13 first places and took the majority of second and third places to give them a comfortable margin. The total amassed by the McKeemen was 84 to the 51 gathered by the second position Alumni Hall. The Gigolos of Fedigan finished third with 27½.

The Day Hops, who at first were declared as holding the cellar position managed to eke their way out of it by gathering 18 points, finishing 2½ ahead of the Mendel freshmen.

Bill Christopher's outstanding performance was mainly responsible for 18 points toward the McKeemen score.

Heretofore Bill has confined himself to the football field, but his brilliant show on the cinder path marks him as an outstanding speedster.

Football Men Shine

Other football men who distinguished themselves were: Grimberg, Kotys, Korchinski, Michaels, Blanchard and the freshman candidate Kuehns.

Alumni, which finished second, took four firsts and split a fifth in the pole vault when Noonan and Torpey of the winners reached the crossbar at ten foot six, but could go no further it was decided to let the event stand at a tie. The major portion of the Old Guards were divided among Kuehns, who had a double victory in the 220 and quarter mile runs; Rogers, Noonan and Raimo.

The victory in the two twenty sprint brought about much dispute, as the officials had previously declared Christopher the winner, however, after a lot of dickering the decision was reversed and the event awarded to Kuehns.

Ben Maloney, a representative of the winners in the distance runs, although hard pressed throughout won both the 880 yard and the mile runs. Others who figured prominently in the win were: Torpey, with a tie for first, one second and a third; Korchinski, with a first and second; Michaels had two thirds and a fifth place; Kotys had two seconds and a fifth. Single winners were Coyle, Shealy, Lee, Higgins, Sala and Marrazzo.

Nye Wins Shot Put

The Mendel aggregation which has shown itself rather disappointing during the spring sports took the other first place when Nye heaved the 12 pound shot 44 ft. 8½ in. Weber was the only double winner for the "penthouse" clan.

Bill Grimberg bore the brunt of the Fedigan attempt. His contribution of a first, two seconds and a third were good for 18 points, which was more than half of the total gathered by the third place Gigolos.

Shealy Stars in Relay

The 880-yd. relay provided the biggest thrill of the meet. It appeared that the Austinites would surely cop the event, since in running the 220 dash four of the five places went to them. However the lead-off man, Michaels, got off to a very poor start and Fedigan with two teams in the race held a comfortable lead. Kotys and Mayell running hard to cut off the big advantage were faced by an inspired bunch of Fediganites and found themselves losing ground. Fox, running anchor for the A team, of Fedigan, started the last leg with a 15-yard lead on Shealy who was the last runner for Austin. But it was at this stage that the greatest burst of speed for the afternoon was displayed as Shealy passed Fox going away strong at the tape.

Summary and Winners of the Events

Discus throw—Won by Rogers, Alumni; second, Korchinski, Austin; third, Earle Alumni; fourth, Higgins, Austin; fifth, Sala, Austin. (99 ft. 6 in.)

DAYHOPS CLINCH INTRAMURAL GOLF

Lack of Opposition Carries Commuters to Lead In Tournament

In a final summary of the intra-mural golf tournament, it was found that the day-hops carried away the honors. John Bruno, sophomore day-hop, won the annual tourney with a card of 87. The tournament was held at the St. Davids course, on the Main Line, May 9. Sam Canale, another sophomore day-hop, came in second with 90; while R. Murphy and Pelusso tied for third place with 93.

It was a splendid day for golf. The sun was shining, and a slight breeze made it neither too hot nor too cool. The St. David's course is known for its excellent greens and its well-kept fairways.

Leaving the weather conditions and returning to the subject of discussion, we find that, including Murphy and Pelusso, seven men shot under a 100. Par for the course is 72. The course is rather difficult, however, with many traps, and therefore some of the scores recorded are not really as bad as they may seem.

Olivaro and Chappel, residents, were right behind the third place men with a card of 94 each. Christopher was the other man to shoot below a 100. Three other day-hops follow with scores of 101, 108, and 109. These men, Calliet, Paden, and Geraghty, respectively.

Two other residents, Alfano and Zanni, did not complete the round of 18 holes, the reason being, strange as it may seem, that they lost all their balls. Balls are expensive!

This concludes the list of cards turned in. Of these cards, the day-hops showed the best scores, and were, therefore, awarded the honors.

As it was the first day out for many of the boys, scores turned in were surprisingly good. Those of the fellows not satisfied with their score of the first round wished to start a second; (Do or die spirit) but this idea was vetoed by the officials.

FROSH RALLY DOWNS URSINUS CUBS IN ELEVENTH INNING

Kittens Score Third in Row As Escott Hits Homer, Scoring Two

CUBS TAKE LEAD EARLY; GAME TIED IN 9TH, 10-10

Five Runs Scored in Last Frame as Escott Goes To Third on Error

By JAMES A. FITZPATRICK

Villanova College's freshman baseball team swept to its third victory in as many starts last week in trapping the Cubs of Ursinus at the latters' own hunting grounds by a score of 15 to 10. The contest was rather slow, both teams contributing their share to a formidable total of errors, and it was not until the game had run to eleven innings that the Main Liners emerged victorious.

The yearlings of Collegeville got off to an early lead in the first inning when Hunter, third baseman for the Bears singled, took second on an error by Joe Lottio and was driven in by a lusty double from the bat of Tomlinson. Neither side scored in the second frame but the next inning found both teams accumulating four runs. The Kittens first runs came when McNally and Paul Kane scored on a long single by Tommy Haslin. Escott, the next man up connected for a triple to tally Haslin and to score in turn on a single by Stoviac.

Escott Homers

Villanova added one in the fourth and three in the fifth when Frank Escott hit a home run, scoring both McKenna and Stoviac. Paul Kane starting pitcher for the Wildcats, was relieved in the fourth by Escott who held his opponents scoreless in the frame, but allowed two men to tally in the following inning. The count was tied at ten all at the end of the ninth and Escott, who had been pitching very good ball was retired in favor of Bill McLaughlin. Bill came through in his usual style and held the Cubs scoreless for two innings while his teammates were pushing across five runs in a last-minute spree.

Five Runs in Last

The eleventh and eventful frame opened with McKenna, singling to left field. Lottito, the next man struck out, and Andy Stopper, of football fame went to first on a fielder's choice, and gained second on an error by the second baseman. McKenna was caught off base and ruded out. Bill McLaughlin then singled and Eddie Collins gained the initial sack to fill the bags. Haslin next walked, forcing a run in and three men crossed on a long fly by Frank Escott that was dropped by the opposing centerfielder. Escott then scored for the fourth time when the Ursinus pitcher dropped a ball returned from the outfield.

McKenna led the Cats with three hits, while Tomlinson helped the losers' cause by connecting four times. The game was the second played this year between the two teams, the Main Liners having won a 10 to 6 decision in the previous meeting.

Mendel Comes Out of Slump To Swamp Austinites, 12-1

Circuit Clouts Spell Austin's Downfall As Rejuvenated Mendel Club Raps Out Four to Win First Victory

WALT SHEFTIC, JIM McGREAVY STAR

After scoring but one run in three previous games, the Mendel club came of its prolonged batting slump to bury the Austin team under devastating barrage of base-hits, defeating Father McKee's boys by the overwhelming score of 12 to 1. The result was a distinct surprise inasmuch as the Austinites had beaten Mendel 11 to 1 in their first meeting. Home run clouts spelled defeat for Austin. Four swats of the Ruthian variety rattled off the bats of the rejuvenated Mendel club. Walt Sheftic and Jim McGreavy led the attack with two homers apiece. Together with the effective pitching of Ted Goumy this unexpected show of batting strength was enough to give Mendel its first and only victory of the league season.

The victors wasted no time, getting the jump at the very outset by scoring three runs in the first frame, when Sheftic connected for his first home run. A four run rally in the third inning drove Bill Sweeney, the Austin starting hurler to the showers. He was succeeded by Larry Reiley who finally retired the side. But in the later innings Larry proved that as a pitcher he is still an excellent tenor, and five more counters were racked up.

Meanwhile, Goumey's effective hurling had kept the Austinites from the scoring station for the first four innings, but in the fifth his support faltered momentarily and the McKeemen tabbed their lone tally.

In the other contest Austin, smarting under the defeat by the lowly Mendel Freshmen aggregation came back in the afternoon to eke out a close victory over the league leading Alumni nine in a free hitting game, 8-6. Austin, which had had considerable with its pitching staff, sent Tony Sala to the mound. Tony came through with a performance which though not brilliant was good enough to subdue the hard-hitting Alumni team.

Although the games, the last of the season, showed the latent power of the lower teams in the standings, they had no result on the final standing of the teams. Alumni, while it was defeated, still holds first place with a record of three wins and but one defeat, Fedigan the runnerup finished last week with four and two. Austin strengthened its hold on third place by its defeat of Alumni; its record was two and three. Mendel ended half a game in back of Austin with one and three.

All in all the season was successful and interesting one. The race was close and the games for the most part were well-played and hard fought. The highlight of the season was the no-hit, no-run game hurled by Bill Gough of the second Fedigan club. Fedigan's pitching staff was in the limelight throughout the season. Frank Sweeney and Ray McGunigle were the leading strikeout artists in the order named and each had a shut-out to his credit.

Alumni's victory in baseball gives that hall a substantial lead for the Intramural championship honors. In addition to their baseball laurels they emerged victorious in basketball, tied for the lead in touch football, gained the largest number of points in boxing, took second in the swim meet and wound up in third place in the track meet. Austin, sporting a tie for first in football and an outright first track, is second, Fedigan, swimming victor, is third and Mendel, runnerup in basketball and tailender in almost everything else, is of course in fourth place.

MUHLENBERG DOWNS 'CAT RACQUETEERS

Fischer and Seeger Break Tie To Win Match in Final Doubles Tilt

ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 16—Villanova's tennis team journeyed here today, met the Muhlenberg racqueteers, and were defeated, 5-4. As the score indicates, it was a very close match. Fischer and Seeger broke a 4-4 tie, by winning the final doubles, to give the home team its victory.

The Wildcats captured three of the six singles to keep apace of their opponents, and then took the first of the doubles to forge ahead, but the home team won the second and third doubles to gain their triumph in this hard-fought contest.

Kramer Victorious

Steve Kramer, Villanova captain, met and defeated Koch in two straight sets, in the first of the singles. Fischer evened matters up when he beat Barry, of Villanova, in two straight sets. Herzenberg, who defeated Bordin, Temple's ace, found our Allen easy prey, and finished him in two sets. Thorne, however, again deadlocked the match at 2-2, when he disposed of Zweiger, 6-0, 6-3. Ed Malhame had some trouble with Kline, but took the final set to win. After beating Kline decisively in the first set, Ed dropped the second, but came back to win a close third set, 8-6.

The Wildcats were not destined to stay ahead long, for Rodgers found Seeger, of Muhlenberg, a little too much, and lost the match in two consecutive sets.

Villanova jumped ahead again when Kramer teamed with Ed Malhame to beat Koch and Herzenberg, 6-2, 7-5. Kline and Zweiger, and Fischer and Seeger, however, met and defeated the two Wildcat teams consisting of Barry and Rodgers, and Thorne and Allen, respectively, in the last two doubles to net a final score of five for Muhlenberg, against four for Villanova.

INTRAMURAL TENNIS

According to Father Edward McKee, O. S. A., moderator of intramural sports, the annual tennis tournament will be played this week.

Baseballers Take Three Straight

nothing last Tuesday in the first twilight game of the season. Frank Skaff shared the honors of the day by hitting his sixth and seventh homers of the season, batting in six runs.

Collins allowed the Bisons only three scattered hits, two of them were gotten by Ruoff, the Bucknell first sacker. Tom fanned five and walked only two in his nine innings on the mound, beside throwing out four runners at first base. Not one Bucknell runner got into scoring position until the eighth inning when Charles Allen, visiting pitcher, reached second on Ben Gerschty's overthrow of his grounder. He then raced down to third on an infield out, but died on base when Collins forced Ruoff to pop up for the third out.

Skaff Hits Two

Led by Frank Skaff, hard-hitting third baseman, Villanova nipped two Bucknell pitchers for twelve safeties. Besides Skaff, three other Wildcats colected two hits apiece. Captain Jimmy Murphy ripped off a pair of singles, Leo Schoppmeyer, the 'Cats second sacker, pounded a single and a triple, while Mike O'Meara had a perfect day at bat, hitting two singles and walking twice. Only Mahan was held hitless in the game.

Here 'n' There

Talking to Johnny Sitarsky, next year's captain of the Bucknell football team, brought a bit of fear into my heart . . . With seven regulars returning, Johnny expects the Bisons to have an undefeated team . . . Asked what he thought of the Wildcats, he replied: "They gave us plenty of trouble at Lewisburg and only for the breaks we would have wound up in a scoreless tie. When we encounter Villanova football teams we are always very fortunate. I look for a very tough battle when we visit the Main Line Stadium next fall."

Billy Burke, one of the associate managers of the football team, intends pursuing the field of accounting . . . He does not know what he is in for . . . Ray Chunko, of Bayonne, N. J., James Boland, of Cambridge, N. ., Joe Toland and Jake Simons, both of Philly, were guests at a house party at Anthony Capucci's home in Hammonton, N. J.

Ed (Reginald) Denny is an ice-toter during the summer months . . . How that Fedigan team barks when they are losing . . . Al Ryan should be a hog caller . . . He gave Norby Ford an awful riding in the softball game last eve . . . They stopped counting Ford's errors . . . If I had a wish, it would be to have an outdoor swimming pool . . . Graduation is just around the corner . . . for some fellows . . .

Final exams will be a headache for many students . . . Frosh Steve Dora lives on Dora St., Stamford, Conn. . . . Lots of credit to all who participateed in the murals track and field meet . . . Pat Marquette collapsed at the finish of the mile run . . . Ben Maloney was a double winner . . . Bill Christopher notched 18 points . . . Bill Grimberg had 15 of Fedigan's 27 points.

Many reports were heard that Isham Jones' band was not so hot . . . Congratulations to all the officers recently elected for service next year . . . Barney Lee was in conference with "Horse" Chase.

Father McKee should be complimented for the manner in which he conducted the track meet . . . and for the patience he exercised in putting the whole intra-mural over . . . Hope he is back at the helm next year . . .

GOLFERS SEASON OVER

Although several invitations have been received from college teams wishing to play Villanova, they have all been refused as the golf team has closed its schedule.

BASEBALL CAMPAIGN FINISHES SATURDAY

Owls Here Tomorrow; Boston And Ursinus Colleges End Schedule

Opposing the Temple, Boston and Ursinus College nines, on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of this week, in the order mentioned the Villanova baseball team will draw one of its most successful seasons to a close.

The Temple contest will take the spotlight, as a meetings with the "Owls" are wont to do. This meeting, however will be more intensifying as far as the 'Cats are concerned, since they will be out to avenge an earlier setback, administered at the hands of the Cherry and White. It was at the home of the Owls that the charges of "Doc" Jacobs were humiliated by a 14-9 score, when McGovern of the Villanova hurling staff got off to a shaky start.

Owston to Hurl vs. 'Cats

Berry, who did the flinging for the homesters was out in front after the first inning and was never in danger although the losers managed to tap him for nine runs. One of which was a homer by the slugging Frank Skaff. It is probable that Ken Berry may face the 'Cats again but it is more than likely that Owston will be sent in by the Temple mentor, "Pep" Young. It is well to note here that Owston had a no-hit game in his last attempt against City College of New York, however it was not official as the game was limited to seven innings by mutual consent of the two coaches.

B. C. to Seek Revenge

Boston College, fell before the 'Cats attack last Saturday at the Hub city, to the merry tune of 13-3, with Tom Collins on the hill for the Blue and White, Gallagin, Cash and Duffy were the victims in the Eagles downfall. In this contest the efforts of the losers were so limited that Tom had everything his way.

In their meeting this Friday, it will be well to watch the efforts of Pagliuinca and Concannon who bat in the third and fourth positions respectfully. They are men of no small repute as far as hitting a ball is concerned. It was only the brilliant fielding of Murphy that stopped they're doing any damage in the previous game.

Baseball Bits

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

The Bucknell game bore out statements made in this column last issue...I mean the performance of Bullet Ben Geraghty, stellar shortstop of the 'Cats. Ben broke off two singles in addition to handling several hard chances in the field...One error made on a difficult throw from deep short marred a perfect average....

Also the manner in which hard hitting Frankie Skaff blasted two homeric wallops over the left field fence...You keep tabs on this fellow, he is bound to go someplace....

Last week I forgot to mention the name of Ed Leahy...Apologies are in order..."Shanty," as he is often called had his first start in varsity regalia against a strong Stamford Club on Wednesday eve...Ed came through with a ringing single to center his first time at the platter...Stan Gelazin has contracted an illness in his leg and will be on the shelf for the rest of the campaign...

The current winning streak of the Wildcats has reached six victories...It started with Long Island, and includes Fordham, Ithaca, Bucknell, a strong Stamford Club and the Providence Friars...Artie Mahan was the only regular to go hitless in the Bisons game...Called out on strikes on his second trip to the plate, Artie bellowed at the umpire...but to no avail...a rare happening when Artie protests over a called strike...The North Andover boy, Tom Collins was at his best against the Lewisburg boys...Limiting them to three bingles...Two garnered by Ruoff, slugging first sacker...

Lenzi played heads up ball going to third when Sitarsky fumbled his single...O'Meara, in right field, had two for two...Hooks Mylin, who guides the destinies of the Bison football team, is also coach of the baseball team...Max Ralph "Horse" Chase, coach of basketball and assistant football mentor was an interested spectator at the game...

George Brand, guardian of the press gate at the Phillies Park and Shibe Park, was accompanied by a person resembling Patsy O'Rourke, ivory hunter for the Phils...A veritible hangout is Villanova for big league scouts...The Evening Bulletin states that three are on the trail of Skaff...and the Yankee scout was in the stands on Tuesday...I missed out on that one...my agents are slipping...

The twilight arrangement met with the hearty approval of the spectators...The gougers hate to leave the dining hall to make the opening pitch 5:30...The layout for next week shows Temple, Penn A. C., Boston College and Ursinus listed for twilight engagements...

Too bad the team does not have another chance to meet Harvard...The team as a whole played the best ball of the season against Bucknell...Their offense was the most powerful they have exhibited all year...

SPORTS HISTORY

By BILL ALLEN

Loyola scored in the first three minutes of play on a 45-yard forward pass, and then the Main Liners opened up with a smashing offensive. Weisenbaugh tallied the first touchdown for the 'Cats and shortly afterward Randour raced 85 yards for the second tally. After such a morale-breaking blow, the visitors' defensive crumbled and the home town gridders scored almost at will.

In the sixth game of the season the 'Cats achieved a goal they had sought for a long time. . . A decisive victory over Bucknell. Randour and Weisenbaugh were the most evident backfield stars in the Villanova lineup, and Toby Cavanaugh's generalship from quarterback position guided the team in its efficient operation. Villanova triumphed, 18-0.

Cats Set B. C.

In the next game the 'cats again came from behind to score an impressive victory by conquering Boston College, 20-9. The Eagles scored their nine points on a touchdown, a 35 yard field goal by Kelly, and held that margin intact throughout the first half. At the time, the lead seemed to be almost too large to overtake. Only a week before, Kelly had made a place kick for goal to defeat a powerful Fordham eleven by the score of 3-0.

When the Main Liners did start out they rushed the ball for over 70 yards—York getting the touchdown. Patzsch and Randour scored again shortly afterwards.

Detroit University handed Villanova its second defeat of the season on the following week-end, taking the honors with a 28-10 score. The outstanding fear of the entire game was Detroit's forward pass attack. Willy Nott doing most of the passing they confused the 'Cats defense time and time again with novel and accurate passing.

In the concluding game of the season, the Main Liners downed Temple by the score of 7-0.

The contest was played in a sea of mud. A heavy rainfall throughout the entire preceding night and a constant drizzle all during the game left much to be desired in the way of playing conditions.

Patzsch tried to cross the line but was stopped, Randour also failed to pierce the wall. But on the next play, Patzsch dove into scoring territory for the only count of the

In the Limelight

By NORTON C. PADEN

This week we present the walking advertisement for the College Dining Hall. In fact, it is no other than Edmond C. Malhame, the plumper of the brothers Malhame.

Edmond, called Cherub by his friends, was born April 17, 1915, in Brooklyn, Borough of Churches. It can well be discerned that he is well liked in the community as he has lived there ever since.

At the time of his birth, he was quite young and five years later he entered Saint Saviours Grammar School. During the course of his preliminary training, he also attended Brooklyn Public Grammar School No. 9. As these two schools did not enter athletic competition, Chub did not have much chance to develop his sporting talents.

Though at this time it is said he wielded a pretty mean racquet on the courts.

At the completion of his eight years at these various institutions, Cherub entered La Salle Military Academy. This schooling in military tactics took place at Oakdale, Long Island.

While at La Salle, Ed played four years of tennis but it was not made a major sport until his junior year, hence the boy received only two letters for his endeavors. These were given in his junior and senior years.

Perhaps I have devoted too much space so far to Ed's work in sports and not enough to his scholastic ability. Let me assure you, however, that they received a great deal of attention from our hero. In fact, he confided to me quite confidentially that he had received a medal for excellence in history while attending grammar school. Mind you a real medal.

Another method of discerning his scholastic ability is to look very intently at his birthdate and then try to realize that he is graduating this year.

He graduated from La Salle at the appointed time and his uniform was all that could be desired. For his work at that Institution Chub received a commission of Lieutenant in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, but he will not be able to exercise his commission until he has reached the age of twenty-one.

After graduation, Ed went to Camp at Plattsburg for six weeks where he received extensive training in soldiering or as Cherub describes it he was put through the mill.

Oh yes, Ed was manager of the baseball team at La Salle in his senior year and it was in this year that he went out for track at the military school, too.

In 1931, Ed entered Villanova and he played freshman tennis in that year. He has played varsity tennis ever since. It has been noted that in his four years playing in doubles with Steve Kramer as a partner this combination has been defeated only once to date. They claim the mythical championship of the Main Line.

Ed's racquet is one of the reasons why the 'Cat netmen have been so successful the past few seasons.

During the summer he goes with his family to Milford, Pa., where he takes part in many tournaments in the course of the season. In the Tri-State singles he was runner up last year while with his partner he has won the doubles championship for two years straight.

For honors in tennis Ed boasts four cups which he won. Edmond, Chub, or Cherub, (which ever you prefer) is a senior arts man and will graduate this June. He may enter Fordham law school in the fall or he may go to work for his father. As Ed says his future is in the hands of fate.

In order to prove to the boys that he can take it, Ed says "I have been eating in the College Dining Hall for four years and that ought to be proof enough for any skeptic."

This column wishes Ed success in any and all future activities.

ALUMNI TO CONVENE FOR 3 DAY REUNION BEGINNING ON JUNE 6

Second Annual Weekend Will Feature Commencement Exercises on Campus

TENNIS TOURNAMENT PEAK OF 3 ATHLETIC CONTESTS

Banquet in College Dining Hall Climaxes Second Annual Gathering

Begining with the ninety-second annual Commencement on June 6, and contin ing through Friday, June 7 and Saturday, June 8, the National Alumni Association of Villanova College will sponsor its second annual Alumni Week End. Hundreds of former Villanovans are expected to return to their Alma Mater at this time. Every alumnus has been extended an invitation.

The festivities will begin with commencement, Thursday, June 6. The exercises will be held in the gymnasium. That evening a good old fashioned smoker and bull session will be held at a spot on the campus to be designated by the committee in charge. Many surprises are promised by the committee's chairman, Charley Laughlin.

On Friday morning and afternoon, the Villanova tennis courts will be the scene of the Second Annual Alumni Tennis Tournament. The matches will continue throughout the major portion of the day. At the same time all Villanovans who are enthusiastic over the ancient sport of golf will have an excellent opportunity to display their talents on nearby courses.

Friday evening is the date set for the annual swimming meet. Arrangements for this affair are under the capable management of Marty Gill, swimming coach.

On Saturday the golf and tennis finals will be run off and prizes awarded.

Saturday afternoon at approximately 1:30 P. M. (we hope) the Villanova Club of Philadelphia will cross bats with the Villanova Club of New York in their annual tussle to prove the baseball supremacy of the association.

At the conclusion of the game all alumni will meet in the auditorium of the School of Commerce and Finance for the annual meeting. Officers will be nominated and voted upon.

Saturday evening, June 8 at 7 P. M. the Annual Alumni Banquet will be held in the College Dining Hall. An imposing speaker list has been arranged for this affair and it is hoped that no alumnus will be absent for the dinner, even though he finds it impossible to take an active part in all the other events. The charge for the dinner will be $2.00 per plate. Reservations should be made at once for this function, undoubtedly the most important social event sponsored annually by the National Alumni Association.

Meals and room on the campus may be had at nominal cost. Four dollars has been set at the cost for the full period, excepting the banquet which has been announced as $2.00. The cost for men arriving later than Commencement Day will be pro-rated on a meal-room basis.

The alumni office will be open all day during the three-day period for registration of alumni. Each man is urged to return the reservation card which has been sent him.

ALUMNUS TO WED HERE

Saturday, Villanova Chapel will be the scene of the wedding of an alumnus of the college, Charles J. Boyle, of the class of 1930, and a resident of Freeland, Pa. His bride will be Elizabeth Tierney, of Shenandoah, Pa. Very Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, will perform the ceremony. Mr. Boyle was graduated from Villanova with a B. S. in Electrical Engineering. At present he is connected with the Pennsylvania Light and Power Co., in the capacity of District Engineer.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

This year marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the graduation of your class. Those men who were with you during your four years at Villanova will be delighted to participate with you in the celebration of your Silver Jubilee.

The Annual Banquet of the Alumni Association will be held on Saturday evening, June 8, at 7 P. M. Why not make that night and the preceding days of the week-end, the occasion of a reunion of you Jubilarians? The Association will be honored by your presence, as will be Villanova, who twenty-five years ago honored you.

JUBILEES FEATURE JUNE HOME COMING

Respective Graduated Groups Strive for Large Turnout For Weekend Festivities

With the annual trek of many Villanovans back to Alma Mater for the weekend activities, five classes will celebrate anniversaries of their respective graduations.

The class of 1910, with Joseph L. Rafter at the helm, will have the place of honor. It is twenty-five years since the Silver Jubilarians left these halls to take up the fight of life. Many changes have taken place since that day and it is hoped that many members of the class will be present at the annual banquet. The principal speaker for the evening will be a class of 1910 man, Mr. Rafter. "Joe," as he is affectionately known to his classmates, is famous for his speech-making art.

The classes of 1915, 1920, 1925 and 1930 will also have large delegations on hand for the various functions. It is hoped that the members of these various classes will cooperate with their respective organizers by signifying their intention to attend the banquet immediately.

ALUMNI LECTURES PROVED EDUCATIONAL SUCCESS

Three Noted Speakers Talk to Capacity Audiences During This Year's Popular Series

The alumni lecture for the present scholastic term were concluded last night when Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Litt. D., professor of history at Villanova spoke on Comparative Protestantism. His was the third of the series sponsored annually by the Alumni.

In the first lecture, City Solicitor David J. Smyth of Philadelphia presented a general survey of the intricacies of carrying on a large government such as that of his city. He astounded the large audience with enormous figures quoted as necessary to keep the city going financially.

The second talk featured Dr. John Kolmer, D. Sc., professor of Medicine at Temple University and a graduate of the Pre-Medical School at Villanova. Dr. Kolmer spoke on his recent discovery, a cure for Infantile Paralysis.

Alumni Board of Directors Salutes Graduates and Urges Cooperation

In a very short time your names will be added to the alumni lists of Villanova. You will take your well-earned place with past graduating classes. For this, we congratulate you. As alumni, certain things will be expected of you. If your successful class functions be taken as a criterion of future associations with us, we welcome your class and look forward to pleasant meetings.

The Association has the quality of leadership in spots. It does not have that quality as a group. This loss is deterring it from the success which rightfully belongs to it. We welcome your class knowing that you will carry over your admirable quality to the benefit of the alumni association as a whole.

One Saturday evening, June 8, at 7 P. M. in the College Dining Hall, the Annual Alumni Banquet will be held. We wish to invite you to that function as a class. Our only regret is that we can not bear the expense of a welcome without "strings attached." In this case the only "string" is a two-dollar bill. And that shouldn't be so hard to get a few days after graduation, should it? So we look forward to seeing you at the banquet that evening, as well as at all the other functions scheduled for the weekend.

Again . . . we welcome and congratulations!

BOARD OF GOVERNORS,
Villanova College Alumni Association.

ALUMNI INSTALLS BUREAU

Philadelphia Chapter of Alumni Inaugurates Employment Service For Villanova Graduates

The Philadelphia Chapter of the National Alumni Association has established an Employment Service for its members. Mr. Joseph D. Freney and Mr. William H. Vincent both staunch supporters of the alumni, have graciously placed the facilities of their office at the disposal of interested men.

The working of the service is simple yet result-showing. All members of the club, unemployed at present, have been asked to fill out a form card containing such information as age, education, experience, etc., and mail it to the central office.

ACCOMMODATIONS HERE FOR BENEFIT OF GRADS

Facilities for Room and Board May Be Secured for Nominal Sum

Joseph Hoenig, Alumni secretary, has announced that for the benefit of the returning members of the Alumni facilities for board and lodging may be secured on the campus for a nominal sum.

Meals may be procured in the college dining room upon making reservations immediately upon arrival. Mr. Hoenig has also prepared suitable living quarters in a separate hall for the accommodation of the Villanova graduates.

It is hoped that a espresentative number will take advantage of the opportunity of renewing old acquaintances and making new friendships at the annual grads reunion.

Plans are well under way to make this gathering the best ever offered under the auspices of the graduate association, and Mr. Hoenig urges every member desiring accommodations to notify him at once so that arrangements may be made.

ALUMNI TO CONVENE FOR 3 DAY REUNION BEGINNING ON JUNE 6

Second Annual Weekend Will Feature Commencement Exercises on Campus

TENNIS TOURNAMENT PEAK OF 3 ATHLETIC CONTESTS

Banquet in College Dining Hall Climaxes Second Annual Gathering

Begining with the ninety-second annual Commencement on June 6, and contin ing through Friday, June 7 and Saturday, June 8, the National Alumni Association of Villanova College will sponsor its second annual Alumni Week End. Hundreds of former Villanovans are expected to return to their Alma Mater at this time. Every alumnus has been extended an invitation.

The festivities will begin with commencement, Thursday, June 6. The exercises will be held in the gymnasium. That evening a good old fashioned smoker and bull session will be held at a spot on the campus to be designated by the committee in charge. Many surprises are promised by the committee's chairman, Charley Laughlin.

On Friday morning and afternoon, the Villanova tennis courts will be the scene of the Second Annual Alumni Tennis Tournament. The matches will continue throughout the major portion of the day. At the same time all Villanovans who are enthusiastic over the ancient sport of golf will have an excellent opportunity to display their talents on nearby courses.

Friday evening is the date set for the annual swimming meet. Arrangements for this affair are under the capable management of Marty Gill, swimming coach.

On Saturday the golf and tennis finals will be run off and prizes awarded.

Saturday afternoon at approximately 1:30 P. M. (we hope) the Villanova Club of Philadelphia will cross bats with the Villanova Club of New York in their annual tussle to prove the baseball supremacy of the association.

At the conclusion of the game all alumni will meet in the auditorium of the School of Commerce and Finance for the annual meeting. Officers will be nominated and voted upon.

Saturday evening, June 8 at 7 P. M. the Annual Alumni Banquet will be held in the College Dining Hall. An imposing speaker list has been arranged for this affair and it is hoped that no alumnus will be absent for the dinner, even though he finds it impossible to take an active part in all the other events. The charge for the dinner will be $2.00 per plate. Reservations should be made at once for this function, undoubtedly the most important social event sponsored annually by the National Alumni Association.

Meals and room on the campus may be had at nominal cost. Four dollars has been set at the cost for the full period, excepting the banquet which has been announced as $2.00. The cost for men arriving later than Commencement Day will be pro-rated on a meal-room basis.

The alumni office will be open all day during the three-day period for registration of alumni. Each man is urged to return the reservation card which has been sent him.

ALUMNUS TO WED HERE

Saturday, Villanova Chapel will be the scene of the wedding of an alumnus of the college, Charles J. Boyle, of the class of 1930, and a resident of Freeland, Pa. His bride will be Elizabeth Tierney, of Shenandoah, Pa. Very Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, will perform the ceremony. Mr. Boyle was graduated from Villanova with a B. S. in Electrical Engineering. At present he is connected with the Pennsylvania Light and Power Co., in the capacity of District Engineer.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

This year marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the graduation of your class. Those men who were with you during your four years at Villanova will be delighted to participate with you in the celebration of your Silver Jubilee.

The Annual Banquet of the Alumni Association will be held on Saturday evening, June 8, at 7 P. M. Why not make that night and the preceding days of the week-end, the occasion of a reunion of you Jubilarians? The Association will be honored by your presence, as will be Villanova, who twenty-five years ago honored you.

JUBILEES FEATURE JUNE HOME COMING

Respective Graduated Groups Strive for Large Turnout For Weekend Festivities

With the annual trek of many Villanovans back to Alma Mater for the weekend activities, five classes will celebrate anniversaries of their respective graduations.

The class of 1910, with Joseph L. Rafter at the helm, will have the place of honor. It is twenty-five years since the Silver Jubilarians left these halls to take up the fight of life. Many changes have taken place since that day and it is hoped that many members of the class will be present at the annual banquet. The principal speaker for the evening will be a class of 1910 man, Mr. Rafter. "Joe," as he is affectionately known to his classmates, is famous for his speech-making art.

The classes of 1915, 1920, 1925 and 1930 will also have large delegations on hand for the various functions. It is hoped that the members of these various classes will cooperate with their respective organizers by signifying their intention to attend the banquet immediately.

ALUMNI LECTURES PROVED EDUCATIONAL SUCCESS

The alumni lectures for the present scholastic term were concluded last night when Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Litt. D., professor of history at Villanova spoke on Comparative Protestantism. His was the third of the series sponsored annually by the Alumni.

In the first lecture, City Solicitor Dav. J. Smyth of Philadelphia presented a general survey of the intricacies of carrying on a large government such as that of his city. He astounded the large audience with enormous figures quoted as necessary to keep the city going financially.

The second talk featured Dr. John Kolmer, D. Sc., professor of Medicine at Temple University and a graduate of the Pre-Medical School at Villanova. Dr. Kolmer spoke on his recent discovery, a cure for Infantile Paralysis.

Alumni Board of Directors Salutes Graduates and Urges Cooperation

In a very short time your names will be added to the alumni lists of Villanova. You will take your well-earned place with past graduating classes. For this, we congratulate you. As alumni, certain things will be expected of you. If your successful class functions be taken as a criterion of future associations with us, we welcome your class and look forward to pleasant meetings.

The Association has the quality of leadership in spots. It does not have that quality as a group. This loss is deterring it from the success which rightfully belongs to it. We welcome your class knowing that you will carry over your admirable quality to the benefit of the alumni association as a whole.

One Saturday evening, June 8, at 7 P. M. in the College Dining Hall, the Annual Alumni Banquet will be held. We wish to invite you to that function as a class. Our only regret is that we can not bear the expense of a welcome without "strings attached." In this case the only "string" is a two-dollar bill. And that shouldn't be so hard to get a few days after graduation, should it? So we look forward to seeing you at the banquet that evening, as well as at all the other functions scheduled for the week-end.

Again...we welcome and congratulations!

BOARD OF GOVERNORS,
Villanova College Alumni Association.

ALUMNI INSTALLS BUREAU

Philadelphia Chapter of Alumni Inaugurates Employment Service For Villanova Graduates

The Philadelphia Chapter of the National Alumni Association has established an Employment Service for its members. Mr. Joseph D. Freney and Mr. William H. Vincent both staunch supporters of the alumni, have graciously placed the facilities of their office at the disposal of interested men.

The working of the service is simple yet result-showing. All members of the club, unemployed at present, have been asked to fill out a form card containing such information as age, education, experience, etc., and mail it to the central office.

ACCOMMODATIONS HERE FOR BENEFIT OF GRADS

Facilities for Room and Board May Be Secured for Nominal Sum

Joseph Hoenig, Alumni secretary, has announced that for the benefit of the returning members of the Alumni facilities for board and lodging may be secured on the campus for a nominal sum.

Meals may be procured in the college dining room upon making reservations immediately upon arrival. Mr. Hoenig has also prepared suitable living quarters in a separate hall for the accommodation of the Villanova graduates.

It is hoped that a espresentative number will take advantage of the opportunity of renewing old acquaintances and making new friendships at the annual grads reunion.

Plans are well under way to make this gathering the best ever offered under the auspices of the graduate association, and Mr. Hoenig urges every member desiring accommodations to notify him at once so that arrangements may be made.

U. S. CHEMICALLY PREPARED FOR WAR

Declares America Is Independent of World in Event Of Hostilities

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

BOSTON, Mass., May 20, 1935—"The United States is now chemically independent of the rest of the world. Another world war would find us ready for anything," Prof. James F. Norris, professor of chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, believes.

"The chemical industry in this country is now developed to such a fine degree of perfection it can synthetically manufacture in its laboratories all materials for which it once had to depend upon other countries," Prof Norris pointed out.

More than 30,000 trained chemists could step into important positions within a day, he asserted, and could make remedies, including quinines, anaesthetics, and antiseptics, camphor to be used in the manufacture of explosives, rubber, and glycols and various alcohols to be used in the making of special explosives that can withstand varying weather conditions.

Subsidies from the federal government, which have been granted since 1917, have aided the industry in research which has resulted in discovering synthetic means of manufacturing chemicals which formerly had to be imported, Prof. Norris explained.

DISCOVER NEW VITAMIN

Professors Who Experimented With Chickens Reveals Dietary Findings

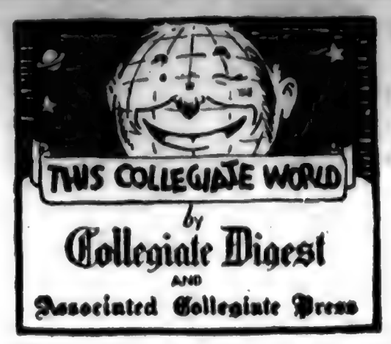
(By Associated Collegiate Press)

LONDON, May 20, 1935—Add another vitamin to the list of those already known. This one is to be known as K, according to the announcement of its discovery by two research members of the Biochemical Institute of Copenhagen University.

Experimenting with chickens, the two men, H. Dam and F. Schonheyder, found that when fed on a special diet, the chickens developed a deficiency disease. This was cured by a fat soluble vitamin found in hog liver, hemp seed and certain vegetable, such as tomatoes.

ARSENIC ON HIS TONGUE

A chem prof at the University of Maryland asked one of his students to name a chemical in a certain solution. The student replied that he was unable to reply immediately but that the answer was right on the end of his tongue. "Don't swallow it," the professor retorted, "it's arsenic."



The newest way to provide oneself with a liberal education and at the same stroke bring in some cold cash seems to be the now-flourishing business of campus ghost-writing.

Rather complete revelations of the actual technique of the mysterious profession have been published on the campus of Columbia University (New York). One of the best at the business explained that he turns out themes and term papers day after day for classmates and has even developed a large mail order business from other colleges. He charges $3 for 2,000 words; $5 to $6 for 3,000 words, and $12 for 10,000 words, providing the research is not too much.

Furthermore, his confidence in his writing ability is so strong that for a small additional cost he will guarantee an 'A' grade, or money back.

SEEK ORGANIZATION AMONG COLLEGE MEN

Desire to Prevent Spread Of Radicalism Prompts Determined Act

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

NEW YORK CITY, May 20, 1935—Activated by a desire to keep the college youth from turning radical, the Intercollegiate Organizations of America, with a membership of more than 240,000, is launching a youth movement designed to unite the college students of today in a program for constructive work, Harold R. Moskovit, president, announced recently.

"Students in our universities, recent graduates and other intelligent youth, are becoming amenable to harmful propaganda," the platform of the organization declares. "To maintain the foundations of our present political order, as well as to bring about a more happy social condition where economic rewards will be more equitably distributed, we the present and former students of our country, do hereby organize with the purpose of achieving these aims in a peaceful and democratic manner," the platform concludes.

Proposals of the organization include asking city, state and federal governments to open "careers in government" for college trained men and women, with chance for advancement; demanding a secretary of education in the President's cabinet; a system of adult education, national in scope; subsidies to encourage professions in the creative arts and sciences and urging collegiate youths to enter the political arena and endeavor to elect the best man or woman qualified for that office, regardless of party affiliations.

COLLEGES OVERCROWDED

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

BOULDER, Colo., May 20, 1935—The complaint that "too many are going to college" recently drew the fire of Dr. George Norlin, president of the University of Colorado. "To say under these circumstances that too many are going to college, or that the doors of education should continue to be closed to the many who could benefit by going to school, is to speak sheer nonsense."

COST OF BUM JOKE

ROBERT G. M'GRORY APPOINTED EDITOR OF CLASS ANNUAL

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., New Faculty Moderator Of Belle Air

BIGLEY BUSINESS MANAGER; REST OF STAFF UNCHOSEN

Rev. Daniel F. McCall, O. S. A., Former Moderator Transferred to St. Thomas H. S.

Robert G. McGrory, a senior in the School of Commerce and Finance has been appointed Editor-in-Chief of the Belle Air, annual year book of the college, according to an announcement recently made by Rev. Daniel D. Falvey, O. S. A., new faculty moderator of the annual.

Fr. Falvey also announced that Joseph Bigley, a senior in the School of Science, has been appointed to serve in the capacity of business manager.

Fr. Falvey, who holds the degree of Bachelor of Library Science, comes to Villanova from George Washington University. He takes the place of Rev. John F. McCall, O. S. A., as moderator of the year book. Fr. McCall was transferred to St. Thomas H. S., Rockford, Illinois, shortly before the opening of the school year.

The staff will be named probably within the next week or so by Mr. McGrory. It will not be until then that definite plans for the outlay of the annual will be made. Because of the success of last year's edition of the Belle Air, it is doubtful that many drastic changes will be made in the general make-up of the book. Rather, it is felt that the staff will be mainly interested in enlarging, and, if possible improving upon past editions. It is definitely known,

Sophomore Cotillion Opens Social Season Here On October 18

"Villanovans," Recently Organized, to Use Entirely Changed Program of Music, Arrangements and Novelties

TEMPLE GAME TICKETS TO BE PRIZE

INAUGURATING the social season of Villanova College this fall, the Class of '38 will present the annual Sophomore Cotillion on Friday evening, October 18. This informal affair will take place in the college gymnasium, from 9:00 P. M. until 1 A. M.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by an entirely new aggregation of the "Villanovans." The college dance orchestra now comprises 12 members, who are under the capable direction of Paul D. Teel, assisted by Thomas "Bucky" O'Connor, Class of '35.

"Bucky" O'Connor has done much to aid in the producing of the first really fine college orchestra in many years, and his experience with several of the better Philadelphia dance bands is showing itself in the rehearsals and renditions of the "Villanovans." All new music and arrangements as well as many specialty numbers are being procured and the acceptance of the orchestra is practically assured.

Harvey Davis, chairman of the dance committee, announced the fact that the decorations adorning the gymnasium will be outstandingly unique, in so far as this type has never before been attempted by any student social affair.

Another important innovation in the annual Cotillion will be the use of the new amplifying system. This

Detroit Football Game Is Homecoming Occasion

November 2 has been set as the date for the annual Homecoming Day at Villanova College. A special section in the Villanova Stadium will be set aside for the alumni returning to witness the Villanova-Detroit football fray, and due to the expected large response to this feature, a special ticket booth will be open in the Villanova College gymnasium for those alumni who do not procure tickets before the game.

The evening of this same day will witness what is planned to be the annual fall dance and social with the Philadelphia Club acting as hosts of the alumni from distant cities. Although the place of the social has not been definitely determined as yet, it is probable that it will be held at Arcadia, the International Restaurant in Philadelphia.

Also well under way are the plans for the annual football banquet, probably to be held as, is the custom, in the Penn Athletic Club, during December, or earlier, if possible. The date being planned as close to the football season as is practicable.

With the meeting of the Villanova Club of New York on last Wednesday evening, October 2, the season for alumni activity was formally opened in that section. Thursday, October 3, witnessed the first meeting of the Philadelphia Club at their new home, the Philoptrian Club, 1923 Walnut St., Philadelphia.

Speakers at the fall sports meeting, in New York, were Harry Stuhldreher, Villanova football coach; Rev. C. J. Melchior, O. S. A., faculty moderator of athletics; Paetrus F. Banmiller, alumni secretary and treasurer; and Martin L. Gill, Jr., vice-president of the national alumni.

Widespread activity, for the coming year, was pointed out to the more than 60 New York alumni, gathered in the Center Club, 120 Central Park South, New York City. In its 22d year of organization, the club is undertaking a list of features that include a meeting in the General Electric House of Magic" at 570 Lexington Ave., New York City.

Less than a month following the election of officers on December 4, 1935, during the course of which Mr. L. G. Simmons, regional director, Chevrolet Motor Co., will present several interesting sound motion pictures, the First Annual Club Dinner and Induction of Officers will be held. Since this is the most important function of the New York organization, Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, will be the guest speaker.

Climaxing the 1935-36 season of this division the college alumni will present the biggest event in alumni history. There is planned for the first week in June, a week-end at Villanova College. The exact activities of this function are not as yet determined, and will not be released until a future date, but the affair itself is assured.

Paetrus Banmiller and Martin L. Gill, Jr., were also the guest speakers at the meeting of the Philadelphia Club on last Thursday evening, October 3. Their fall program

VILLANOVA CONTINUES PART-TIME PROGRAM

National Youth Administration Factor Replaces Work Project as Begun Under FERA Plan

Villanova College is continuing its part-time work program along the same lines as carried out last year. However, instead of being under the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, as last year, it is sponsored by the National Youth Administration.

The National Youth Administration was established by the President of the United States, June 26, 1935, under authority of the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of 1935. The program of student-aid is an integral part of the State Youth Administration plan.

Approximately 90 students are employed in clerical and laboratory work, and library work. This employment is intended not merely to assist students in defraying their expenses at college, but the National Youth Administration emphasizes the fact that this assistance be given only to students who would not otnerwise be able to attend college or to remain in college.

Students indulging in this part time project are restricted to 40 hours a month as a maximum and also the number of working hours in a week are confined to 30. The maximum time allowed in one day has been set at eight hours.

FORMER PRESIDENT CONDUCTS RETREAT

One-Day Affair Is Climaxed By Papal Blessing And Holy Communion

Rev. Edward G. Dohan, O. S. A., former President of Villanova College, conducted the annual one-day Retreat here last Thursday in the College Chapel. Opening in the morning with the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass at 7 and 8 o'clock respectively, for the resident and non-resident students, the attendance was notably near perfection.

In his first discourse, shortly following Mass, Fr. Dohan dealt with the formulation of future life, both in this world and hereafter. He explained that the formulating of life is in the students' hands now. It was explained that whereas they believe in the teachings of the Church, and are always ready and willing to defend them, and also whereas they know their significance and their proof as well as their truth, they do not often enough give them consideration and meditation.

In his second talk, Fr. Dohan explained the two kinds of fear accompanying the consideration of life in eternity. He pointed out the fear of Hell, and the fear of precaution.

Thursday afternoon, the conference dealt with the mystery of the Incarnation, with Confession and with Pennance. The grace that led the thief on the cross to ask forgiveness, that which converted Saint Paul, the grace to die in Christ's friendship was explained, and the need for it was emphasized.

During the closing discourse, the Stations of the Cross were detailed and their significance thoroughly expounded. The thought that should be given to each station was explained, and the value of this Report Discloses Junior Week Financial Success

Although quite belated, the report of the Junior Prom of the Class of 1936, is at last issued. The entire profit of the Junior Week, including that of the Junior Prom was determined to be $407.07.

Proceeds from the Junior Prom itself reached a higher level than this total, approximating well over $550.00. However, such bills as that for the newly purchased ceiling, etc., lowered the class treasury to the amount stated.

Geraghty Resigns as Sports Editor; A. R. Catrambone Succeeds to Post

John B. Geraghty, Jr., junior in the School of Science and former Sports Editor of the VILLANOVAN, announced his resignation from the college weekly last night. Geraghty tendered his resignation to the editor stating as his reason pressing laboratory work which will keep him busy for the greater part of the week especially those days which he would be obliged to devote his time to the VILLANOVAN.

Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., moderator of the paper, upon Geraghty's resignation turned the reins of the sports staff over to Anthony Catrambone, a Senior in the Arts School. Mr. Catrambone has served on the staff for the past three years and it was expressed by Fr. McKee at his appointment that he was meritous of the award given him. Mr. Catrambone, who was selected last spring when the new staff was appointed to act as assistant Sports Editor, leaves only Norton Paden, a junior in the Science School as assistant Sports Editor.

Geraghty, although he has given up his duties as Sports executive, will continue to write for the staff but it was due to conflicts in study periods that forced him to abandon his post as editor. For the past two years the former editor has been connected with the Sports staff and his reception of the coveted position came about last spring when the new staff officers were selected.

As a sideline to his reportorial duties, Mr. Geraghty will engage in competition with the 150-lb football team. A former football star in high school, he is seeking the pivot post on the 150-lb. Wildcat squad.

Student Council Meets After Chapel Tonight

Immediately after Chapel services Tuesday night there will be a meeting of the Student Council in the Amphitheatre of Mendel Hall.

James J. Downs, Council Chairman, requests that all members, both new and old, be present not later than 7:00 P. M. as there are several matters of importance to be discussed.

William Vaughn, senior class president, will appoint a secretary-treasurer to succeed the vacancy left by Raymond McGunnigle who has not returned to school. This appointment, however, will be subject to approval by the College authorities.

A constitution for the organization will in all probability also be discussed.

POLICE SCHOOL IN SESSION ON CAMPUS

Four Counties Send Police And Officials for Training In Criminology

The newly organized Police School of Delaware County is conducting its courses on the campus of Villanova College under the direction of Dr. J. A. Detlefsen, of Swarthmore, Pa.

The fall term was begun on Tuesday, September 24, with a large enrollment from nearby law-enforcing agencies.

The plan for an inexpensive police school was prepared with the hope that it would fill the need of all communities and industrial plants of Delaware, Montgomery, Chester and Bucks counties. Its object is to furnish means by which the present police personnel may be more adequately trained and informed and by which other men considering police work as a profession may be able to secure the best instruction.

The course offered in this school requires 48 hours of class work and is covered in 12 weeks, four hours each week.

Plans and policies of the school are directed by an executive committee chosen from among the police chiefs, councilmen, and prominent citizens. An advisory committee of prominent citizens has also been formed. A director is immediately resonsible in carrying out mediately responsible in carrying out all policies of the executive committee.

Police officers, industrial police, and other men interested in police work as a profession, are eligible. For those not having police experience, the approval of the dean is required.

THE AMERICAN WORKER

The following editorial written especially for the ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGE EDITORS and its members presents a new insight into the condition of the American worker. The illustration appearing on this page shows graphically what has happened to the American worker since 1929.

AFTER two years which have been featured by the wishful thinking of many of the country's citizens, business does now seem to be regaining its feet. A look at the cold, bare figures showing the condition of the American worker, however, should serve to temper the enthusiasm and loose talking which is an automatic sign of this substantial gain in prosperity.

Even in 1929 — and then workers were able to purchase 30 per cent more goods than in 1921 — there were 16,000,000 families (60 per cent of the total population) which possessed incomes below a standard sufficient to supply the "basic necessities" of life. On the other hand, 36,000 wealthy families had a combined income equal to that received by 11,650,000 at the bottom of the economic ladder. These figures, furnished by the conservative Brookings Institution and not by any advocate of "share-the-wealth," show that one-tenth of 1 per cent of the population were receiving as much income as 42 per cent. This disparity in income, the Brookings economists have pointed out in their later and latest books, has made it wholly impossible for purchasing power to keep pace with production.

The illustration printed on this page shows graphically what has happened since 1929 to the American worker. Unemployment has decreased, on the basis of four reliable estimates, only 1,000,000. The National Industrial Conference Board, purely an employers' organization, once estimated that the average minimum cost for maintaining a "fair American standard for the family of an industrial worker" to be $31.92 a week. Average weekly earnings have never been within $5.00 of this amount, and during the first few months of 1935, they were $11.00 removed from the estimated minimum. Though wages rose, living costs rose faster.

It is a lack of space which prevents the inclusion of even a few of the many suggestions put forward to alleviate this condition. It is quite obvious that the Roosevelt Administration, however sincere its efforts and fine its promises, has done practically nothing. It is perhaps even more obvious that the Republicans have to date proposed no plan which would adequately meet the situation.

NEUTRALITY DOES NOT ADMIT OF PARTIALTY

IT SEEMS a long cry from the languorous, care-free student lounging away the last few days of his vacation on the sun-bathed walks of the campus to the marching hordes in Ethiopia. The distance, however, is one of unawareness rather than one of actuality. The same as an assassin's shot in Sarajevo 21 years ago was little thought to carry with it complications that would ultimately plunge the world into a cataclysm, that was inconceivable to the most imaginative of writers. Hence if the murderous story of the past is to prove of any concrete value to us of the present, it must be embodied in the determination to remain aloof from all possible entanglements in the event of an European war.

Unfortunately the only positive procedure which we have for maintaining a strictly non-partisan attitude, is contained in the feeble regulations of the Pitman neutrality resolution. A measure which only superficially considers the problems involved in neutrality, without making any definite attempt to examine into and legislate against the economic factors which govern our international relations, and which are, accordingly, most likely to bring about the conditions we wish to avoid. The Pitman resolution is too limited in its scope to permit anything but a restricted applicability. Its weakness, however, should not prevent Secretary of State Hull from putting it into operation as speedily as possible, and rigorously maintaining it until a more comprehensive resolution can be designed.

Mr. Hull cannot be too literal in his interpretation, stringent in his enforcement of the present resolution. For if neither he nor President Roosevelt can be induced to take an aggressive attitude toward neutrality, we cannot expect a "hands off" policy on the part of those who are economically interested in the parties.

Considering, what seems to be, the success or failure of one of the warring purely emergency nature of the present resolution it is necessary for Congress to prepare a more inclusive one. One that will not only include an embargo on the actual materials of warfare, but will also dissociate the Government from participation in or responsibility for the unmolested continuance of any American industry that is carried on in conjunction with foreign powers or in the countries of those actually engaged in the conflict.

A biology prof. at the University of California announced that all the boys and girls in his class would participate in a test to determine whether microbes are transmitted by kissing. The attendance was perfect the day of the test. Each student was given a little pad of sterilized cloth which was to be kissed and then daubed on a microscopic slide. That's all of that story, except that it made a lot of students lose faith in their instructor.

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

FOLLOWING the production of several moving pictures taken from novels written by that celebrated English author, Charles Dickens, the "high and mighty" of movieland have decided to cast one of the works of another famous English writer. This time the American public is to see portrayed on the screen "A Midsummer Night's Dream" as written by William Shakespeare. (Perhaps you've heard of him.)

To Max Reinhardt goes the honor of producing this masterpiece and masterpiece it will be for 1000 hand selected actors and actresses will enact the various roles therein. Incidentally the music is by none other than Mendelssohn so everyone may be assured of witnessing and hearing something definitely artistic.

Then there's the story of the successful novelist whose marriage foundered on the shoals of separation...as some are inclined to do ...only recently. Of course the writer was forced to put in the papers the old line; you know, "I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife, Lola Round..."

Strange as it may seem, up until that time he did not know how many, many people were interested in the trials and tribulations of unhappy husbands. But during the ensuing few days he found out. He received letters from moving and storage companies, seven of them. Letters from agents of Mexican divorce mills explaining how cheaply and quickly one can secure his freedom by simply catching the southbound plane.

Circulars arrived from various steamship concerns declaring that a cruise was just the thing for frazzled nerves. Two private detective agencies wrote to him, one of them coming right out declaring that it specialized in shadowing people and securing divorce evidence. Hotels sent little notes offering all the comforts of home and three laundries even put in their bid for recognition, declaring that they specialized in bachelor work. Yes, sir! We aim to please.

Notre Dame University, of South Bend, Ind., has among its fold the namesake of that famous author, William Shakespeare; said Shakespeare being a student and athlete at the mid-Western school. But right here we have in Villanova one of author Shakespeare's greatest characters, Macbeth. Macbeth in this case, however, happens to be Gilbert Macbeth, Ph. D. And ironically enough he teaches English.

The most salient fact is, however, that he is one of our professors and we sincerely hope he will pardon this notoriety so that when the marks are issued we can, without any trepidation whatsoever say, "Tell me not in mournful numbers." Or perhaps to use the more common vernacular of the day, "Lay off Macbeth!"

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI.

AFTER a three months vacation, your editor naturally accumulated many tales concerning the activities of our popular radio stars. So without any further ado, lets start off with a bang and keep the ether waves hot all year. Do you remember Ben Pollack? Well, Bob Crosby is now leading that same band. According to criticisms heard here and there, Bob certainly has made a hit with that aggregation. Later on in the season he is scheduled to appear on a commercial over the CBS networks.

Dorseys and "Bing"

The general topic of conversation this Summer in New York and vicinity amongst our younger set, seemed to center about the Dorsey Brothers Orchestra, who, without any hesitation on my part have made more headway in a year and a half than any other band. Jimmy Dorsey and the boys will climax this rapid progress to fame when they play their first commercial program over NBC-WEAF on December 5th, furnishing the music on the one hour Kraft show starring Bing Crosby.

After spending its first Summer at the exclusive Sands Point Bath Club, the Dorsey outfit moved to the Riviera atop the Palisades. Then came the Palais Royal on Broadway, a record-breaking four months tour of the East and a Summer of sensational playing at the famous and attractive Glen Island Casino.

The new program will also feature Kay Weber and the Dorsey Trio. Kay will not only sing but likewise speak lines and assume an active role on the program. Her training as a dramatic actress has equipped Kay to take such an assignment. The rio made up of Don Matteson, "Skeets" Herfurt and Roc Hillman, three members of the band, all hail from Denver and have been singing together since they were in high school.

Noble Picks Donahue

And now lets reminisce over some of this Summer's stand-outs. One stands out over all others and that one is Al Donahue, the society bandleader who succeeded Ray Noble in the Rainbow Room, New York's smartest night retreat. Al had all the musicians agog over the way he played "Meditation" from Massenet's "Thais," on one of his broadcasts from the Rainbow Room. Donahue played it legitimately on his violin while the orchestra supplied a background in dance tempo. During the performance Al didn't go one-sixteenth note off the written score and that is something of a musical accomplishment!

Ray himself picked Al to follow him into the Radio City Night spot. We have to hand it to Noble—he sure knows his music and musicians. His interpolation of "A Serenade to a Wealthy Widow," recently rearranged by Ray himself, will justify my statement.

Bob "Believe It Or Not" Ripley and Ozzie Nelsen, co-stars of the new Baker's broadcast, met for the first time when they got together fo their inaugural broadcast on Sunday, October 5. So, although they were ballyhooed as the co-stars of the series, they are total strangers. Anyway, they put on a good show for us Sunday night.

Here and There

Roaming Here and There . . . Victor Young has just been renewed for an additional 13 weeks on the Shell Program . . . Imagine the dismay of Connie Boswell when, after spending an entire afternoon snapping pictures of the King's Guard in London during her visit there, she returned home to find the film had been put into the camera backwards! It wasn't carelessness on Connie's part, however. The clerk in the film shop had committed the dastardly deed and to him "Phooey!" . . . For the most part, Bing Crosby's recent fan mail consists of complimentary raves on the burlesque tap dance he does in his picture "Two For Tonight" . . . It was that funny . . . Barry McKinley broke the bicycle record between Castle Harbor and Hamilton, Bermuda, during his recent visit there, pedaling the distance in 27 seconds, flat! . . . Here's a new record in long song titles . . . "Serenade to a Lonely Window Washer on the Seventy-third Floor of the Empire State Building," now being exclusively featured by the Dorsey Brothers on their broadcasts. To save the announcers trouble, however, they have nicknamed it "The Dorsey Stomp" . . . Jimmy himself wrote this one!

Celebrating a year's highly successful run on the nation's airwaves, the Lux Radio Theatre will present cinema-famed Joan Crawford as the star of a full hour radio adaptation of the renowned melodrama "Within The Law." The broadcast will be heard over the Columbia chain Monday, October 14, from 9 to 10 P. M., E. S. T. It is generally hailed as a front-rank offering of the microphone and is one of the most elaborate series in the radio field.

By A. T. MELI

THE OPENING of the Fall semester presents two important improvements in the college library. With the further development of the library in mind, the college authorities have added Rev. Daniel Falvey, O. S. A., to the library staff as assistant in conjunction with Sister Borromeo. It has been under the guidance of Sister Borromeo that the library has reached its present point of efficiency. Under her continued direction and that of Fr. Falvey the future development of the library can easily be foretold.

The library will be open from the hours of 8:30 A. M. to 9 P. M. during the week and until 5 P. M. on Saturdays. This change in the library hours is an experimental one and its continued use is dependent upon the attitude of the general student body. The purpose of the change is to make the library available to more students. Thus the library will be able to accommodate more students who enjoy spending spare time in acquiring that culture which only reading can bestow.

The library staff has not been idle during the last summer. Numerous valuable and interesting additions have been made to the already large collections. More than 50 volumes dealing with literature have been added to the shelves, while the number of books on chemistry has been increased by 45.

The library boasts of a worth while list of periodicals and a convenient file of pamphlets which can be instrumental in keeping those interested posted on current events. Another novel improvement is the acquisition of a number of recently published books. These are conveniently placed on top of the index cabinet. It would be worth while to look these volumes over.

The library has been fortunate in receiving a subscriptio to "The Catholic Book of the Month Club" from a generous admirer. Another subscription, the gift of one of the priests at Villanova, will make two copies of the useful and interesting publications available to the student body.

"The Catholic Book of the Month Club" is promoted by a group of zealous Catholics who have as their ideal the cultivation of the frequent use of Catholic literature. They have carefully selected a group of books which have their motive some Catholic ideal that is expressive of the true Christian viewpoint on topics of the day. This society publishes books both of interest and of quality and of beneficial importance to the Catholic World. A typical example of one of their books is "The Man of Aran," by Pat Mullen. The motion picture of the same name was one of the foremost films of 1934. The story is described by Shane Leslie; "It is the real stuff and it is as full of Irish aroma as the smell of seaweed."

This is but one of the many valuable aids to be obtained in the library. Students are urged to show their appreciation of these improvements by making use of them. Thus the Villanov library will serve not as a gloomy storehouse of cold facts but as a friendly, comfortable spot which may be used by the student body to obtain culture and learning with the maximum enjoyment.

Horizon

OF THE ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGE EDITORS

A HAND-BOOK FOR DICTATORS

(Written especially for A. C. E. by William ... White, connected with his father William Allen White on the famous Emporia Gazette for 10 years; now associate editor of The American Observer.)

I have been asked to submit a monograph for the instruction and edification of college undergraduates. It will be about dictators and how to be one. The way the world has drifted for the past 10 years and is drifting today, it's going to be a most important subject about 1940.

First you must be born one; you must have the proper degree of maladjusted endocrine unbalance to make you a mild paranoiac. If your unbalance is too extreme, you will think you are Napoleon or William Randolph Hearst, and they will lock you up, you will be unable to dictate to anybody but the nurse who brings you meals or the man who takes you out for exercise, and your career as a world figure will be ruined.

If you are only mildly pathological, however, then you are definitely in the money, and you might as well go into training and see what you can do with your talents. In the first place, you must know thoroughly what people are afraid of, for you must be able to scare them into letting you dictate, and to know this, you must be a coward yourself—which you already are, of course, because of your paranoia.

If you are a middle-class coward, consider yourself very fortunate indeed. For then you know instinctively what they are afraid of, and have only to master the technique of scaring them even more badly. An upper-class coward is only afraid he will lose what he has, and he doesn't envy anyone, so he can never perfect the technique of rousing fear and envy. And the proletariat, unfortunately for your purposes, lacks fear. He is already on the bottom, he doesn't like it, but he has no fear of falling because he is already down.

The lower middle classes have both something to gain and something to lose. They fear the people below them and envy those above. Numerically and emotionally they are the nation's backbone. So, if like Mussolini and Hitler, you have come from their ranks, know their hopes, superstitions, fears, envies, and hates, then, boy, they are your meat, and all you need is intelligence and industry in the art of stirring their fears (so that you can play on those middle class neuroses like Jesse Crawford on the organ) plus a driving pathological paranoiac urge of your own which makes you suffer acutely when you aren't on the top.

You will, of course, make mistakes. In the early part of your career, you will falter and fall victim of that fallacy that you shouldn't promise what you can't deliver, that people are interested in constructive measures for improving government and social conditions. Some people are, of course. But not your customers. What you must do on your upward path is to denounce evils, not correct them. If you start trying to improve things before you are in a position to throttle all criticism, then you have laid yourself wide open. People will see that you are only human and not a demi-god, that, like any other reformer, you can't deliver quite what you promised, and you will richly merit the political bust on the schnozzle which you will most assuredly get.

If you want to become the heavy sugar daddy of the lower middle classes, don't waste your time and endanger your career by proposing concrete reforms. Concentrate on denouncing their enemies—pour it hot and heavy about the idle rich, the radical poor, the Jews, the chain stores, and what not. Don't ever falter and think that sincerity or logic can be substituted for vehemence; if you find yourself falling back on the truth, recognize this symptom for what it is—a danger warning—a sign that your imaginative powers are flagging, that you need a couple of weeks' rest somewhere.

Your job is to induce a mass psychosis, so remember the basic symptoms of paranoia; delusions of grandeur alternating with hallucinations of persecution. Tell your customers in one breath that they are the greatest guys on earth, of a pure and noble blood destined to rule, and in the next that they are beset by sinister foes without and within, and that you are the only fair-haired boy who can fish them out of the soup and hoist them to the stars. For supplementary reading to help you master the technique, I cannot too strongly recommend the Hearst press.

And if you bother me with silly questions as to what you'll do when you get it, you haven't the proper glandular and neurotic setup to be a dictator. You have the press, don't you? And the radio? And the public platform? And you can burn all the books you don't like and print some others that you do. And plenty of brass bands to play while your customers march up and down in their uniforms cheering to make themselves feel important; able to go out and beat up a few foreigners to resolve any doubts which might come into their minds. When you're in, it's a push-over. So run along, now, buy a copy of the evening American and start doing your home-work. It might just as well be you as somebody else.

As We See It... Utopia Making

By HARRY PARKIN

WE ARE inclined toward the opinion that Utopia-making is among the easiest and most fascinating of intellectual occupations. Few employments that can actually be called by this name offer the same attraction as that of devising panaceas for the hereditary ills of society—of evolving a social system that will conclusively and efficiently convert a harrassed and perplexed world into a sort of Elysian field. Many of the noblest minds of the ages have derived a certain pleasure and satisfaction from the contemplation of an ideal commonwealth, as well as, proven, a source, not only for the noetic entertainment of mankind, but also a stimulant that urges him on, with the fervor of accomplishment, toward the realization of his highest dreams. Life, unfortunately, is made of a stuff far less plastic than that of the imagination—hence its oddities have a way of confusing and confuting the most logically reasoned plans. It likewise happens, that the thing our author is most apt to consider one of her whimsicalities, will as likely as not develop into a refutation of his whole scheme.

Roughly we may say that there are two kinds of Utopia-makers, which for want of a better system we will classify as altruists and egoists. The latter classification being essentially interested in the fabrication of reveries wherein their own difficulties are miraculously removed, and their individual existence made one of equanimity, we may pass over any pretensions they may have to our consideration with the assurance that their Utopias being intrinsically self-centered, are too impractical to prove of any interest aside from their psychological aspects. Utopia for the egoist is a paradise of individualism, with the balance of mankind occupied in keeping him properly applauded, or in registering a degree of amaze esteem that will be commensurate with his accomplishments. Thus it is the Utopia-making of the altruist which primarily holds our attention, because in it we all hope to find the realization of one of man's obvious and long felt desiderata, that of social betterment.

The altruistic Utopia-maker bases his deductions upon certain abstract principles, namely; the brotherhood of man, and the inalienable right of every person to the opportunity of developing his individual abilities toward their natural fulfillment, without the social hinderances of environment and poverty; two factors that do more to frustrate the noble purposes of man than any others. From these initial precepts he proceeds to erect a veritable superstructure of the imagination, wherein they are each worked out in minute detail. In the development of his theory he generally assumes that economic conditions are the only real basis of human progress, and if he can determine a formula whereby these factors can be made operative according to a specified line of reasoning, then he has the most likelihood of attaining the realization of his aim.

What appears to be the most outstanding fault of such imaginings is the almost universal tendency to disregard, or give but scant consideration to the personal equation of the plan. Between the glamour of the vision and the long road to its realization, the subjective elements which formerly existed on paper are suddenly crystalized into living realities, which must be directed with due consideration to their rational and physical faculties. All the decrees and shibboleths that attend the proclaiming of an ideal polity are not enough to convince men of its workableness unless it is the coherent expression of their own ineffectual efforts. The moral or philosophical grounds for the existence of such a theory cannot be judged upon any other basis than its capacity for increasing the general health, comfort, freedom and well-being of the whole community.

Utopia-making cannot be based upon class psychology or preference, with the balance of the community forced to adjust or obliterate itself. It must be inclusive in its applicability and not harmful and beneficial by turns.

Utopia-making has yet to determine a practical method for attaining its purpose without the denial of certain moral rights to certain classes of individuals, and until this end is attained, we must expect it to continue in the realm of Utopia-making.

REVAMPED BAND IN MID-SEASON FORM

Despite Little Early Practice Band Is Well-Rounded for Season Ahead

The nineteen thirty-five edition of the Villanova College band is now fast rounding into mid-season form. Under the able direction of Mr. Paul Teel this college musical organization is now enjoying one of its best seasons.

When the call for pre-season rehearsals brought some of its members back to college on September fourth, the outlook of the band was anything but favorable. Many upperclassmen were unable to report due to employment and, in the case of three, illness. However, of the ten to report eight were freshmen.

In the days that followed rain kept the musicians indoors and only limited practice could be held. During this time the music and instruments were put into shape and uniforms made ready for the coming season. The number of members increased and the band outgrew the Mendel Hall amphitheatre and moved to the Commerce and Finance auditorium.

REV. JOHN F. BURNS ASSUMES DUTIES AS LIBERAL ARTS DEAN

Former Head of Artsmen Receives Teaching Post At Amarillo, Texas

REV. DANIEL FALVEY, O.S.A., ADDED TO LIBRARY STAFF

Changes Are Made in English, Chemistry and Psychology Branches of School

Villanova College faculty has undergone several changes in its membership for the present scholastic year. Many old faces have disappeared and new ones have come to take their places.

The most notable change has been that of the Dean of the School of Philosophy, Arts and Letters. Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., former professor of history was appointed to fill that office along with that of Director of Studies.

Dr. Burns is the author of the Passion Play, "Vision," which was produced several years ago with an all-college cast. The play enjoyed long runs in several theaters of the Eastern and New England states.

Rev. Eugene A. Mauch, O. S. A., who formerly held the deanship has received a new post a Price Memorial College in Amarillo, Texas.

Professor Gilbert MacBeth comes to Villanova, as an English instructor, from the University of Illinois. Dr. Macbeth is formerly of Marquette and the University of Delaware.

Dr. Leo F. Brown, formerly instructor of educational psychology at University of Missouri, has been appointed to teach the same subject here. He studied at St. Louis and St. Mary's colleges.

The Chemistry Department has undergone several changes. Rev. John B. Hammond, O. S. A., from the University of Chicago, has been appointed professor of organic and inorganic chemistry. Also in this department is Rev. Edward F. Jennings, O. S. A. He spent several years at Catholic University where he obtained a Ph. D.

In the English Department, in addition to Professor MacBeth there have been two changes. Anthony J. Frayne, formerly of St. Francis College, is now instructor of public speaking, debating and dramatics at Villanova.

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., has been appointed as instructor of Library Science. He is also one of the rectors of Austin Hall and received the appointment of moderator of the senior annual, the Belle Air.

Three former teachers are now instructors at various places in the country. Rev. Eugene A. Mauch, O. S. A., is now at Price Memorial College at Amarillo, Texas. Rev. John McCall, O. S. A., is at St. Thomas High School in Rockford, Illinois, and Rev. John McMenamin, O. S. A., is teaching at Malvern Prep.

Homecoming Date To Be Detroit Game

consists of a large rally at their next meeting on Thursday evening, October 31, just preceding the second of the home-and-home games between Villanova and Detroit.

Of note, too, in the list of alumni news and activity, is the formation of a new chapter of this national organization. It is the Hazleton Alumni Club of Villanova, whose members are residents of Hazleton, Pa. Villanovans from this city have increased so rapidly in numbers in the past few years, that this move was thought both advisable and necessary to the convenience of the alumni from this section.

COLLEGE IMPROVEMENTS

Villanova College laboratories have been the recipients of many new devices and conveniences by which to further the facilities of studies of the engineering students. New air-conditioning equipment has been supplied in the Mechanical Engineering laboratory, and a new electric steam boiler has been added to the Chemical Engineering laboratory.

NEW ARTS DEAN

REV. JOHN F. BURNS, O. S. A., who was appointed Dean of the School of Arts, Philosophy and Letters prior to the opening of the regular fall session in September. Dr. Burns succeeds Rev. Eugene A. Mauch, O. S. A., who had been Dean for three years. Fr. Mauch is now stationed at his new post in Amarillo, Texas.

FRESHMAN DEBATING CLUB BEGINS EARLY

Twenty-Four Aspirants Will Be Coached by Jos. T. Houseman for Competitions

The Freshman Debating Society held its first meeting on Tuesday, October 1, in Room 204, Mendel Hall. The Moderator of the society, Joseph T. Houseman, a member of the Class of 1933, discussed operations for the body of young men interested in debating. He also put forth plans for the present school year.

It was adopted: First, that the group will practice speaking and debating intrafraternally until December; secondly, that the society will begin the intercollegiate series only when Mr. Houseman feels that the members have attained that degree of skill in debating as will assure a successful season; thirdly, that four "away" and four "home" engagements will be made; and lastly, that everyone will be given an opportunity to speak at least twice, once "home and once "away."

Return matches will be sought with all teams encountered last year. In this list are included Fordham, Pennsylvania, and Georgian Court.

The 24 students present elected Thomas Delate, a freshman in the School of Arts and Philosophy, as their business manager. Mr. Delate proposed that the meetings of the society shall be held every Tuesday evening in Room 204, Mendel Hall.

An interesting and appropriate topic for discussion has been planned for tonight, namely: "Resolved, That Freshman Regulations Should Be Abolished."

All Freshmen who have had any experience in debating and also those interested in debating are requested to attend tonight's session.

DEBATING TEAM MEETS

Betta Gamma Chapter of Literary Society Revamped by Prof. Frayne

The Beta Gamma Chapter of the Villanova Literary Society will start its season this week under the direction of Anthony J. Frayne, M.A., who will replace Prof. Joseph T. Jonas. Prof. Frayne will attempt to intensify the activities of the organization this year by giving a series of public exhibition debates.

Last year, this group withdrew from the Inter-collegiate Debating League but in all probability will rejoin this year and compete with other colleges.

John W. Hallahan, who was elected president of the club at the latter part of last term, will be aided by Joseph Carroll, vice-pres., Rafael Martinez-Alvarez, sect., and Aloyius Fitzpatrick, sergeant-at-arms. The team will be fortified this year by the entrance of several of last year's large freshman [illegible]

PRESS APOSTOLATE BEGINS ACTIVITY

Meetings Will Be Held on First Tuesday of Each Month

The Villanova College Catholic Press Apostolate will again function on the campus this coming year. This notification was made by Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., chaplain, who simultaneously announced that the meetings will be held on the first Tuesday of the month, instead of the first Wednesday, as has been the practice in former years. These meetings take place immediately after chapel services.

This religious society has been in existence since June 2, 1931, when it was founded with a fourfold purpose. First and foremost of the four was to encourage among Villanova students the reading of current Catholic literature, especially Catholic newspapers and periodicals. This was done to give the students a thorough and better understanding of the Catholic items clipped from current papers.

The second important purpose of this organization was to supply to the Catholic Press, news accounts of religious activities at Villanova. This includes any religious interest that takes place on the campus, no matter what it may be.

Thirdly, to care for the remailing of Catholic literature. This includes all the work that is attached to the transmitting of the periodicals.

Fourth, to sponsor an "Information Bureau" on matters of Catholic interest. This comprises any question that may arise in the minds of an individual pertaining to a Catholic item.

The membership of the Apostolate is limited to only 50 students. All Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores are eligible for membership provided they are interested in the work of the society. Freshmen, however, do not become eligible for membership until after they have satisfactorily fulfilled a period of probation in distributing Catholic periodicals during one semester. If a student fails to attend two meetings in succession without sufficient reason he is immediately expelled as a member.

At the time of its organization it was decided that the officers of the Apostolate shall be: President, vice-president, and secretary. These are elected yearly by a majority vote at the final meeting of the scholastic year. In addition to these, other officials include: a custodian of th pamphlet rack, custodian of clipping boards, publicity representative, secretary for the information bureau and other needed officials and assistants. The latter are appointed by the president from volunteers.

The Catholic Press Apostolate is rapidly becoming one of the outstanding religious organizations of the college. It is one of the hardest working societies on the campus and is expanding every year under the unceasing efforts of Fr. Brown.

however, that the cover will be the same as last year's, having been adopted as the standard cover of the publication.

Mr. McGrory was the junior class president last year, and honor man in the Commerce and Finance School. He also figured prominently in the dramatic society, and is an active member of the Holy Name Society. His home is in Trenton, New Jersey.

Mr. Bigley is a resident of Philadelphia. Last year he was active in many campus activities, and was vice-president of the Lamba Kappa Delta, the pre-medical fraternity.

RECORD ENROLLMENT

Colleges Throughout Nation Show Marked Increase in Registrations

Reports from colleges throughout the country indicate an increase in enrollments averaging almost 3 per cent. This figure is based on unofficial advance figures which point out that there will be more than 20,000 additional undergraduates studying this year and that the total number will at least equal the record figure set in 1929-30.

A record of the enrollment here at Villanova will be released next week from the office of Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college.

INITIAL MEETING HELD

Fr. Vrana Again Directs Sanctuary Society as 25 New Members Join

Villanova's Sanctuary Society held its initial meeting of the year last week under the guidance of Rev. John L. Vrana, O.S.A., and welcomed 25 new members.

The organization will function under the leadership of Joseph Arthur, president; William Cleary, vice-president; Edward Kelly, secretary.

Membership is open to all Catholic students, who serve Mass, or who wish to serve. Meetings will be held the second Monday of each month.

Each Tuesday following the meetings the organization will be given Communion in a body at the 7 o'clock Mass.

system was first used at the commencement exercises last June and this marks the initial use for a college dance. Its success is unquestioned, for there have been many attempts to properly prepare the gymnasium for sound reproduction, and this system was chosen as the best that could be procured.

Chairman Davis also voiced the opinion that strong support is expected from all classes, and especially the Freshmen. In the past few years it has become almost a tradition that the Sophomore Dance should be the opening function of the college social calendar, and it has also become part and parcel with this tradition that the majority of the students take part in this initial opening of the social season at Villanova. It is especially notable that the first-year men make this their outstanding attendance and step into the realm of college life.

As an added attraction to the patrons of the hop, the Class of '38 will present a door prize. Two tickets for the best-located seats in the Temple Stadium for the annual Temple-Villanova football classic, will be presented to the holder of the lucky number.

The following members of the Sophomore Class have been appointed to the dance committee: Harvey Davis, chairman; Henry Guckenberger, Carl Coogan, Joseph Allessandroni, Frank Megaro, James Keegan, Andrew Stopper, Pascal Marquette, Louis Biester, Edward Murphy, Charles Cooke, James Lyons, Jordon Olivari, John Simons, Joseph Weber, William Durkin, Frank Menapace, John Pillion, Joseph Toland, Charles Stotler, William Dinges, Gilbert Bagot, William McLaughlin, and Walter Stahmann.

Tickets for the dance have been issued and may be procured in advance by anyone wishing to obtain them. They are available through any of the above listed committeemen.

practice, of making the stations, was pointed out. The sixth commandment was defined.

Friday morning the retreat was closed with the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass and the giving of the Papal blessing. All objects to be blessed were also taken care of after Mass. Fr. Dohan concluded the Retreat with congratulations to the students for their most edifying conduct and attendance.

ARTSMEN PLAN TO REORGANIZE CLUB

New Dean Is "One Hundred Percent in Favor Of Reorganization"

Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity, composed of members of the School of Arts, Philosophy, and Letters, will be organized in the near future for the scholastic year of 1935-1936. This fraternity has the distinction of being the oldest one on the campus, and its primary purpose is to promote extra-curricular interest in the classics.

Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Ph. D., the Dean of the School of Arts and Letters, when interviewed on the subject of its re-organization, said, "This office is 100 per cent in favor of the re-organization of the society, and will give it whatever backing necessary." Fr. Burns also said that he is in favor of Prof. Martin Gill continuing in the role of Faculty Moderator, a position which he held last year.

Prof. Gill, when queried about the future of the organization stated that he expected the remaining officers of last year's club to do much of the work of re-organization. Those remaining are Rafael Martinez, vice-president, and Benedict Maloney, treasurer. James Walsh, last year's president, was lost to the organization by graduation, and James Fitzpatrick, the secretary, is matriculating elsewhere.

Due to the fact that many policemen are on night duty, classes will be held during the late afternoon on Tuesdays and Thursdays (3:30 to 5:30). Telephone connection will be maintained with the class room so that officers may be called without delay in cases of emergency.

Students of the college who are interested in attending some of the classes may obtain all necessary information by applying at the President's office.

Subscription Campaign Is Launched To Swell Villanovan Circulation

In an attempt to increase the circulation by at least 50 per cent, the VILLANOVAN is launching a subscription campaign beginning with this issue.

Complimentary copies of the paper are being sent to almost 2000 alumni, many of whom have written to the VILLANOVAN requesting data concerning rates and publication.

Many alumni would like to maintain a closer contact with their Alma Mater and have suggested to the editor that this closer contact can be helped along if the VILLANOVAN were sent to them. This cannot be done free of charge, however, as the cost of printing and circulation would increase to such proportions that the paper would operate at a loss.

A subscription blank is printed below this story as matter of convenience to those who wish to subscribe. As can be seen in the blank, the price is $2.00 per year.

All subscriptions should be addressed to the circulation manager, Basil Dobrowolski, in care of the VILLANOVAN.

WE have a football team. They've come through three games, they've sent scores sky high, and their goal line is uncrossed. Two winning streaks of long duration have been smashed, those of P. M. C., of eleven games and Western Maryland's, of nine games. They have fight, speed, endurance and they click as one man. They're hot.

No. 17 All Over It

Speaking of that Western Maryland, they have a boy on that outfit who is as good as any we've seen. He is Benjamin, right end for the Terrors. His number 17 was mixed up in every play that the Terrors put across, and he had his foot in a large number of our plays. He is good. His pass catching was almost perfect; he missed two. He could tackle hard and he didn't like to be blocked. He can take it.

—V—

To those who say that Eddie Michaels, varsity captain, is not going so well. No, he isn't, but that's because the opposition sets two and three men doing nothing but getting Mike. He is still super valuble to the team, because when three men go after him, that leaves a nice hole in the line, where Galazin or Max Vidnovic usually pile through. So you're still the most valuable player, Mike.

—V—

Bisons on Deck

We're waiting, along with the rest of the student body for that Bucknell game. It promises to be one of the best yet played, with both teams just about equal. It will be the pointer for Temple, the chances are, if we shellac the Bisons, we'll walk over the Owls. See if we're right.

Future Foes?

Glancing over the doings of future opponents, we find, the Bucknell football squad led an onslaught against the Ursinus Bears last Friday night, and took them to the tune of 33-0. Previously the Bisons had taken P. M. C. by a 20-0 score. If the records of these two games carry any weight, Villanova should experience more trouble this Saturday.

La Salle was humbled by Catholic University, 41-7, all pre-game indications had the Explorers to lose, but by such an overwhelming margin, was surprising even to the victors themselves.

In their opening game with Davis Elkins the Blue and Gold squad was held to a tie.

Detroit, has won two games, humbling Central State Teachers and the Haskell Indians by decisive scores. The Fordtowners have taken advantage of the new rule governing the eligibility of laterals before the whistle on a man who is tackled. Four linemen handled the ball in one play for a touchdown against Central. Villanova has to meet a very cagey bunch here.

The Titan team, with Gus Dorais at the helm, has always been known for their passing attacks, enough to warrant the interest of the Blue and White supporters.

Traveling to Lewisburg, Harry Stuhldreher's charges will oppose the Penn State evelen. In its most recent game, the State club was very hard pressed by a weak Lebanon Valley squad before being able to eke out a 12-6 victory.

In the last but most important game the Wildcats meet their arch rival Temple, a game that holds the spotlight with local fans. According to all reports to date the Owls have not only Dave Smukler to throw into the attack, but they have brought out a new and sensational find, in the person of Vince Renzo, a halfback, who hails from Waterbury, Conn.

"150" LADS BEGIN PRACTICE FOR 1935

Pennsylvania Scheduled for Opener, October 8, at Home

Under the coaching of Charlie Cox and Frank Foster, members of last year's varsity football team, the 150-pound football squad started practice Friday, September 27, and are whipping into shape for their first game with the University of Pennsylvania lightweights on October 18. The game will be held at Villanova.

About 40 players answered the call for candidates. Among the veterans from last season are Captain Frank Rodgers, Charles Kain, Mario Menocal, Dan Murphy, Norris Horn, Jim Allen, Joe Murray and Joe McCabe. Captain Rodgers, Kane, Murphy, and Horn are candidates for backfield positions, and Menocal, Allen, and Murray seek line berths. McCabe moved up from halfback and is now playing end.

The first scrimmage was held last Friday. Some of the members of the squad were unable to participate because of classes, but all who turned out saw action.

Lew Beister, a sophomore candidate for halfback was among the outstanding players on the field. On defense he made a fine job of backing up the line, and was a consistant ground-gainer on the offense. Captain Rodgers and Charlie Kane made several gains off-tackle and around the ends. John Cousart also carried the pigskin in good form.

Dan Murphy, one of last year's veterans, showed plenty of power in his short line plunges. Long gains were scarce because the blocking in most spots was poor.

The high spot of the scrimmage was Johnnie Houseman's 40-yard sprint. Houseman, who played halfback at Northeast Catholic High, crashed through right tackle behind good interference, and raced through the secondary about 40 yards until he was finally brought down by Jim Lyons who caught him from behind.

Moscow, fighting for the center position with Jack Gerherty and Mario Menacol, made a fine showing on defense. He and Joe Murray were the outstanding linemen.

Although neither team functioned smoothly and there was no scoring, both showed plenty of spirit. Only a few passes were thrown, and none was completed. The next two weeks will be spent teaching the squad new plays, perfecting the blocking and tackling, and building up a passing attack.

Among the candidates for the backfield positions are Captain Frank Rodgers, Dan Murphy, Charlie Kane, Norris Horn, Lew Beister, Johnnie Houseman, Joe Bittenmiller, Jim Lyons, George Ceaterle, Victor Ashe, Jim Cousart, Paul Kerrigan, and Mike Totin. Candidates for the line are Joe Allessandroni, Will Cleary, Andrew Conte, James Allan, Bill Dinges, Joe Federowicz, Frank Forlunato, Jack Geraghty, Ray Gomez, Jim McAndrew, Joe McCabe, Charles O'Conner, Joe Murray, Bus O'Conner, Richard O'Donnell, Ed Quinn, Paul Quinn, Irving Uram, Dick Foot, Tom O'Brien, Ed Gibson, Moscow, Pat Pascucci, Tom Cook, and Ward Scanion.

'CATS PILE UP SCORES

Stuhldrehermen Average 30 Points Per Game in First Three Tussles

In three games played to date, Villanova has gathered 92 points, an average of 30 for each game. If the Wildcats continue at the present pace, the season's total would be about 275 points.

The opposition has been unable to cross the Blue and White goal line. The only real threat was a completed pass to the seven-yard line by Western Maryland in the last game.

Western Maryland Victim No. 3 for Stuhlie's 'Cats

Arthur Raimo and Nick Kotys Lead Attack Against Green Terrors; Stellar Play Of Backs Build Hopes for Future

P. M. C. AND URSINUS BOW TO 'CATS

By Pat Vassalluzzo

Villanova's Wildcats made it three in a row when the Green Terrors from Westminster were downed 20 to 0 at Villanova Stadium last Saturday. Led by Nick Kotys and Andy Stopper, sophomore flash, the Wildcats halted a Western Maryland streak at ten games. Kotys scored twice and Stopper once; while Christopher and Rogers each made good a point after touchdown.

After a scoreless first period, in which the spectators visioned a deadlock such as culminated from the meeting of the same two teams last year, Kotys started the Wildcats to triumph with a 70-yard run for a touchdown on a cut-back through right tackle, in the second quarter.

The Wildcats scored again in the third period when Stopper raced 66 yards for a touchdown on a spinner play through the center of the line. Once through the line Stopper could not be stopped. The final touchdown was scored in the last period when Nick Kotys relieved Andy and ran 17 yards for a tally.

P. M. C. Trounced

Playing host to a veteran P. M. C. aggregation, the Cats inaugurated Coach Stuhldreher's eleventh season as head mentor at Villanova in fine style by lacing the cadets 41 to 0.

Minus only the services of "Reds" Pollock in the backfield, the Cadets presented the same team which had won 12 straight; being undefeated last year and scored upon only once.

The Cats got the jump by scoring a touchdown in the first few minutes of play. From here on the Villanova team scored almost at will.

Outstanding in this game was the work of Kotys, Stopper, and Art Raimo. The latter was placed in the opening lineup because of an injury to Earle.

Jinx Overcome

For several years the Cats had not won the second game on their schedule. This proved to be enough of an objective to the Stuhldrehermen to trounce the Ursinus Bears, 31 to 0. Coach McAvoy presented a team containing eight of the

Intra Mural Tennis Will Begin This Coming Week

Supremacy of Dormitories and Individuals Is at Stake; Austin and Fedigan Halls Have Most Promising Outlook

MEET IS OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

The annual Intra-Mural Tennis program will be inaugurated during the coming week. The purpose of this forthcoming tournament is to determine the two best players from each hall.

In previous years these athletic contests have attracted many entries and the authorities anticipate an even larger number of contestants from their respective halls to participate in this extra-curricular activity.

Experience is not necessary in order to compete in this tournament. Anyone who possesses any ability on the clay courts is eligible for competition.

The school authorities are especially anxious to have a large representation from the freshmen class because next year they will probably constitute the nucleus of the varsity team.

Aides Selected

The entire tournament is under the auspices of Reverend Father Edward B. McKee, O. S.A., but Jim Conroy and Larry Reilly will superintend the proceedings at Austin Hall. Pat Marquette and Frank Neylan will direct the activities at Fedigan. The freshmen will be under the guidance of Frank Cantwell and Peter O'Neill.

The seeded racket-wielders are Ernie Zaloom, Ben Maloney, Frank Ferron and Kyzwicki. These men are candidates from Austin dormitory. The ranking contestants from Fedigan hall are Walter Krupa, Norbert Ford and Paul Melian.

Open to All Students

All students, both resident and non-resident, who are interested in Intra-Mural Tennis should communicate with their respective director. Parings will be made this week.

In order to simplify matters each contestant is requested to play his match as soon as possible and report the results immediately to his supervisor. The two survivors from each hall will then meet in a round-robin to determine the supremacy of the campus.

Some of the preliminary matches have already been played. The results: Pete O'Neill defeated J. Soviero, 6-0, 6-0. J. Horn defeated E. Looran, 6-3, 5-7, 6-0. Bill Smith defeated J. D'Appolito, 6-3, 6-3. A. Melian defeated Dan Smith, 6-0, 6-1.

men that beat Penn in the latter's opening game a year ago.

"Reds" Bassman, product of Central H. S. of Philadelphia, and protege of A. M. Barron of Penn State, who umpired the Villanova-Western Maryland contest, was well checked. Bassman is co-captain of the Bears, and was largely responsible for the moral victory over Villanova in 1933, when Ursinus held the Cats to a 7-7 tie.

Art Raimo, Everett, Mass. sophomore, ran roughshod over the Ursinus team; he alone being responsible for three touchdowns, one a 70-yard run. Also outstanding in this contest, was Andy Stopper, who awakened the Villanova supporters to the fact that he is a triple-threat man who can run, pass and kick. Bell, a substitute end, scored on a beautiful pass from Stopper in the last half of the game.

Forward Wall Strong

What may be the best forward wall Villanova has had in years held the Green Terrors coached by Charley Haven scoreless. As yet no team has scored against the Wildcats. Very little yardage has been gained through the Cats line. Most of the 258 yards gained by Western Maryland was done so via the air. Finding the line impenetrable the Terrors opened up with a passing attack that could be compared with Detroit's. Brennan, Western Maryland halfback and a southpaw, threw passes anywhere from 20 to 50 yards with great accuracy.

Constant thorns in Villanova's side were Benjamin and Lathrop. The former played at end, and besides catching a long pass from Brennan that put the Terrors in scoring position, was in every play, breaking up the Cats interference and stopping the ball-carrier. All Villanova scoring was done through the line. Very little yardage was gained around Benjamin's end. Lathrop, the sophomore quarterback, certainly lived up to the prediction of "Doc" Jacobs, who scouted Western Maryland in their opening game. Lathrop was continually hitting the line for yardage. The fact that he did not get into the open was due to the secondary defense, consisting of Galazin and Raimo.

Kotys Scores

Nick Kotys started his dash from Villanova's 30-yard line as an end run; but when Captain Compofreda, a tackle, came out to meet him, Kotys promptly cut back through the hole and ran 70 yards for the first score.

Stopper tallied again for Villanova in the third quarter. Andy smashed the center of the line and raced for touchdown-land, cleverly feinting Leroy Campbell, Western Maryland safety man.

In the last period Stopper and Sherlock put the ball on the 17-yard line. Here Kotys relieved Stopper and scored on the first play, for the final touchdown.

After this the Green Terrors really became a terror. A pass to Sadawaski, who had relieved Woodbury, and another to Benjamin put the pigskin on the five-yard line. A penalty for delaying the game, however, made their objective five yards farther away, and the final whistle erased their hopes of at least a score.

WILDCAT YEARLINGS HAVE GREAT SQUAD

Jacobs Has Twenty - Three Men to Groom for Future Varsity Material

Under the leadership of Coach "Doc" Jacobs, the freshman football squad is showing some real promise for future years. Scrimmages are held three times a week.

During the week, opposing Varsity plays are learned and used against the Cat eleven. This is essential for the success of the team. New plays must be learned every week.

Since 1933 no games have been scheduled for "the kittens." In October, 1933, they journeyed to Penn State to play the "Lions'" freshmen. They were defeated by the score of 38 to 7, and since then have not engaged in another interscholastic contest; nevertheless, they have plenty to handle.

The average weight of the Frosh line is 180 pounds. The players are required to "weigh in" every afternoon before practice and the weights are recorded. In this manner a check is kept on their physical fitness to play.

West Represented

Representatives from every section of the country are to be found among the players. California sent Buzz Davis, backfielder, and Jim Butler, lineman. Colorado and Oklahoma are represented by Jack Torpi and Jack Burke, respectively. Frank Cantwell, flashy end, hails from Youngstown, Ohio, and Tony Pyrz comes from Argo, Ill.

Del Walburn, formerly of North Carolina, looks like a sure prospect to fill the fullback position in Varsity ball, while Lou Diamond, former Coughlin high star, shines at the pivot position. Buckley and Sylvester are future promises at the halfback position. Watch these men go places.

Stuhlie Says

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stuhldreher, Head Coach of Football, is writing this column to explain in detail the inside story of the game of the previous Saturday, explaining the results of the game and why the game went as it did. He will also give a prediction, based on previous performances, as to the outcome of the game of the following Saturday.)

By HARRY A. STUHLDREHER
Head Coach of Football

Western Maryland came up from Westminster to give our boys their first real test. They met it like veterans. I knew that we had a good bunch of sophomore ballcarriers, eager and willing, but I wasn't sure how they would act under the stress of a tough game. The line played a fair enough game throughout, both offensively and defensively, but it was the backfield, in backing up the line, in pass defense and ball carrying that made the score mount up to the heights.

The Villanova tackling was very poor. The long and heart-breaking march up the field that the Terrors put on in the second quarter was due directly to the half-hearted passes that the tacklers made.

The boys from Westminster gave our eleven an unpleasant shock. They played hard and they hit harder. The game is always a tough one, but this one particularly was no set-up. Western Maryland has two excellent ends, Lassahn and Benjamin. Benjamin, No. 17, was right in every play. In particular, he was the thorn in the side of the off tackle slashes and the end runs. He just refused to be blocked, and on snatching passes out of thin air, he was tops. The unusual lineup of the Western Maryland team, that of lining up in a punt formation, and then shifting, gave our eleven a bit of trouble in the first quarter of the game, but we soon became accustomed to it.

Our touchdowns came as the result of perfectly executed plays, with every man doing his appointed job to perfection. In the Notre Dame system, every play is a potential touchdown, if all of the eleven men perform their assignments.

As to the Bucknell game, well, that's anybody's ball game. They are our traditional rivals, along with Temple. It is always one of the best games on the schedule, with plenty of hard play. I won't venture to predict the score, or even the outcome, but if our team comes through as they have in the past this season, we'll give the Bisons a plenty sixty minutes.

SWIMMERS REPORT WITH FIRST CALL

Prof. Gill Remains as Coach With Six Veterans As Nucleus

Upon the opening of the college pool Friday, September 27, Prof. Martin Gill, coach of the Villanova Swimming Team was overjoyed to note the crowd of swimming candidates.

Jack Hosey, a senior in the Arts School, was elected captain by the Varsity men of last year. Last season Hosey was a consistent winner in the distant events.

One position, severely in need of material, is the diving specialty. As yet the team is without the services of an experienced diver who has enough ability to bolster up this department.

Among the freshmen candidates stands out Billy Leahy, St. Joseph Prep star and 1935 Villanova Catholic Interscholastic champion; Bill Britt, Penn A. C. merman; Tommy Carbine, teammate of Leahy's at St. Joseph's, and Bill Baily, Penn A. C. oarsman.

Although a schedule has not yet been completed, Manager John McMannus expects to book meets with West Chester State Teachers, Swarthmore, Lafayette, Johns Hopkins Osteopathy and others.

Bucknell Bisons Will Be Next Villanova Opponent

Powerful Herd Team Shows Slashing Attack in Contests So Far; Smith, Sitarsky Stand Out

LINE STANDS UP TO PACE OF BACKS

By John L. Simons

Villanova's Wildcat Machine will have to be geared in high to keep from being trampled on when Bucknell's Thundering Herd roars down on the Main Line this Saturday.

Led by an exceptionally powerful and versatile backfield, the Bisons are bidding fair to eclipse their last year's record of seven victories, two ties, and two defeats. The backfield is the best in all-around ability to represent the Lewisburg institution for the last few years.

Consider this wealth of veteran and sophomore material. At quarterback, Capt. John Sitarsky, excellent field-general, bruising line plunger, blocker and punter extraordinary; at left half Stu Smith, best Bucknell back since Clark Hinkle; at fullback Paul Miller, who returns after a successful season at the post last year. Ed Raymaley looked like the best bet for the right halfback position, but Bill Pfeiffer, an unheralded sophomore at the begining of the season, replaced him in the Ursinus game and, judging by his play, will be hard to force from the lineup.

Flanked by a pair of ends who rate with the best combinations in the country, the Bison line in general excellence measures up to the pace set by the backs. Bill Wilkinson and John Filer, veterans of three year's standing, are the smashing, hardrunning wingmen who have spent much of their time in this the backfields of P. M. C. and Ursinus. Although but two regulars are back, both of them guards, the line from tackle to tackle will again be very strong. Last year's reserves and promising sophomore material have very effectively plugged the gaps left by graduation.

The Thundering Herd has encountered two of the Wildcat opponents, and on the basis of comparative scores alone the Main Liners should be the victor. But in the Ursinus game at least the Bisons were much better than the score indicates. They gained almost at will, rolling up a yardage total of 322 yards.

As long as the Bucknell first-stringers are in action, it will be a nip-and-tuck battle with the breaks of the game deciding. The high quality of the Villanova substitutes may, however turn the tide of victory in their direction. The 'Cats are three deep at every position and at several there is practically no difference between the first and second stringers. Bucknell's weak point, if it has one, is the lack of reserves. It was Villanova's superior man power coupled with brilliant climax-running by the left halfbacks, Nick Kotys and Andy Stopper, that defeated Western Maryland. And this same superiority will be one of the biggest factors in deciding the outcome when the Bison meets the Wildcat on the Main Line gridiron.

VARSITY TRACKMEN TO COMMENCE FALL TRAINING SESSIONS

Wealth of Material Evident as Harriers Prepare for Big Season

VETERANS TO LEAD DRILLS

With the fall program of athletic activities now under full swing a call has been issued for all varsity trackmen to report for practice. Due to the absence of Coach Bob Regan, who is assistant football coach, the fall drills will be conducted under the guidance of those men who have had previous experience with the Villanova harriers.

An intensive training session has been planned. Prospective runners who wish to report for practice are urged to contact any of the following: Fritz "Taxi" Monahan, Ben "Senator" Maloney, or Tom Cook.

The 1935-36 edition of the Villanova track team should be a very strong array if wealth of material is any criterion. Despite the loss of such outstanding performers as Captain Jim Elliott, Alex Kramer, Carl Hickey, Ed Sullivan, and Bill Grimberg, Coach Regan still has many fine athletes to form the nucleus of his team. In the sprint distances are "Taxi" Monahan, sophomore sensation of last year, Art Raimo, Bill Christopher, and Jerry Sherlock. Competing in the 440-yard runs will be Jack Earle, Victor Ashe, George Wrona, varsity man for two years, and Frank "Pop" Shealey, former St. John's Prep star.

Foremost among the distance runners is Ben "Senator" Maloney, former Connecticut high school star, who held several titles in that State in his high school days in the one mile run. It is expected this year that Maloney will double up in the one and two mile runs. Unable to compete last year because of an injury suffered while riding horseback during the early spring, the Wildcat star is looked to this season to provide many points for the Main Line runners. The leg that was crushed in the accident has responded well to treatment and the "Senator" has joined the fall training group.

Other distance men of note are Charley Kain, varsity performer last year, and Joe Shea, former Lower Merion star. The weight and field men are abundant also among the number being Tom Cook, high and broad jumper, Walt Korchinski, javelin; Bill Sweeney, discus; Charley Noonan, pole vault, and Frank Nye, shot put.

Any new men who have not been mentioned in the above are urged to report for practice at the stadium any afternoon at three o'clock and they will be properly outfitted. This call includes any freshman runners who will provide the basis for next year's contingent.

TEMPLE HAS NEW STAR

Temple boasts of a new find, who promises to make more trouble than their Dave Smukler, who proved a real bother to the Wildcats in their last meeting, having already proven his worth to Pop Warner, Vince Renzo, doughty halfback, will start in the Owls contest with Vanderbilt, Friday night.

STUHLDREHER SPEAKS

Head Coach and Band Featured In Radio Broadcast Over WIP

Introducing a renewed sport hour on the radio, Stoney McLinn featured Harry Stuhldreher and the Villanova band under the direction of Paul Teel at the initial broadcast over WIP last Friday evening. As guest speaker Mr. Stuhldreher was asked to give his opinion of the outcome of the Western Maryland-Villanova game. In a somewhat pessimistic tone he discussed the previous records of both teams but refrained from picking the winner.

Also featured on the half hour program was an interpretation of the "slow whistle" rule by an authority of officiating, Wilmer J. Crowell. Following this the remainder of the time was spent by Stoney McLinn in giving the Saturday schedule of games and the ultimate winners. During this time Coach Stuhldreher was again asked to comment on an outcome of a game, this time the Penn-Princeton tilt.

At various times during the broadcast selections were rendered by the band. The program began with the playing of the Villanova Alma Mater.

In the Limelight

By NORTON C. FADEN

ALONG with the first issue of the VILLANOVAN in this, another new school year, comes also a large group of Senior athletes who are eligible for mention in The Limelight.

Proceeding in the manner that has been the custom of this column for a great many issues, players will be chosen according to the sport that is in season at the time of writing.

But enough of explanations and on with the dance. The first candidate for mention this season is, of course, the captain of the football team, Edward J. Michaels. In case anyone is wondering what the "J" stands for it is Joseph.

When the stork first saw Ed, way back when, and realized that it was time to deliver him, he also realized that it would be some job unless he made two trips, and as this was impossible he enlisted the aid of three other birds and Eddie came into being.

Wilmington, Del., claims him as a native son and they like him so much down there that he has never left. At a wee age, Ed entered St. Hedwig's Parochial School in quest of knowledge, I suppose. He remained in this institution for eight years which was a long time, though is passed very quickly for our hero. Though this school did not sport any athletic teams, it was during his grammar school days that Ed got his first taste of football on the sandlots near the school.

After the termination of his grammar school education, Mike entered Salesianum Catholic High School. Although he didn't participate in athletics his freshman year Mike was vitally interested from a spectator's viewpoint in the various teams the school boasted of.

In his sophomore year, Mike went in for athletics in a big way. He won his first football letter this year and also participated in track and field events.

Junior year rolled around and Mike devoted all of his time to football and disregarded track entirely. He grabbed off another letter in this sport and was elected captain for the following year to top it off.

Senior year followed the Junior year as per usual and the football team went great guns under the able leadership of Mike and at the end of the season was tied for first place in the Catholic League.

During the summer Mike went in for pleasant odors and easy work in one of the many tanneries near his home. Whew? Did any of youse guys out there on the other side of this column ever get a whiff of a gentle breeze blowing over a Beam house in a tannery? A pole cat's aroma is narcissus in comparison.

After building himself up in the coloring room, Ed entered Villanova in 1932 with the rest of the incoming Frosh. He enrolled in the Frosh football team and was elected captain. During this year the Frosh aggregation had a regular schedule and in this schedule the team won three games but lost the fourth to a semi-pro team from Williamsport.

With the rest of the Frosh Mike carried trunks and performed menial tasks for the Vigilants. In this year, the V. C.'s were really tough and woe to the unwary Frosh. All in all, Mike was a good Frosh and caused little trouble to the V. C.'s.

In his Sophomore year, Ed joined the varsity and played guard the whole season, changing to tackle in his junior year. Mike played bang-up ball all season and the opposition found it tough sledding when bucking his side of the line.

Junior year found Mike, hale and hearty, filling the position of tackle. Bouncing around on the gridiron, in the middle of every play, Mike was one of the most valuable players on the team.

One of the most humorous aspects of Mike on the playing field was his reaction to a helmet. He wouldn't wear one. It was finally compromised and Mike came into possession of a gilded boxer's helmet. This was finally discarded however.

In this, his senior year, Mike was elected captain. With two games already played and the score standing Villanova 71 to opponents' 0, Mike says, "We have had a very successful season so far but the best teams are yet to be met."

When asked about the probable outcome of the Temple game Mike was non-committal. He explained very lucidly that it was too early in the season to predict anything and he was no soothsayer.

Mike is a Senior in the Commerce and Finance School and is majoring in transportation. His one desire is to be a teaching coach, though this is sensed rather than revealed.

Of course his favorite sport is football; in fact he lives it—except when he has a date.

TOUCH FOOTBALL'S FATE IS PENDING

Committee on Intra-Murals Questions Interest Of Student Body

According to the committee on intramural athletics, no definite plans have been made concerning touch football. Lack of interest by the students last year is given as the reason for the uncertainty.

This sport has been played at the college for many years, but it was only a few seasons ago that it was organized. It has developed into one of the most popular sports among college students throughout the country.

The cause for the indifferent response is laid to the fact that many of the resident students leave the campus over the week-end, thus causing their particular dormitory to forfeit. If the authorities note a change for the better every effort will be made to restore the sport as an intramural contest.

Concentrate on Basketball

The present plans, although they, too, are indefinite, consist in completing the tennis tournament and then concentrate on basketball. The basketball equipment will be given out so that all teams will be able to get an early start, and create an early interest along with an improved style of play.

Anyone engaging in varsity athletics is ineligible for all intramural sports for the coming year.

INTRAMURALS STRESSED

With a particular stress laid on intramural sports within the past few years, mainly through the efforts of the Rev. Edward B. McKee, and his committee on intramural sports, competition between the various dormitories has been running to a high pitch. This year more than ever it is the desire of the authorities to stress this method of pastiming.

Last year's competition found the Alumni aggregation well out in front, with the baseball honors in their favor, along with basketball. They earned a tie for the touch football honors, gained the largest number of points in boxing, a second in the swim meet, and a third in track.

Austin Hall, sporting a tie for first in football and an outright first for track, finished in second place. Fedigan finished third, capturing its only first place in swimming.

Your correspondent is going to attempt to secure national recognition for Captain Eddie Michaels... Some say he already has it...but only to a certain extent...It is my aim to contact the All-American Football Board and let them judge accordingly...Pop Warner, of Temple, thinks highly of Eddie and there is no reason why the other members should not share his opinion.

The varsity footballers will get all they want from the Bisons from Bucknell...After three successive victories they will be called upon to display major brand of football ...With La Salle, Detroit (twice), Penn State, and our traditional rivals, Temple, to be encountered one can easily see that the Wildcats will have a tough road to travel...These games, with the exception of La Salle, will test the mettle of the up and coming sophomores...Consensus of opinion places the Main Liners right up with the leaders... If the tackles continue to display the brand of ball they have then one of Stuhldreher's major worries will be ended...The other worry is that of overconfidence...so evident on a team of second-year men who are riding the crest of victory... Well, team best of luck...The VILLANOVAN is backing you to the limit...

Russell (Jing) Johnson, director of athletics at Ursinus, told the writer that he expected the Bears to make it tough for the Wildcats ...It looked very much like the Wildcats could devour Bears with the greatest of ease.

Lone Star Deitz, who handles the reins of Temple Freshmen, was an interested spectator at the P. M. C. game. Temple's star end, Elmer Anderson, and acting captain, Jim Russel, also ogled the doings.

Opening day crowd at P. M. C. game set a record. There were 12,000 fans in the stadium...

Villanova's hard - hitting third baseman, Frankie Skaff, has established himself in the national pastime...After being signed by the Brooklyn Dodgers upon graduation, he was farmed out to Peoria, Illinois, in the Three I League. He was recalled at the close of the minor league campaign and while in Dodger regalia he hit the ball at a .625 clip. In the field he had only one miscue...Frank's greatest achievement was a single, in a pinch hitting assignment, while the Great Dizzy Dean was on the mound...

Lincoln "Red" Lenzi, peppery catcher of three campaigns, was also farmed out by the Flathushers, Link went to Leiksville, South Carolina in the Bi-State League. The fiery redhead acquitted himself most admirably. At the close of the season Red was tendered a contract to coach a high school team in South Carolina and also don a professor's garb. Red accepted and latest reports have it that the Carolina boys are talking a la Chicago...

Last year's captain, Jimmy Murphy, holds a responsible position in a New England banking establishment...Lack of height was the only thing that kept him out of the big show...

Intra Mural Tennis Will Begin This Coming Week

MEET IS OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

The annual Intra-Mural Tennis program will be inaugurated during the coming week. The purpose of this forthcoming tournament is to determine the two best players from each hall.

In previous years these athletic contests have attracted many entries and the authorities anticipate an even larger number of contestants from their respective halls to participate in this extra-curricular activity.

Experience is not necessary in order to compete in this tournament. Anyone who possesses any ability on the clay courts is eligible for competition.

The school authorities are especially anxious to have a large representation from the freshmen class because next year their will probably constitute the nucleus of the varsity team.

Aides Selected

The entire tournament is under the auspices of Reverend Father Edward B. McKee, C. S.A., but Jim Conroy and Larry Reilly will superintend the proceedings at Austin Hall. Pat Marquette and Frank Neylan will direct the activities at Fedigan. The freshmen will be under the guidance of Frank Cantwell and Peter O'Neill.

The seeded racket-wielders are Ernie Zaloom, Ben Maloney, Frank Ferron and Kyzwicki. These men are candidates from Austin dormitory. The ranking contestants from Fedigan hall are Walter Krupa, Norbert Ford and Paul Melian.

All students, both resident and non-resident, who are interested in Intra-Mural Tennis should communicate with their respective director. Pairings will be made this week.

In order to simplify matters each contestant is requested to play his match as soon as possible and report the results immediately to his supervisor. The two survivors from each hall will then meet in a round-robin to determine the supremacy of the campus.

Some of the preliminary matches have already been played. The results: Pete O'Neill defeated J. Soviero, 6-0, 6-0. J. Horn defeated E. Looran, 6-3, 3-7, 6-0. Bill Smith defeated J. D'Appolito, 6-3, 6-3. A. Melian defeated Don Smith, 6-0, 6-1.

Terrors Third Team To Bow to Wildcats

men that beat Penn in the latter's opening game a year ago.

"Reds" Bassman, product of Central H. S. of Philadelphia, and protege of A. M. Baron of Penn State, who umpired the Villanova-Western Maryland contest, is well checked. Bassman is certainly one of the Reds and was largely responsible for the moral victory over Villanova in 1934 when Ursinus held the Cats to a 7-7 tie.

Al Raimo, Evesham, Mass. sophomore, has toughened over the Friday week. He done being responsible for three touchdowns, one a 70-yard run. Also outstanding in this contest was Andy Stopper, who awakened the Villanova supporters to the fact that he is a triple-threat man who can run, pass and kick. Bell, a substitute end, scored on a beautiful pass from Stopper in the last half of the game.

Forward Wall Strong

What may be the best forward wall Villanova has had in years held the Green Terrors coached by Charley Haven scoreless. As yet no team has scored against the Wildcats. Very little yardage has been gained through the Cats line. Most of the 258 yards gained by Western Maryland was done so via the air. Finding the line impenetrable the Terrors opened up with a passing attack that could be compared with Detroit's. Brennan, Western Maryland halfback and a southpaw, threw passes anywhere from 20 to 50 yards with great accuracy.

Constant thorns in Villanova's side were Benjamin and Lathrop. The former played at end, and besides catching a long pass from Brennan that put the Terrors in scoring position, was in every play, breaking up the Cats interference and stopping the ball-carrier. All Villanova scoring was done through the line. Very little yardage was gained around Benjamin's end. Lathrop, the sophomore quarterback, certainly lived up to the prediction of "Doc" Jacobs, who scouted Western Maryland in their opening game. Lathrop was continually hitting the line for yardage. The fact that he did not get into the open was due to the secondary defense, consisting of Galazin and Raimo.

Kotys Scores

Nick Kotys started his dash from Villanova's 30-yard line as an end run; but when Captain Compofreda, a tackle, came out to meet him, Kotys promptly cut back through the hole and ran 70 yards for the first score.

Stopper tallied again for Villanova in the third quarter. Andy smashed the center of the line and raced for touchdown-land, cleverly feinting Leroy Campbell, Western Maryland safety man.

In the last period Stopper and Sherlock put the ball on the 17-yard line. Here Kotys relieved Stopper and scored on the first play, for the final touchdown.

After this the Green Terrors really became a terror. A pass to Sadawaski, who had relieved Woodbury, and another to Benjamin put the pigskin on the five-yard line. A penalty for delaying the game, however, made their objective five yards farther away, and the final whistle erased their hopes of at least a score.

WILDCAT YEARLINGS HAVE GREAT SQUAD

Jacobs Has Twenty-Three Men to Groom for Future Varsity Material

Under the leadership of Coach "Doc" Jacobs, the freshman football squad is showing some real promise for future years. Scrimmages are held three times a week.

During the week, opposing Varsity plays are learned and used against the Cat eleven. This is essential for the success of the team. New plays must be learned every week.

Since 1933 no games have been scheduled for "the kittens." In October, 1933, they journeyed to Penn State to play the "Lions" freshmen. They were defeated by the score of 38 to 7, and since then have not engaged in another interscholastic contest; nevertheless, they have plenty to handle.

The average weight of the Frosh line is 180 pounds. The players are required to "weigh in" every afternoon before practice and the weights are recorded. In this manner a check is kept on their physical fitness to play.

West Represented

Representatives from every section of the country are to be found among the players. California sent Buzz Davis, backfielder, and Jim Butler, lineman. Colorado and Oklahoma are represented by Jack Torpi and Jack Burke, respectively. Frank Cantwell, flashy end, hails from Youngstown, Ohio, and Tony Pyrz comes from Argo, Ill.

Del Walburn, formerly of North Carolina, looks like a sure prospect to fill the fullback position in Varsity ball, while Lou Diamond, former Coughlin high star, shines at the pivot position. Buckley and Sylvester are futures promises of the fullback position. Watch these men go places.

Stuhlie Says

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stuhldreher, Head Coach of Football, is writing this column to explain in detail the inside story of the game of the previous Saturday, explaining the results of the game and why the game went as it did. He will also give a prediction, based on previous performances, as to the outcome of the game of the following Saturday.)

By HARRY A. STUHLDREHER

Western Maryland came up from Westminster to give our boys their first real test. They met it like veterans. I knew that we had a good bunch of sophomore ballcarriers, eager and willing, but I wasn't sure how they would act under the stress of a tough game. The line played a fair enough game throughout, both offensively and defensively, but it was the backfield, in backing up the line, in pass defense and ball carrying that made the score mount up to the heights.

The Villanova tackling was very poor. The long and heart-breaking march up the field that the Terrors put on in the second quarter was due directly to the half-hearted passes that the tacklers made.

The boys from Westminster gave our eleven an unpleasant shock. They played hard and they hit harder. The game is always a tough one, but this one particularly was no set-up. Western Maryland has two excellent ends, Lassahn and Benjamin. Benjamin, No. 17, was right in every play. I particular, he was the thorn in the side of the off tackle slashes and the end runs. He just refused to be blocked, and on snatching passes out of thin air, he was tops. The unusual lineup of the Western Maryland team, that of lining up in a punt formation, and then shifting, gave our eleven a bit of trouble in the first quarter of the game, but we soon became accustomed to it.

Our touchdowns came as the result of perfectly executed plays, with every man doing his appointed job to perfection. In the Notre Dame system, every play is a potential touchdown, if all of the eleven men perform their assignments.

As to the Bucknell game, well, that's anybody's ball game. They are our traditional rivals, along with Temple. It is always one of the best games on the schedule, with plenty of hard play. I won't venture to predict the score, or even the outcome, but if our team comes through as they have in the past this season, we'll give the Bisons a plenty sixty minutes.

SWIMMERS REPORT WITH FIRST CALL

Prof. Gill Remains as Coach With Six Veterans As Nucleus

Upon the opening of the college pool Friday, September 27, Prof. Martin Gill, coach of the Villanova Swimming Team was overjoyed to note the crowd of swimming candidates.

Jack Hosey, a senior in the Arts School, was elected captain by the Varsity men of last year. Last season Hosey was a consistent winner in the distant events.

One position, severely in need of material, is the diving specialty. As yet the team is without the services of an experienced diver who has enough ability to bolster up this department.

Among the freshmen candidates stands out Billy Leahy, St. Joseph Prep star and 1935 Villanova Catholic Interscholastic champion; Bill Britt, Penn A. C. merman; Tommy Carbine, teammate of Leahy's at St. Joseph's, and Bill Baily, Penn A. C. oarsman.

Although a schedule has not yet been completed, Manager John McMannus expects to book meets with West Chester State Teachers, Swarthmore, Lafayette, Johns Hopkins Osteopathy and others.

Bucknell Bisons Will Be Next Villanova Opponent

Powerful Herd Team Shows Slashing Attack in Contests So Far; Smith, Sitarsky Stand Out

LINE STANDS UP TO PACE OF BACKS

By John L. Simons

Villanova's Wildcat Machine will have to be geared in high to keep from being trampled on when Bucknell's Thundering Herd roars down on the Main Line this Saturday.

Led by an exceptionally powerful and versatile backfield, the Bisons are bidding fair to eclipse their last year's record of seven victories, two ties, and two defeats. The backfield is the best in all-around ability to represent the Lewisburg institution for the last few years.

Consider this wealth of veteran and sophomore material. At quarterback, Capt. John Sitarsky, excellent field-general, bruising line plunger, blocker and punter extraordinary; at left half Stu Smith, best Bucknell back since Clark Hinkle; at fullback Paul Miller, who returns after a successful season at the post last year. Ed Raymaley looked like the best bet for the right halfback position, but Bill Pfeiffer, an unheralded sophomore at the begining of the season, replaced him in the Ursinus game and, judging by his play, will be hard to force from the lineup.

Flanked by a pair of ends who rate with the best combinations in the country, the Bison line in general excellence measures up to the pace set by the backs. Bill Wilkinson and John Filer, veterans of three year's standing, are the smashing, hardrunning wingmen who have spent much of their time in this the backfields of P. M. C. and Ursinus. Although but two regulars are back, both of them guards, the line from tackle to tackle will again be very strong. Last year's reserves and promising sophomore material have very effectively plugged the gaps left by graduation.

The Thundering Herd has encountered two of the Wildcat opponents, and on the basis of comparative acores alone the Main Liners should be the victor. But in the Ursinus game at least the Bisons were much better than the score indicates. They gained almost at will, rolling up a yardage total of 322 yards.

As long as the Bucknell first-stringers are in action, it will be a nip-and-tuck battle with the breaks of the game deciding. The high quality of the Villanova substitutes may, however turn the tide of victory in their direction. The 'Cats are three deep at every position and at several there is practically no difference between the first and second stringers. Bucknell's weak point, if it has one, is the lack of reserves. It was Villanova's superior man power coupled with brilliant climax-running by the left halfbacks, Nick Kotys and Andy Stopper, that defeated Western Maryland. And this same superiority will be one of the biggest factors in deciding the outcome when the Bison meets the Wildcat on the Main Line gridiron.

VARSITY TRACKMEN TO COMMENCE FALL TRAINING SESSIONS

VETERANS TO LEAD DRILLS

With the fall program of athletic activities now under full swing a call has been issued for all varsity trackmen to report for practice. Due to the absence of Coach Bob Regan, who is assistant football coach, the fall drills will be conducted under the guidance of those men who have had previous experience with the Villanova harriers.

An intensive training session has been planned. Prospective runners who wish to report for practice are urged to contact any of the following: Fritz "Taxi" Monahan, Ben "Senator" Maloney, or Tom Cook.

The 1935-36 edition of the Villanova track team should be a very strong array if wealth of material is any criterion. Despite the loss of such outstanding performers as Captain Jim Elliott, Alex Kramer, Carl Hickey, Ed Sullivan, and Bill Grimberg, Coach Regan still has many fine athletes to form the nucleus of his team. In the sprint distances are "Taxi" Monahan, sophomore sensation of last year, Art Raimo, Bill Christopher, and Jerry Sherlock. Competing in the 440-yard runs will be Jack Earle, Victor Ashe, George Wrona, varsity man for two years, and Frank "Pop" Shealey, former St. John's Prep star.

Foremost among the distance runners is Ben "Senator" Maloney, former Connecticut high school star, who held several titles in that State in his high school days in the one mile run. It is expected this year that Maloney will double up in the one and two mile runs. Unable to compete last year because of an injury suffered while riding horseback during the early spring, the Wildcat star is looked to this season to provide many points for the Main Line runners. The leg that was crushed in the accident has responded well to treatment and the "Senator" has joined the fall training group.

Other distance men of note are Charley Kain, varsity performer last year, and Joe Shea, former Lower Merion star. The weight and field men are abundant also among the number being Tom Cook, high and broad jumper, Walt Korchinski, javelin; Bill Sweeney, discus; Charley Noonan, pole vault, and Frank Nye, shot put.

Any new men who have not been mentioned in the above are urged to report for practice at the stadium any afternoon at three o'clock and they will be properly outfitted. This call includes any freshman runners who will provide the basis for next year's contingent.

The cause for the indifferent response is laid to the fact that many of the resident students leave the campus over the week-end, thus causing their particular dormitory to forfeit. If the authorities note a change for the better every effort will be made to restore the sport as an intramural contest.

Concentrate on Basketball

The present plans, although they, too, are indefinite, consist in completing the tennis tournament and the concentrate on basketball. The basketball equipment will be given out so that all teams will be able to get an early start, and create an early interest along with an improved style of play.

Anyone engaging in varsity athletics is ineligible for all intramural sports for the coming year.

INTRAMURALS STRESSED

With a particular stress laid on intramural sports within the past few years, mainly through the efforts of the Rev. Edward B. McKee, and his committee on intramural sports, competition between the various dormitories has been running to a high pitch. This year more than ever it is the desire of the authorities to stress this method of pastiming.

Last year's competition found the Alumni aggregation well out in front with the baseball honors in their favor, along with basketball. They earned a tie for the touch football honors, gained the largest number of points in boxing, a second in the swim meet, and a third in track.

Austin Hall, sporting a tie for first in football and an outright first for track, finished in second place. Fedigan finished third, capturing its only first place in swimming.

Your correspondent is going to attempt to secure national recognition for Captain Eddie Michaels. Some say he already has it...but only to a certain extent. It is my aim to contact the All-American Football Board and let them judge accordingly...Pop Warner, of Temple, thinks highly of Eddie and there is no reason why the other members should not share his opinion.

The varsity footballers will get all they want from the Bisons from Bucknell...After three successive victories they will be called upon to display major brand of football ...With La Salle, Detroit (twice), Penn State, and our traditional rivals, Temple, to be encountered one can easily see that the Wildcats will have a tough road to travel...These games, with the exception of La Salle, will test the mettle of the up and coming sophomores...Consensus of opinion places the Main Liners right up with the leaders... If the tackles continue to display the brand of ball they have been one of Stuhldreher's major worries will be ended...The other worry is that of overconfidence...so evident on a team of second-year men who are riding the crest of victory... Well, team best of luck...The VILLANOVAN is backing you to the limit...

Russell (Jing) Johnson, director of athletics at Ursinus, told the writer that he expected the Bears to make it touch for the Wildcats ...It looked very much like the Wildcats could devour Bears with the greatest of ease.

Lone Star Deitz, who handles the reins of Temple Freshmen, was an interested spectator at the P. M. C. game. Temple's star end, Elmer Anderson, and acting captain, Jim Russel, also ogled the doings.

Opening day crowd at P. M. C. game set a record. There were 12,000 fans in the stadium...

Villanova's hard-hitting third baseman, Frankie Skaff, has established himself in the national pastime...After being signed by the Brooklyn Dodgers upon graduation, he was farmed out to Peoria, Illinois, in the Three I League. He was recalled at the close of the minor league campaign and while up Dodger regalia he hit the ball at a .625 clip. In the field he had only one miscue...Frank's greatest achievement was a single, in a pinch hitting assignment, while the Great Dizzy Dean was on the mound.

Lincoln "Red" Lenzi, peppery catcher of three campaigns, was also farmed out by the Flatbushers, Link went to Lufesville, South Carolina in the Ei-State League. The fiery redhead acquitted himself most admirably. At the close of the season Red was tendered a contract to coach a high school team in South Carolina and also don a professor's garb. Red accepted and latest reports have it that the Carolina boys are talking a la Chicago...

Last year's captain, Jimmy Murphy, holds a responsible position in a New England banking establishment...Lack of height was the only thing that kept him out of the big show...

ENGINEER IS READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

Technology School Monthly Embraces Many Features In First Issue

Friday, the first issue of the VILLANOVA ENGINEER will be ready for distribution on the campus.

For the information of freshmen, this is a magazine published monthly, with the purpose of keeping the students at the School of Technology in touch with the outside engineering world.

Only members from the Engineering School are eligible for membership on the editing staff. Many vacancies now exist on this staff, which must be filled sometime in the near future. Freshmen particularly are encouraged to apply for these positions.

In line with the steady advancement of the ENGINEER each year in the past, this year many improvements have been announced by Charles Kain, Editor-in-Chief. Among these changes are: the use of a very striking cover design as well as the substitution of a bolder type of print.

Other officials are Rev. John J. Vrna, O. S. A., Moderator, John Schlotterback, Associate Editor, and Louis Marcotte, Business Manager.

CANDIDATES RECEIVED

25 Members Tentatively Accepted By Villanovan on Probation

The VILLANOVAN staff was greatly augmented this year by the addition of twenty-five promising freshmen candidates for reportorial positions.

The incoming men will be tentatively accepted on a half year's probation. Then, if their work warrants it, they will be accepted as full-fledged members of the staff.

John Di Joseph, editor in chief, has announced that many positions on the staff are still available. Anyone desiring to join the staff should get in touch with Mr. Di Joseph immediately at the VILLANOVAN office, 119 Mendel Hall.

CLASSES IN LIBRARY WORK

Classes in Library Science were inaugurated this year at Villanova College in the hope that students would learn more about research work than they ordinarily do. The course is open to members of the Arts and the Business schools.

N. JERSEY CLUB HOLDS FIRST SESSION OF YEAR

To Meet This Week to Elect Treasurer and Discuss Vacation Plans

The North Jersey Club of Villanova College held its first monthly meeting this year last Monday and discussed plans for the present scholastic term.

Rev. Charles P. Brown, O.S.A., moderator of the club, welcomed the North Jerseyites and expressed his appreciation to the large number of freshmen who attended the meeting and featured largely in making it a success.

The number of freshmen who were accepted into the organization has not been determined but will be at the next meeting. Edward Carlin, president of the group address the assembly and outlined the purpose and activities of the club.

Others who hold offices in the club are Arthur Carleton, vice-president; John Cronin, secretary; Basil Dobrowolski, sergeant-at-arms.

The office of treasurer is unoccupied as Henry Morin, who was to hold the position, has not returned to school. A special meeting of the club will be called sometime this week, to select Mr. Morin's successor.

WILKES-BARRE CLUB DISCUSSES PLANS

Organization Will Hold Christmas and Easter Vacation Reunion Socials

The Wilkes-Barre Club of Villanova College admitted nine new members at its first meeting of the current year.

The newly accepted group was composed of two juniors: Stanley Galazin and William Krzyuicki; one sophomore: John Mellus; and six freshmen: Joseph Weber, James Kutz, Peter Bittenbender, Albert Zoubi, Donald Hudson, and James Gallagher.

Revernard B. J. McConville, O.S.A., club moderator, in a brief talk expressed the hope that the old and new members would cooperate in maintaining the club on the same high plane it has always held among campus organizations.

Two dances, one at Christmas and one during the Easter holidays, will be sponsored by the club. The site of the Christmas function, the Hotel Mallow Stirling, has already been definitely decided on. If present plans materialize, the Easter dance will also be held at the Hotel in Hazelton.

The officers for the present year are president, John Dempsey; vice-president, John Noll; secretary, Edmund Virusky; and treasurer, Charles Betz.

A. S. M. E. HAS INDUCTION OF FIVE NEW MEMBERS

Trips Planned to Coal Mines And Bethlehem Steel Company Later in Year

The A. S. M. E. for students of Mechanical Engineering at Villanova College held its first meeting of the year in room 304, Mendel Hall, at 1.30 Friday afternoon, October 4. No plans were discussed. As yet the only ones known are the usual trips to the various coal mines and the Bethlehem Steel Co. Many new trips are expected, however.

Paul Donahue, president; Joseph Malcolm, vice president, and Marshall Ward, secretary-treasurer, are the present officers. Other veteran members of the society are Joseph Delaney, Norman Cotter, Victor F. Nichelson and Richard Foot.

Among the new members who joined Friday are John DeJuilis, Edward Van Laeys, Emil Mathias, James Humphreys and Paul Mellan.

QUAKER STATE SENDS 108

The Class of 1939 may seem to contain nothing more than a group of new men running sheepishly around the campus wearing their characteristic "regs" and planning to wreak sweet vengeance on the Sophs. However, this auspicious group of neophytes have many talented and ambitious youths among their numbers.

To begin with there are 217 of them coming from over a vast territory—13 states and four foreign countries. The noble Quaker state leads the pack with 108 representatives. Jersey is next with 48, while New York and Connecticu follow with 21 and 10 respectively. Of the foreign countries Puerto Rico sends us two; with Spain, Peru and Cuba each offering one.

The Frosh come from 139 high schools in the United States and elsewhere. Philadelphia's West Catholic leads with 20 representatives. St. Joseph's Prep in Philadelphia is next with 10, while South Philadelphia public sends seven. Northeast Catholic and Roman Catholic in the same city each have six, while Harrisburg Catholic sends three from the Capitol City.

The new class seems to believe that variety is the spice of life. Consistency as regards age is not known to them, for they have one boy 26 years of age and three only 16. The average age of the Villanova Freshman of this year is 18.

Besides being from everywhere and of all ages the Frosh have many diversified talents. Thirty-four contend that they can play musical instruments. Perhaps that is why Mendel and Alumni hails sound as though a vast sea of condemned souls suddenly turned loose to make their sufferings known to the world. Twelve of these lads have put their talents to good use by joining the college band.

More than 50 have made known their intention of joining the Freshman debating society while half as many have mentioned previous experience. Fifty-five Thespians have admitted their desire to join the Belle Masque. Perhaps Villanova will have to present one of Ziegfeld's works in order to give them all a chance to display their talents.

The VILLANOVAN and other publications should greatly prosper

FORAN APPOINTED TO COUNCIL POST

Student Government Body Meets to Discuss Constitution; Selects Secretary

In order to increase the efficiency of its organization, the Student Council decided at its meeting on last Tuesday evening to formulate a constitution. This will be the first complete constitution that the Student Council at Villanova has ever had.

Joseph Foran, an honor student in the school of Commerce and Finance and an active member in all class activities, was appointed to fill the position of secretary-treasurer of the organization.

James J. Downs, Council chairman, urgently requests that all members be present at the meeting tonight immediately after chapel, as the sole purpose of the meeting is to create the constitution.

Under this new and improved form of government, the present Council will no doubt excel those of former years and become a very active organization of the campus.

They have written to different colleges in all parts of the country requesting a sample of their respective constitutions. By this means the members will be able to obtain a wider scope of ideas which will

CLUB ELECTS OFFICER

Edwin Reilly Receives Position Of Treasurer of North Jersey Group

Edwin Reilly, a senior of the Arts School, was elected treasurer of the North Jersey Club at a meeting held last Thursday in Mendel Hall. Reilly is replacing Henry Morin who did not return to school this year.

At this meeting, the club decided to increase their activities this year. One of their plans was to sponsor a Christmas dance.

The main object of the club is to create a closer bond among the students hailing from the northern part of New Jersey. Sixteen freshmen were officially accepted into the organization at this gathering.

VILLANOVA COLLEGE ENROLLMENT GROWS

Class of 1939 Leads Rest With Large Total Of 240 Students

Villanova College has just commenced its ninety-third scholastic year, and from statistics received, this year will surpass all former years in scholastic and athletic achievements and enrollment.

In making a survey of the increase of students, each school must be taken into consideration before an exact account can be established. The School of Commerce and Finance has assumed the lead among the classes with an enrollment of 98, the School of Arts took second with 74, the School of Science submitted a list of 49 students to place third, while the School of Technology is in last place with 41 students. These figures are of the class of 1939 and total up to 242 students.

Continuing the survey with the other classes in their order of graduation, it is noticeable that the Class of 1936 has 137 students. The Junior class submits the smallest number of students with 128, while the Class of 1938 has 194 students to complete the enrollment for the year. While on the question of statistical survey the list could not be complete without noting the resident students with 413 members, leading over the day students who have 286 members.

In addition to conducting the regular college, Villanova has several other schools which they conduct. These are: the Extension School, Evening School, Summer School, and the Nursing School. These schools also have witnessed an in-

N. C. E. A. WILL MEET TO DRAFT BY-LAWS

Organization Convenes At Notre Dame; Rev. E. V. Stanford to Preside

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A. president of Villanova College, will act as chairman at the meeting of the National Catholic Educational Association which is to be held at the University of Notre Dame, October 19 and 20.

The regional plan of reorganization adopted unanimously at the last annual meeting of the College Department of the National Catholic Educational Association, makes necessary the drafting of suitable by-laws to govern both the national group and the regional units. The committee appointed for this purpose has already gathered together the suggestions of representatives from various sections of the country.

At this fall meeting of the committee tentative draft of the proposed by-laws will be prepared for submission to the executive committee of the college department meeting in New York City early in January.

The personnel of the committee is as follows: Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president Villanova College, Villanov Pa., chairman; Rev. George Johnson, Ph. D.,

OPENING OF SOCIAL SEASON ON FRIDAY EXPECTED TO ATTRACT BANNER CROWD

BAND LEADER

CHARLES STOTLER,
a sophomore in the School of Science, who is the director of the student orchestra, "The Villanovans," which will play at the Sophomore Cotillion this Friday night. Mr. Stotler contends the student band this year is without doubt the best in the history of its organization.

Chairman Harvey Davis Looks For Cooperation Of Upperclassmen

SUBSCRIPTION ONLY $1.50

The Sophomore Cotillion was the principal topic of discussion at the first meeting of the Class of 1938 which was held last Thursday, October 10.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., class moderator, in an address to the assembled sophomores made a strong plea for the full support and cooperation of the entire class. "Only if every member of the class attends this, their first important social function, can we be assured of a dance that will be completely successful—socially as well as financially."

Fr. Vrana said further that he would personally guarantee that the Villanovans, who are furnishing the music for the occasion, will be a thoroughly satisfactory and entertaining orchestra.

Jordan Olivar, president of the Sophomores, said that in the past most of the classes had gone into their junior year with a sizeable deficit due to lack of support of their Cotillion.

"We all desire," he said, "this dance to be well attended, because if it is, it will mean that we can enter our next year without any financial burden. Consequently, all our social events of that year, Junior Week in particular, will have a better chance for success."

In the final address of the meeting, Harvey Davis, Cotillion chairman, repeated the previous requests for complete support of the affair. He remarked that to date the ticket sale among the Freshmen has been fairly good, but the upperclassmen had not been giving the hoped-for response.

Mr. Davis reminded all present that the dance was to be held Friday night, October 18, and that the price of tickets was the nominal sum of $1.50 per couple.

Numerous posters displayed in the railroad stations and other advantageous locations between here and Philadelphia are advertising the dance. Couple this with the untiring efforts of the committee and the growing enthusiasm of the entire student body, and the result is a general impression that the dance will be a complete success.

One of the outstanding attractions at the Cotillion is the door prize. Two tickets for seats on the

NOMINATIONS HELD FOR JUNIOR CLASS VICE-PRESIDENCY

Winterer, Troncellitti, McManus and Christopher Selected to Compete

RING COMMITTEE CHOSEN

Although there had been a Junior Class meeting scheduled for the middle of last week, it was called off at the last minute due to the few third-year men who attended.

It was announced that the vice president elected last year, Joseph Kane, of the Civil Engineering Department, has not returned to college this fall. Nominations for this office were therefore held yesterday.

Those nominated yesterday are: Francis Winterer, School of Technology; Mario Troncellitti, Science School; John McManus, School of Arts and Letters; and William Christopher, School of Commerce and Finance.

It is very probable that another member of the Technology group will be elected to this office to fill Mr. Kane's post. The election date has not as yet been definitely set, but is expected to be near the middle of this week.

Work has already been started on the schedule of Junior Class activities for the Class of '37, it was announced by the president, William Cleary. Bids are now being taken for the class rings, and prep-

INFORMAL DINNER HELD

Faculty Members Become Acquainted at Gathering Held Last Week

The faculty dinner, held on Wednesday, October 9, was attended by all the present members of the academic faculty. The meeting was a get-together in order that the members might become better acquainted with each other.

Fr. Stanford, president of the college, introduced the new members and delivered a short speech asking for cooperation on the part of the faculty in fulfilling the idea of a small college. The idea is for the faculty and the students getting to know each other better.

CAMPUS FUNCTIONS DEVOID OF TAXES

State Legislature Lifts Tax Rule on All College Activities

In accordance with an act passed at the recent session of the State Legislature, admissions to practically all types of entertainment are taxable. The various campus functions, however, according to an interpretation of the law by John C. Moriock, Chief of the State Tax Bureau, are exempted as their proceeds are absorbed for the benefit of Villanova.

The following letter was received last week by the college administration:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE

Harrisburg, Pa. October 4, 1935

"Admissions charged for an amusement, whether a show, dance, or other entertainment, as defined by the Act, are taxable, and a permit is required (the charge for each permit is $1.00). However, if the entire proceeds (after payment of reasonable expenses) received from admissions to any such amusement, inure exclusively to the benefit of the university of college, then such proceeds are exempt from the tax.

THE NEW INTRA-MURAL PROGRAM

FOR the past three years an extensive and intensive intra-mural program has been functioning here on the campus. However, results have been only fair at best, and student appreciation on the whole has not been what was expected. The reason is quite obvious. When the intra-mural committee drafted its rules loopholes were left wherein varsity athletes were allowed to compete. Even though they were not permitted to participate in the sport in which they were varsity material, that did not alter the situation.

The purpose for which the intra-mural program had been inaugurated was primarily to give those students who do not participate in varsity competition an opportunity to get some exercise and also to get some fun out of it. A secondary purpose was perhaps to discover possible material for varsity or junior varsity squads. This plan, however, was not followed through. Dormitory managers struck upon the idea of livening up the intra-murals and almost invariably approached varsity men for their teams, with the object in view to get the better outfit on the field. Non-athletic students consequently, failed (or refused as it may have been), to respond when called after it was found that varsity men could not or would not participate. Hence, the real object behind the plan was not attained. Interest in the one who should have encouraged the program dwindled and nearly died.

But out of the past three years' experience grows the new intra-mural program which excludes all varsity men of any team from participation in any scheduled inter-dorm athletic event. It is hoped that varsity men will not question or resent this new plan, as the point involved is the salvation of a beneficial intra-mural program and not that of any sentiment or resentment against them.

The success of this new plan depends, therefore, wholly and entirely upon the ACTIVE cooperation and participation of ALL non-varsity men in the school.

BETTER CHEERING

PERHAPS a word at this time would be propitious concerning the poor spirit displayed by the upperclassmen at the four home football games.

The freshmen, numbering but one fourth of the student body, bear the brunt of the cheering done by the Villanova stands. It is pathetic to hear the feeble attempts made by the sophomores, juniors and seniors.

Perhaps it is from a sense of aloofness. Realizing that they are no longer first year men, they might consider that they are above such picayune tendencies as aiding the morale of the team by their vocal support. Or again, it might be, as some critics venture to say, that the average college student is sophisticated, very contented and smug to the nth degree.

Finally it might be from a sense of forgetfulness. Upperclassmen somehow think that freshmen should assume the responsibility of physical school labor, and unconsciously allow them to conduct the cheers.

We believe that the latter conjecture is very probably the true one. But no matter what the individual's propensity may be, let us try to improve the team cheering. If you don't know the cheers, just have recourse to your handbook.

Let's have 100 per cent improvement at the La Salle game.

NEWSPAPERS AND POLITICS

THE ranting front page editorials of a prominent Philadelphia newspaper, too forcefully bring to our attention the extent to which politicians are able to exert their influence. In lurid, condemnory phrases we are told that a certain group of individuals are engaged in a sort of Catilinian conspiracy to usurp the power of the city for the purpose of administering it to their own ends, while another group, who are responsible for this terrific fanfaronade against them are engaged in the thankless task of saving a reluctant people in spite of themselves.

Politics in the past has been revealed in too many sordid aspects, that any newspaper should unconditionally align itself with either party, without the danger of appearing before the public mind as an indirect, if not a direct, instrument in the furtherance of these questionable practices.

The essential purpose of a newspaper is the unbiased, undistorted distribution of news. Its incidental purpose is the interpretation of the news, through its editorial columns, for the reader. The newspaper should not try to mould public opinion, by innuendo and groundless allegations, to a shape similar to that of the writer, but should strive to enlighten the public mind upon world problems in relation to himself. Any publication that fails to observe this practice is not only defeating the end for which it is purchased, but presuming upon the good-will of its readers.

We feel justified in expressing the hope that this blame-worthy practice will not continue until the readers become sickened by its persistent indulgence in personalities.

SWEET AND SLOW

THE LATEST outburst of indignation from the well-known critics of the methods of our present-day reporters, or newshounds as they are termed, came about last week as the result of the actions of "America's grand old man," John D. Rockefeller. It seems that Rockefeller in departing for his annual vacation in Florida instead of boarding a train at Lakehurst, N. J., as was the regular custom, chose to speed through the back roads of Jersey in one of his servant's automobiles at the rate of sixty miles an hour, closely pursued by the "pack." Now you can imagine what an example that was for the younger folk some eighty years his junior.

When a near centenarian opens the throttle all the way and zooms through the countryside that's stretching a point. If he had chose to board the train as usual at Lakehurst and refused to see reporters that would have sufficed. But when John D. roars through the backwoods a mile a minute what sort of ink would a reporter have in his blood if he did not immediately give chase?

Statisticians at Georgia Tech recently compiled a list of 2500 English cuss words.

Parents and even grand-parents are now given the opportunity to take regular college courses and earn university degrees in afternoon study under a new adult education plan developed at the University of Southern California.

Here's a bit of syllogistic reasoning from a mathematics professor at Drexel:

1. A poor lesson is better than nothing.
2. Nothing is better than a good lesson.
3. Therefore, a poor lesson is better than a good lesson.

The following bit of information comes from Haverford. After a week of dinks, ties, lapel-signs, etc., one freshman commented, "If Dad hadn't told me I was here for a higher education, I wouldn't have known what it was all about."

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

HERE'S ONE that they are telling about Gotham's "Little Flower," Mayor La Guardia to youse guys. Now that said mayor has the city silenced and the Noise Abatement Commission says so we suppose that it is all right to tell this.

When he broached the matter of less noise to his constituents over the municipal radio station only recently, the mayor was unaware, perhaps, that he was up against a case of self-defeatism. Because across the courtyard from a certain writer's apartment, a receiving set, tuned high, rent the air with the mayor's rasping plea for quiet. "For Pete's sake," came a shrill yell from an upper story, "will ya shut that blasted thing off!"

Around Buffalo and Niagara Falls, when they see Franchot Tone playing the leading roles in various moving pictures, they remark that Mr. Tone's son is doing pretty well for himself after all. Frank Jerome Tone is president of the Carborundum Company, one of the largest industries thereabouts, as well as of the Republic Carbon Company, the Canadian Carborundum Company, Ltd., and the Global Corporation, and a former president of the American Electrochemical Society. He is the inventor of numerous processes for the manufacture of silicon products. Very recently in Washington he was awarded the Edward Goodrich Acheson Medal of the Electrochemical Society, Inc., for his "outstanding accomplishments in electrothermics." So you see Franchot has a rather eminent background.

When George Stanley, Kansas lawyer, carried the technique of his profession into his marital affairs last week this is what happened: He contracted to take his wife to all the dances at the country club this winter; in return his wife contracted to let him keep his hunting dogs inside the house.

To those of you who thought the word "whoopee" was a pure bit of American slang, a product of the gay white lights, allow us to disillusion you. For our disillusioner, in turn, was Sir William A. Craigie, lexicographer of American English and joint editor of the Oxford dictionary. "Whoopee," he said, was used some 300 years ago by startled Britons as an exclamation.

Who knows but what our mutual forefather, Adam, while wandering about in the glorious garden of Eden, seeking the various fruits of the abundant trees therein, upon shaking one of the aforementioned trees and examining the fruits thereof, exclaimed in obvious disappointment, "Oh nuts!"

Rather contradictory to one of the editorials on this page but what we think is nevertheless a good point is the following: It might be well for a state to elect two governors. One to take care of politics, the other to handle the affairs of the people.

CAMPUS CELEBS . . By Guarini

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI.

Jack Benny celebrated the first anniversary of his Sunday night Jell-O series on his program last Sunday night together with Mary Livingston, Michael Bartlett, Don Wilson, and Johnny Green's orchestra. Now it has always been our opinion that Benny represented just what the word "comedy" implies when one seeks its definition in Mr. Webster's book of knowledge. But what is more important than just our opinion on the matter is the fact that said opinion has been strongly backed by "those who know," or should we say, "those who matter?" For Jack has established a precedent, in that for the second successive year he was chosen by the nation's radio critics as the air's outstanding comedian. In all his vaudeville tours he has smashed attendance records to such an extent that Hollywood producers engaged him to star one of their most costly post-depression films, "Broadway Melody of 1936."

It might interest you followers of Hal Kemp to know wherein originated his now famous theme song, "How I'll Miss You When Summer Is Gone," this signature ushering in each "Great American Tourist" program of which Hal is the shining light.

Comes the tale . . . It seems that the above mentioned song is the first one that the orchestra played when it was organized way back in 1922 at the University of North Carolina. The boys couldn't read music then and had to memorize their tunes. Now they have acquired a superstition about the song and without fail onen every program with it. Moreover, they play it exactly as they did ten years ago.

A new all star program featuring Rubinoff and his violin and his 33-piece orchestra, Virginia Rea, soprano; Jan Peerce, tenor; and Graham McNamee, ace announcer, will be heard over an NBC-WEAF network starting Saturday, October 19. This weekly program will be heard each Saturday at 9 o'clock.

While Rubinoff has been one of radio's most celebrated artists and has been connected with the air waves and screen for the past five years he has never been starred on the air in his own right. One of the best known personalities of the entertainment world, he has appeared in almost every theatre in the country in person and on the screen.

Ray Noble and his orchestra one of the world's most distinctive dance bands under the baton of the internationally-famous composer, conductor, and arranger, will he heard in a new series of programs over a nationwide WABC-Columbia hookup each Wednesday from 9:30 to 10:00 o'clock beginning October 30.

The young English maestro will present many fresh features of his unusual music in his new series, including his own compositions, the latest musical novelties from both Europe and America and Al Bowley, one of Europe's most talented popular singers.

Noble's meteoric career in the entertainment world on both sides of the Atlantic has brought him international fame within a very few years. Confoisens of dance melodies and trends in popular music began to notice the distinctive settings of English and American hits played by English orchestras a few seasons ago—settings remarkable for their fine musicianship, their sense of style and color, and their suave, sophisticated atmosphere. Ray Noble was the modest retiring musician who created them. Since then the brilliant success of this young conductor has led him from London to Hollywood and back to the exclusive Rainbow Room of Rockerfeller Center in New York, whence he comes to make his debut on the Columbia network this month.

Walter O'Keefe, generalissimo of the Broadway Hill-Billies Band, heard each Tuesday and Thursday evening, is laughing up his sleeve these days at several of his cronies. The other evening Ted Husing and Nelson Hess were kidding Walter about an Indian character called, "Abenaki," on his program. Ted said, "Why there's even a horse by that name! And he's running tomorrow!" The trio parted and O'Keefe lost no time in consulting his "bookie" and sure enough there was an "Abenaki" posted for the next day's races. Walter placed $5 on the nag and promptly forgot about it. The next day he almost bowled over when informed that "Abenaki" had won and paid 60 to 1.

ON "LEARNING"

"A little learning is a dangerous thing,
Drink deep or taste not the Pierian Spring;
Their shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking largely sobers us again."

—Pope.

IT IS A sad fact that nearly all students enter college, and not a few leave college, without having mastered the art of reading. Evidence is everywhere. It would be difficult to overestimate the losses suffered merely in the performance of routine college tasks by a student who carries the handicap of inefficient reading habits. One college professor declares he is tempted to believe that half the mistakes made by students on examination are due to the fact that the examinees do not read intelligently the questions upon which they write. It is alarming to note what widely different kinds of college work may suffer from ineffective reading. Examinations are fumbled; assignments are misunderstood; reports are muddled; experiments are fouled; and the most ridiculous absurdities are proclaimed with perfectly straight faces.

But even these shocking losses are only incidental. To comprehend the major losses auffered by one who cannot read efficiently, we must review some of the rewards which come to him who does read well.

Information Rewards Reader

The fundamental return made to the reader is INFORMATION. Information is fundamental because all other benefits of reading depend on it. In fact, without information, all thought life, and most practical life would be impossible. Every day the job of living in which we are all engaged, becomes more complex and difficult. This means that to live successfully one must increasingly have at his disposal more varied and more accurate information.

The collection of books in Villanova College Library will assist you in overcoming your present condition. One's intellectual rating today does not depend on whether he can name off-hand the signers of the Declaration of Independence, tell where the five greatest paintings of Raphael are located, or give the exact height of Mt. Fujiyama. The intellectually efficient man of today does not necessarily know the answers to all these questions, but he knows where to find them.

We dislike the thought which Pope advances that a "little learning" is a dangerous thing, but the common indifference of some (may we venture to say, even college students) to acquiring even a bit more knowledge is too evident. Men and women, young and old, are too "inwardly satisfied" with their present knowledge, to really care about "drinking largely" of the Pierian spring of knowledge in order to "sober their prejudices." We have come to these conclusions from an outlook on life based on the evidence everywhere about us, as much as we have on the natural tendencies to "judge others by ourselves!"

Library Use Urged

Appealing especially to Villanova students, we urge you to yield just a bit now and then to acquiring knowledge by looking through or reading some of the various histories, philosophies, science books, business books, law books, literature books, which will keep you informed on all the failures, successes, etc., incident to man and of interest to the most fastidious and erudite!

Don't be afraid of books! Come to the library and let the librarians help you to help yourself in selecting worth-while books.

A STATESMAN APPEARS

Sir Samuel Hoare, After Long and Distinguished Career, Finally Receives Recognition of British Public.

"In conformity with its precise explicit obligations, the League stands — and my country stands with it — for the collective maintenance of the covenant in its entirety and particularly for steady collective resistance to all acts of aggression." Thus did Sir Samuel Hoare, new British Foreign Secretary, place his country's strength solidly behind the League. It was a precise speech, coldly logical, utterly devoid of the usual muddiness which hides the meaning of every British speech. To be sure, it lacked the dazzling qualities of a Winston Churchill peroration, or the flowery idealistic platitudes of a Ramsay MacDonald masterpiece, but it was thorough and complete in every way, and it served to call to the attention of the British public the man who is now guiding their destiny at Downing Street and qual Woodrow Wilson.

That Sir Samuel has thus far avoided the limelight can be attributed more to his own modesty and restraint than to any want of perspicacity on the part of the British public. For every responsibility he has undertaken — and they have been many — he has handled with characteristic thoroughness. This quality of "seeing things through" he developed early in life. Born in 1860 to one of London's oldest and most prosperous banking families, he pursued the usual course of young men of his class. From Harrow he went to Oxford. From both he graduated with "first honors." He studied everything and studied it well, dug beneath the surface to find causes, and relate events. Only an unfailing interest in sports — boxing, riding, ice-skating — kept him from falling into the pit of pedantry.

After graduation, he entered politics. At 25 he was private secretary to the Minister for Colonies, and four years later was representing Chelsea in Parliament. His first outstanding piece of work came with the arrival of the World War. After serving for a year in the front-line trenches, he fell seriously ill and was returned to London. He spent the months of convalescence studying the Russian language, and with his usual energy and perseverance, soon mastered it.

At this time Lord Kitchener needed a well-equipped and intelligent Secret Intelligence Force in Russia. Sir Samuel was chosen to head this group. He soon became close to every element within the government, especially with the nationalists, who regarded Rasputin as the root of all evil. When the "Holy Devil" was finally murdered, Sir Samuel was one of the first to know. Several people became so convinced that he was personally implicated in the death that official denials from the government were necessary to appease the questioners. After the Bolshevik revolution, he returned to England, more firmly a conservative than ever before, convinced that Communism would see its end.

In post-war politics, he became an important figure, though his name seldom appeared in the press. He helped overthrow Lloyd George's Coalition Cabinet and helped Stanley Baldwin to power. For his services, he won the position of Air Minister. He knew nothing about aviation when he started, everything when he finished. Through his efforts, Britain's sky fleet was brought up to date, and more than doubled in numbers and efficiency. This job done, he was awarded another — that of Secretary of State for India. He compromised, cajoled, threatened and finally completed the first draft for the new Indian constitution. Then he had to pilot it through Parliament, and more especially, by Winston Churchill, who, Cassandra-like, saw the decline of the British Empire reflected in every section of the bill. He won this battle, too, though he had to answer 10,000 questions from the floor during the course of the long debate.

He enters his new position with a fluent command of French, Russian, Italian and German, a wide knowledge of post-war European problems, and few if any prejudices. Some people hinted that his viewpoint was too markedly favorable to some nations, and unfavorable to others. Sir Samuel has dryly remarked that people would find he was pro-British and anti war.

As We See It . . . Sophistication

By HARRY PARKIN

MY DEAR SON:

Few phases in the life of a young man do I view with greater apprehension than that in which he becomes aware of society, and the pleasures to be derived from the friendly exchange of amenities between men and women. This apprehension is, unfortunately, accuated by a knowledge of the tenets of society, which considers the greatest good affectation and the greatest evil naturalness, and the attendant damage that can be done to the young man's outlook upon life when he is suddenly transposed from the wistful, carelessness of youth into its hectic life.

So far as the young man is concerned, I believe the attitude that most affects him is the so-called "man of the world." A pose which scrutiny reveals as being neither of the world, nor befitting a man. It is the acme of posing masculinity without the excuse of having any beneficial effect, unless, of course, we can consider the adulation of a certain group of similarly inclined individuals who have not as yet attained the same degree of insouciance. It is a state that seems to come naturally to that of frustrated youth, after the futile little prides and vanities of adolescence have been chilled by contact with the bleak coldness of th world, a new pride takes its place, which is as apt as not to be that of doubt and indifference. Reality vanquishing his earlier dreams, determines him to accept reality and win from it what he can. Hence his first inclination is to emulate those who he believes have attained some measure of success from the new world that he is entering.

The bearing of the sophisticate is impressive because of its apparent applicability. The man of the world seems perpetually contemptuous of its humors. He conquers such annoyances, that the world might thrust upon him with a sort of sublime indifference to its censure or praise.

I doubt if I should find the sophisticate so objectionable, if it were only for his languid and studied carelessness, but it appears to be the concomitant of his social disposition to develop his faculties for gallantry, and all those subtle arts that are designed to win a lady's affection. He wins approaches with elegant speeches polished through usage, and delivered with counterfeited earnestness, which, too often bring sorrow to a heart that is too naive to discriminate tween the original and the counterfeit.

You, my son, are now within the shadow of this stage, and I wish to prepare you for the occasion when you learn that the ideals upon which you have patterned your life will be swept away before the harsh practicality of the world. You will find that your dreams of love, and of romantic adventure, are things of the past, and have no place in the scheme of your future. But I do not wish discouragement to force them into an oblivion from which they will never be exhumed, but rather that you should place them in some cavity of your mind where they will be accessible, so that no matter how burdensome the trials or vexing the failures, you may find new spirit to go on with the battle. A man is not a man because of the dreams he's dreamt but only because he is able to carry them through life unfinished.

Affectionately, your FATHER.

Library Museum Has Old Collection Of Valuable Osage Indian Stones

In addition to its many advantages Villanova College boasts of a very interesting museum. This curio-room, an adjunct to the library in Alumni Hall, is a representation of the earnest efforts of Rev. F. A. Tourscher, O. S. A., D. D., and is indeed a compliment to him.

Foremost among his curios, Fr. Tourscher has a very admirable collection of Indian stones. These relics were a gift of Rev. P. M. O'Shea, O. S. A. They were found by Fr. O'Shea and three companions, one of whom was an Osage Indian, in the Cherokee Hills of Oklahoma. The stones were found only by close observation on the part of the Osage warrior as they were scattered in a field and were under-plowed and partly submerged.

These Osage relics were made of very durable flintrock. Unlike many other examples of Stone Age workmanship, these specimens were not formed by striking them against other rock, but were chipped to the desired form by another method.

The piece of flintrock from which a warrior wished to fashion a tomahawk or an arrowhead was cast into a very hot fire. When the stone had reached a desired heat it was removed from the fire and placed on the ground. Small drops of water were allowed to fall on the stone, chipping it in the intended places.

The stones were very artistically made to fit both the vanity and the service of the owner. The spear and arrowheads were so designed that when they penetrated the body of a foe, they remained imbedded, while the shaft could be easily withdrawn. This special design of arrowhead lightened the burden of the Indian as it was necessary for him to carry only the arrowheads.

One of Fr. Tourscher's prized specimens is an Osage tomahawk. This flintrock head was shaped and when bound in a wooden handle was the Indian's most serviceable weapon.

To illustrate the stability of this weapon an account has been told of an Indian hunter who laid open the skull of a wounded buffalo as it charged him. However, due to age and wear this prized relic has become somewhat mutilated, but it still retains its original form.

Equally as serviceable as the tomahawk was the Indian's stone knife. It provided a useful implement and sturdy weapon. The knife was bound onto the handle in a similar style as the tomahawk.

Such a type of craftsmanship is a deciding factor showing that although the American Indian was savage and ferocious, nevertheless he was skilled in making use of the products of nature for the art of warfare. What better example of the employment of talent could an ordinary man of today give when, left alone on a wild and unsettled continent?

Indeed we are proud to have such a collection at Villanova which is such a practical example of the history of early native America.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT EXPLAINS POWER BEHIND HOLY NAME

Rev. Edward Stanford, O. S. A., Speaks to Group at Communion Breakfast Sunday

STUDENTS COOPERATION IS SOUGHT BY CHAPLAIN

President Stresses Need Of Reverence for Name Of Jesus

The Villanova College Holy Name Society began its activities for the new year last Sunday at a Communion Mass and breakfast. The regular 8:30 student mass was held this week for the members of the college Holy Name group. Over 80 students were in attendance both at the communion rail and at the breakfast.

Following the Mass there was a short meeting of the society in Room 206, Mendel Hall. At this time William Vaughn, '36, president of the Holy Name, welcomed the new men to the college organization and asked for the cooperation of all former members. At this time he expressed the desire to have almost 100 per cent perfect student attendance at the monthly communion breakfast. He also announced that all dues would be dropped for the coming year due to the failure of the members to cooperate in this matter in former years.

Immediately after breakfast the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, addressed the society. In his talk Fr. Stanford urged the boys to be real Catholic men and do their best to further the reverence in the Holy Name. This can only be accomplished, Fr. Stanford explained, by the full exercise of the power of such a group as the college society. "It is your duty as Catholic college men and graduates to take an active part in parish affairs. It is expected of you because of your extra educational advantages." In conclusion Fr. Stanford again advised the Holy Name members to be leaders of the college and to see that only clean and reverent language is used on the campus of Villanova College.

Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., the moderator of the society expressed his pleasure of being with us again and also asked the students to cooperate with him and make this coming scholastic year the best for the Holy Name in the history of its organization as a campus society. "The good that a group of this kind can do is great, and it's up to you to get behind your officers and give them your whole-hearted support."

If all 54 new men who claim they can write lend their aid to the college.

But not all the Frosh are followers of the finer arts alone. The confines of the class hold 155 swimmers and only 25 non-swimmers. The swimming team should have a good season with the 46 new men who have previously swum in competition. Football, basketball, tennis and baseball all have their advocates in the Class of '39.

SPORTS EDITOR

ANTHONY R. CATRAMBONE, senior in the School of Arts and Philosophy, who last week upon retirement of John B. Geraghty, Jr., from the Sports Editorship of the VILLANOVAN, was appointed by Fr. McKee to succeed to the post. Mr. Catrambone was formerly Associate Sports Editor along with Norton Paden, and had been a loyal staff reporter for the past two years. Mr. Geraghty, a junior in the School of Science, gave as his reasons too many laboratories and participation in the 150-pound football team. He remains on the staff, however, in the capacity of reporter.

PRESS APOSTOLATE FORMS NEW GROUP

Four Divisions Organized To Specialize in Work Of Association

The Villanova College Catholic Press Apostolate held its initial meeting of the current scholastic year on Tuesday evening immediately after chapel services. This meeting was attended by the upper classmen, who have been members for one or more years.

The most important resolution enacted was the dividing of the society into each of the four principal purposes which form the basis of the organization. The first group will give particular attention to the encouragement among the students of Villanova to the reading of current Catholic literature, especially Catholic newspapers and periodicals.

The second group will have as its object the supplying to the Catholic press, news accounts of religious activities at Villanova.

The third group of the organization will spend considerable time and put a great deal of work on the re-mailing of the Catholic literature.

The fourth group will work on matters relevant to the "Information Bureau," which includes any matter of Catholic interest.

This division was done so that each and every one of the purposes will have more particular attention given them. The four groups will rotate during the school year so that by the end of the second semester, each of the groups will have had experience in the development of each of the individual purposes.

The next meeting of the Catholic Press Apostolate will be held on the first Tuesday in November. All Freshmen who are interested in this religious society and wish to become members are asked to be present at the meeting. In the meantime, the Freshmen are requested to give their names either to Joseph Arthur, president, or Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., chaplain.

50-yard line at the annual Philadelphia football classic, the Villanova-Temple game, will be given to the holder of the lucky coupon.

Decorations also are to be something new at Villanova. Instead of the usual false ceiling of cloth bunting, this group plans to introduce one of crepe paper, in the traditional school colors of blue and white. In addition, the orchestra booth and plant and floral decorations will feature largely in the scheme being planned.

DEBATING SOCIETY PLANS EXHIBITIONS

Beta Gamma Chapter Decides to Give Series of Public Debates

Beta Gamma Debating Chapter of Villanova's Literary Society held its first me on Tuesday last at 8 P. M., in room 204, Mendel Hall. The moderator of this chapter, Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., planned to devote most of the activities to giving a series of public exhibition debates.

The following students are Beta Gamma officials: John W. Hallahan, Jr., pres.; Joseph Carroll, vice-pres.; Raphael Martinez-Alvarez, sec'y; and Aloysius Fitzpatrick, sergeant-at-arms.

At the last meeting, many aspirants to membership in Beta Gamma presented themselves. In all, there were 30, all of whom were tentatively accepted as members.

The customary requirement for membership is this, namely: That the individual present from memory some type of oratorical rendition. This custom, however, was temporarily abrogated because of unforseen circumstances.

Membership into the Beta Gamma is still open. All students interested may present themselves at the next meeting which is to be held on Tuesday, October 15, at 8 P. M. in room 204, Mendel Hall.

Fraternity Chooses Students To Run for President And Secretary

Nominations for president and secretary of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity were held at the last meeting on Thursday, October 10, in Room 210, Mendel Hall.

Because this meeting was specifically confined to nominations only, no other topics were discussed in detail.

Nominations were scheduled for the office of president, left open by the graduation of George Gartland, and for secretary, formerly held by John McLaughlin, now a junior.

Nominees for president are Joseph Bigley and William Keffer, both seniors in the Science School. Louis Centralla and Joseph Toland, sophomores, were nominated for secretary.

Present active officers are Maurice Troncellitti, vice president, and Gerald Piserschia, treasurer.

The prospective medicos had a very successful financial year and have hopes of repeating their success this year.

Results of the election will be announced at the next meeting, Thursday, October 17.

Meetings are regularly held every Thursday at 1 P. M., in Room 210, Mendel Hall.

nan, Arthur Noble, and Dom Mauro.

The following associate editors were appointed: Joseph Arthur, Albert Welsh, Raphael Martinez-Alvarez, James Allan, and Philip Carson.

Anthony Catrambone was chosen as sports editor and Edmund Vaughan, associate editor. Edward Collins and Jack Robinson are assistants.

Serving in the capacity of snap shot editor will be Frank Schaffer.

It is the goal of the Belle Air Staff to have the book completed and delivered on the campus before May 30. With this in mind, McGrory asks the entire student body to cooperate fully in all undertakings concerning the editing of the publication. The student body can cooperate especially in the taking of group photos. Such cooperation will eliminate excessive over-work on the part of the business manager and his staff.

In the past, individual photographing of the seniors has presented a major problem. In order to alleviate some of the difficulty, it has been decided to begin the photographing of seniors within the next two weeks. With the cooperation of the seniors in this phase of the annual, all pictures will be completed and the proofs returned shortly after Thanksgiving.

Mr. McGrory and his staff hope to present to the Class of 1936 and to all the undergraduates the most interesting and attractive Belle Air that has yet been presented. Work has already been begun on schemes for new cover pages and dividers. A new layout for the Year Book is also being planned.

In announcing a meeting of the entire staff to be held tomorrow in the amphitheatre at one o'clock, Mr. McGrory urges every member to be present. "Absence on the part of a staff member," he said, "will be taken as an indication that he does not wish to serve on the staff."

crease in their enrollment. The Summer School totals 983 members, the Extension 630, Evening School 187, and the Nursing School completes the enrollment list with 35 members. The latter is conducted for the benefit of those who wish to obtain a B. S. in Nursing Education.

The number of transfers may be of interest to note. Fifteen students are matriculating from colleges on the coast, and one from the University of Scotland. The University of Notre Dame tops the list in this field by submitting three students, while Georgetown placed second with two.

The total for the entire school is 701.

Other transfer students enrolled this year at Villanova have matriculated at such schools as University of Alabama, Manhattan, Temple and other well-known schools of the East and South.

ENGINEERING GROUP VISITS RADIO SHOW

A. I. E. E. Under Prof. Bueche Takes in Amazing Phila. Electrical Exhibit

On Monday, October 7, the Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Electrical Engineers held its first official meeting of the scholastic year. The names of the officers-elect for the present year were announced by the moderator, Prof. Harry S. Bueche, M. S., electrical engineering department head.

James McBrearty was elected to the president's chair. Other officeholders are Howard Strong, vice-president; Edward Casey, secretary, and C. B. Constantine, treasurer.

It was made known at this meeting by Mr. McBrearty, that the chapter would make its initial inspection trip, when it visited the Radio and Electrical Show at the Convention Hall, 33rd and Spruce Sts., Philadelphia.

This trip, headed by Prof. Bueche, took place last Friday.

Among the many practical examples of electrical theory that were presented, was the hearing of light and the seeing of sound by means of the cathod ray tube. This was not new, however, to the students, as they themselves produced the same effects last year during Junior Week, when they put on practically the same show for the mothers of the students.

Most amazing of all the exhibits, was the robot, or mechanical man, that was able to play a most intricate game of checkers. One of the larger radio firms of Philadelphia invited any person in the audience to step forward and challenge the robot to a game. If the challenger succeeded in defeating the robot, he received, as his reward, a radio. There were many challengers during the course of the afternoon, but none was successful enough to win the radio.

Other than the entertainment offered by the exhibits, the public were amused by Jess Altmiller and his orchestra, featuring Miss Jean McCool, the Miss Philadelphia of 1935, as their guest vocalist.

FRESHMAN ORATORS ARGUE OVER RULES

"Hello Habit" Is Outstanding Topic in Fiery Debate Session

Frosh regulations were the subject of fiery debate at the last meeting of the Freshman debating team.

The question was open to the house, and enthusiasm often became so intense, that Joseph T. Houseman, '33, moderator, was forced to restrain certain speakers from time to time.

Opponents and advocates of the rules disagreed on every point except one, namely—that the "Hello Habit" should never be abolished.

Many participants had never taken part in any form of debating, yet all soon became so interested that finally nearly every member in the chamber had had something to say on the matter.

This interest was so manifest, that two students who had dropped in as spectators, went away as full-fledged members.

This evening, immediately after Chapel, another meeting will be held in Room 204, Mendel Hall. The question will be: "Resolved, That Athletic Scholarships Should Be abolished." All Freshmen are invited to attend, if not to become members, then as spectators. The discussion will be open to the house, and if it becomes as rip-roaring as last week's session, an interesting half-hour is promised.

EVERY Saturday afternoon, somewhere on the gridirons of the country we hear of a major team being upset by a small college. Last season Villanova met a supposed to be "breather" and, after four quarters of marching back and forth across the white-striped turf, found that the breeze was gone and humiliation at the hands of a hard-fighting pack of "Explorers" was left in its stead.

This same pack of Explorers come here Saturday afternoon, playing the same brand of ball plus a newly developed aerial attack. Here at Villanova with no defeats to mar their record to date, we will find La Salle trying harder than ever to win, as it will mean another feather in their hat.

Villanova cannot afford to take this week's opponent lightly. It is the mistake of many leading teams to underestimate the strength of its opponents and consequently they wind up on the short end.

The Olney Avenue boys have come out on the long end in two of their three engagements and in beating Ursinus they exhibited a powerful offense that will give the Wildcats plenty of trouble this week-end.

This notice is very late coming, but it is never too late to congratulate Arthur Mahan on his election to the captaincy of the baseball team for the '36 campaign.

In Art, Villanova has one of the most promising baseball players in collegiate circles. With Mahan at the helm and a good supporting cast we look for a bright future in Wildcat baseball.

Revenge, in a very decisive way, was accorded Villanova's quarterback, Johnny Higgins, last Saturday with the victory over Bucknell. Johnny did not participate in the scoring rout but his heady generalship was instrumental in the 'Cats' most decisive victory over the Bisons.

In the annual encounter of the two outfits two years ago, Higgins, then a second-year man, was the unfortunate substitute who attempted to kick from behind his goal line. The score at the time was 17-13 with the Villanova boys in the van. The kick was blocked with a Bucknell man recovering for a six-pointer. John was the proverbial goat but since then has profited by two years of experience and demonstrated on Saturday that he can be classed with the best field generals ever to represent the Blue and White.

Football seems to be on the upturn insofar as Villanova is concerned. After the disastrous season last year when four defeats were chalked up as against three victories and two tie scores, a little hope was held for the Studirchers men this campaign. With the loss of seasoned veterans and depending mostly on the up and coming Freshmen the outlook was far from bright.

Future Foes?

In glancing over the doings of oponents we find that Western Maryland fell to the Penn State team at the latters' field, by a 2-0 score. In the opening minutes of play a fumble by the Green Terrors proved to be the instrumental factor in the loss. After the fatal play the Western Maryland eleven shoved the ball all over the field, but could not cross the Nittany's goal line.

La Salle with a crippled team was too much for the Ursinus Bears. Scoring in the first three periods, the Explorers won out by an 18-0 score. In this contest it was the newly developed aerials of the Brill men that had the Bears bewildered.

Out in the Middle West the Detroit Titans smothered the Oklahoma Aggies by a 13-0 decision. Again the win was registered by a flashy wide-open brand of football, with laterals being the important factor in the scoring.

The 1933 outfit played the Ursinus Bears a 7-7 game and were Villanova's Wildcats were just as wild as ever Saturday in their gridiron battle with Bucknell at the Main Line Stadium. They ran through the Bisons for a 25-0 victory, their fourth in as many games this season. John Higgins is shown running back a punt in the second period. This was one of the many runbacks.

Villanova Lightweight Team Opens Season With Red and Blue Opponent

Under a trio of coaches, Charlie Cox, Frank Foster and Ned O'Neill, the 150 pound football team inaugurates its current season Friday, October 18, when Coach Cox and his men play host to a formidable Red and Blue lightweight team at Villanova.

Eager to avenge their 17 to 13 defeat of last year the boys are working hard on blocking, tackling, tricky laterals and wide open offensive plays.

During the last few days under the able tutilage of O'Neill and Foster the line candidates have been drilled extensively on defense. But the most noticeable improvement has been in the blocking. The tackling which has been ragged in spots has also improved immeasurably.

Although refusing to discuss his starting team, saying there are eleven positions open, head coach Cox offered the following statement regarding his chances for the coming year. "Considering the veteran nucleus and promising sophomores the outlook for the coming season looks the brightest in several years."

The squad was bolstered considerably by the return of Larry Stead last year's stellar guard and Jack Chappel. This should strengthen the line considerable.

In the backfield, there is a vicious struggle on for positions between Captain Rogers, Lew Belster, brilliant sophomore halfback, Charley Kain, Jim Cousourt, Dan Murphy, Johnny Houseman, Joe Bittemmiller and Jim Lyons.

On the line Bus O'Conner and two other candidates are striving to fill the position left vacant by the graduation of last year's captain and "All-American" 150 pound end Wally Coyle.

Pat Posuucci, Marty Moscow, Jack Geraghty, and Joe Murray looked especially good on the line during the practice sessions this last week.

Whatever showing the lightweights should make this year should be credited to their earnestness and the attience of the coaches. They have been handicapped by the lack of time and practice sessions, since many of the members of the squad have late classes, the tutors have never been able to use the same eleven for scrimmage.

At the present time the line seems to be the principle weakness, but there are some promising backfield and end material. The guard and tackle positions are noticably bad in spots, but rapid improvement is expected. With a little more han week and a half of practice left before the initial game and the team rapidly rounding into shape, the Pennsylvania one hundred and fifty team should be in for quite a busy afternoon.

Following the Penn game the Villanova color bearers travel to New Haven to tackle Yale on October 26, following that with Rutgers on November 2. After that Lafayette is met in Easton on November 16, and the season winds up with the Orange and Black of Princeton, on November 21. This is one of the toughest schedules attempted thus far in the history of this team, depicting the enthusiasm which the dollar and a half boys have aroused on the campus.

Manhatten is the only team played last year that is not on the schedule for this season, but their place is being ably filled by the little Bulldogs from up New Haven way.

CAPTAIN MICHAELS OUTSTANDING STAR AS WILDCATS WIN

Raimo, Kotys, Stopper Score As Bisons Are Defeated; Another Jinx Beaten

SITARSKY, SMITH, FILER STARS FOR LOSING CAUSE

Wildcats Overwhelm Bucknell By Smooth Running Attack And Superior Manpower

Led by the inspired defensive play their captain, Eddie Michales, and the heady signal calling of the veteran Johnny Higgins, the Villanova Wildcats flashed a powerful and deceptive running attack which accounted for all four touchdowns as the 'Cats crushed the Bucknell Bisons by the one-sided score of 25-0.

Although the score was not close, the game was a battle royal for three periods, during which time the Wildcats had managed to push across a lone touchdown. Then in the final quarter Villanova's superior manpower began to tell on the tiring Bisons, and the boys from the Main Line chalked up three more markers.

Captain Michaels, playing at right guard, displayed a brand of defensive football worthy of any All-American. He repeatedly broke through the Bison forward wall to thrust back attempts at the 'Cat line. Time after time he knifed his way into the Bucknell backfield and smeared Smith and Miller on end runs and off-tackle plays.

When the going was toughest Mike was at his best. On more than one occasion he was the only reason Bucknell didn't score. Stu Smith intercepted a Villanova pass on his own 20 and started down the field with an interferer. It looked like a sure touchdown, but Mike caught him and tackled him from behind.

As in previous games the Wildcats wasted no time in ringing up their first counter. Less than two minutes after the kickoff they started a march from midfield that resulted in Art Raimo going over for a touchdown from the 5-yard line. Raimo was the big gun of this attack, carrying the ball on almost every play for substantial gains.

This lightning-like offensive on the part of the 'Cats ended the first half. But there were fire works aplenty. Early in the second the Thundering Herd embarked on a counter march and from deep in its own territory to the Villanova 25. At this critical point Captain Michaels saved the day for his teammates by recovering a fumble by Sitarsky.

The battle see-sawed back and forth for the remainder of the half with neither team gaining any decided advantage. Remarkable punting by Captain Sitarsky, of Bucknell, kept the 'Cats in their own side of the field, and able backing up of the line on the part of Stu Smith halted the Villanova running attack for the time. Smith was in

KOTYS, SPEEDY BACK WITH HIGH SCORERS

'Cats Left Halfback Ranks With Eastern Stars In Points

With the compilation of the scoring averages over the week-end, we find our own Nick Kotys, flashy halfback, in a four way tie for second place among the high scoring stars in the Eastern section.

A flashy ball carrier from the University of Pittsburgh is leading the pack with 41 markers, garnered by virtue of five touchdowns, five points after touchdowns and two field goals.

Kotys, along with Stanley of Williams, Hoysak of Manhattan and O'Malley of Trinity are tied for the runner-up berth with 30 counters. All four have tallied five touchdowns apiece.

Patrick and Stanley have played in three games, while Kotys and O'Malley have participated in four.

Kotys will have to be reckoned with when the averages are compiled at the close of the season.

With a splendid front wall to clear away the opposition, Nick will have plenty of room to scamper over the chalk-ribbed gridiron. Records of leading scorers follow:

La Salle Explorers to be Wildcats' Next Opponent

Invaders' Aerial Attack May Mar Villanova Record; Brillmen Have Tallied in Every Game Since '33 Season

SHOWED POWER IN BEATING URSINUS

This Saturday the teams of two members of two of the greatest teams Knute Rockne built at Notre Dame will meet for the second successive season when Harry Stuhldreher's Wildcats meet Marty Brill's Explorers in the Villanova stadium.

There will be a lot of feeling and old scores to be settled by this game. Last year La Salle invaded the Main Line stadium with revenge in their hearts for a basketball game they had lost the previous season to Villanova by two points.

The Wildcats, however, after trouncing Ursinus 35-0, and being held to a scoreless tie by Western Maryland, took the La Salle game as a "breather."

Up to this point the Brillmen had pulled two upsets, having defeated St. Thomas College 7-0, and having held the powerful Catholic University team to a 6-6 deadlock.

About midway in the first quarter of the La Salle-Villanova fray, Fritz Brennen of La Salle fell on Knox's punt which had bounced over Koty's head, just touching his hands and rolled over the goal line for a touchdown.

Sciaretta's kick for the point was good. About four minutes later, Bernie Bradley, guard of the Explorers, broke through to block Korchinski's punt for the second touchdown, and the dazed Wildcats found themselves trailing 13-0 at the end of the first quarter.

After pushing the stubborn La Salle team from one end of the field to the other for the remaining three periods, the best Villanova could do was get one touchdown, which Kotys scored from the nine-yard line.

The Explorers so far this year have won two and lost only one game. They defeated Davis-Elkins 14-0, then traveled down to Catholic University to be trounced by the Cardinals, 41-7. Last Saturday they showed real power when they downed Ursinus, 18-0, just two touchdowns short of the Ursinus-Villanova score. La Salle piled up nine first downs to Ursinus' one.

All three touchdowns were scored on passes thrown by Cutcuvage, Brill's star left halfback. The Explorers probably would have piled up a greater score had they not been without the services of five regulars.

Villanova has played four games to date, remaining undefeated, untied, and unscored upon. So far they have snapped the winning streak of three teams. P. M. C. enjoyed an undefeated streak of 12 straight games before the Wildcats crushed them 41-0.

Villanova then overcame the "second game jinx," by swamping Ursinus, 31-0, and the following week snapped Western Maryland's undefeated streak of 10 straight games by beating the hard fighting Green Terrors, 20-0, by virtue of two long runs by Kotys and one by Andy Stopper.

Last week the Wildcats trounced their traditional rivals, Bucknell, 25-0. This was the first time Villanova has defeated the Bisons in three years, and up to that game Bucknell had been undefeated, untied, and unscored upon this season.

Villanova, by comparative scores, is expected to win this Saturday, but they were expected to win last year, too. Upsets occur every week in football, and La Salle has a fighting club which is a threat to any team.

The outcome of the game will largely depend on the attitude of the Villanova team itself. La Salle, only defeated once since the latter part of the 1933 season, also boasts of scoring in every game since the scoreless deadlock with Mt. St. Mary's, the second game of their schedule in 1933.

STAFF MEETING

Members of the sports staff are requested to attend a meeting to be held this afternoon, at 1 P. M., in the Villanovan office. All those new candidates who have not had assignments are especially urged to be present. Anyone who desires to join the staff may also attend the meeting.

BOXING PROSPECTS ARE PROMISING

Tony Sala, Inter-Collegiate Champ, Heads List Of Veterans

With very few members lost by graduation, a banner year is looked forward to in 1936 by Joey Foley, coach of the boxing team. Foley has presented to Rev. Charles Melchior, O.S.A., faculty director of athletics, a schedule of five meets, including Yale, Army, Temple, Western Maryland, and Penn State for confirmation.

Freshmen prospective members of the squad number six or seven, all of whom have had some experience in amateur boxing.

Sala 175 Lb. Champ

The team closed their fistic season in 1935 with a record of four defeats and no wins. Sala, however, entered the Penn State intercollegiates and returned with the 175 pound crown. In doing so he had to eliminate Kaplan of Western Maryland.

Kaplan was the former champion and had held Sala to a draw in a dual meet between their respective teams. These victories earned him the right to fight Russ Jansan, of Army, in the finals.

Sala will be back this year and will be entered in the trials held at Penn State for the team to represent the United States in the 1936 Olympics.

Captain John Haskins has left school to pursue his studies at dental school, and Sullivan has been lost by graduation. Haskins was in the 125-pound class, while Sullivan was a heavyweight. No captain has been elected for the coming year.

The veterans returning include Sala, Art Raimo, Cost, Dinges, and Jimmie Lyons.

DETROIT GAME WILL BE TELEPHONED TO VILLANOVA FANS

Intersectional Mid-West Game Will Be Broadcast To Villanova Rooters

FEATURE IS INNOVATION

It has been announced that the Villanova-Detroit football game which is to be played in Detroit on November 2, 1935, will be specially telephoned to Villanova direct from the Detroit Stadium.

This announcement came as the result of long negotiations with the Bell Telephone Company for the rental of communication lines between the two colleges. The relay calls for a three-hour schedule.

In connection with the lines loud speakers will be placed in the Villanova College Gymnasium for the convenience of the public who are unable to follow the team to this distant game.

At no other place than the college gymnasium will a verbal action story of the game be relayed to Philadelphia, since there is to be no regular broadcast of the gridiron battle. The effect of this relay will be that of a private broadcast of the description of the game.

Play by play descriptions of the game will be thus sent by special wire, announced by professional radio sports announcers. Considering the fact that this game is the second in a series of home and home tilts, it should be of great interest to Villanova rooters that this arrangement has been made.

Further amusement will be scheduled for the periods of inactivity at Detroit, and the audience will be well entertained at this unusual broadcast. Since the expenses of the arrangement are quite excessive, there will be a fee of 25 cents charged for admission to the gymnasium during the game time.

Tickets Available

Accommodations will be available in the seats to be erected, for any size crowd, although it is advisable to secure admission tickets as soon a possible to make attendance doubly secure.

Comments on the outcome of the double meet with Detroit are impossible so long in advance, but it is expected that the first game will far from determine the outcome of the second, for many reasons. The arrangement, however, will give each team a chance to play on its home field.

Austin and Alumni Lead Inter-Dorm Tennis Race

Jim Dywer, Trenton Junior Tennis Champion, Is Favored to Annex Laurels From Ben Maloney and Melian

TO SETTLE SUPREMACY THIS WEEK

After a week of keen competition the annual intra-mural tennis tournament is rapidly drawing to a close.

This tournament has been running very smoothly and efficiently under the guidance of Rev. Edward McKee, O. S. A., moderator of intra-murals, Jim Conroy and Larry Rielly, managers.

Fr. McKee was pleasantly surprised at the great number of aspiring tennis champs. Last year he attempted the first tournament here at college, but was sadly disappointed at the number of entrants. However, this year it has been a different story.

The intra-murals have drawn about 50 aspiring tennis champions. Among them were numerous applicants from Austin, Alumni, and Mendel halls. Fedigan and the Day-hops were also ably represented.

Among the seeded racquet-wielders were Ben Maloney, Frank Ferron and Kyzwicki; all of these men were candidates from Austin Dormitory.

The first ranking players from Fedigan were Walter Krupa, Norbert Ford, and Paul Melian.

Brothers Win

The Alumni stars were Jim Dwyer and Alfred Melian, brother of Raoul Melian, of Fedigan. Unfortunately Raoul and Alfred did not encounter one another on the court, because we would have been sure to see a rip-snorting battle.

This tournament, held between the various halls and the Day-hops, with overflow entries from all the halls, was especially made interesting by the fact that both Alumni and Austin halls, bitter rivals in all intra-mural sports, had the most entries.

The competition was keen and exciting and many favorites were eliminated. Among them was the defeat of Ernie Zaloom, Day-hop representative and first seeded in the tournament, by Ben Maloney. This was quite an upset. After several sets of nip and tuck tennis, Ernie appeared to be tiring and faulted continuously. But, no credit must be taken away from Benny. He played a superior and superb brand of tennis and was deserving of the win.

Dwyer Appears Winner

The play was finally narrowed to Maloney, Raoul Melian and Dwyer.

Jim Dwyer, who is Trenton's junior tennis champ, is the favorite to annex the laurels, but is sure to find all the competition he wishes in Melian and Maloney.

Fr. McKee hopes to have the tournament concluded in a few days. Fr. McKee will soon get his intra-mural basketball schedule under way. This year both the old and new gyms will be used, and he hopes that the competition will be just as keen this year as it was previously.

VILLANOVA RATES FIRST IN SCORING AND DEFENSE PLAY

Poll of Eastern Colleges In Points Gathered Shows Feline Among First GOAL LINE IMPENETRABLE

By virtue of a smashing 25-0 triumph over a scrappy Bucknell eleven the Wildcats of Villanova jumped into undisputed possession of first place among the high scoring major elevens of the Eastern section.

The Minions of Harry Stuhldreher can be justly proud of such an accomplishment. Leading such teams as the Temple Owls, our ever traditional rivals, the Crusaders of Holy Cross and the Dartmouth Indians among other outstanding teams in the East, the Main Liners have rolled up the grand total of 117 points against none for the opposition.

Dartmouth Second

The Dartmouth aggregation is the real leader having played only three games and tallying 145 points with but seven in the opponents' column.

Villanova, with an average of 29 1-4 points per game has one of the most powerful offenses in the East.

The Main Liners have put together 18 six-pointers and have converted nine extra points in 18 attempts to give them 117 markers.

Reason for such a high-scoring machine is due to efficient blocking on the part of the forward wall and some clever running by some of the cleverest backs in Villanova history in the persons of Nick Kotys, senior ball-carrier from Monessen, Pa., and the flashy Sophomores, Ray Stoviak, Art Raimo and Andy Stopper.

Opponents Equal

With such notable victories over an equally notable class of opponents the Wildcats will strive to maintain a perfect record in the remaining games.

The opposition gets stronger with every game but this has not deterred the Main Liners in their quest for victory.

Below is a list of the first 15 teams in East and their scoring record:

Team	W.	L.	T.	P.	Opp. Pts.
Villanova	4	0	0	117	0
Temple	4	0	0	96	13
Holy Cross	4	0	0	104	6
Dartmouth	3	0	0	145	7
Navy	3	0	0	83	7
Pittsburgh	3	0	0	73	5
Lehigh	3	0	0	63	7
Army	2	0	0	68	0
Yale	2	0	0	65	30
New York U.	2	0	0	59	13

lucky to get off without a loss. Boston College beat them and the Bucknell team walked off with a 19-17 verdict.

The season of 1923 was the best in history but it is a far cry back to that era. This team bids fair to equal that record and even surpass it.

With the Temple team playing as it is, and with the locals clicking with perfection, fans are getting a little on edge, with hopes of seeing the two go through undefeated. Well, we too would like to see such a situation arise also. After all, a natural battle looms without that much prestige, with records to protect you can bet that Villanova will try its hardest against their traditional rival.

In the last issue we made mention of Renzo as a possible supplanter to Smukler, the Owls have gone us one better by introducing another threat man in Kusko, who has replaced the diminutive fullback.

Pop Warner picked Vanderbilt to beat his team on last Friday night, but it is our contention that the scare that the Southern team gave his Owls was even a surprise to him.

Did you notice the drive that Stu Smith of the vanquished Bucknell eleven had when he crashed the line. He appeared to be the only one to make any impression on the Villanova line. This same back was the outstanding figure in the triumph of the Bisons last year.

If bands and girls were to decide a football contest, then Bucknell should protest the results printed on the game.

In the Limelight

By NORTON C. PADEN

ANOTHER week — another issue — and another new name in the Limelight. This week John W. Higgins is featured in this column. A product of New Haven, Conn., Johnny is the lad that has led the Wildcats to many glorious victories during this season and in the past.

Quarter-backing seems to be John's forte as he has held down this position since High School days. At grammar school, which was St. Francis Parochial School by the way, John played third base for the school nine.

John spent the required number of years at this institution of elementary knowledge, and then entered Commercial High School in New Haven. Here Higgy really entered into the spirit of things and played three sports.

Football, hockey, and baseball held his attention while in attendance at Commercial and he knocked down letters in all three. He played the hot corner on the baseball team and held down Defense and Quarterback positions on the other two squads.

Montpelier Prep next claimed Higgy's attention and so our hero hied himself off to the wilds of Vermont to further his education and employ his talents in his three fields of athletic activities for the benefit of the Green Mountain boys.

John entered Villanova in the fall of '32 all spurred and booted for his contest against the V. C's. During his Frosh year John played Frosh football and baseball and his prep school training came in good stead. In this year the Kittens had a regular schedule, winning three games out of four, the other was lost to a semi-pro team from Williamsport.

Sophomore year rolled around and with it came Johnny's cessation of baseball activities. Due to spring football practice he was unable to continue in this field and devoted all his time to attaining the position of quarterback.

During the interim Jawn played Intra-mural basketball and was considered right in there by all concerned.

In his Junior year he took over the Varsity position of calling signals and played a great game all season. He really outdid himself this year covering all fronts, heaving passes and what not.

This year, his senior year, John has gone great guns to date. He has led the 'Cats to three straight victories, all of them shut-outs.

John is a Senior Commerce and Finance man, specializing in accounting. He hopes to continue in this field upon the completion of his College career this June.

Bucknell Upset By Villanova Wildcats

on practically every play; on one set of downs he tackled Andy Stopper three times without gain.

The second half started just like the first half. Higgins, receiving a kick on his own 20-yard line, ran back fifteen yards. From that point the Blue and White launched an offensive that culminated in the second touchdown.

Nick Kotys set the attack going with a twisting, squirming run of 50 yards through the whole Bison team, and would have scored then had not Sitarsky pulled him down from behind. Quarterback Higgins called on Kotys three more times, and on the final try Nick went over from the 5-yard line on a delayed outback inside right tackle.

Again the game settled down to a fierce defensive fight with neither club yielding. Then toward the end of the period Michaels with the aid of two of his teammates partially blocked a Bucknell punt. Mike grabbed the ball and set sail for the goal line. He fought his way to the 5-yard line before being buried under an avalanche of tacklers. However, an unfortunate fumble ruined the chance for a touchdown.

The fourth quarter play put the game on ice for the Wildcats. The Bisons, lacking capable reserves in several key positions, were visibly tiring, while the Villanova substitutions matched the pace set by the regulars. In this last period Andy Stopper shook himself loose for two touchdowns, both on sweeps around his own right end.

Two other excellent opportunities to score were wasted by the 'Cats when their backfield fumbled inside the 10-yard line. Bucknell made a futile effort to score, but could get nowhere either through the line or by way of the overhead route. Their best ground-gaining weapon was a short forward pass followed by a lateral. They worked this play twice for substantial gains and were a constant threat to score.

Even in a losing cause Bucknell had its heroes. Stu Smith lived up to advance reports, being a thorn in Villanova's side all day. John Filer at right end was a tower of strength on the defense, repulsing numerous attempts at his end. Captain Sitarsky showed himself to be an extraordinary punter.

Besides Michaels, Higgins was the outstanding man in the Villanova lineup. Johnny played 59 of the 60 minutes, performing in a capable manner throughout. Recognized as a good blocker his blocking was never better; his choice of plays was first class, and his work as safety man was beyond reproach.

As a sidelight between the halves the bands of both schools put on a gala display of marching and band music. The bands combined for one number, and this stunt gained the applause of the 10,000 spectators.

Stuhlie Says

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stuhldreher, Head Coach of Football, is writing this column to explain in detail the inside story of the game of the previous Saturday, explaining the results of the game and why the game went as it did. He will also give a prediction, based on previous performances, as to the outcome of the game of the following Saturday.)

Last Thursday, I was in by no means a happy mood, and at 2 P. M. on Saturday, I felt even worse. It was not Bucknell as a team that I feared, but the psychological effect on the players. The Bisons have often put a jinx on us, and although we have a great club, I was worried. But at the end of that first quarter, I figuratively sat back and let Johnny Higgins take the wheel.

As compared to the Western Maryland game, we had a new team on the field. Against Bucknell, the boys played a vastly superior game. They played heady ball. Their greatest improvement was shown in the tackling. They were sure and decisive and they hit low and hard.

Bucknell Outplayed

We outdistanced the Bisons in almost every department of the game. Our blocking was good, the running attack ripped great holes in the line, and overhead, our passes clicked fairly well. As the statistics show, our greatest gains were off tackle, with four men ahead of the ball carrier. The punting honors were about equally divided. Sitarsky, Bisons quarterback, held his end up very well against Stopper and Higgins.

I had several bad moments in the game, however, and they were mostly in the last quarter. We were on our Bucknell's 30-yard line, last down and eight. We threw a pass and forgot to cover adequately. Smith, a great back, intercepted the toss and started up the field in the clear. Eddie Michaels was on the ground after blocking the incoming Bucknell left end, but he picked himself up and flew after the ball carrier, nailing him on our own 40-yard line. Another one was the fumble on Bucknell's 10. They kicked out of danger, but we came right back to get another touchdown.

Line Played Well

Our actual line play superiority can be seen when Bucknell got only one first down on running plays, and from the way our pass defense has smoothed out, the Bisons got only one first down through the air.

The La Salle game next week isn't the breather that one would assume. The little Explorers are a tough bunch, as we learned to our complete surprise last year. Although their chance of defeating us is very slight, I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see them break our unscored-upon record. The La Salle team is very likely to slip a touchdown or two across on us.

TERRORS LOSE TO STATE

For the first time in the history of both schools, Penn State and Western Maryland met on the gridiron last Saturday. The State team emerged victorious by a 2-0 score, on a fluke safety in the opening minutes of the game.

JOKER DISCOVERED IN FOOTBALL CODE

New Football Ruling Seen As Cause for Future Disputes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 14—Coach Charles E. Dorais, of the University of Detroit, has discovered a "joker" in the football rules that may prove to be more important than a casual reading of the code might indicate. It is a supplemental note to Section " Rule 7, covering the dead ball and it reads:

"A runner who is on his feet even though he be held by an opponent may run, pass, or kick until the whistle blows."

This is an apparent contradiction of the body of the rule which reads:

"The ball is dead when a player in possession and control of the ball goes out of bounds, cries 'down' or is so held that his forward progress is stopped or (except the holder of the ball in a place-kick) when any portion of his person except his hands or feet touches the ground."

As Coach Dorais sees it, much will depend upon how quickly the referee blows the whistle when the ball-carrier is held by an opponent and is still on his feet. If the referee is fast with the whistle, it means that lateral passing will be greatly curtailed, while if he is inclined to place a liberal interpretation on the supplemental note, it is going to be possible to pass laterally in a manner never before seen on the American college gridiron.

SURVEY REVEALS FEMALE THRIFT

Women Are More Frugal In Expenditures on Luxuries Than Men

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 14—Minnesota statisticians and figure-hunters have blasted another idea that is prevalent among collegians:

Women students spend only 76 cents more per month in beauty shops than men do in barber shops! And she spends only a fraction of the amount that men spend on tobacco.

These figures were revealed in the results of a survey of the buying habits at the University of Minnesota made by an insurance company. The survey showed that clothes form the greater part of the co-ed's budget, while food is the largest item in the collegian's budget.

PARKING IS SIMPLIFIED

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 14—University of California collegians have found a new way of beating the law so far as parking ordinances are concerned.

Here's their simple plan: First, get a parking tag for over-parking. Second, stick it on your windshield every day when you park to go to your classes.

Collegiate World

By COLLEGIATE DIGEST and Associated Collegiate Press

The funniest campus incident we have heard this fall happened during the registration period at the University of Minnesota (Minneapolis).

Mr. Asher Christensen, a professor, was strolling past two long lines of Freshmen. One line consisted of Freshmen who planned to be doctors and were registering for pre-medicine courses. The other line was filled with those about to enter pre-business courses.

A small voice from the end of the "pre-medicine line" piped a call to Mr. Christensen.

"Hi, mister," the Frosh said, "which is the longest line?"

The professor considered. "I would say your line is about 25 feet longer," Christensen answered.

"Okay," the boy said, stepping out of the queue, "I'm a business man already." And he registered for pre-business!

A future Sam Johnson at the University of Michigan develops a few word definitions: Honesty—fear of being caught. Truth—lack of tact. Courage—combination of stubbornness and resignation. Pleasure—one-half memory; one-half anticipation. Love—one-half imagination; one-half biology. Moron—one who is content with a serene mind.

YOUTHFULNESS MOST CONDUCIVE TO WORK

Statistics Prove Young Men More Productive Than Older Generation

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 14—Work, for the night is fleeting, and you won't be this young forever.

That would seem to be the lesson to be learned from the "achievement batting average" recently computed by Dr. Harvey C. Lehman, of Ohio University, a compilation which shows that the most important work in science and literature is done by men in their early youth.

Outstanding achievements in chemistry, physics, short-story writing and other fields of creative work were used by Dr. Lehman as basis for his "batting average." He counted each year of life as one time at bat, with each important contribution a "hit."

Thirty-five is the big year for production, Dr. Lehman found, although important "hits" were registered by men as young as 18 and as old as 69. Astronomers don't run true to form, however. They reach their most productive years between 40 and 44.

Chemists reached their highest batting average between the ages of 27 and 39, physicists were tops between 30 and 34, and mathematicians in between 28 and 38.

If you're a short-story writer, you'd better be good after your 30th birthday and before your 34th, or you may never get any place, and if you lean toward poetry, you may expect to be at your best between 22 and 35.

EDITOR OBJECTS TO CO-EDUCATION

Editorial Says Alma Mater Is "Last Real Stronghold Of Masculinity"

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

MORAGA, Calif., Oct. 14—An emphatic "No" to the recent proposal that St. Mary's College turn co-educational is the answer of the Collegian, weekly student newspaper at the Moraga institution.

In the leading editorial in its current issue, Editor Philip Quittman calls the idea "absurd" in no uncertain words.

"We chose St. Mary's because we wanted to go to a man's college. And we still prefer to go to a man's college! There are ample co-educational facilities in the immediate region for those who must constantly be with the weaker sex. For those students who must have 'company,' transfers to co-educational institutions can be obtained," he blasted.

Quittman called St. Mary's "the last real stronghold of masculinity in the region." Authorities of the college are sounding out sentiment on the proposed admittance of women students in the future.

ANNUAL SOPHOMORE COTILLION PROVES COMPLETE SUCCESS

Record Crowd Attends Dance Friday Formally Opening Social Season

DAVIS, OLIVAR EXPRESS THANKS FOR COOPERATION

Attractive Decorative Scheme Employed Made Outstanding Impression on Guests

The Annual Sophomore Cotillion was held last Friday evening, in the college gymnasium. More than 260 couples attended and helped make the dance the most completely successful affair sponsored by any Sophomore class.

Music was furnished by the college orchestra, the Villanovans, under the direction of Charles Stotler. Organized but a short time, the Villanovans nevertheless gave a splendid performance and helped make the evening truly enjoyable with their well-executed orchestrations of popular numbers.

Instead of the usual false ceiling, the gymnasium was decorated in long blue and white streamers suspended from the roof in the shape of a graceful canopy. Multi-colored lights added to the attractiveness of the general scheme.

Jordan Olivari, class president, and Harvey Davis, dance chairmen, were enthusiastic in their praise of the wholehearted support given the sophomores by the members of all classes.

A financial report has not yet been compiled, but Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the Sophomore Class, has expressed confidence that when final returns are made a sizeable profit will have been realized.

The following were members of the committee which made the arrangements for the dance:

SCIENCE MEN ELECT BIGLEY PRESIDENT

L. K. D. Fraternity Also Places Joseph Toland as Secretary of Group

Elections for the offices of president and secretary were held by the Lamda Kappa Delta Fraternity at its weekly meeting at 1 o'clock, Thursday, October 18, in Room 210, Mendel Hall.

One week was given the members wherein to decide who of the nominees were best qualified to hold office. As a result, Joseph Bigley, a senior in the Science School, was elected president; and Joseph Toland, a sophomore in the same school, elected secretary.

The unsuccessful candidate for the presidency was a senior, William Keffer, while the unsuccessful aspirant for secretary was Louis Centrella, a sophomore.

The officiating body of the organization for the year 1935-36 was thus completed and now stands: Joseph Bigley, president, Manrico Troncellitti, vice-president; Gerald Piserschia, treasurer, and Joseph Toland, secretary.

Mr. Bigley presided over the meeting immediately upon being elected. He thanked the members for placing him in office and continued by setting forth several resolutions for the harmonious and cooperative performance of the LKD's. He earnestly asked them to disregard "cliques" and work only for the success of the group.

A treasurer's report was then given by Gerald Piserschia. Because several of the members were in arrears, it was decided that a special committee of three, appoint-

Student Council Holds Regular Meeting Tonight

For the first time in four years the Student Council had 100% attendance when it met last week in its present task of drafting a constitution for the organization.

With Chairman James Downs conducting the meeting the first three articles of the proposed document were drawn up.

Regular compulsory meetings will be held every Tuesday night after Chapel in the Amphitheatre of Mendell Hall. This regulation will hold only throughout the time until the constitution will be finished. After that, sessions will be regularly every two weeks.

At tonight's conference it is more than probable that plans for rallys and send-offs for the team will be discussed.

PROGRESS SHOWN BY FRESHMEN ORATORS

Society Rounding Into Shape Under Direction of Professor Frayne

The Freshman Debating Society held its customary meeting on Tuesday, October 15, in Room 204, Mendel Hall. Those present included Mr. Joseph Houseman, moderator; Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, moderator of the Beta Gamma Chapter of Villanova's Literary Society; and the freshmen members themselves.

The membership has decreased to about two-thirds of the original number. This is a good percentage in view of the fact that in most organizations half the number "fall out." This decrease is beneficial, for it indicates that more than half have faith in their society, as well as in their labors and in their moderator.

Mr. Frayne is more than interested in the work of the society in spite of the fact that he remained passive throughout the meeting.

Mr. Frayne commented on the topic discussed in one of his classes held on the next day. The topic: "Resolved, That Athletic Scholarships Should Be Abolished," was an impersonal one.

No topic for debate was scheduled for the next meeting, Tuesday, October 22. Instead, Mr. Houseman is contributing some examples of speeches and intends to show how a brief should be constructed. Among these speeches will be included those presented by Mr. Houseman himself when he was an undergraduate of Villanova.

Another phase in the work of the society will be devoted to the reading of debating periodicals. Among the various periodicals, the "Debaters' Digest" was mentioned.

A notice for a meeting will be published only for the one to be held this evening. After that, it is left upon the interest of the members themselves to remember to be present without the use of constant reminders.

REGULAR MEETING HELD BY SANCTUARY SOCIETY

Group Attended Mass and Received Communion On Tuesday

President Joseph Arthur presided over the meeting of the Sanctuary Society held last Monday, October 14, in 210 Mendel Hall. This was the third meeting of the society this fall.

The only business discussed was the necessity of the promptness on the part of the server in attending such services as Masses, Benedictions and the like assigned to him.

Following this discussion preparations were made for the group attendance at Mass and Communion Tuesday morning. It is the custom of the society to attend Mass and Holy Communion in a body every second Tuesday of the month.

Because of the lack of sufficient number of members of the organization further business discussion was postponed until the next meeting which will be held November 9 in Room 210, Mendel Hall.

A. S. M. E. PLANS ACTIVITIES

Joseph Malcolm and Paul Donahue Rivals for Club Presidency

According to plans of the Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, there is much activity planned for the ensuing year. Several motion pictures have been arranged for showing to the members of the society, and many tours of machine plants are scheduled.

It is unusual to note that there are but two members of the Senior Mechanical Engineering Department at the college, and thus the battle for the presidency of the society will be between Joseph Malcolm and Paul Donahue.

TRADITIONAL P. K. P. DANCE TO BE HELD ON NOVEMBER 15TH

Original Date of Nov. 23rd Changed at Yesterday's Club Meeting

WILLIAM MUNROE CHOSEN TO HEAD COLORFUL BALL

Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving Atmosphere to Be Provided By Engineers

Announcement by the Phi Kappa Pi at its last committee meeting of the date for the annual "Engineers' Ball," was to the effect that this traditional social function will be held this year on Friday evening, November 15.

To be held, according to custom, in the College Gymnasium, the hours have been set to be from 9 P. M. until 1 A. M. The date for the dance had previously been set for Nov. 23, but it was felt that the previous week would be more acceptable to all the patrons.

Incorporated into the scheme of the affair will be the atmosphere of both Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving seasons. The committees were assigned to their various duties at the last meeting, and enthusiasm is running high to the effect that the dance, always one of the most successful social and financial affairs, will be bigger and greater than ever this Fall.

Appointed to the committee for the Engineers' Ball are the following: William O. Munroe, Jr., chairman; John W. Hallahan, Jr., associate chairman; Julian Canuso, Joseph Braheney, Joseph Malcolm, John Cronin, Thomas O'Brien, Al Hoffman, Paul Williams, C. V. D'Annunzio, Joseph Hooven, and Walter Weis.

Phi Kappa Pi proposes to enhance its former great activity with the advent of greater social activity, and the promotion of more numerous and entertaining social gatherings, during the coming year.

Play By Play Description of Game To Be Broadcast To Cat Followers

Marking an innovation in football broadcasting at Villanova, Professor Martin Gill will give a play by play description of the Villanova-Detroit University game direct from the Mid-West Stadium of the Titans.

The voice of Mr. Gill will be relayed over a special wire direct to the amplifying apparatus at the Villanova gymnasium.

25 Cents Admission

A nominal admission charge of 25 cents will be charged in order to defray the expenses of renting a through telephone line for a three-hour period.

Followers of the team will be able to hear this first-hand description only at the Villanova gym; so that the students are urged to obtain their tickets immediately in order to be sure of attending. Tickets are now on sale only at the college book store.

'Cat Fans Invited

Students are requested to tell their friends of this service that Villanova is bringing to her followers for the first time. Due to the remarkable record of the Villanova team so far this year it is felt that many Main Line friends of the Wildcats will attend the broadcast.

The broadcast will begin at about 2 P. M. and will continue until the game is over. Scores of the other games played on that day will be announced at the various intermissions.

Football Team to Leave For Detroit Thurs. Night

Thursday night about six o'clock the Villanova College football team will entrain at the Villanova Station for Detroit.

In addition to the Wildcat aggregation, the band of ball toters will be accompanied by Rev. Charles Melchoir, O. S. A., faculty director of athletics, the managers, the trainer and possibly several loyal Villanova rooters.

The "Red Arrow," flying Pennsylvania limited, has been secured for the trip. It will return the following day to transport the college band and other rooters.

The train will make its first stop at Pittsburgh and then will go on to Chicago and from thence to Detroit.

TECHNOLOGY SCHOOL MAGAZINE APPEARS

Includes Open Letter by Dean Carl T. Humphrey To Freshman Engineers

The initial number of the VILLANOVA ENGINEER, official journal of the School of Technology, made its appearance on the campus last Friday embracing a modern motif.

Great efforts were made by the editor in chief, Charles F. Kain, to produce a monthly magazine worthy of the status and confidence enjoyed by Villanova in the engineering field.

An elaborate aerial view of the entire campus enhances the midpages of the book. This, coupled with a full page pictorial depicting the ruined remains of the fire-scarred chapel of the old monastery, heads the excellent photography work of the monthly.

Dean Carl T. Humphrey, head of the Technology School, addresses the incoming would-be engineers with an open letter orientating them with the problems facing the graduate engineer of today.

VICTIMS OF AUTOCRASH CONVALESCING RAPIDLY

Four Students Will Miss Greater Part of First Semester; Others Attend Classes

Villanova students will be interested to learn that their fellow students who were injured in the auto crash which occurred the week before last are making strides in their fight for return to normalcy. While the extent of the injuries of four of them was quite serious, the quartet has made sufficient gain in strength to assure recovery.

It is more than likely that these four, John Burke, John Hosey, David Scanlon, and Edward Donovan will miss the greater part of the first semester of their schoolwork but will return to class at the latest in February. Anthony Sala and William Christopher, who were less seriously injured, have returned to classes already.

Although the condition of the students was very grave at the time of the accident various reports which were circulated were far more grave than an existing conditions. But time of crisis is passed and the injured boys are all progressing

COLLEGE BAND WILL MAKE DETROIT TRIP ON THE 'RED ARROW'

Pullman Berths on Limited Secured by Fr. Albers For Musicians

WILL LEAVE VILLANOVA STATION FRIDAY NIGHT

Members Asked to Cooperate In Promptness to Make Journey Successful

Contrary to all former expectations and rumors the Villanova College Band will accompany the football team to Detroit for the game with the University of Detroit next Saturday afternoon.

Due to the efforts of Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., and Mr. Frank Cornely, passenger agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad, final arrangements have been completed for the trip to Detroit. Mr. Cornely will be remembered by many band members as the genial personality who accompanied the Blue and White musicians on many former trips and saw to it that they had the best of everything.

The "Red Arrow" limited to Chicago, crack flier of the Pennsylvania lines, will stop at Villanova on Friday evening at five forty-six for the college band. It will carry them westward and will round the famous Horseshoe Curve near Altoona at 10.49 P. M. and will be in Pittsburgh at 1.15. The arrival in Detroit is scheduled for 8.05 A. M.

Disembarking at Detroit the band will receive their breakfast and lunch in a Detroit hotel and will be taken from there to the University of Detroit Stadium by bus. Here they will lend encouragement to the fighting Wildcats of the football squad by their peppy rendition of inspiring numbers.

As the Detroit school is expected to furnish competition for the Villanova musicians many new and unique formations are to be rehearsed by the band this week. It

ARTS FRATERNITY PLANS ELECTIONS

Epsilon Phi Theta Group To Nominate Officers This Week

Starting the new school term with a determined outlook, the Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity held its first formal meeting last Thursday, in Room 104, during the Seminar period.

This meeting had as its purpose the re-election of officers. Presided over by Rafael Martinez, former vice-president, the assembly had planned to elect officers in the following capacities: president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary.

However, these expectations could not be accomplished. Due to the brevity of the notice of the meeting some members of the fraternity were unable to attend. In order to be fair to those who were not present, a meeting will be held on this coming Thursday, October 24, at the above designated time and place. This should give every member an adequate opportunity to exercise his right of franchise.

According to the custom of the fraternity a representative of each class shall be elected to hold office. A member of the senior class will be selected as president of the fraternity. The vice-president will be a junior. To fill the office of treasurer, a sophomore will be elected, and a member of the freshman class will undertake the position of secretary.

Two probable candidates for the presidency will be Rafael Martinez and Edwin Reilly. This office was previously occupied by James

THE NEED FOR MORE DIRECT COMMUNICATIONS

IN order to obviate the possibility of controlled propoganda entering this country and unduly influencing public opinion in favor of one or other of the belligerents, it would be well if the Communication Commission established a definite procedure for the delivery of news despatches. This need is particularly pertinent in consideration of the present Italo-Ethiopian trouble, in which the formation of an unbiased opinion is dependent upon uncensored news. The presumptuous manner in which Great Britain summarily violated the articles of the International Telecommunication Convention, by refusing to transmit to the United States a speech delivered by Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian delegate to the League of Nations, strengthens the need for the establishment of such a system.

Government officials would do well to recall the manner in which England influenced American opinion in the last war, by censoring all communications, which designed to enlighten the American public upon the German viewpoint. Hence the requirement for taking positive steps to hinder the re-occurrence of such a thing in the future.

This country in establishing its telegraphic lines should be mindful of the potentiality of each country for distorting or suppressing those despatches which would be detrimental to her standing on the problems at issue, accordingly we believe that all factors will be equally considered if direct radio-telephonic communications would be established with the several countries of Europe.

THE FATES DECIDE

INDEED it is not surprising, that after 13 long years of listening to the perverted philosophy of history and national greatness and being carefully prevented from learning the true situation in Ethiopia and the rest of the universe, the people of Italy blindly rallied behind their magnetic leader in this hour of destiny. Far from strange is that action on the part of the Italian race. They have been well drilled in the art of follow the leader and now that they have such a forceful one as the hypnotic Benito it is more than evident why they flew to arms at his slightest beckoning.

Thus did the people of France act in the mad days of Napoleon and once again in the rule of his very feeble imitator, Napoleon III. So did the people of Germany in the year 1914. But all of us know that they paid dearly, extremely so, for their misplaced trust.

Who is to say but what that self same scene of history will be enacted once again? Certainly it is not an impossibility and it might even be said that it is not by any means an improbability. Will fate deal more kindly with the people of Italy who only recently undertook to rewrite history and redraw national boundaries in blood and destruction?

SOLUTIONS

IN a world so sore beset by the vicissitudes of life, with grim realities faoing every one who holds a responsible position, the universal question facing the average man today is: "Can there be a solution, a universal solution, to the ills of the world?"

Numerous governments have tried various corrective methods. Here in America we have seen a literal wave of millions of dollars attempting to end unemployment by the many alphabetical public works programs. Perhaps this will cure the depression. But, is not a guarantee of assurance.

In Europe we have seen the reins of government passing into the hands of a dictatorial few, each with the utopian plan of curing mass unemployment and stark poverty.

As a result Italy emerges with a Fascist rule — an iron willed dictator attempting to exploit literal barbarians with his dream of African imperialism.

In Germany a National-Socialist clique is in power with Hitler at its head. Hitler, the enigma, with his religious and racial killing tactics.

In Russia the Soviets with their illusory dream of changing the status quo are killing all religion with their brutal attacks.

As we glance about us and pause, we can see that many panaceas and nostrums have been propounded, disseminated and rejected.

Why?

Because man in his mind has not yet come to realize that he must return to God. Only then can he meet his fellowman half way and uphold the moral law.

AN UNBIASED PRESS

IT HAS long been the misfortune of the average American citizen that he is unable to obtain true and accurate news of his candidates for political offices through the only means at his disposal, the daily press.

Well-known among the faults, few as they may be, of the newspapers of the present day, is their susceptibility to the desires of the big political boss. Freedom of the press is nothing better than a by-word in the Constitution of the United States. The thoughts and facts put forth in the average sheet are not unbiased and not free from discrimination.

Subject to the good will of the backer of the paper, the editors have actually no determined thoughts of their own. The editorial contents of the news records are those of the platform of the proposed candidates for office, and the papers whose words are truth and fact are few and far between.

This definite gap in the usefulness of the American press can and must be filled by the Collegiate dailies and weeklies. It is recognized that, in the minds of the youth of the nation, lies the future path of that nation, and only in the expression of these minds can truth and not fiction be found.

That the average undergraduate newssheet maintains its unpolluted and unbiased policies is realized, and the effect of [illegible] papers is felt throughout the

By Ben Maloney

AT THIS point we would like to take time out from our regular line of chatter to thank all those friends who were kind enough to remember your writer on his birthday which occurred last Thursday. Yessir, you are no more surprised than we were to find that there really was someone who remembered and was kind. So we now offer through the means of this column public thanks to all well-wishers. We might also mention at this point that last Thursday, October 17, was also the anniversary of the birthdays of Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., and Rev. James Gallagher, O. S. A. See fellers, didn't we always contend that truly great men are born in October?

Now for Professor Maloney's little lecture, children. It might do well for a few more students of Villanova to present themselves at activities of the legitimate stage. Here in Philadelphia for the past week was presented that grand operetta, "Student Prince." How many Villanova students were present at any of the performances? Just a very few. Yesterday, at the Forrest Theater, "Romeo and Juliet," starring Katherine Cornell, had its premiere. Surely there aren't very many of you who intend to miss that! This feature will remain at the Forrest for two weeks only so get your tickets early.

We observe that Maude Adams, that lovable lady of the stage, is once more appearing in a court scene as she did years back when she toured the country with Otis Skinner, enacting the person of Portia in "The Merchant of Venice." But this time "Portia" is facing the court in reality. And her defense this time will be for herself. It seems that she is being sued in a damage claim for the paltry sum of $200,000. Let us all hope that once more "fair Portia" will turn the tables on her legal adversaries.

After getting a glimpse of the Sophomore Cotillion last Friday night, and by the way let us take this space and time now to congratulate Chairman Harvey Davis and his committee on the presentation of a highly successful dance, we recalled to mind the statement of an eminent psychologist connected with a Mid-Western university. Said psychologist declared that morons dance every bit as well if not better than the person with average mentality. So in all fairness to those attending the other night, we must say you didn't look so hot!

Ted Husing, announcer supreme, has turned author and brings to the American public, "Ten Years Before the Mike." Ted's endeavor, which is incidentally an autobiography, will reach the bookstalls sometime next week. We are looking forward to reading it with much interest. Undoubtedly it will be a fine work.

For years a professor of Greek at Fresno State College has been in the habit of calling his students in alphabetical order for translations. Since his brilliant students soon noticed his unique method, each was invariable prepared for his passage with remarkable thoroughness.

One day the absence of so many students in the class caused such a change in the translations that most of the students present were unprepared. At last the professor realized the whole scheme. He was broken-hearted. "Since you can't be trusted," he said, "I shall be forced to fool you. From now on I shall begin to call on you at the other end of the alphabet. "BRILLIANT REASONING!"

Something new is always of interest, and as long as the freshmen are quite a new addition to any school, they are the subject of much comment. At the beginning of the year most colleges present the new arrivals with some sort of intelligence test. One of the questions in such an exam at Allegheny College read as follows: "When do the leaves begin to turn?" A promising "wise guy" wrote the following answer: "At the same time the midnight oil begins to burn, the night before exams."

As We See It..Reflections

By HARRY FARKIN

AN IMPORTANT point in the education of an individual, but one which modernity has permitted to slip into desuetude, is that of conduct, which is to behave as is proper, at the proper time and place. To know when dignity and attentiveness are required, and when quips and easy bearing are permitted is a matter of training and self-discipline. Especially is this so when we consider the human tendency to abuse good nature and to over-step the bounds of propriety.

Although it is quite true that we never see a person dancing in church, or seldom see one who is unduly solemn at an entertainment, we do, too frequently find, between these two extremes, such a want of sensible behavior that we are inclined to wonder when the necessary steps will be taken to overcome this desideratum.

No man has long held the attention of his listeners who has failed to observe grammatical correctness in the expression of his topic. Discrimination in the choice of words, elegance and grace in their presentation, even the well-wishes of the audience at large, will not diminish its effect upon the gathering.

We have yet to hear a man make a grammatical error in the d[illegible] of a discourse that it has not been at the expense of our interest in his theme. The fact that he has made a mistake, no sooner penetrates our consciousness, than we must, mentally, make the necessary correction, and in doing so forget for the moment both the speaker and his subject. Hence the likelihood of such a person ever convincing is obvious.

While we are all going to heaven by different roads it is well to remember that our choice of highways presupposes a firm conviction that we have chosen the correct one.

We have often wondered why the person who would hesitate to give a positive opinion upon some macrocosmic subject, will advance the most ridiculous theories upon religion with all the sincerity of conviction.—Or again, the man who has never mastered a single intellectual accomplishment, will frequently, believe himself a master of comparative theology.

I imagine that there are few men who do not have ambition of some kind or other. The only difference in their desires being that of sense or silliness. The latter usually desire those things of a more ostentatious nature, such as fame, position, and fine raiment. Whereas the former are more desirous of obtaining knowledge and virtue—two things which one only acquires through labor and sacrifice, but whose ultimate acquisition stamp their bearer as a man of truth, honor, and culture. Characteristics which, unlike the others, cannot be purchased by he who has the money.

In the Library

By A. [illegible] MELI

—ON BOOKS

IF WE ACCEPT the idea that literature is a changing thing in the hands of the writers, there ought to be no difficulty in agreeing to the idea, that it is a changing thing in the hands of the readers. Whenever we read a book we love, we change it to some extent. We read into it our own interpretations, and the meanings the words have taken on in our time.

"If a book is so rigid that it cannot lend itself to these fluctuations, it is useful only while it seems strictly true, and afterward it is completely out of date...The great books are those which are capable of reinterpretations, which surprise us by remaining true even when our point of view changes.

"This is why we rank Homer and Virgil and Dante, Shakespeare, Chaucer, Cervantes and Moliere so high — because they still say so much, even to peoples of an altogether foreign culture, a different past, an opposed philosophy."

This quotation is taken from "The Delight of Great Books," by John Erskine.

Book Defined

The book has been defined by some as "the monument of vanished minds"; and it would be difficult to conceive of what else they could be monuments. But, previous to their becoming monuments, the mind must exist and devote some time in creative activity to produce them.

Thus are books born. Like true children of imagination and products of thought they are then named and given to the printers and publishers to be sent into the world to face whatever future fate has in store for them.

The infantile death rate among books is alarming. Even the best-sellers seldom survive a few printings. It takes a sturdy infant, and a sturdier parent, to survive a decade; and those who can count their age in centuries are few indeed. The law of the survival of the fittest is just as true in bookdom as it is in other realms. Forcible eliminations are less effective among books than among men. While it is easy to burn an author it is almost impossible to destroy his work if it is of real worth and value. Books die, if at all, of old age, and causes that have surprisingly little to do with modern or current ideas.

Books Make Lasting Impressions

Death in itself is horrible enough but the process of dying is worse. This process is recognizable when we have a book being often mentioned, its author spoken of as an intellectual giant, but his brainchild severely ignored except in its mention by title.

It were better that a book should die altogether than be kept alive in a coma-like condition. Thus as more and more great books are written the old ones are gradually forced backward. But although they may be eventually forgotten the ideas that they conveyed can never be entirely eradicated from the one great volume comprising the whole of human knowledge.

Another feature of this column will be to present to its readers the titles of some books that have come recently into the library.

The list follows:

Baring, M. — "Lonely Lady of Dulwich."

Cather, W. — "Lucy Gayheart."

Repplier, A. — "Junipero Serra."

Rylee, R. — "Deep Dark River."

Spalding — 'Catholic Colonial Maryland."

McClorey—"Catholic Church and Bolshevism."

Epstein, M. — "Statesman's Year Book 1935."

Dowden, Ed.—"History of French Literature."

Brown, J. C. — "History of Chemistry."

Millikan — "Electrons (plus and m[illegible]us)."

OF THE ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGE EDITORS

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTH

Written especially for A. C. E. by Aubrey Williams, Executive Director, National Youth Administration.

THE WORLD which young people have faced upon graduating from school and college during the last five or six years has not been one in which opportunities for further education or jobs have grown on the nearest bush to be plucked easily and at will. Such a world, if it ever existed outside of youth's day dreams, has been completely transformed by the depression into one where long queues are formed outside any office that holds out the hope or promise of a job. In the United States more than 5,000,000 young people between the ages of 16 and 25 are today wholly unoccupied, neither at work nor attending school. And nearly 3,000,000 are on relief or belong to families on the relief rolls. The much vaunted "equal opportunity for all" has become a mockery. Not that there aren't still opportunities for those who are unusually resourceful and courageous—but certainly the numbers of young people willing and able to work or continue their education, yet unable to do so, show that opportunities are at a premium. Out of this need for greater opportunities sprang the National Youth Administration.

Its program can be roughly divided into two parts: the educational aid program and the work projects program. The educational aid program will make it possible for more than 300,000 needy high school, college and post-graduate students to earn enough money to keep on with their education. High school students will be able to earn as much as $6 a month; college students an average of $15 a month; and post-graduates an average of $25 a month. They will, in return for this money, perform such tasks as are assigned them by the heads of the institutions which they attend. The indications are that many more students will apply for such part-time jobs than can be taken care of. The superintendents and principals of schools and the presidents of colleges will therefore select the students who are to receive this assistance according to their own standards of character and ability. More than half of the NYA's 50,000,000 dollar appropriation will be devoted to opening up such educational opportunities.

The rest of its appropriation will create opportunities for work or for vocational guidance and training. In this way it will assist the needy young people who are not interested in further schooling. Work projects are being planned which will put young people from relief families to work for one-third of a month at one-third of the security wage appropriate for the community in which they live and for the type of work they are doing. And a new ruling has made it possible for young people to get work relief jobs, even though their father or older brother is on a job financed by the Works Progress Administration. They will therefore be able to supplement their family's income.

Work projects which are socially desirable are being planned — that is, they are being designed not solely for the purpose of providing needy young people with jobs, but, when completed, to benefit young people in general. Each community is being asked to suggest such projects. For the community is, of course, in the best position to say what types of projects are most needed by, and will be of the greatest use to, their young people.

There are, of course, many young people who do not know where to turn to get a job, nor what type of work they are best fitted for. For this reason a job information and training service giving special attention to young people, who, on the whole, lack experience, will be encouraged.

In all that it does, the NYA is working and will work, wherever possible, through agencies already in existence. The schools and colleges are cooperating in carrying out the educational aid program. Public employment agencies and private agencies interested in youth are cooperating in suggesting and planning work projects and in giving assistance in job counseling and placement. In this way the NYA's administrative expenses are being kept to a minimum and duplication of services and functions is avoided.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

CASA LOMA fans in New York City and vicinity will be granted their urgent requests of the past two years when Glen Gray and his Casa Loma Orchestra appear at the Paramount Theatre for two weeks beginning Friday, October 18th.

Ever since Glen and the boys became the sensation of the dance world, their metropolitan followers have flooded them with inquiries about stage appearances and demands that they play local theatres so those who could not afford the smart grill rooms in which the band is featured could see their favorites at their best.

Ray Noble and His Orchestra, one of the world's most distinctive dance bands under the baton of the internationally - famous composer, conductor and arranger, will be presented in a new series over the nation-wide Columbia network each Wednesday from 9:30 to 10 P. M., E. S. T., beginning October 30. The half-hour, which is sponsored by the Coca Cola Company will be heard over one of the largest hookups of CBS stations from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf.

The young English maestro will present many fresh features of his unusual musical novelties from both Europe and America, and Al Bowlly, one of Europe's most talented popular singers. Additional highlights of Ray Noble's programs will be announced at an early date.

Starlines...Somehow or other, the fascinating songs of Benay Venuta have prompted to check up on this product of sunny California. Benay has a birthday party every January 27, so here's a chance for some of the "Venuta admirers" to break in. When only 13 she was singing in a Fanchon & Marco production. Then she was engaged for the ballet at Grauman's Egyptian Theatre . . . Three years later her grandfather took her to Europe to attend finishing school...and also noteworthy, she was the only American girl at the Beaupre in Geneva. Scheduled to courtsy before the King and Queen of England, Benay dashed to Hollywood to fill an engagement...

Ah! But in Benay got sick of this roaming around and finally landed a job with a local radio station and started on the road to fame with her lovely vocalizing. Her style of singing met with immediate success, and she was in demand for supper club appearances...Now came her big chance...Ethel Merman got sick of singing "Anything Goes," so Benay was engaged to take her role...

So now we have a brilliant Benay out of this maze of trucking from continent to continent...Oh yes! She can speak French and Italian fluently... so what!...Vital statistics

(Some guys will memorize these items.) She weighs 138 pounds ...is 5 feet 7 1-2 inches tall... has blue eyes and honey blond hair...By the way Benay is featured songstress heard each Sunday from 7 to 7:30 P. M., E. S. T., at "Freddie Rich's Penthouse Party."

To Dr. William C. Bagley, professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University, and chairman of the board of consultants for the "American School of the Air," goes the honor of being the seventh man to receive the Columbia Broadcasting System Medal for Distinguished Service to Radio. The award has been made in recognition of Dr. Bagley's service to education in connection with the "School of the Air," which begins its sixth year of broadcasting over CBS on Monday, October 21, from 2:30 to 3 P. M. E. S. T.

Eddie Cantorism have returned to the air once more and as usual he comes through with many bright remarks. Eddie was quoted as having said that: "Some weeks some actors make a million dollars a year...the play's the thing, if the audience wants it...a head never begins to swell until the brain stops functioning...there are two kinds of married people—one is the kind that has scraps and the other kind lies about it."

Walter Winchell, the "keyhole peeker" of the Great White Way, says you can learn things about New York without trying. What do you think of this... That a man wearing a silk hat is either on his way to a Noel Coward first night or coming from a Tammany funeral...

That a New Yorker who will pull out a pay-phone by the roots if he doesn't get his nickel's worth, won't even listen when you try to point out that some politician is looting the Treasury...That the surest cure for a swelled head is a reading of the newspaper files for 1928. Then count the survivors of that era's big shots... That the girls about town need somebody to invent a new line of lingo for them, as many of them are using last year's flicker swiftles...

The rift between Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey has finally developed into a split and so Jimmy leads his boys with Bing Crosby and a supporting cast of other prominent radio stars while Tommy has his own program which comes over the CBS network...

The long-expected marriage between Harriet Hilliard and Ozzie Nelson has materialized and now Mrs. Nelson will make a few shorts for MGM in Hollywood and also sing on her illustrious husband's Baker program every Sunday night over the NBC-WJZ network from 7:30 to 8 P. M., E. S. T.

Return of Alumni To Games Brings News of Doings of Past Editors

Upon the resumption of school this year and the subsequent ushering in of "King Football," the campus has had many former popular Villanova personalities return to the scene of their collegiate careers.

Football, baseball, basketball and other athletic heros, former class and other organization presidents, etc., all have come back to pay a visit to their Alma Mater and friends acquired during their four years of college life here.

Into the VILLANOVAN office with a look of expectancy and astonishment often drifted in former members and editors of this publication. They were somewhat bewildered at the rapid progress made by the journal which had caused them so many hours of cruel mental disturbance and at the same time hours which, if they had to live over again, would be spent with the same cruel mental disturbance; for if there were times when everything seemed to be going wrong and no copy was even anticipated, there surely were times when the spirit of cooperation, fun, and good fellowship overshadowed all those gloomy pasts and prospects.

Such were the sentiments expressed by former members of this paper when they visited the campus recently.

One might wonder what some of them are doing now. How many have gone into the field of journalism? According to all the reports available, only Edmond P. Reilly, last year's editor, has continued in this work. All the others are either earning a living wage or continuing their education in various professional schools.

After graduation last June, Mr. Reilly began working for the Atlantic City Press Union and continued there in conjunction to holding down the Publicity Agency for Georgian Court College. Only last week, according to latest reports he has acquired a job with the Philadelphia Bulletin as re-write man.

Louis Pierre Marechal, last years sports editor extraordinary, after flying across the country a couple times is stationed in the reputedly untamed city of Chicago, as a member of T. W. A.'s staff.

Raymond J. Harter, editor of the year ending 1934, has been a frequent visitor to the campus. He is doing quite well by himself, also, being an employee of Pyrene Fire Extintinguising Co. in Newark, N. J. Charles P. Goggi, college editor of that year is doing nicely with Warner-Quinlan in New York City.

Charles Antonaccio, first editor of the tabloid size VILLANOVAN, is happily married and holds down a teaching position in Jersey.

Albert Wagner, editor of the last volume of the "old" VILLANOVAN in 1932, after being Alumni Secretary here on the campus for two years is continuing his studies at the U. of P.

These reports are only a few of the many this staff has received. No others have been verified else this story would continue ad infinitum with success stories of past staff members and editors.

15th Annual Convention Feted In Phila.; Group Tours City Of Brotherly Love

LOUIS MARCOTTE ATTENDS FOR VILLANOVA ENGINEER

Editors and Advertising Representatives Take Active Part in Discussion

Wednesday and Thursday, October 16 and 17, witnessed the 15th Annual Convention of the Engineering College Magazines Associated, held at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Opening with registration at the U. of P. dormitories, followed by a sightseeing tour of Philadelphia, on Wednesday afternoon, the representatives convened at Stouffer's Restaurant, 1526 Chestnut Street, to join in an informal dinner at 7:30 P. M. followed by the roll call of the first meeting at 9 P. M.

Reading of the annual reports of the officers and the appointment of committees preceded the opening discussion of "Publishing Problems," the selected topic for convention debate. Louis J. Marcotte was the only member from Villanova College to serve on the committees, being appointed chairman of the Auditing Committee. Adjournment was called at 11 P. M.

On Thursday morning at 8 A. M. were held the breakfast meetings of the committees, with roll call of the second session taking place at 9 A. M. Discussion of "Publishing Problems" was continued until the recess for the convention photograph at 11:45 A. M. Luncheon meetings of committees was held at noon.

Roll call of the third session and continuation of the discussions again began at 1 P. M., followed by a recess at 4 P. M. and a business meeting within 15 minutes. Committee reports were accepted and two vice-chairmen were elected. Adjournment of the business session took place at 5 P. M.

Thursday evening opened with an informal banquet at 6:30 in the banquet room of the Hotel Normandie. The guest speaker of the evening was Mr. Philip W. Swain, editor of Power, New York City. An informal dance starting at 9 P. M. brought the activities to a close.

At the elections of officers for the ensuing year, 1935-36, the former officers were re-elected to their previous positions. They are: Leonard H. Church, of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, Cleveland, Ohio, national chairman; Prof. Richard W. Beckman, of the Technical Journalism Department, Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, vice-chairman; and Prof. J. J. Doland, of the University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois, vice-chairman.

Advertising representatives of the convention were W. B. Littel, College Publisher's Representatives, Inc., New York City, and Donald Hoagland, College Publishers' Representatives, Inc., Chicago, Illinois. Twenty-four engineering college magazines were represented at the annual convention.

All students of the Arts School, who are members of the Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity, are kindly requested to attend this important meeting. The assembly will be presided over by Professor Martin Gill, who is moderator of the Fraternity.

RELATIONS CLUB MEETS

Thursday, October 24, Has Been Day Set for Gathering of Group

On Thursday next, the International Relations Club will hold its first meeting of the current scholastic year in room 206 Mendel Hall at 1.15 o'clock.

It is part of the purpose of the International Relations Club to cultivate an interest in the affairs of other peoples, so far as they may concern us, dictated by Christian charity, in order to further the cause of peace and mutual understanding.

While all the students of the college are heartily welcome, an especial invitation is extended to the Sophomore and Freshman classes, in order that the activity of the club may be better carried out from one year to another.

BANQUET USHERS IN ALUMNI ACTIVITIES

Bellevue - Stratford Hotel Scene of Dinner for Football Aggregation

With three of the most important functions of the Alumni activity under discussion during the past week, there is much news of current interest to both old and new Villanovans.

With the first meeting, that of the committee on the Annual Football Banquet, held on Thursday, Oct. 16th, preparations for a more active year than any in the past, formally got under way.

It was decided at the meeting at the Philopatrian Club, that the annual dinner would be held this year at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on December 10, 1935. The affair is, as has been the custom in the past, dedicated to and held in honor of the football aggregation.

In opposition to the usual custom of having a large number of guest speakers, it is planned to have but three or four men who are most prominent in their respective field of activity.

On October 20, the Board of Governors met at Villanova College, together with the Class of '26, at 2 P. M. and formulated the plans for the first annual Alumni June Weekend.

At the Philopatrian Club, 1923 Walnut St., Philadelphia, will be held the second annual meeting of the Villanova Club of Philadelphia. The date has been set for Wednesday, October 29.

In the form of a combined social meeting and pep rally for the Main Line battle of the Villanova vs. Detroit series, guest speakers will be: Rev. C. J. Melchior, O. S. A. faculty moderator of athletics; Mr. Harry Stuhldreher, head coach of football at Villanova College; and Captain Eddie Michaels, pilot of the 1935 Wildcats.

November 2 is to be the annual Home Coming Day and evening. The annual Alumni dance will be held on the evening at the Walton Hotel, Philadelphia, on the roof-garden. A ten-act floor show is to be the feature of the evening. There will be a nominal minimum charge per person, which has as yet been undetermined.

College Band Will Make Detroit Trip will be noticed that a few were tried in our own stadium last Saturday and with a few more days' of practice the band should present an excellent spectacle and come off the field second to none at Detroit next Saturday.

Immediately after the game the band will again entrain at Detroit station at five twenty-five P. M. and start the return trip to Villanova. They will have supper in the "Red Arrow" and will spend the night in its Pullman. At approximately seven-seven A. M. Sunday they will arrive at Villanova and will attend Holy Mass in the college chapel.

It has been only through the greatest difficulty and cooperation of Fr. Albers and the passenger agency of the Pennsylvania Railroad that the trip to Detroit has been made possible and it is expected that the members of the band will cooperate to the utmost with their moderator and directors in being prompt and making the trip enjoyable for everyone.

It was also announced by Fr. Albers that the band will give a concert sometime after the Christmas holidays. However, definite plans for this event have not yet been made and no information concerning it is available at this time.

LITERARY SOCIETY FOSTERING PLANS

Revision of Constitution Seen As Organization Holds Meeting

Activity in the Villanova Literary Society continued with renewed vigor last week. On Tuesday night, October 15, was held the first formal meeting of the organization. Beta Gamma was the only chapter called into session, due to the fact that for a short while Belle Masque will lie dormant.

Reasons advanced for this inactivity of the dramatics society were advanced by the president, John W. Hallahan. In the past two years there has been very little attempted along these lines, even the debating club becoming more or less haphazard.

With the advent of a new regime, it is proposed to support and advance the Beta Gamma Chapter with all the resources of the combined organization, in order to put the name of the Villanova Literary Society before the general public.

At a later date, when the ability of the organization has been made evident, and its rightful prestige established, the Belle Masque will again be brought into activity. It is hoped that in this way, Villanova College will once again attain that reputation she once boasted in literary lines.

In order to foster a new and greater Beta Gamma chapter, the moderator, Prof. Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., proposed and the president appointed the following committees.

Committee on the revision of the constitution consists of: Joseph Carroll, chairman; Anthony Differ, and Joseph Denny. That interested in Money and Finance comprises: Arthur Noble, chairman; Joseph O'Laughlin; and Louis Marcotte.

As regards entertainment for the various events in the schedule for the year 1935-36, the committee is composed of the following: Donald Shea, chairman; Peter Kerr; and Al FitzPatrick. Entertainment is expected to play quite an important part in the activities of the society both at the regular meetings and at the meets in the intercollegiate series being prepared.

Meeting tonight in Room 204, Mendel Hall, at 8:15 P. M., the reports of these committees are expected to be given in whole before the Beta Gamma chapter and all of the Belle Masque members who wish to attend. Definite plans for the year will be discussed and determined.

Engineers to Hold Dance Nov. 15th

Included in this social calendar will be its annual dance, smokers and dinner.

Among the sports program features to be sponsored this year, as announced by the president, James T. Allan, will be a swimming meet, tennis and basketball tournaments. The precedent established last year of holding an annual pinochle tournament with awards to the winning team, will be continued through the present season.

Included in this comprehensive glance at the proposed schedule of the Phi Kappa Pi, was the initiation of new members and the subsequent initiation banquet, when the keys of the fraternity are to be presented to the senior members.

It is further planned to present in the course of the year interesting and instructive motion pictures and possibly to incorporate a new feature in the way of making extended inspection tours to engineering plants and companies in the vicinity.

Ex-officio included in the committees for the various functions of the Phi Kappa Pi are its officers: James T. Allan, president; Francis J. Winterer, vice-president; C. B. Constantine, secretary; Edward Casey, treasurer, and Al FitzPatrick, sergeant-at-arms.

STAFF MEETINGS

Some members of the VILLANOVAN staff are still uncognizant of the regular meetings. For the benefit of those members meetings are held regularly every Tuesday and Friday at noon. All members are requested to be prompt in attendance as no excuse will hereafter be accepted.

CONNECTICUT CLUB MEETS

"Nutmeg" Staters Will Convene For Elections Thursday Night

In order to formulate plans for the present season and also in order to insure an active part in the doings of the Intercollegiate Clubs of Connecticut, the Connecticut Club of Villanova will hold its first meeting of the current scholastic year Thursday night at 7 o'clock in Room 213 Mendel Hall.

A number of members of the club have been lost this year due to graduation but the deficiency in numbers is expected to be more than made up by the presence of more than half a dozen Freshmen from the "nutmeg" state.

The only officers remaining in the club are Laurence Shea, president, and Benedict Maloney, vice president. Elections will take place at Thursday night's meeting with the installation of additional officers.

COLLEGE ORCHESTRA HAS BRIGHT FUTURE

"Villanovans" to Be Featured At Several Off-Campus Social Affairs

In an interview with Rev. B. M. Albers, O. S. A., yesterday afternoon, it was learned that the Villanovans, the college dance orchestra, intend to continue their good work along the lines of original arrangements, and specialty numbers, in supplement to their already nearly complete line of the newest dance melodies.

As it appeared on last Friday night, the unit showed that it has become a really fine ensemble, and that it can with the practice of the next few weeks, become one of the finest in this cit . Several off-campus dates have been arranged for the orchestra to play, and it is believed that the public realized that Villanova College has turned out the best aggregation of this kind in her history.

Four of the members in the band are accomplished arrangers and expect to turn out many original numbers as well as the much sought for medley of the three Villanova songs in dance style. For the first time in the history of the "Villanovans" all of the members are accomplished musicians, and with more time for rehearsals they have promise of rapidly rising to a position of a Philadelphia name band.

One of the most active organizations on the Villanova College campus, whose name cannot be revealed at this time, are proposing to back the "Villanovans" both in the much-needed publicity as well as in any other manner that might come up in putting the orchestra before the public.

presented by John L. Simons, Joseph B. Sanborn, and Joseph O'Brien of the Class of '38 and Joseph A. Hooven, Joseph T. Allan and Lawrence F. Shevland, of the Class of '36.

At a recent meeting of the ENGINEER staff directions were given to the new members concerning the mode of presentment of their assignments. Among the points discussed were: Bring in assignments on time; be concise and as brief as possible; do work neatly; use original ideas and make use of other authors' only as re erences.

It was also revealed during the meeting that articles for publication in the ENGINEER will be accepted from any engineering student, whether on the staff or not.

ENGINEERS CONVENE AT STATE COLLEGE

A. I. E. E. to Send Delegation To Student Branch Conference at Penn State

Continuing with the activities announced at their last meeting, on October 7, 1935, the Villanova College Student Chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers is planning to send a delegation to the A. I. E. E. District No. 2 Student Branch Conference, October 25, at which more than two dozen colleges will be represented.

Opening on the evening of the 25th, at 7 P. M. with dinner at Pennsylvania State College, State College Pa., addresses will be made by Vice President W. H. Harrison and other guest speakers.

On Saturday, October 26, at 9 A. M., will be held the joint meeting of the branch chairmen and also the counselors. The presentation of papers on the general topic "A Resume of Recent Graduate Electrical Engineering Theses at My School," will be given at this conference. James McBrearty, president of the Villanova chapter will be the spokesman for this college.

At 11 A. M. will be held the two individual meetings of the student chairmen and counselors, respectively. Luncheon will follow at 12.30 P. M. at the Sandwich Shop on the Penn State College campus.

As guests of Penn State College, all delegates will be invited to witness a soccer match between Lafayette vs. State College. Activities will be brought to a close on the evening of October 26, with a Bridge-Dance at the Triangle Fraternity.

Representatives from Villanova College, who are to attend the conference are: Prof. Harry S. Bueche, moderator and counselor; James McBrearty, president; Edward Casey, secretary, and C. B. Constantine, treasurer.

ed by the president, was to contact all those members and attempt to have them make regular payments to offset their present standing.

The general discussion that ensued touched only on tentative plans for the coming year, all of which are to be discussed in greater detail at the next meeting.

The past record of Mr. Bigley indicates that the pre-medics have chosen wisely in electing him as president; for he has been a member of the Belle Air, the college's yearbook, for three years and has recently been elected as business manager. He is also vice-president of the senior class.

WITH four wins over football teams and a win over a pugilistic camp, going under the name of the La Salle "Explorers," Villanova's squad will leave its home grounds this Saturday, for an intersectional feud with the Detroit U. eleven, at the "Lizzie Town."

This will be the first half of a home-and-home series arranged by the two schools. Incidentally this form of arranging games is an old custom used in the early days of the game, and dropped out over 35 years ago.

With an unbeaten, untied and undefeated record to protect the Wildcats will have to step at a fast pace to continue with these laurels.

Returning to that game with La Salle, we can say that what had promised to be a fast and interesting tussle, became a slow gas-house gang affair. The busiest person on the field was the referee, who was continually marking off yardage for roughness and illegal use of the hands.

Joe Louis would have learned quite a few tricks in jabbing, if he could have been here to get a close-up on the line play of the opponents, and the recently vanquished Baer would have seen a round-house swing to turn him green with envy, with the Explorers' left halfback using it as a means of downing Johnny Higgins.

It was evident that the Brill-coached squad was out to ruin the unscored-upon record of their opponents.

Continues Unscored On

In continuing its unscored-on drive, Villanova has undisputed possession of first place. The only other Eastern team with an unpenetrated goal line is West Point; the Holy Cross team which was with the Blue and White in this respect was tied by an inspired Manhattan team 13-13, thus eliminating the Crusaders from this division.

In another story that came out last week, Nick Kotys, local left halfback was listed as one of the men tied for second place in scoring since that time Nick has dropped to fourth place.

Now we find in a poll of the coaches with the best records that Harry Stuhldreher, our own mentor leads the country. With these laurels bestowed upon Villanova College things appear to be taking a turn for best, as far as sports activities are concerned.

With a proposal by Gus Cervani, of the Catholic Messenger, and former Holy Cross star lineman, it would appear that the East will soon have a Catholic Football Conference.

The proposed list of opponents includes Army, Yale, Western Maryland, Penn State, and Temple. The Cadets, Elis, and Nittany Lions are strangers to the Wildcats as boxing foes. The Owls and Terrors each took a fall out of the Villanova ringmen.

The squad is paced this year by Tony Sala, 175-pound intercollegiate champ and stellar end on the Villanova football machine. Another pigskin toter who indulges in leather-pushing is Art Raimo, high-scoring fullback. Art's forte is the 155-pound class. Both veterans are expected to report to Joe Foley immediately upon the conclusion of the present football season.

Captain Haskins Lost

Assistant Manager Edward L. "Abe" Collins reports that the squad has lost the services of Ralph Cost, 145-pound boxer. Captain John Haskins is pursuing dental studies at Temple U., the arch-rival of the Wildcats.

A third veteran who is lost to the pugilists is Mike Delmonico, heavyweight battler, who is now roving in other fields.

Although last season's record contains no victories for the resin-sniffers, it is certain that those Western Maryland, one of the toughest teams met by the Wildcats this season, sure has had its share of tough breaks. After losing to Penn State, 2 to 0, they were nosed out by Bucknell last Saturday by the score of 3-0.

Penn State continued its undefeated record by routing Lehigh last Saturday.

Mellus Blocks Punt in First Quarter; Korchinski Scores on Play

By James H. Lyons, Jr.

Villanova continued on its unbeaten and unscored upon streak when it gained revenge of last year's defeat by trouncing La Salle 20-0 in the Main Liners' stadium last Saturday.

The Wildcats made the breaks of the game and took advantage of them. A blocked kick, and a fumbled punt, re-enactments of last year's game, occured again Saturday, but this time it was Villanova who got the benefit of them.

Walter Korchinski, veteran end, scored the first touchdown of the afternoon when Johnnie Mellus broke through to block Paul Donahue's punt which rolled over the goal line. Korchinski darted past the kicker and fell on the ball over the goal line. Nick Kotys, trying his first game at place-kicking, cut the uprights clearly for the point, and in less than four minutes, the Wildcats were out in front 7-0 in what looked like it was going to be a one-sided game.

Minifri, who had replaced Sciarretta at quarterback after Mellus had tackled him hard on the kick-off, realized the uselessness of trying to crash the Villanova line and called one pass after another. One pass, Cutcavage to Comey, was good for nine yards, and Minifri took it over for a first down. Two more passes were incomplete and La Salle was forced to kick.

Villanova, after suffering a 15 yard penalty, was forced to punt back and La Salle again started its passing attack. Another pass, Cook to Ritter, was good for the second first down in the opening quarter.

On the last play of the first quarter, Walter Korchinski again took the spotlight when he rushed the La Salle passer, causing him to fumble, and Walt recovered the ball on La Salle's 41 yard line.

Emmerling and Kotys took the ball for a first down, and after another exchange of punts, Emmerling and Stoviac ripped off two more first downs through the La Salle line. Raimo entered the game in place of Emmerling, and Villanova continued its goalward march with Raimo and Kotys taking the ball for the third first down in a row.

La Salle was penalized for too many times out. Kotys then sliced off right tackle for 15 more yards to La Salle's six and a touchdown looked inevitable. La Salle held for three downs. On the fourth, Higgins called Rogers out of the line to try for a field goal, but the ball went wide of the uprights, and the 'Cats' scoring threat was momentarily halted.

La Salle took the ball on their twenty. Sciarretta fell back in punt formation and heaved a pass to Cutcavage that was good for 12 yards, but Ray Stoviac leaped up to intercept the next aerial and started down the field.

Just as he was about to be

Wrestling May Be Organized In Conjunction With Boxing Team

Since Coach Joe Foley's schedule of five meets has not yet been confirmed by the Rev. Charles Melchior, O. S. A., there is nothing definite concerning the boxing squad's activities for the coming campaign.

The proposed list of opponents includes Army, Yale, Western Maryland, Penn State, and Temple. The Cadets, Elis, and Nittany Lions are strangers to the Wildcats as boxing foes. The Owls and Terrors each took a fall out of the Villanova ringmen.

MAY FORM CONFERENCE OF EASTERN COLLEGES

Would Include Catholic Colleges Of East Divided Into Classes

With a proposal made by Gus Cervani of the Catholic Messenger, and former Holy Cross star lineman, it would appear that the East will soon have a Catholic Football Conference.

There are many of these conferences scattered throughout the country, and included in them are several Catholic institutions, but despite the efforts of several coaches in the past, nothing definite could be done about a limited league.

Cervani has what he thinks are some of the big Parochial colleges lined up and ready to start. Included in this list are Holy Cross, of Worcester, Mass.; Boston College, of Bost n, Mass., and Fordham and Manhattan, of New York City.

Further South are Duquesne at Pittsburgh, Catholic U. and Georgetown, of the Capital City and Villanova.

If this arrangement goes through it is felt that it will be an incentive for other smaller schools to organize. Among them would be St. Joseph's College and La Salle, of Philadelphia. Along with several other teams within this state.

STUHLDREHER FIRST IN COACHES POLL

Has Best Record in Country For Wins and Losses As a Mentor

In his eleventh season of football coaching, here at Villanova, Harry Stuhldreher has compiled the most envious record in the country.

In a recent survey made by leading authorities it was found that the Blue and White mentor has 60 wins against 9 losses and 7 tied games, this includes all games played to date.

In accomplishing this feat the local leader had to compete against such well distinguished men as Pop Warner, Jock Sutherland, Lou Little and Biff Jones. All well known in the field of sports. Lou Little was able to finish in third place and Biff Jones followed him. But second to the former Notre Dame star was Snavely, of North Carolina. Pop Warner failed to finish among the first ten, as did Jock Sutherland, the maker of the great Pittsburgh teams.

Considering the record that the team of Villanova has been able to make to date, it appears that the honors will remain with the Main Line leader.

These new laurels bestowed here should make way for prestige and greater fields to conquer, not only for the coach but the team as well, since their records are dependent one upon the other.

PENN 150 LB. TEAM HUMBLES JITTERY VILLANOVA ELEVEN

Fumbles and Inexperience Of Coach Cox's Squad Prove Costly

LUTZ SCORES TOUCHDOWN

An age old adage, "Veni, Vidi, Vici," was once more fullfilled last Friday afternoon at Villanova College's Stadium when Pennsylvania's one hundred and fifty-pound football team came, saw and conquered the team that represented Villanova College for the first time this year. Held scoreless in the first and last quarters, Penn counted with a safety in the second quarter and a touchdown in the third.

Except for Captain Rodgers the starting backfield was playing under the Blue and White colors of Villanova for the first time. Considering that this was also true of most of the linemen the team made a very creditable showing against the strong veteran Red and Blue team from Penn.

Penn kicked off to open the game and throughout the first period the ball was carried up and down the field with neither team being able to cross the opposing goal line for the touchdown that was so necessary to either team at this point of the game. Villanova's offensive threat consisted of a fifty yard march from their own twenty to Penn's twenty-yard line.

After punts were exchanged, through which Penn gained considerable yardage, Penn carried the ball to the Wildcat fifteen yard line where the Kittens suddenly dug toes in and held Penn for downs much to the obvious surprise of the University.

Safety Scored

Again in the second quarter, Penn marched up the field, and this time they were stopped on Villanova's ten yard line. A minute later Penn scored the first points of the game when a bad pass from center rolled into the end zone for an automatic safety and two points for the intown team. No more scoring was done and the score at the end of the half stood Penn 2, Villanova 0.

Soon after the third period began, Villanova's only serious injury of the day occurred. The victim was Irving Uram a Sophomore Pre-Med. The injury was in the form of a compound fracture of his finger and a possible concussion of the brain. He was treated at the Bryn Mawr Hospital and will be ready for action in the Princeton game.

After ten minutes of uneventful football had been played, Penn by means of the power play once again marched the length of the field and this time they were not to be stopped, Lutz going over for the touchdown with Fernandez kicking the extra point. The score was now Penn 9, nothing in favor of Penn and such it was destined to remain until the end of the game.

As the game wore on, Villanova staged a gallant fight but with victory within their grasp Penn was fighting back with every last ounce of strength in their possession.

BEARS MAKE FIRST SCORE

Ursinus scored its first touchdown of the season last Saturday when the Muhlenberg team was trounced by a 21-0 score. In its previous encounters, among which was the Villanova eleven, the Bears team could not penetrate the forward wall of the opposition.

The win over their opponents Saturday was more than just a victory for the Collegeville boys in that they faced their traditional rivals.

TITANS OF DETROIT TO BE NEXT FOE FOR 'CAT ELEVEN

Unbeaten Wildcat Team Faces Dorais Gridmen in a Home And Home Series

DICK SCHROETER IS STAR

The next two weeks are to be the criteria for the Wildcat eleven. The Titans of Detroit will be engaged on two consecutive Saturdays, in a home and home arrangement. The first game will be played at Detroit; while the second will be played at Villanova.

Although this year's squad is numerically smaller than any the Titans have had in years, Coach Dorais is not particularly concerned. For the past several years the Titans have majored on the aerial attack; but with the loss of co-captains Nott and Storrie, stellar forward pass combination, they have fallen back on a tricky and speedy running game; for their passing and kicking is no more than fair, and there is too little weight for a power attack.

Punting Weak

Although punting was Coach Dorais' principal problem this year, he seems to have the situation well in hand. Wieczorek, who did some of the varsity's punting while Nott was on the injured list last season, has developed into a capable punter. Dorais, however, does not feel it necessary to have a great punter, as the punt does not figure greatly in his system. Detroit has never made use of the kick as an offensive weapon in the manner so successfully adopted by other teams.

The center position left open by Dave Metzger has been ably taken care of by Bill Wilson. At guard the Titans have two veterans in Sig Andrusking, who has been selected on the All-America check list for 1935 along with Villanova's Eddie Michaels, and Dick Schroeter, who tips the scales at 191 pounds. Cooper, Callaghan and Ganey are others who may see action.

Dick Schroeter

Paul Duker, picked on Villanova's all-opponent team last season, and Dave Crotty will probably get the call at the tackle posts; although Clair Helmer, weighing 224 pounds and reaching 6 feet 3 inches, who was outstanding against the Wildcats a year ago, and Joe Cieslak, promising sophomore, will be sure to perform.

Boglarsky at right end is a seasoned veteran; but the other flank is still an unsettled problem, with Ray Larson, Knauerpeze, Scanlon, and Hansen fighting it out. Larson and Knauerpeze, however, are the best bets.

Good Backfield

Coach Dorais has a wealth of material in the backfield. Charley Payne and John Wieczorek will alternate at fullback. Both are hard-hitting, heavy-duty backs who can run and ram and block, and who are sturdy defensively. The left halfback post will be attended to largely by Dick Lutz, shifty, hip-weaving veteran, and Andy Karpus. Kinsey Jones will call signals and Andy Farkas and Jim Piper, two sophomores, will perform at right halfback. Piper is very likely to be in the starting lineup.

Dick Lutz

The Wildcat-Detroit football history only dates back to 1932, when the Titans journeyed to Villanova and beat a formidable home team, 28 to 12. The Titans returned again to Villanova last year and were held to a 0-0 deadlock by the 'Cats.

Villanova to date has won five in a row, beating P. M. C., Ursinus, Western Maryland, Bucknell and La

Stuhlie Says

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stuhldreher, Head Coach of Football, is writing this column to explain in detail the inside story of the game of the previous Saturday, explaining the results of the game and why the game went as it did. He will also give a prediction, based on previous performances, as to the outcome of the game of the following Saturday.)

MARTY Brill's La Salle team came on the field flinging passes last Saturday and they left flinging passes, which was no surprise to the boys.

We were certain that La Salle could not gain through our line and were sure that passes would be the spearhead of their attack. We prepared accordingly.

For the entire week preceding the game, we concentrated on pass defense. I wasn't worried about our offensive ball, but what concerned me was their overhead attack. For more than one hour every day last week, we tossed passes. The results of our practice were seen in the game. When one considers the number of La Salle passes thrown and the number completed, it may seem that our long hours on pass defense were of material value.

Zone Pass Defense

In explanation of the pass defense, we used a combination coverage. By that I mean that each of the secondary men are responsible for a certain arbitrary area called a "zone," and also, certain offensive receivers. They do not essentially play man to man, but take care of their particular territory, covering any man entering the zone. In the case of two men entering the same zone at the same time, however, the defender covers the first man entering the zone. Unoccupied secondary men then come over and cover the occupied zone. The other pass defense practiced is man to man, in which each of the backers-up are assigned to a definite man on the defensive team. In my opinion neither zone or man to man is as effective as the combination defense, as it does not allow sufficient initiative to the individual backer-up. It is harder to confuse a combination defense than it is to mix up a man to man or zone defense.

Team Not Up to Far

The boys had a mild let-down in the Explorer's game. It was the poorest game that they have played this year. A "blow" occurs on every club at some time or another, and I'm glad that ours came this week and not next week, against the Titans of Detroit.

Detroit Series Next

We start on important two-game series with Detroit. We have experienced the Titans before, and as a result of that, we know that we are facing a mighty clever and alert team. Catholic U. beat Detroit last Saturday in the last 50 seconds of play on a cleverly executed forward-lateral pass. Aside from that, Detroit had the better of the play. As you know, Catholic U. is one of the best. They beat La Salle 41 to 7.

I feel sure that our boys will be ready to play the kind of game that they are capable of. Let's hope it will be sufficient. Detroit will be gunning to get back into the winning column.

LINKSMEN'S SEASON ASSURES INTEREST

Spring May Find Schedule To Invade South in Quest Of Victories

Upon the opening of the golf season, Villanova club swingers will put on their ten league boots and start meandering in a great big way. According to Manager Jack Geraghty, if all goes well the Wildcats are about to invade the sunny South.

If the proposed schedule goes through, the Blue and White will shove off about the early part of April to do some tall traveling. The tentative list of matches contain games with some of the best teams south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Opening with Virginia Military Institute the Yankee invaders dash right into the Washington and Lee Swing and meet the W. and L. boys on their home lot. Following that the Main Liners travel on to the University of Virginia. After that, Randolph-Macon and William and Mary will play host to our erstwhile bag toters.

Schedule Progressing

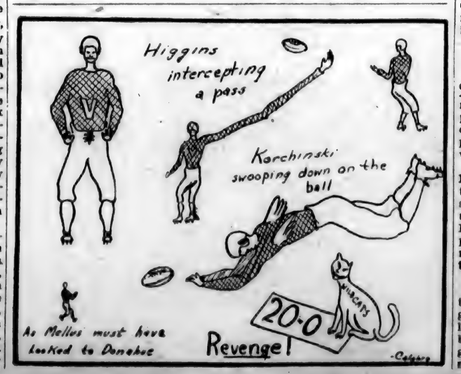
Among the schools also listed are Haverford, West Chester State Teachers and University of Pennsylvania.

The 'Cat stickmen will be sorely weakened by the graduation of Jumbo Elliot, last year's captain and very consistent winner. However, with such veterans back as Dave Craig, Hole in One Jim McNerney, Gene Barr, John McManus and John Bruno we have the nucleus of a very formidable lineup.

After completing several very successful seasons, with the material present, every indication points to a very rosy future for the Villanova golf team and this year's team should place this sport upon the pinacle of achievement unsurpassed in previous years.

INTRA-MURAL NOTICE

Followers of intra-mural sports are asked to watch the bulletin boards and to keep in contact with their respective leaders during the next week. A topic of interest to all will soon be exposed.



Jim Dwyer Bests Maloney In Intra-Mural Tennis

Forehand Drive of Winner Proves Too Much For Austin Opponent After A Hectic Struggle

WIN GIVES ALUMNI LEAD IN LEAGUE

Using withering baseline drives as his most effective weapon, Jim Dwyer, representing Alumni Hall, defeated Ben Maloney, Austin Hall's champion, in the final round of Villanova's second annual intra-mural fall tennis tournament in straight sets, 9-7, 6-3.

The match was just what a final should be. Both players were at the top of their form, and was a nip-and-tuck battle from start to finish. In the first set the games went with service, neither man being able to gain any commanding lead. Finally, in the 16th game, at which point he was leading 8-7, Dwyer broke through Maloney's service after a long, drawnout fight featuring several beautiful placements by both opponents.

Maloney showed he had plenty left in the second set when he held his own for the first six games. As in the preceding set all these games went to the server.

Forehand Drives Predominate

Then Dwyer's crisp forehand drives to the corners began to have effect on his tiring opponent, who had played his semi-final match just previously, and he went on to take the next three games in a row to win the set, the match and the championship.

Dwyer's final shot showed him at his best. After barely missing a terrific first serve in an attempt for an ace Jim served again and Maloney returned a high lob which Jim smashed into the corner of the court inches from the baseline.

Maloney even in defeat displayed great form. His court-covering was excellent throughout and at times was very spectacular. Time after time it was only his great agility that kept him in the running. He returned Dwyer's fast service with ease and kept on even terms in the baseline duels.

Dwyer Hits Stride

The break that decided the match came in the seventh game of the second set when Dwyer began to hit his drives with uncanny accuracy. He drove deeply to the baseline, forcing Maloney to net repeatedly.

Both Dwyer and Maloney had to overcome tough competition before entering the final round. In the semifinals Maloney beat Johnny Costello, of Mendel, in straight sets, while Dwyer hard quite a time with Frank Megaro, representing Fedigan Hall. Ernie Zaloom, the Dayhop's last hope, failed to reach the semi-finals.

Interest Runs High

This was the second tournament run by the intramural committee, and it was by far the better. The great amount of interest shown by the tennis enthusiasts of the school was very pleasing to the committee. The matches were for the most part well-played and interesting, especially the semi-finals and the final.

This tournament winds up the fall intramural activities, touch football being dropped on account of lack of interest. However, according to Rev. Edward A. McKee, O. S. A., faculty adviser of intramurals, basketball will be started in the very near future.

members of the squad who participated in the bouts during the past campaign have gained valuable experience which should serve them well in the future.

The veterans, Sala, Raimo, Dinges, and Lyons should be able to aid the new members of the squad in some of the tricks picked up in the frays of the past. The Freshman candidates are a very promising group, if their former records as amateurs are any criteria.

Wrestling May Be Organized

Assistant Manager Collins states that a wrestling team may be organized in conjunction with the leather-pushers. Results would not be expected from the grunt and groan boys for the first year, however.

In the Limelight

By NORTON C. PADEN

WELL! WELL! Look who's here. None other than that high-pressure foot toggery salesman. You betcha it's Walter William Korchinski, Walt to his intimates and friends.

Walt is the big blond bruiser that plays right end for the 'Cats and he has held down a varsity berth in this position for three years. Walt was born, as are all other great men, in Springfield, Mass. His folks liked the letter "W" so much that they gave it to him twice.

At a tender age, Walt entered grammar school in Springfield. The location and name of the institution are somewhat hazy in his mind, but it was somewhere on the West Side, so there you have it.

It was while attending the grammar school that W. W. got his first taste of football in the sand-lot games that were held after school hours. He took to it like a duck takes to water and soon had all the rudiments down pat. Eight years seems a long time to the most of us but it passed very swiftly for Walt and soon he was ready to enter high school.

At the completion of the required time at the elementary school, Walter William entered Springfield Commerce High School. Here he got his first taste of competitive football while playing end for the school. As Walt very modestly states, he never was a star while playing football but he must have been playing heads-up ball all the time to get the foundation that he has. Very rarely a football player is born. As is everything else he must be made by stringent and careful training so draw your own conclusions.

While playing two years at S. C. H. S. Walt learned how to snare those passes and to boot the oval way down the field. For his endeavors in the second year Walter received his varsity letter which he proudly wore for the remainder of the year.

About this time the Korchinski family packed up bag and baggage and moved to Rensselaer, N. Y. While his family was moving west, Walt moved north and took up his abode and education at Saint Anselm's Preparatory School in Manchester, New Hampshire. The White Mountain air seemed to agree with Walt 'cause he put on plenty of weight and added a couple of inches to his height. The increase in height helped Walt snare passes and the added weight made the opposing linemen look pretty sick. As do all players, Walt spent his apprenticeship holding down the bench but the inactivity palled on him and he played his head off when he did get in the game. A letter was forthcoming for his work during this year too.

After one year at Saint Anselm's, another prep school claimed Walt's attention and our hero hied himself to New Hampton Prep at New Hampton, N. H.

Here Walt abandoned the pursuit of the pigskin in order to play two other major sports; namely, basketball and baseball. On the floor Walter held down the pivot position and they say that he was dern good at it too. During the Spring Walt devoted his energy in the pursuit of the elusive horsehide, holding down the first sack with the best of them. His long reach aided him considerably in snaring the bad throws that came his way now and then.

Leaving New Hampton, Walt journeyed to Villanova in '32 and entered with a large group of other Frosh. His build was noticed immediately and for many weeks Walt dodged the white-hatted gentlemen who murmured vaguely about trunks or something. As a whole the Frosh class was O. K. and the Viggies had little trouble with them.

Immediately Walt reported for Frosh football and this kept him occupied for a great many weeks. His job as a truck driver the summer before had hardened him up and the workouts weren't too tough.

Spring rolled around and Walt again donned baseball togs and as Mahan was already anchored at first Walt took himself out to the pasture and chased flies.

This year, his senior year, Walt is again holding his own on the football squad and is due for a good season.

He is a senior Commerce and Finance man, majoring in transportation. As he must be one of the chosen few he already has a job with the N. B. C. upon graduation. No, fellers, not the National Broadcasting Company but the National Biscuit Company, and it is still a good job. He plans to work in their Springfield, Mass, branch.

tackled he flipped a lateral to Johnnie Higgins who continued down to the Explorers' twenty-five where he was forced out of bounds. La Salle was penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness, which put the ball on the ten yard line. Stoviac raced around left end behind beautiful interference in the next play and fell over the goal line as he was tackled by Sciarretta. Kotys again added the point.

After the kickoff, La Salle continued its threatening aerial attack, but Johnnie Higgins stopped it by intercepting a long pass and raced it back 30 yards to the Explorers' twenty-three. Another penalty put the 'Cats out of scoring position.

After several exchanges of punts, Higgins punted to Sciarretta who was smothered by the Villanova linemen as he attempted to catch the punt, and fumbled it, Vidnovic recovering on La Salle's eighteen.

Two line plays netted only one yard, and Higgins called a pass. Stopper, faking a spinner to Raimo, tossed a flat pass to Korchinski who scored for the second time. Stopper missed the try for point after touchdown.

Johnnie Higgins, who played all 60 minutes of the game, shared the spotlight with Korchinski. Higgins stopped La Salle several times by intercepting passes. On the offensive, his signal calling and blocking were above reproach. Oliveri, Korchinski, and Johnnie Mellus were outstanding on the line, and Captain Eddie Michaels played his usual brand of All-American football.

The game was far below the standard of all previous games Villanova has played this season. The attempt of the La Salle linemen to confuse Higgins by shouting while he was attempting to call plays was only one angle of the unsportsman-like showing of the teams.

Penalties were numerous, and together with La Salle's passing on almost every down slowed the game up as far as the spectators were concerned. However, the fact that La Salle threw 35 passes and still were no scoring threat should give Villanova confidence against the famous Detroit passers.

TOE EXPERT AT NITTANY

Joe Bielicki, Soccer Candidate, Does State College Dropkicking

Penn State boasts of a double duty man in the person of Joe Bielicki. He is a candidate for the soccer team, and a very good prospect, but besides being able to kick soccer balls through the goal zones, he is adept at booting football between the uprights on the gridiron.

Whenever the soccermen have an open date and the football team is playing, he is on hand to lend his assistance, via the three-point route, but to date the Nittany Lion with its unbeaten record has had no use for his learned toe, however should the occasion present itself, Joe will be there.

THE WRITER has marvelled at the attitude that the Alumni of certain colleges assume when their team is either a winning or losing outfit...At the recent Bucknell fracas...and, indeed, it was a fracas the way the Felines trampled the Bisons...members of the Alumni of the Lewisburg collegians were far from lax in voicing their opinion at the disastrous showing of the Herd...Contrast this to the happy, smiling faces and ardent cheering on the part of loyal Villanovans...Disgruntled Alumni of South Carolina voiced their disapproval at the aching methods of Billy Laval, head man of the Gamecocks...With the result that Don McAllister, who played on the 1926 team at Illinois, which also boasted the inimitable Red Grange and Jim McMillen, one of the outstanding performers in the wrestling game...has assumed the role of head coach...Or the Pacific Coast one scribe, in the person of Charley Paddock, erstwhile Olympic sprint champion, is after the neck of Howard Jones, the coach of the University of Southern California...It is the same old story ...if you do not produce, the wolves, in the person of ex-grads, immediately howl for your hide...Many a coach of a losing aggregation receives his Monday morning mail and is told by McStew, '89, that he should have tried a field goal from the 10-yard line with third down and one yard to go instead of an atrocious buck at the line...

Anent the Bison-Wildcat gridiron affair...The blocking of Frank Nye on Andy Stoppers last touchdown was something to marvel at ...and Richie Emmerling looked like a seasoned veteran...the Emmerling of old...The officials of the game came in for quite a bit of scrutiny...Mr. J. "Hooks" Mylin, who handles the reins of Bucknell said that the charges of Stuhldreher will be up among the leaders when the season closes...Mylin predicted an unblemished record for the Main Liners, adding that even the mighty Temple eleven will have their hands full in engaging the Wildcats...Incidentally, "Hook" feels very ill at ease about the Bison-Owl tilt this year...Lack of reserve material in addition to injuries has hampered the Lewisburg bunch...Wilkinson, stellar end, did not see any action at all in the Wildcat fray...Captain Shtarsky has been favoring a bad knee that was injured further in the closing minutes of the 25-0 rout...Old man hard luck seems to be following the Herd...The Titans will test the strength of the Villanova eleven in the Auto City next week.

With Villanovr sporting such an enviable record the Dorais-coached eleven will have to step some to beat the oncoming Wildcats...This is the year that Stuhldreher has been looking for...a good season means better opponents and a natty class of opposition will make the turnstiles click...and what member of an athletic board does not beam with joy when the coffers of Athletic Department becomes protuberant.

Did you know that: Al Ryan is serving his third term as Stadium Manager...Mr. Severance's shadow...Dennis Stanley, coach of Florida University, is not a citizen of the United States...He is a British subject...Frank Moriarity, senior in the Arts School, has been selected to manage the 1936 baseball team...and the boxing team will have Tom Kennedy in the same capacity...Both subject to approval by the Council on Intercollegiate Athletics...So long 'til next week.

'Cats To Oppose Detroit Eleven

Salle, in the order named. The Wildcats have piled up a total of 137 points, or an average of 27 points per game, while holding their opponents scoreless. The Wildcats will battle hard not only to win these two games, but to further embellish their record for the season with a blank column for their foes.

Detroit on the other hand, has played four games. They have defeated Central State, Haskell, and Oklahoma A. and M. These games were marked by a successful test of the new lateral pass interpretation, The Titans had been unscored upon until their last game against a powerful Catholic University eleven. The Dorais coached team held the Catholic aggregation scoreless for three periods and then lost out in the last few minutes of the game when their opponents tallied twice. The final score was 13-7.

Villanova will catch the Titans on the rebound. They will be a tough assignment to handle; but the Wildcat rooters have a great deal of faith in Stuhldreher's team

Interesting Sidelights on Other Colleges

Dean Blames Radio and Movies For Decline of Literacy in Colleges

The colleges, of all places, are showing a drop in literacy, says Barnard's Dean, Virginia C. Gildersleeve. One wonders. There is little question about the illiteracy; one wonders merely if it is on the increase. It seems to us that collegiate society, like any other, is divided into literate and illiterate, has always been so, and probably always will be. There is in any college a certain fixed proportion of students who have never read anything if there was any possible avenue of escape, and there is always a contingent of omnivorous and intelligent readers.

"Instead of taking things in through the eye and becoming familiar with the aspect of English words, " says Dean Gildersleeve, "they take them in through the ear, by the radio and the movies. This has a lamentable effect on their spelling and on some other aspects of their writing."

"Are we right in feeling that the present student is rather more illiterate than were the students of the past," Dean Gildersleeve continues, "Has this condition, if it exists, much to do with our college requirements, or does it grow out of the state of affairs noticed in the schools also—that is, the rapidly diminishing amount of reading done by our young people?"

The radio and the movies have of course raised the figurative and literal hob with the status of learning in these United States. There is no simpler way of obtaining information than that afforded by the radio, just as there is nothing that affords amusement with less intellectual effort on the part of the audience, than the current cinema. Not that either of these two praiseworthy phenomena is intrinsically debasing; it is merely that they both depend for success on an appeal to the mass mind, and the level of the mass mind is found at about 14 years.

R. O. T. C. GAINS IN ENROLLMENTS

Illinois Students Most Inclined Toward Militaristic Training

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 21—A gain of more than 5000 in R. O. T. C. enrollment, amounting to an average of about 20 per cent in 40 of the country's leading colleges and universities has been registered this year, a recent survey shows.

It is not believed, however, that the increase is indicative of a kindlier attitude toward war on the part of college students. The general increase in college registration this year is held partially responsible, together with the opportunity for reserve officers to land good jobs after graduation as Civilian Conservation Corps commanders. Then, too the supplying of uniforms by the Government attracted more enrollers, some institutions reported.

The Mid-West and South showed the biggest gains, with the University of Illinois in the lead with a gain of 460. Purdue, Michigan State, the University of Nebraska, Kansas State and Louisiana State University registered big increases.

BOARD REFUSES TO CONTINUE SUBSIDY

Say Decision Was Not Influenced by Critical Attitude of Paper

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—The Columbia Spectator, long ranked with The Daily Cardinal of the University of Wisconsin and the Cornell Daily Sun as a leader of American collegiate journalism, will have to rely on 100 per cent student financial support in the future.

The Columbia Board of Trustees has just voted to discontinue its subsidy, an "activities fee" giving students admission to athletic contests and entitling them to receive copies of student publications without cost.

The new financial set-up, which applies as well to the Columbia Jester, humorous publication, and The Student Review, monthly literary magazine, will go into effect at the end of the academic year 1937-38.

The persistently radical and critical attitude of the Spectator during the past four years did not influence the trustees, according to Dean Herbert E. Hawkes, who said the arrangement was designed merely to vest both responsibility and control of publications in the student body. When it was pointed out that the continued existence of the newspaper and magazines will depend on success in obtaining student subscriptions, Dean Hawkes replied that the subscription method was in vogue in nearly all American schools, and had been successfully used at Columbia some years ago.

Recent Survey Indicates Strong Anti-War Sentiment In College Men

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 21 — The college youth of America definitely does not want war, and can be expected to oppose vigorously and actively any effort to drag the United States into the general European war many experts predict will arise out of the Italo Ethiopian conflict.

This is the belief of Associated Collegiate Press correspondents who have just completed a survey of student opinion on the subject.

Outstanding among the conclusions reached as a result of the survey are these:

1. While most American students are in decided sympathy with Ethiopia in the present undeclared war in Africa, opinion is divided as to the wisdom of the United States joining the League of Nations in the application of aggressor penalties against Italy, with only a minority in support.

2. Today, more students than ever before are prepared to view with cynical skepticism the flag-waving jingoism and propaganda so successfully used to drive America into participation in the World War.

3. The flood of books, pamphlets and magazine articles exposing the origins of past wars, and particularly the World War, has found a wider circulation among college students and instructors than among any other group of the American public as a whole.

4. The number of "conscientious objectors" and pacifists in the colleges and universities, both those who would refuse to enlist for a foreign war and those who are pledged not to fight for any reason, has vastly increased during the past few years.

What collegiate America thinks of war is best expressed in the following editorial from the Northeast Missourian, student publication of Northeast Missouri Teachers' College. The article has been widely reprinted in the college press:

"We, the young people of today, are faced with a world preparing for war. Italy is rapidly forcing the issue in Ethiopia; Great Britain is rushing her navy to the Mediterranean; the United States is steadily increasing its military expenditures and following policies which threaten to plunge us into the melee. The League of Nations is a peace organization in name but is powerless to avert war unless Italy retracts, and Italy will not retract as long as there is a possible chance to gain land and resources. War in Europe seems inevitable.

"The United States must not be drawn into the mess. The young men of America are too valuable to waste in a squabble between selfish nations in Europe; American resources are too valuable to blow up in gun powder.

"We feel the need for constructive and dramatic demonstration against the rising war tendencies of our nation. We must bear down strongly on peace education. We must demonstrate our determination not to be cannon-fodder for future wars."

UNCOORDINATED THOUGHT

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"This world is suffering today from uncoordinated thought. Never was there more brilliant thinking and never was brilliant thinking more productive of accomplishment, but the thinking and accomplishment of one group are entirely detached from the thinking and accomplishment of another." Thus saith the president of Dartmouth College, Dr. Hopkins.

E. P. T. WILL CAST BALLOTS THURSDAY FOR CLUB LEADERS

Artsmen Propose Three Candidates to Fill Office Of President

REILLY, ALVAREZ, MURPHY NOMINATED TO HEAD CLUB

Maloney, Differ and Fox Are Aspirants to Vice-Presidency

Last Thursday at the regular seminar period the Epsilon Phi Fraternity assembled in Mendel Hall to hold another of its weekly meetings. This meeting had convened to nominate and re-elect officers.

With Professor Martin Gill, who is moderator of the Arts Fraternity, as the presiding officer, the meeting succeeded in completing nominations. Final elections are scheduled to be held at the next session on this coming Thursday, October 31.

As candidates for the presidency, the representatives of the senior class are: Edwin Reilly, Rafael Martinez-Alvarez and Daniel Murphy. Benedict Maloney, Anthony Differ and George Fox were nominated for the vice-presidency. Robert Bond, William McLaughlin, Edward Shovlin and Francis Moynihan were nominated as candidates for the position of treasurer. To fill the capacity of secretary one of the following will be selected at the next session: Charles Stahlecker, Lewis Curtis or Harold Hart.

From the beginning of the school term the members of the fraternity have earnestly and eagerly joined in a brotherly relationship of cooperation. The members have mutual interests and are banned together to obtain the same ends. Now they are carefully selecting fellow brothers whom they know will lead the fraternity through a year of booming success. It is quite obvious therefore, that every endeavor that will be attempted by the Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity will be executed with the best possible effort.

In order to show the members of the fraternity that he is wholly and entirely in back of their every undertaking, Prof. Gill stated that he would do everything in his power, both morally and physically, to support them. His affirmation is in al-

STUDENTS TO HOLD LARGE PEP RALLY

Will Convene Directly After Chapel Services On Wednesday Night

By way of exciting more interest in the return game with Detroit University on Saturday at the Villanova Stadium there will be a Pep Rally held in the Commerce and Finance Building auditorium on Wednesday evening immediately after chapel services.

Proper school spirit has been sadly lacking this year as far as the student body of the college is concerned so it was deemed best to hold this rally to keep them up to the proper pitch of excitement and real interest. This rally is expected to awaken the dormant spirit of the student body which has reached a new low at this season.

As is the usual custom there will be a fine list of speakers on hand for the occasion. Outstanding men connected with various branches of the college will make their appearance before the assembly. Foremost among this group of speakers will be Rev. John O'Leary, O. S. A., who gave such a stirring talk at the Temple rally last year. One of the best loved figures on the campus, Father O'Leary is a welcome personage in any group

VICE-PRESIDENT

MARIO TRONCELLITTI, who was selected by the members of the Class of 1937 to act in the capacity of Vice-President at the recent elections held by the Junior class. Troncellitti is a member of the Science School and is also prominent in the activities of the Lambda Kappa Delta.

TRONCELLITTI WINS JUNIOR CLASS POST

Prominent Member of Pre-Med Unit Chosen As Vice President

Elections for the office of vice president of the Class of 1937, were held on last Thursday, October 24, 1935, in the rear of the college dining hall, at 1.00 P. M.

At the count of the ballots, it was determined that Mario Troncellitti had won the election, over his eligible opponents, John McManus, of the School of Arts and Letters, and Francis Winterer, of the Technology Department.

Following a long hard-fought political campaign by the three candidates for the office, Troncellitti, the member from the Science School, and a prominent member of their fraternity, the Lambda Kappa Delta, won out by a close margin.

The newly-elected vice president will take office immediately and will hold the chair until the Senior elections in the spring of this scholastic year, 1935-36. Extensive plans for their schedule of Junior activities are under way at present and with the vacated office now filled, they will go forward with renewed vigor.

MRS. REGINA CLARK DIES

In behalf of the student body of Villanova College the VILLANOVAN extends its condolences to Miss Mary Clark, secretary to the bursar, who was bereft of her mother, Mrs. Regina Clark, one week ago Saturday, October 19.

Miss Clark, whose mother died after a lingering illness, is a prominent figure among assistants to the administration here at Villanova and her many friends and acquaintances will be deeply grieved to hear of her loss.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Plans for Pep Rallies and Send-Offs To Be Main Topic of Discussion At 7:00 P. M. Tonight

Student Councillors will meet again tonight at the usual time and place, 7:00 P. M. in Room 215, Mendel Hall, to continue its work on the new Council constitution.

It is more than probable that plans that were commenced last week for pep rallies and team send-offs will be brought up for discussion and that something definite will be done about the same.

Members of the Council would do well to remember that attendance at these meetings has been voted compulsory at a recent session.

Engineering Group Undertake To Foster Promotion Of College Orchestra

ELABORATE PLANS FORMED

It was announced at the second meeting of the Phi Kappa Pi, Engineering Fraternity of Villanova College, yesterday, that the date of their Annual Engineers Ball has been changed to Friday, November 27, instead of November 15, as was formerly announced. It was felt more satisfactory for members of the Engineering Alumni who might wish to attend, since no other affair of Villanova College falls near this date.

Plans for the affair are well under way, and in his report to the society, William O. Munroe, chairman of the dance, stated that, as has been the custom in the past four years, the decorative scheme will be most elaborate. Other features of former dances will even be more extensively promulgated; such as the quite unique programs which have been drawn up and will soon be put to press.

Following along the lines that have been begun by the Phi Kappa Pi in the past, the organization is again attempting to foster extra-curricular activity on the campus. Former members of the organization set the pace by carrying out schedules of sports; swimming meets, tennis matches, pinochle tournaments, and many other contests, as well as the instructive lectures and motion pictures held under the auspices of the society.

Shifting to another field, the P. K. P. is this year setting its shoulder to the wheel to foster the College Orchestra, the "Villanovans." This matter of expounding campus activity should be quite close to the hearts of the Alumni of the Technology Department, and it is believed by the president, James T. Aulan, and his entire governmental

GLEE CLUB PLANS CONCERT PROGRAM

U. of P. Choristers Invite Villanova Organization to Appear In Joint Recital

Villanova College's Glee Club will begin its second season on Thursday, November 7, at 4 o'clock in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance Building. After that date meetings will be held every Thursday afternoon at the same time.

Last year's glee club was not much of a success because of the lack of cooperation on the part of its members. This year recitals will be given in connection with those of the college band and orchestra.

Already arrangements are in the process of being made for a band concert immediately after the Christmas holidays. Of course the appearance of the glee club at this time is entirely due to the efforts and cooperation of the members.

Among the concerts arranged for the choristers is one at the University of Pennsylvania. The glee club of the University has invited Villanova to appear with them in their recital in Philadelphia. Such offers as these should not have to be turned down as they were last year due to the lack of cooperation on the part of many of last year's members.

It is hoped that this year will

Plans For Annual Homecoming To Prove Greatest in History Of Villanova College

DANCE AT HOTEL WALTON

By JOHN W. HALLAHAN, JR.

ONCE again, Villanova College will play host to her ever welcome Alumni. Following a custom that has become even more than a tradition, those former men of the Blue and White will return to root the Wildcats on to an avenging victory on next Saturday, when they meet the Detroit "Titans" for the second time this season.

Much to their distaste the Alumni have never as yet on any homecoming day, witnessed a Wildcat victory. Their team this year boasts of a strength and will to win, that has been proven in every test of the season. The somewhat surprising defeat of last week did nothing to dampen this spirit. On the contrary, for the benefit of their followers and old friends who are returning to the campus on next Saturday, the Main Liners will be out to swamp the Titans unmercifully.

In a section specially reserved for them at the fifty-yard line, over 500 grads are expected to attend this Annual Home Coming Day on Saturday, November 2. Many men, who, since their college days, have become outstanding in their selected lines of endeavor have written Paetrus Banmiller, the Alumni secretary at Villanova, of their intention of helping to swell the ranks of the loyal sons of the college.

Although the Wildcat-Titan fray should present something unusual in that it is predicted far and wide that the Villanova eleven will not go down to a second defeat at the hands of Detroit, this alone is not the only form of entertainment to be provided for the "Old Grads."

At 11.30 A. M. in the college dining hall, the Board of Governors will meet for luncheon and business discussions. Immediately after the game, which has its kickoff set for 2.00 P. M., a specially arranged tour of the campus will be conducted for the veterans of this soil.

Many changes on the campus will

DEFINITE DAYS SET FOR SENIOR PHOTOS

Belle Air Pictures Must Be Taken November Fifth, Sixth or Seventh

An announcement of great importance to seniors was issued last week by Robert McGrory, editor of the senior year-book.

Definite dates, which also will be final, have been set for the individual photographing of seniors who wish their pictures to appear in the Belle Air.

The days are Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week. Members of the senior class will be approached and asked by the photography editor of the year-book to make an appointment for a definite time on one of the three days above-mentioned to have his picture taken.

Each senior must pay $1 at the time he makes the appointment. If the person does not appear at the scheduled time, he forfeits his dollar.

This fee entitles the senior to four sittings, two in cap and gown and two in ordinary dress, and one gloss-finish picture of himself.

Seniors are requested to appear for the pictures in dark suits, white shirts and if possible, striped ties as these photograph better than other apparel.

The Belle Air staff will hold an important meeting tomorrow at 1:15 o'clock in the office, 51 Mendel Hall, and will be addressed by a representative of the Zamsky Studios.

At a recent meeting of the staff, Mr. McGrory made several suggestions as to the make up of the new annual.

One of the many suggestions was the abolition of the pictures of the faculty in the front of the book. This, however, does not mean that the pictures of the faculty are to be eliminated from the publication. The editors intend to have each

During the course of the next month, each of the twelve foreign students at Villanova will be interviewed by a staff member of this paper.

The results of these interviews will appear regularly hereafter as feature articles, one country being discussed each week.

Moderator Speaks to Students On Functions of International Affairs Club

On Thursday last, the first meeting of the year was held by the International Relations Club, with Rev. John J. Fitzmaurice, O. S. A., faculty moderator, presiding.

In his address to the club, Fr. Fitzmaurice outlined the aim of the club, and what membership in it entails; namely, discussion of international questions and problems. In the words of Fr. Fitzmaurice, "Although this organization is peculiar to our campus, it is vastly more far-reaching than we who are directly concerned with it may suspect. Along this line we may state that last year we were fortunate enough to become affiliated with the Carnegie Endowment, an organization which has chapters in schools and colleges throughout the nation.

"However, because of our affiliation with this society, you are in no way bound to accept the views promoted by it, or those of the faculty, the moderator, or of other members. For complete functioning of the organization we should like an enrollment of about fifteen students, men who are genuinely interested in affairs of world import-

Outstanding among the conclusions reached as a result of the survey are these:

1. While most American students are in decided sympathy with Ethiopia in the present undeclared war in Africa, opinion is divided as to the wisdom of the United States joining the League of Nations in the application of aggressor penalties against Italy, with only a minority in support.

2. Today, more students than ever before are prepared to view with cynical skepticism the flag-waving jingoism and propaganda so successfully used to drive America into participation in the World War.

3. The flood of books, pamphlets and magazine articles exposing the origins of past wars, and particularly the World War, has found a wider circulation among college students and instructors than among any other group of the American public as a whole.

4. The number of "conscientious objectors" and pacifists in the colleges and universities, both those who would refuse to enlist for a foreign war and those who are pledged not to fight for any reason, has vastly increased during the past few years.

What collegiate America thinks of war is best expressed in the following editorial from the Northeast Missourian, student publication of Northeast Missouri Teachers' College. The article has been widely reprinted in the college press:

"We, the young people of today, are faced with a world preparing for war. Italy is rapidly forcing the issue in Ethiopia; Great Britain is rushing her navy to the Mediterranean; the United States is steadily increasing its military expenditures and following policies which threaten to plunge us into the melee. The League of Nations is a peace organization in name but is powerless to avert war unless Italy retracts, and Italy will not retract as long as there is a possible chance to gain land and resources. War in Europe seems inevitable.

"The United States must not be drawn into the mess. The young men of America are too valuable to waste in a squabble between selfish nations in Europe; American resources are too valuable to blow up in gun powder.

"We feel the need for constructive and dramatic demonstration against the rising war tendencies of our nation. We must bear down strongly on peace education. We must demonstrate our determination not to be cannon-fodder for future wars."

UNCOORDINATED THOUGHT

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"This world is suffering today from uncoordinated thought. Never was there more brilliant thinking and never was brilliant thinking more productive of accomplishment, but the thinking and accomplishment of one group are entirely detached from the thinking and accomplishment of another." Thus saith the president of Dartmouth College, Dr. Hopkins.

E. P. T. WILL CAST BALLOTS THURSDAY FOR CLUB LEADERS

Artsmen Propose Three Candidates to Fill Office Of President

REILLY, ALVAREZ, MURPHY NOMINATED TO HEAD CLUB

Maloney, Differ and Fox Are Aspirants to Vice-Presidency

Last Thursday at the regular seminar period the Epsilon Phi Fraternity assembled in Mendel Hall to hold another of its weekly meetings. This meeting had convened to nominate and re-elect officers.

With Professor Martin Gill, who is moderator of the Arts Fraternity, as the presiding officer, the meeting succeeded in completing nominations. Final elections are scheduled to be held at the next session on this coming Thursday, October 31.

As candidates for the presidency, the representatives of the senior class are: Edwin Reilly, Rafael Martinez-Alvarez and Daniel Murphy. Benedict Maloney, Anthony Differ and George Fox were nominated for the vice-presidency. Robert Bond, William McLaughlin, Edward Shovlin and Francis Moynihan were nominated as candidates for the position of treasurer. To fill the capacity of secretary one of the following will be selected at the next session: Charles Stahlecker, Lewis Curtis or Harold Hart.

From the beginning of the school term the members of the fraternity have earnestly and eagerly joined in a brotherly relationship of cooperation. The members have mutual interests and are banned together to obtain the same ends. Now they are carefully selecting fellow brothers whom they know will lead the fraternity through a year of booming success. It is quite obvious, therefore, that every endeavor that will be attempted by the Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity will be executed with the best possible effort.

In order to show the members of the fraternity that he is wholly and entirely in back of their every undertaking, Prof. Gill stated that he would do everything in his power, both morally and physically, to support them. His affirmation is in al-

VICE-PRESIDENT

MARIO TRONCELLITTI, who was selected by the members of the Class of 1937 to act in the capacity of Vice-President at the recent elections held by the Junior class. Troncellitti is a member of the Science School and is also prominent in the activities of the Lambda Kappa Delta.

TRONCELLITTI WINS JUNIOR CLASS POST

Elections for the office of vice president of the Class of 1937, were held on last Thursday, October 24, 1935, in the rear of the college dining hall, at 1.00 P. M.

At the count of the ballots, it was determined that Mario Troncellitti had won the election, over his eligible opponents, John McManus, of the School of Arts and Letters, and Francis Winterer, of the Technology Department.

Following a long hard-fought political campaign by the three candidates for the office, Troncellitti, the member from the Science School, and a prominent member of their fraternity, the Lambda Kappa Delta, won out by a close margin.

The newly-elected vice president will take office immediately and will hold the chair until the Senior elections in the spring of this scholastic year, 1935-36. Extensive plans for their schedule of Junior activities are under way at present and with the vacated office now filled, they will go forward with renewed vigor.

STUDENTS TO HOLD LARGE PEP RALLY

Will Convene Directly After Chapel Services On Wednesday Night

By way of exciting more interest in the return game with Detroit University on Saturday at the Villanova Stadium there will be a Pep Rally held in the Commerce and Finance Building auditorium on Wednesday evening immediately after chapel services.

Proper school spirit has been sadly lacking this year as far as the student body of the college is concerned so it was deemed best to hold this rally to keep them up to the proper pitch of excitement and real interest. This rally is expected to awaken the dormant spirit of the student body which has reached a new low at this season.

As is the usual custom there will be a fine list of speakers on hand for the occasion. Outstanding men connected with various branches of the college will make their appearance before the assembly. Foremost among this group of speakers will be Rev. John O'Leary, O. S. A., who gave such a stirring talk at the Temple rally last year. One of the best loved figures on the campus, Father O'Leary is a welcome personage in any group

In behalf of the student body of Villanova College the VILLANOVAN extends its condolences to Miss Mary Clark, secretary to the bursar, who was bereft of her mother, Mrs. Regina Clark, one week ago Saturday, October 19.

Miss Clark, whose mother died after a lingering illness, is a prominent figure among assistants to the administration here at Villanova and her many friends and acquaintances will be deeply grieved to hear of her loss.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Plans for Pep Rallies and Send-Offs To Be Main Topic of Discussion At 7:00 P. M. Tonight

Student Councillors will meet again tonight at the usual time and place, 7:00 P. M. in Room 215, Mendel Hall, to continue its work on the new Council constitution.

It is more than probable that plans that were commenced last week for pep rallies and team send-offs will be brought up for discussion and that something definite will be done about the same.

Members of the Council would do well to remember that attendance at these meetings has been voted compulsory at a recent session.

GLEE CLUB PLANS CONCERT PROGRAM

U. of P. Choristers Invite Villanova Organization to Appear In Joint Recital

Villanova College's Glee Club will begin its second season on Thursday, November 7, at 4 o'clock in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance Building. After that date meetings will be held every Thursday afternoon at the same time.

Last year's glee club was not much of a success because of the lack of cooperation on the part of its members. This year recitals will be given in connection with those of the college band and orchestra.

Already arrangements are in the process of being made for a band concert immediately after the Christmas holidays. Of course the appearance of the glee club at this time is entirely due to the efforts and cooperation of the members.

Among the concerts arranged for the choristers is one at the University of Pennsylvania. The glee club of the University has invited Villanova to appear with them in their recital in Philadelphia. Such offers as these should not have to be turned down as they were last year due to the lack of cooperation on the part of many of last year's members.

It is hoped that this year will

OVER 500 GRADS EXPECT TO SEE 'CATS AVENGE DEFEAT

Plans For Annual Homecoming To Prove Greatest in History Of Villanova College

By JOHN W. HALLAHAN, JR.

ONCE again, Villanova College will play host to her ever welcome Alumni. Following a custom that has become even more than a tradition, those former men of the Blue and White will return to root the Wildcats on to an avenging victory on next Saturday, when they meet the Detroit "Titans" for the second time this season.

Much to their distaste the Alumni have never as yet on any homecoming day, witnessed a Wildcat victory. Their team this year boasts of a strength and will to win, that has been proven in every test of the season. The somewhat surprising defeat of last week did nothing to dampen this spirit. On the contrary, for the benefit of their followers and old friends who are returning to the campus on next Saturday, the Main Liners will be out to swamp the Titans unmercifully.

In a section specially reserved for them at the fifty-yard line, over 500 grads are expected to attend this Annual Home Coming Day on Saturday, November 2. Many men, who, since their college days, have become outstanding in their selected lines of endeavor have written Paetrus Banmiller, the Alumni secretary at Villanova, of their intention of helping to swell the ranks of the loyal sons of the college.

Although the Wildcat-Titan fray should present something unusual in that it is predicted far and wide that the Villanova eleven will not go down to a second defeat at the hands of Detroit, this alone is not the only form of entertainment to be provided for the "Old Grads."

At 11.30 A. M. in the college dining hall, the Board of Governors will meet for luncheon and business discussions. Immediately after the game, which has its kickoff set for 2.00 P. M., a specially arranged tour of the campus will be conducted for the veterans of this soil.

Many changes on the campus will

ENGINEERS CHANGE FRAT SOCIAL DATE TO FRIDAY, NOV. 29

Engineering Group Undertake To Foster Promotion Of College Orchestra

It was announced at the second meeting of the Phi Kappa Pi, Engineering Fraternity of Villanova College, yesterday, that the date of their Annual Engineers Ball has been changed to Friday, November 27, instead of November 15, as was formerly announced. It was felt more satisfactory for members of the Engineering Alumni who might wish to attend, since no other affair of Villanova College falls near this date.

Plans for the affair are well under way, and in his report to the society, William O. Munroe, chairman of the dance, stated that, as has been the custom in the past four years, the decorative scheme will be most elaborate. Other features of former dances will even be more extensively promulgated; such as the quite unique programs which have been drawn up and will soon be put to press.

Following along the lines that have been begun by the Phi Kappa Pi in the past, the organization is again attempting to foster extracurricular activity on the campus. Former members of the organization set the pace by carrying out schedules of sports; swimming meets, tennis matches, pinochle tournaments, and many other contests, as well as the instructive lectures and motion pictures held under the auspices of the society.

Shifting to another field, the P. K. P. is this year setting its shoulder to the wheel to foster the College Orchestra, the "Villanovans." This matter of expounding campus activity should be quite close to the hearts of the Alumni of the Technology Department, and it is believed by the president, James T. Allan, and his entire governmental

Belle Air Pictures Must Be Taken November Fifth, Sixth or Seventh

An announcement of great importance to seniors was issued last week by Robert McGrory, editor of the senior year-book.

Definite dates, which also will be final, have been set for the individual photographing of seniors who wish their pictures to appear in the Belle Air.

The days are Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week. Members of the senior class will be approached and asked by the photography editor of the year-book to make an appointment for a definite time on one of the three days above-mentioned to have his picture taken.

Each senior must pay $1 at the time he makes the appointment. If the person does not appear at the scheduled time, he forfeits his dollar.

This fee entitles the senior to four sittings, two in cap and gown and two in ordinary dress, and one gloss-finish picture of himself.

Seniors are requested to appear for the pictures in dark suits, white shirts and if possible, striped ties as these photograph better than other apparel.

The Belle Air staff will hold an important meeting tomorrow at 1:15 o'clock in the office, 51 Mendel Hall, and will be addressed by a representative of the Zamsky Studios.

At a recent meeting of the staff, Mr. McGrory made several suggestions as to the make up of the new annual.

One of the many suggestions was the abolition of the pictures of the faculty in the front of the book. This, however, does not mean that the pictures of the faculty are to be eliminated from the publication. The editors intend to have each

TO INTERVIEW STUDENTS

Staff Reporter Will Write Weekly Feature on Interviews With Foreign Students

During the course of the next month, each of the twelve foreign students at Villanova will be interviewed by a staff member of this paper.

The results of these interviews will appear regularly hereafter as feature articles, one country being discussed each week.

Each writeup will deal with the various customs and conditions prevailing in a particular nation, such as; what sports are engaged in, how vacations are spent, how the government is conducted, what amusements are indulged in, and the like.

RELATIONS SOCIETY BEGINS ACTIVITIES

Moderator Speaks to Students On Functions of International Affairs Club

On Thursday last, the first meeting of the year was held by the International Relations Club, with Rev. John J. Fitzmaurice, O. S. A., faculty moderator, presiding.

In his address to the club, Fr. Fitzmaurice outlined the aim of the club, and what membership in it entails; namely, discussion of international questions and problems. In the words of Fr. Fitzmaurice, "Although this organization is peculiar to our campus, it is vastly more far-reaching than we who are directly concerned with it may suspect. Along this line we may state that last year we were fortunate enough to become affiliated with the Carnegie Endowment, an organization which has chapters in schools and colleges throughout the nation.

"However, because of our affiliation with this society, you are in no way bound to accept the views promoted by it, or those of the faculty, the moderator, or of other members. For complete functioning of the organization we should like an enrollment of about fifteen students, men who are genuinely interested in affairs of world import

IS SCHOOL SPIRIT A DORMANT FACTOR AT VILLANOVA?

WEDNESDAY night immediately after chapel services, the initial Pep Rally of the current school year will be held. The student body will convene in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance School for a preliminary warm-up, so to speak, to the return Detroit game which will be played Saturday in the Villanova stadium. We speak jokingly when we say "preliminary warm-up." What we really mean is that the purpose of the rally is to acquaint the students of the college with the school cheers and songs. For, strange as it seems, there the but a very limited number of members of any of the four classes of Villanova that know the songs and cheers which are a part of the institution. In fact, it is safe to say that they know better the songs of other schools.

Why, you ask? The answer is not at all difficult to give... Villanova students have no use for their school's songs and cheers. And even if by some freak of fate they know them it is a foregone conclusion they won't utter a word at any of the athletic contests anyway. That just isn't being done... by Villanova students.

What we would like to know is, what sort of fluid flows through the veins of our college's students? Certainly it isn't the true red blood of their predecessors. School spirit was near unto a mania in years gone by. Now it is but a dormant factor in the school's makeup.

Is this situation to continue? Certainly when there is a rally held to welcome the football team home and only approximately 35 students turn out only six of whom were first-year men things have reached their lowest ebb. Seems unbelievable but it is true and don't think we are bragging. We are ashamed of it and we have cause to be ashamed. Not another institution of higher learning in the entire country shows such little interest in the affairs of its athletic teams as does our Main Line school.

Villanova students have another chance to rectify this condition... Wednesday night at the rally. We will be greatly interested in the results.

IT'S WORTH TRYING

WE learn with no little interest that Baltimore has recently balanced its budget, reduced taxes, and even accumulated a surplus. Which conclusively proves that municipal administration can be conducted upon an economical and business like basis. Mayor Jackson, who was Baltimore's executive during this period revealed how these results were accomplished. And contrary to many modern opinions on political economy, he had neither to resort to legerdemain nor require the advice and counsel of those who know all the theoretical answers to civic difficulties. His plan was simple, and in the aggregate typical of all successful businesses.

In the main Mayor Jackson brought to the city's problems the same efficiency and practical measures of economy that would have characterized his conductance of a commercial establishment. All waste and extravagance was curtailed to the minimum. No funds were invested in dubious enterprises of an unnecessary nature.

Although the problems that face two different cities are never exactly alike the fundamental principles that govern the successful operation of one can, for the most part, be applied with worth-while results to the other. Providing, of course, that each of the individuals can be depended upon to put them into practice without regard to his political affiliations.

BIRD OSTRACISM

A farmer near Belleville, Ont., seems to have solved the starling problem, at least for his neighborhood. He caught a few painted the lower half of their bodies a brilliant yellow, and turned them loose. The trick worked as he hoped. The other starlings would have nothing to do with these freaks, and fled from them in disgust.

Incidentally the bird experts were puzzled. They spent quite a little time trying to find out what species the strange, new black-and-yellow birds represented.

The example may be followed in Washington and other American communities that have been suffering from the starling pest. It may be that a small flock of starlings dyed in freak colors would drive away a big flock anywhere.

But it wouldn't solve the problem permanently. Those disgusted flocks would merely settle down somewhere else. And birds moult, requiring re-dyeing. And if people got to dyeing them by thousands, the rest would probably get used to it and tolerate the freaks. Starlings are very adaptable to new situations, more so in some ways than human beings.

College Chatter

By Carmen Giordano

HARD TIMES and depression aren't stopping some ambitious fellows from sipping the nectar of higher education. Even when there aren't jobs to be had, certain Columbia University students started businesses of their own. One chap started what you might term the human alarm system. For a small sum he will come around in the morning and get you up in time for br kfast and your first class. Another, started the somewhat less o ginal business of a shoe shiner. Not content with remaining small-time entrepreneurs, these two boys went into partnership u der the following terms. Anyone who hired the waker-upper for five consecutive mornings was entitled to a free shoe shine, and similarly, anyone getting five shoe shines within a certain time was entitled to a free call from the human alarm.

"Does it?" he replied. "I'll drive a little closer."

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

JUST what has become of the school spirit that used to be an outstanding feature of Villanova College? Years ago when our school was even smaller than it is now there was no holding those Wildcat rooters. Why at the very mention of the fact that there was an athletic contest of some sort to be staged by the Main Liners the highest in high as far as spirit was evdienced! Not only was this the case in football season but throughout the entire year. But today that proper, traditional quality found in all college students is sadly lacking where the Villanova supporters are concerned.

What has come over this modern collegiate group that inhabits Villanova? Surely you aren't ashamed of the institution and its athletic teams are you? If so, and we certainly hope this is not the case, then there is no room for the likes of you on the campus. Go elsewhere, if you must, but by no means stay here and hide your face at the mention of the name of Villanova.

Each and every year the spark that ignited the tinder of pep in the hearts of our students has become more and more feeble. The answer seems beyond the grasp of those who would endeavor to uncover it. But one thing is certain, Villanova College students are not morally supporting the athletic prowess of the school.

For immediate examples of the above statement take the attitude of the students at the games played thus far this year. The only evidence of life shown comes from the Freshman body and that is in all probability due to the fact that they are forced to cheer. The upperclassmen on the other hand now being free and unattached by any such bonds feel it is beneath their dignity to emit such frightful noises, yet we hear them braying about the campus at all other times at the slightest provocation. Indeed it is a deplorable situation when the students of an institution the like of Villanova become inappropriately mute at such times as in the classroom and at the scene of athletic contests; mouths that are invariably gaping wide at the wrong moment, sullenly sealed when they should be just the opposite.

If the story were repeated on any other campus in the country that the students of Villanova College had to be driven to attend pep rallies and sendoffs the narrator would be looked upon as the very worst sort of prevaricator to carry such tales about the traditional spirit of a school. And yet that is the existing condition at Villanova today. It shouldn't be necessary for the authorities to even have to post notices of the rallies. The students should have the word passed among themselves long before the appointed time. And what is more important than that, when the time comes Villanova College should be represented 100 per cent by its students. None should be excused save the ill and even they in true spirit should

As We See It . . . . . On Ideas

By HARRY PARKIN

HAVING been engaged, for some little time, in a rather agreeable conversation concerning the possibilities which various topics offered for their development into readable articles, and more especially those which were only capable of study after their selection, we were prompted to choose a topic at random and enlarge upon it as it's own nature, and our experience permitted.

In order to avoid the likelihood of personal preference affecting the choice of a subject, we determined to be confronted by it with the least preparation. And in order to attain this end with the minimum of inconvenience, we decided to approach a bookcase, and without looking at any of the volumes lest it be the unconscious guide of the hand, quickly withdraw one of the books, and read the first sentence that our eyes alighted upon. We did and were confronted by the following lines:

The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ,
Moves on: nor all your Piety nor Wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a line,
Nor all your Tears wash out a word of it.

Which is, as the reader, doubtlessly, has already concluded, a verse from the Rubaiyat. The poem from which this abstract was taken, being incidental to the purpose of the article, can be forgotten, along with its rather whimsically dismal author.

The Finger has written a lengthy tale — a tale as long as the ages, for it includes the biographies of the whole of mankind. The mean and the noble, the poor and the wealthy, the foolish and the wise, the frail and the vigorous, without discrimination it unfolds the life of each. In this tome there is no precedence but that of chronology, no person is respected, nor truth is denied. It is a tale that is being unfolded with the passing of each day — one whose denouement is the crack of doom. But withal it is a peculiar sort of story for the characters are relatively independent of the continuity of its revelation. Their steps are not shackled to the destiny that is told of them, nor are all their tomorrows plotted today. The ground is not unsteady under their feet, nor does it hinder their pressing onward.

The amiable Omar to the contrary, it is not beyond the realm of reason to believe that the characters are able, and in fact do, function independent of their connection with the story. For they have lived, though yet unborn, each single phase of the narrative; or perhaps, what is more precise, the Writer knew the course of their life before they began to live it, and wrote the end, as they, and none but they would determine it should end. The fact that some one merely possessed a knowledge of their fate, before they were conceived, can have neither a baneful nor gainful effect upon that fate.

If each character was fore-ordained to function only within the limits of his individual history, then his nature would be incommensurate with, or in fact a troublesome obstacle to the harmonious and certain enactment of his role. For such a character he would need be heedless of action, and indifferent to consequences. He should not be able to discriminate between the inward forces that prompt him toward one course of behaviour, and those which hinder his commission of another. He should not be capable of retrospection; particularly in regard to those externals that can swerve or continue him in his determinations. Aside, however, from this inability to follow with definite precision certain rational processes, he could never be expected to render an acceptable performance, so long as he possessed the faculty of accepting or rejecting. Hence, it is not until we realize that all these operations do, and positively exist in man, that we begin to appreciate the fallacy that is the scale upon which the cadence of the verse depends. But since man can reason upon the effects of an action before he commits it, and likewise has the power to act in accordance with or contrary to his conclusions, we are inclined to assume that the story is nothing more than a reflection of his own behaviour.

By A. . MELI

YOU SHALL promise and swear in the presence of Almighty God that whensoever you shall repair to the Public Library of the University you will conform yourself to study with modesty and silence; and use both the books and everything which pertains to their furniture with a careful respect to their longest conservation; and that neither yourself in person, nor any other whatsoever by your procurement or privity, shall either openly or underhand by way of embezzling, changing, razing, defacing, tearing, cutting, noting, underlining, or by voluntary corrupting, blotting, blurring, or any other manner of mangling or misusing any one or more of said books, either wholly or in part make any alteration.

"But shall hinder and impeach, as much as lieth in you, all and every such offender by detecting their demeanor to the Vice-chancellor, or to his deputy then in place, within the next three days after it shall come to your knowledge—so help you God, by Christ's merits according to the doctrine of his Holy Evangelists."—The oath of fidelity to the library which Sir Thomas Bodley, founder of the famous Bodleian Library at Oxford, ruled should be taken by all prospective users before the Vice-chancellor, and the Keeper.

Purpose of All Libraries

To begin with the purpose and goal of all libraries is to be helpful since they aim to take care of a pressing necessity on the part of the student for reference matter. It is hardly necessary to say that every library worthy of the name fulfills this purpose. Speaking of school libraries in particular, they are veritable gold mines of reference and information. But then, while cold facts are absolutely vital in modern educational makeup there is another need that the good library serves. It provides multitudinous opportunities for enjoyment. Doubtlessly the reader can recall many times that a good book borrowed from a library has transformed an otherwise unexciting hour into a pleasant interval between regular activities. And surely we have all repeatedly noticed passengers in the subway or on a bus deeply engrossed in a book borrowed from a local public library.

These instances and many more serve to contradict the idea that the library exists only for students and teachers and present the warmer side of the "hall of books."

The Ever-Changing Library

Every school library has an ambition to make its sources of information limitless. They never satisfy themselves with anything but the latest and most accurate reference books on all subjects. The library urges its users to share its attitude and to take pleasure in grasping the fund of knowledge literally swamping it. Its directors, men and women of high intellectual standing always, dislike laying down rules such as the "fine" system and desire that ultimately the user of the library will be considerate enough of his fellow that he will not keep a book not overdue or destroy or mutilate it. In short, they desire to make the system so perfect that the borrower will take delight in coming to the library and picking out his own needs or desires in books, without the necessity of registering the fact that he is doing so. This improvement will depend on the honesty and thankfulness of the borrower and will mark an ultimate development of the lending system.

Villanova's library in its endeavor to make itself even more useful and enjoyable has asked the student body to suggest the names of books which they would like to see in the library. All suggestions are to be placed in a box on the index cabinet. Cards are provided for this purpose.

A FREE PRESS? NO! !

(Reviewed especially for A. C. E. by Cecil Owen, Washington Correspondent for the New York Post.)

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS," George Seldes latest book, is required reading for all adult minded college men and women. Certainly, no one interested in a newspaper career can afford to miss it. The book is distinctly worth while not only for the facts its sets out so tellingly, but for the larger questions it raises, and, incidentally, for much entertainment value.

By way of preface to a review of the book, it might be well to examine the basic idea on which Seldes builds his thesis. He, himself, makes a beginning at this in the book's most valuable chapter in which he asks "Is a Free Press Possible." Seldes, however, fails to answer the question, though he gives us a valuable discussion of it.

It is universally recognized that the press is never free in war time. When the cannons are roaring the press surrenders its function of "truth" telling in the name of patriotism. But, though none will dispute this, there are many who cherish the though that in other than war days we do have a free press. How much validity is there in this assumption?

Probably the most helpful way of getting at an answer to this large question is to consider what are the differences between times of war and of peace. Are the war days and the peace days so completely different that we should expect the press to be smothered in the former, yet altogether free in the latter? It is the same press in both periods.

This reviewer believes we overlook the war-like state that always exists in our industrial world when we imagine that because the nation itself is at peace the press is "free."

In the modern industrial system, the word "peace" is at best relative. War that costs thousands of lives, millions in property losses, and untold misery, is continually going on. In times when the nation is fighting a foreign enemy this industrial war abates temporarily, but resumes immediately with the cessation of hostilities.

For purposes of simplicity let us forget the word "peace" and speak instead of periods of "foreign war" and "industrial war." Then, let us ask, can the press which is wholly absorbed in the frenzy of the former, remain aloof and unsullied from the latter? Of course, it can't.

Newspapers, and newspaper men, are very much a part of the society in which they carry on. The press is owned, by and large, by the same men who own the steel mills, the railroads, the banks, the hotels, etc. It operates under the same profit-making compulsion as do these other business institutions. The getting out of newspapers is itself a business — a big one, a profitable one.

But, one asks, is not this too harsh a picture? Surely, the press is not edited solely for profit.

Each newspaper man will have his own answer to that question. If is this reviewer's opinion, for whatever it is worth, that an overwhelming majority of publishers keep the profit idea first in their minds. But, there are honorable exceptions. And, of course, there are many differences of opinion as to the course to pursue that results in much diversity of views and news being aired. Then, too, energetic newspaper men are quite often breaking through the inertia and outright hostility of their bosses.

The matter is not so simple as Upton Sinclair painted it in "The Brass Check" but the large body of facts in Seldes' book offer plenty of evidence to support the general thesis that a wholly "free" press is a myth. Seldes comes to the conclusion:

"We have had a very few liberal, fearless newspapers, but we have never had a free press."

Seldes, a newspaper man of wide experience in this country and abroad, has presented the first full-length review of the publishers' relations with NRA, one of the most illuminating episodes of recent years for those who would understand the place and character of the press in the United States.

Much of his material has been printed elsewhere earlier but forms an essential background for the more recent history. The book is marred by some minor errors and by the fact that some of his matter is distinctly "dated" — notably his honor roll.

The book is divided into four sections. The first tells his own experience and is vivid reading. Part II relates the corrupting influences that play on the press. The third section contains chapters on the Associated Press, The New York Times, William Randolph Hearst, and the foreign press. The final section, "The Struggle for a Free Press" contains much new material.

Seldes has written a book that deserves to be read and studied, not only by every potential and working newspaper man and woman, but by every thinking person in this country.

By PIO F. GOGGI.

COLUMBIA'S nation-wide network will bring to the air tomorrow night at 9:30 o'clock the world's most distinctive dance orchestra and leader, Ray Noble and his men. This is a new series of programs to feature the English composer and also Babs Ryan and her brothers each Wednesday evening. Ever since his appearance in America not so long ago the slim, suave Englishman has captivated the hearts of the dance loving Americans with his pulse stirring syncopations of popular tunes. His new program will be heard over one of the largest hookups from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf.

Niagara Falls sings loudest in a high soprano, CBS engineers discovered when they took the sound measurement in decibels of the roar of the famous cataract when it was broadcast during the 1935 premiere of the Edward D'Anna band concerts heard from Buffalo. Niagara's voice can reach an extremely high soprano worthy of a Pons or Ponselle, between two and three octaves above middle C of the piano.

Plan to set aside the first week in November as an unofficial "Victor Herbert Test tonial Week" fostered by the leading orchestras and soloists of radio has been effected by Richard Himber, director of the Studebaker Champions. Himber hopes to enlist all his colleagues in this memorial to the famous composer and he will inaugurate the occasion himself by featuring a medley of Herbert's music from "Babes in Toyland" during the Champions' broadcast over the coast-to-coast Columbia network Friday, November 1, from 10 to 10:30 P. M. (rebroadcast to the West at 12 midnight). In addition, the leader of the Champions will present a plaque bearing a facsimile of Victor Herbert's profile to the Columbia Broadcasting System for exhibition in its New York studios.

Phil Baker, Columbia's "Great American Tourist" even lives up to that name when he is indulging in a bit of exercise, as it were, on the links. During a round of golf on a prominent Connecticut course, Ben Maloney will bear witness to this occurrence, Phil sliced miserably off into the deep rough while playing the fourteenth. After a long search he found the ball and turning to the caddie he said, "Well, son, what do I do now?" "I dunno, sir," was the reply, "nobody's ever been in here before."

Starlines: Fred Waring has received more than 10,000 letters from churches and various organizations throughout the nation commending him for his introduction over the ether waves of the anti-war hymn, "Let's Pray for Peace"... Groucho, Chico, and Harpo Marx proved that they can still pass off rib tickling efforts when they starred with Dick Powell on his "Hollywood Hotel" program last Friday... Rudy Vallee we think still leads them all when it comes to presenting all around fine entertainment... Virginia Verrill, pretty CBS songstress, received invitations to all the principal football games in the East from every possible source...

Dorothy Lamour, glamorous and dreamy-eyed "Dreamer of Songs," proved herself to be extremely loyal to members of her own sex in the tunesmith's business last Friday night when she sang an entire program of numbers written by charming bits of femininity. Among Dorothy's endeavors were "Accent on Youth," "And Then Some," "It's Dangerous to Love Like This," and her own theme song, "I'm a Natural Born Sweetheart," all of which were written by Vee Lawnhurst and Tot Seymour.

Dr. Sayle Taylor, the Voice of Experience, whose specialty is solving problems, broke his glasses just as he was being introduced in his last broadcast. So with problems on either hand, one set being his regular puzzlers that he reads out over the air and the other being the broken "specs" the Voice of Experience was really up against it. The situation might have been easily remedied had the glasses not broken right across the bridge. Not being able to read at all without them you can see what a problem faced the Doctor. But the intrepid "Voice" tilted his head to one side and let gravity keep one-half of the broken spectacles on while he held the other half with his left hand, leaving the right one free to handle his notes. He finished the program with seemingly no difficulty, at least the listeners attended none, but he did manage to contract a crook in his neck.

Those leather lunged persons who are forever showing their vocalistic wares when least wanted during study periods, during chapel hour, late at night, etc., might do well for themselves if they were to steal the spotlight at rallies, pep meetings, and all athletic contests rather than in their respective halls manifesting their ignorance by their clamor.

So let it be shown in the future that the true school spirit which always featured Villanova College as did its athletic teams, has not become a thing of the past, dead and buried. If it has, then it is up to us to resurrect it. If all of us had the spirit that was shown by those five students, Bill Sweeney, Frank Neylon, Walt Krupa, Fritz Monahan, and Charley Bruno, who set out Friday for Detroit in an old battered Ford '29 roadster procured for the occasion, and weathered the wintry blasts through the mid West just to see the Wildcats in action against the Detroit Titans then there would be no fault to find. It is spirit like that that is needed around this campus. And above all we have to get it soon or the entire morale of the school will be so depleted that only a shell will remain. Now are we going to get it or not?

SELECT "ENGINEER" AS SECOND BEST AT U. OF P. CONVENTION

"Michigan Technic" Wins First Prize in Magazine Association

TWENTY-FOUR IN CONTEST

Last week the Engineering College Magazine Association held its annual convention at the University of Pennsylvania and selected from a group of twenty-four members the Villanova Engineer as the second best magazine submitted in the field for its outside cover. The Michigan Technic won first prize over the issue submitted by the institution from the Keystone State.

There were other contests held during the convention and the most outstanding were: The best publication submitted by the members, the most unique student article, and the most renowned editorial. These contests were given great discussion by the members and in some cases the winners were not chosen until after a long and heated debate of the question had been witnessed.

The best publication took into consideration the entire makeup of the magazine published by each school represented. The second contest pertaining to the student article written by a member of an engineering school of a said publication dealt with some technical matter in the field of engineering. While the last contest considered the illustrious editorial dealing with some phase of engineering or the personal censure about some certain theory or formula of the entire subject.

The most outstanding schools in the field of engineering were represented at this convention and it is a distinct honor for a school the size of Villanova to play such an important role in a convention of this kind. The issue that was judged from Villanova, as was the case with all the rest of the scientific publications entered, was that they had to be last year's issues. This was necessary because of the early date on which the convention was held, and accordingly many of the present periodicals had not been issued.

The present editor-in-chief, Charles F. Kain, was very reluctant to receive any of the praise upon the success of the Annual, but instead insisted all of the credit was due to last year's staff and editor-in-chief, Paetrus F. Banmiller, who is at present secretary to the alumni.

Felicitations are in order to Dean Carl T. Humphrey, and the members of the engineering school who have in any way contributed to the prosperity of the Villanova Engineer. The magazine has won wide recognition and has been placed well up in this field of leading publications here in the United States.

Oh, Yeah? That's What You Think!

H. S. Stansfield, of the State Police at Hershey, Pa., and F. R. Doheny, of the local police, demonstrate the "dagger hold" at one of the afternoon outdoor classes being held at Villanova in conjunction with the Delaware County Police School. Mr. Stansfield is the officer in this picture, and Mr. Doheny acts the part of the criminal who attacks with a dagger.

Art of Self-Defense Taught to Policemen

Continuing its aggressive scholastic policy, the Police School of Delaware County, conducting its classes on the college campus, is well under way in its progress.

During last week several demonstrations of wrestling tactics used in dealing with criminals were given on the grounds outside of the dining hall.

With H. S. Stansfield and F. R. Doheny as demonstrators, the officers were shown various holds, including the half-Nelson, the most effective method of disarming a criminal, and the difficult policeman's hold.

Mr. Stansfield and Mr. Doheny then demonstrated other holds, such as the strangle hold, various hand holds, and a hold used in forcing a prisoner through a door or passageway.

At the inauguration of the Police School in September, Dr. Detlefson, Director of the School, explained that the course was intended to fill the needs of all the communities and industrial plants of Delaware, Montgomery, Chester, and Bucks counties; that is, to furnish the means by which present police personnel may be more adequately trained and informed, and by which men interested in police work as a profession may be able to secure the best instruction.

The course in its entirety requires forty-eight hours. These are covered in a period of twelve weeks, there being two classes of two hours each per week. At present there are approximately fifty police and detectives taking the course. Students of the college who are interested in the course may see the Dean for permission to attend the classes.

Over 500 Alumni Expected Saturday

interest those Alumni who have found it impossible to return to the College during the year. The completed Monastery alone is well worth the trip to Villanova. Other changes on the grounds feature the removal and rearrangement of trees and bushes that impair the view of the buildings from the Lancaster Pike.

Later in the evening, at 9.00 P. M. a dance has been arranged for the homecoming Alumni, on the Roof Garden of the Walton Hotel, Broad and Locust Sts., in Philadelphia. A ten-act floor show is the feature of the evening. All Villanova's sons are urged to meet on the roof at 9.00 P. M. and join in one of the most active reunion days of their history.

Another feature that Villanova has built up in the past year or two, and one that should be near to the hearts of all Villanovans, is the band. A newly equipped and finely trained aggregation of approximately forty musicians will take the field during the halves of the game, to entertain the spectators with their intricate formations and unique method of letter formation.

Then, too, very few of those former ardent cheerers of the Blue and White have heard the new victory "March of the Wildcats," which has become an almost incessant melody on the Main Line gridiron this season. The "Alma Mater," written by Carmen Giordano, of the class of 1936, is another of the recently adopted college songs.

Bringing to the fore, once again, the Detroit-Villanova game, which has been selected as the most interesting of this season's gridiron battles, it has been, in the past as it was last Saturday, and as it will be again this week, a close, hard-fought test of the might of the two teams. The four scores of this annual tilt to date are two scoreless ties, a 28 to 12 defeat, and a 19 to 15 defeat, both against the Wildcats.

present a different situation and that Villanova will be able to hold its own among the colleges of the country in this respect. This is entirely dependent on the student body. In commenting on the subject Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the choristers said, "We want everyone who can spare the time to come out for the glee club. You boys can have a lot of fun and at the same time be learning something. There are many students on the campus who have much latent vocal talent. They are the ones we want to show up at rehearsals every Thursday afternoon."

It is hoped that cooperation will not be lacking in this respect and that Villanova will be able to present a representative organization at various concerts throughout the year.

HOLIDAY DANCE IS PLAN OF PRE-MEDS

Lambda Kappa Delta Unit Suggests Thanksgiving As Dance Date

Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity held its weekly meeting on October 17, in Room 210, Mendel Hall; at which time plans were discussed for the enlargement of the organization's enrollment.

At present the membership is restricted to a definite number of Science students from each class. This limited membership was decided to be disregarded and selection of members to be unlimited.

The new system provides that each member shall pay a quota of dues for every year he belongs to the fraternity, plus his initiation fee, plus the fee for his fraternity key. This amount shall not exceed $11. If it does the fee for the key shall be disregarded.

Several plans were discussed for social affairs; none of which was considered to be satisfactory. Discussion of a Thanksgiving dance will, however, take place at the next meeting.

An annual event of raffling off tickets to the Temple - Villanova football game, held on Thanksgiving Day, was decided to be held again this year. Tickets for the raffle will be printed and sold sometime this week, and the grand drawing held shortly before the Thanksgiving holiday.

Representation of the organization in intra-mural sports has been planned, the teams to be selected from the members only. The group hopes to add color and interest in this manner to its ordinary routine. Detailed plans will be formulated and discussed at the next meeting.

Another important suggestion was in regards to the autobiography of the students. It was suggested to select one student to write the autobiography for every ten students in each of the schools. The autobiography is not to exceed 100 words in length, in order to have uniformity throughout the book.

The editor of the publication gave out assignments to each of the staff members so as to commence work immediately on the formulation of the book. The staff members were also asked to seek informal snapshots on the campus, which may be used in the publication.

Continuing from 9.00 P. M. until 1.00 A. The organization has now the recognition of being the most active group on the Main Line campus, and it intends to retain that precedent set by the now graduate membership.

With the realization that the "Villanovans" are potentially a fine orchestra, it has been arranged for them to hold rehearsals for at least six hours weekly. New and original arrangements are being prepared, and their music is being kept entirely up to date. The foundation has been laid for this newest activity of the fraternity, the fostering of the "Villanovans," and it remains for both old and new members to show their loyalty to the Phi Kappa Pi in their support of the dance on November 27, 1935.

Sportorial

By A. R. C. Sports Editor

THIS football season will go down as one of the dizziest on record. If there are not at least a dozen upsets each Saturday the fans think they have been "cheated." Speaking of upsets, probably the most disastrous upset of the season so far as we are concerned was last Saturday's loss at the hands of the Detroit U. eleven.

With the most promising team in years, it appeared that Villanova would be able to meet a strong Temple team with no losses to its credit, not that a loss or two will change the situation at all, but that it lends color to the annual affair. However, the fact that the Blue and White gridders lost last week is no excuse to stay away from the games, for despite their recent setback, our team has the color and possibilities.

—V—

In a recent issue of Varsity News (Detroit U. paper), we read an article written by the sports editor in which he criticizes the team severly and predicted an easy Villanova victory because of the defeat at the hands of the Catholic University eleven. With the result of the last contest still fresh in his memory he may predict an easy Detroit victory next Saturday. Well, here and now we wish to correct him on his views because the next game will be ours.

—V—

Every football season finds some rumor emanating from the lips of sports critics and followers. The latest is to the effect that Harry Stuhldreher will leave Villanova for the stamping grounds of the Lafayette Leopards. We wish to point out at this time that such reports have been heard for the last few years, and Harry is still here.

As a matter of fact, just recently the coach made a statement to the effect that he would remain at Villanova College as long as the authorities wanted him, and with the record he has made here in the way of wins and losses, our Athletic Council surely would not let him go.

Probably Lafayette would like to have him, but you second-guessers can rest assured that they won't get Stuhldreher . . .

—V—

Conference Out

Last week, in this column we mentioned a Catholic Conference possibility, and we stated that a former Holy Cross star, Gus Cervani, had taken steps toward its attainment. However, from the Fordham campus comes the report that the Rams are not interested in having strictly religious groups as their opponents.

It once played Georgetown and Holy Cross as well as Boston College, all of which are Jesuit institutions; but relations have been severed with all.

In declining the invitation to the to the league, Fordham authorities say that, "We will not yield to any college in Catholicism, but our football tastes are catholic. We aim to present the country's outstanding teams for followers, regardless of ivy associations."

St. Mary's, a Christian Brothers College, is the only Catholic institution on the Maroon schedule for 1936.

And with the Rams' stand on the matter topples all hopes of the much demanded league, including Holy Cross, Villanova, Boston, Manhattan, Duquesne, Catholic U., Georgetown and the aforementioned Fordham team.

—V—

The recent contest between our lightweights and those of Yale was marked by thrill upon thrill. Every minute of the game was filled with anxiety for both sides. At one stage of the game Charley Kain, Villanova left halfback, intercepted a Bulldog pass, and raced from his own 20 to the opponents' 10, for 70 yards before being downed from behind.

This play was only one of the many exciting ones, that lent color to the situation, we mention this here because the advance reports had conceded the locals a very slight chance of winning, in view

Detroit Players Stop Kotys

In a wild and nerve-wracking game played last Saturday, the Villanova varsity football squad was knocked from its perch of unbeaten and unscored upon supremacy. It was a battling underdog University of Detroit eleven, that blasted the Cats streak of five wins, winning out in the last quarter by the score of 19-15.

Being on the losing end of a 15-6 score at the half, the charges of Gus Dorais rallied with a mighty pile-driving attack and an assortment of passes through the air managed to eke out their margin of victory.

All but one of the Titans touchdowns came via the air route, with Dick Lutze doing the flinging, and Jones doing most of the receiving, it was one of these plays that saw a Stuhldreher coached team fall.

The Titans surprised the Wildcats with a touchdown on the third play of the game, Lutz, who with Jones and Charley Payne, were the big guns for the victors on the offensive, hurled the pigskin to Jones for a 51 yard gain. After being helped by a penalty, Detroit went through the line to the 7 yard marker and Lutz tossed the ball to Jones for the initial score.

An attempt at the extra point by place kicking was missed by Andy Frakas, substitute back.

Wildcats Launch Attack

From this point on the Wildcats really became wild and launched an attack that gave them the lead at half-time, 15-6. Immediately after the Detroit score the Felines worked together on an attempted punt by the aforementioned winners, and blocked it, with Michaels and Mellus doing the heavy work. Then in the second period, two touchdowns by Fox, the right end, via forward passes and a conversion by Nick Kotys made up all the Villanova scoring for the day.

Villanova scored its safety when John Mellus, brilliant tackle broke through the line and with Captain Michaels blocked Payne's punt on the eight yard line and the ball bounded into the end zone.

Mellus starred again at the start of the second period when he recovered a fumble by Frakas on Detroit's 20. Within five plays, the fighting Blue and White were over the last stripe, Andy Stopper, who had replaced Kotys at left halfback, passing to George Fox. Mellus' kick went wide in the try for conversion.

The Felines scored again in the second period when Fox went over the line on a forward pass from Johnny Higgins, the signal caller. This score was preceded by Raimo's and Nick Koty's brilliant smashes and passes to Detroit's eight yard line. Kotys converted the extra point.

Detroit took the field in the second half, however with a determination that could not be denied. A Red and White line that was unbalanced in the opening minutes, became a stonewall that wreaked havoc with the Wildcats on the offense.

INTER-DORM LEAGUE BEGINS FOOTBALL

Return of Touch Game Revives Previous Interest Of Student Body

With the rapid approach of November, the school authorities are now turning their attention to intra-mural touch-football.

For the past decade interest has run high in this extra-curricular activity.

The moderator of intra-mural sports, has laid particular stress on this outdoor pastime. It is his desire that every student be engaged in some outside competition.

Last year the laurels were equally divided between Austin Hall and Alumni. But with the addition of a large freshmen class this competition will be even keener than in previous years.

Intra-mural touch-football gives everyone an equal opportunity to display their hidden talents.

All students are eligible for participation, except anyone who is engaged in varsity athletics.

Managers Appointed

The school authorities request all those who are desirous of participating in touch-football to communicate with the manager of their respective dormitories. Pat Marquette will direct the proceedings at Fedigan. Jim Conroy will be in charge of Austin's team, while Harold Hart and Bill Smith will superintend at Mendel Hall and Alumni respectively. The Day Hops will also be represented in these contests by Al Fitzpatrick.

All games will be played on Mendel Field, on either Thursday or Sunday.

DAY HOPS ATTENTION

The Day Hops are scheduled for touch football this Thursday; all those interested are to be in the rear of the dining hall at 1:30 sharp.

LIFE SAVING LESSONS

Students Interested in Course Report to Coach Gill This Week

Life saving instructions are again to be conducted by Mr. Gill, a member of our faculty, in a few weeks. The first course conducted here at Villanova was instituted last year and proved very successful.

John McManus, manager of the swimming team has requested that all students who are interested in the art of life saving see him during the coming week, so arrangements can be made for the proper class schedule. All the students who have fulfilled their requirements for the course and who pass the examinations given will receive a certificate for their work.

150's PLAY RUTGERS

New Brunswick Foe Rates First In Intercollegiate Circles

This coming Saturday the Villanova 150-pound team will journey to New Brunswick to battle the Scarlet and Black of Rutgers. The charges of Frank Foster and Charley Cox will put in a strenuous week in an effort to be at top form.

After dropping a 9-0 decision to the University of Pennsylvania 150-pound team and playing a scoreless tie with Yale the lightweights will be gunning for their initial victory over the team from the banks of the Raritan.

In meeting Rutgers the Villanova boys will be up against the Intercollegiate Champions in the 150 division. The Blue and White were the victims of a 19-0 walloping at the hands of the Scarlet and Black aggregation and they will be out to avenge it.

The team will entrain for North Jersey late Friday evening and will rest in New Brunswick until game time.

Thirty-three men, in addition to the coaching staff, faculty adviser and the manager, will swell the party to nearly forty.

TRACK CANDIDATES START PRACTICE

Veterans Supervise Sessions In Absence of Regan, Regular Coach

Villanova's fall track season is now in full swing. Every day on the stadium track or around the surrounding countryside harriers under the tutelage of Ben Maloney and Tom Cook, two of last year's veterans, can be seen working out.

The boys who have come out are working hard and faithfully, but Ben Maloney, who has assumed the task of getting the track squad together, wants to see more out for the practices. All upperclassmen, whether experienced or not, are asked to help bolster the team if they feel they have the ability.

There will be no fall training for freshman trackmen, as there will be indoor meets arranged for them.

Distance Men Prevail

At the present time, of the members of the squad, the majority are distance men. The standout performer and the one of whom most is expected is Ben Maloney, a point-winner for the last two seasons. Tom Cook is the only other holdover from the team of last spring. Outstanding among the newcomers are Joe Shea, Jim Scheil, Norbert Ford, Victor Ash, and "Pop" Sheasley.

Although no manager has been appointed, Maloney and Cook are trying to arrange several indoor meets. If they succeed in getting these meets, the squad will be greatly enhanced at the end of the football season by Art Raimo, Jerry Sherlock, Jack Earle, and George Wrona, of the varsity football team, and Charley Kain, of the 150-pound team.

The acting managers are also trying to arrange a good schedule for next spring. Last year only two

These contests were given great discussion by the members and in some cases the winners were not chosen until after a long and heated debate of the question had been witnessed.

The best publication took into consideration the entire makeup of the magazine published by each school represented. The second contest pertaining to the student article written by a member of an engineering school of a said publication dealt with some technical matter in the field of engineering. While the last contest considered the illustrious editorial dealing with some phase of engineering or the personal censure about some certain theory or formula of the entire subject.

The most outstanding schools in the field of engineering were represented at this convention and it is a distinct honor for a school the size of Villanova to play such an important role in a convention of this kind. The issue that was judged from Villanova, as was the case with all the rest of the scientific publications entered, was that they had to be last year's issues. This was necessary because of the early date on which the convention was held, and accordingly many of the present periodicals had not been issued.

The present editor-in-chief, Charles F. Kain, was very reluctant to receive any of the praise upon the success of the Annual, but instead insisted all of the credit was due to last year's staff and editor-in-chief, Paetrus F. Banmiller, who is at present secretary to the alumni.

Felicitations are in order to Dean Carl T. Humphrey, and the members of the engineering school who have in any way contributed to the prosperity of the Villanova Engineer. The magazine has won wide recognition and has been placed well up in this field of leading publications here in the United States.

H. S. Stansfield, of the State Police at Hershey, Pa., and F. R. Doheny, of the local police, demonstrate the "dagger hold" at one of the afternoon outdoor classes being held at Villanova in conjunction with the Delaware County Police School. Mr. Stansfield is the officer in this picture, and Mr. Doheny acts the part of the criminal who attacks with a dagger.

Art of Self-Defense Taught to Policemen

Continuing its aggressive scholastic policy, the Police School of Delaware County, conducting its classes on the college campus, is well under way in its progress.

During last week several demonstrations of wrestling tactics used in dealing with criminals were given on the grounds outside of the dining hall.

With H. S. Stansfield and F. R. Doheny as demonstrators, the officers were shown various holds, including the half-Nelson, the most effective method of disarming a criminal, and the difficult policeman's hold.

Mr. Stansfield and Mr. Doheny then demonstrated other holds, such as the strangle hold, various hand holds, and a hold used in forcing a prisoner through a door or passageway.

At the inauguration of the Police School in September, Dr. Detlefson, Director of the School, explained that the course was intended to fill the needs of all the communities and industrial plants of Delaware, Montgomery, Chester, and Bucks counties; that is, to furnish the means by which present police personnel may be more adequately trained and informed, and by which men interested in police work as a profession may be able to secure the best instruction.

The course in its entirety requires forty-eight hours. These are covered in a period of twelve weeks, there being two classes of two hours each per week. At present there are approximately fifty police and detectives taking the course. Students of the college who are interested in the course may see the Dean for permission to attend the classes.

and his appearance will be awaited eagerly.

Other notable speakers will include Coach Harry Stuhldreher, Assistant Coach Bob Regan, Rev. Charles Melahior, O. S. A., Captain Eddie Michaels, and senior class president, William Vaughn.

One hundred percent attendance by the resident students is expected at this gathering on Wednesday evening. Failure to attend this meeting of the student body, held for the purpose of inspiring the team towards even greater football this weekend than they have shown so far, will be taken as a sign of complete disinterest in the affairs of the school. So everybody out Wednesday night for the DETROIT RALLY.

school of the college as a unit, and not spread through the book. The pictures of the faculty will be inserted in the school in which they teach.

Another important suggestion was in regards to the autobiography of the students. It was suggested to select one student to write the autobiography for every ten students in each of the schools. The autobiography is not to exceed 100 words in length, in order to have uniformity throughout the book.

The editor of the publication gave out assignments to each of the staff members so as to commence work immediately on the formulation of the book. The staff members were also asked to seek informal snapshots on the campus, which may be used in the publication.

Continuing from 9:00 P. M. until 1:00 A. M., the dance has been planned to be most attractive to the loyal sons of the Phi Kappa Pi, as well as to her present membership among the undergraduate school. The organization has now the recognition of being the most active group on the Main Line campus, and it intends to retain that precedent set by the now graduate membership.

With the realization that the "Villanovans" are potentially a fine orchestra, it has been arranged for them to hold rehearsals for at least six hours weekly. New and original arrangements are being prepared, and their music is being kept entirely up to date. The foundation has been laid for this newest activity of the fraternity, the fostering of the "Villanovans," and it remains for both old and new members to show their loyalty to the Phi Kappa Pi in their support of the dance on November 27, 1935.

interest those Alumni who have found it impossible to return to the College during the year. The completed Monastery alone is well worth the trip to Villanova. Other changes on the grounds feature the removal and rearrangement of trees and bushes that impair the view of the buildings from the Lancaster Pike.

Later in the evening, at 9.00 P. M. a dance has been arranged for the homecoming Alumni, on the Roof Garden of the Walton Hotel, Broad and Locust Sts., in Philadelphia. A ten-act floor show is the feature of the evening. All Villanova's sons are urged to meet on the roof at 9.00 P. M. and join in one of the most active reunion days of their history.

Another feature that Villanova has built up in the past year or two, and one that should be near to the hearts of all Villanovans, is the band. A newly equipped and finely trained aggregation of approximately forty musicians will take the field during the halves of the game, to entertain the spectators with their intricate formations and unique method of letter formation.

Then, too, very few of those former ardent cheerers of the Blue and White have heard the new victory "March of the Wildcats," which has become an almost incessant melody on the Main Line gridiron this season. The "Alma Mater," written by Carmen Giordano, of the class of 1936, is another of the recently adopted college songs.

Bringing to the fore, once again, the Detroit-Villanova game, which has been selected as the most interesting of this season's gridiron battles, it has been, in the past as it was last Saturday, and as it will be again this week, a close, hard-fought test of the might of the two teams. The four scores of this annual tilt to date are two scoreless ties, a 28 to 12 defeat, and a 19 to 15 defeat, both against the Wildcats.

present a different situation and that Villanova will be able to hold its own among the colleges of the country in this respect. This is entirely dependent on the student body. In commenting on the subject Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the choristers said, "We want everyone who can spare the time to come out for the glee club. You boys will have a lot of fun and at the same time be learning something. There are many students on the campus who have much latent vocal talent. They are the ones we want to show up at rehearsals every Thursday afternoon."

It is hoped that cooperation will not be lacking in this respect and that Villanova will be able to present a representative organization at various concerts throughout the year.

HOLIDAY DANCE IS PLAN OF PRE-MEDS

Lambda Kappa Delta Unit Suggests Thanksgiving As Dance Date

Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity held its weekly meeting on October 17, in Room 210, Mendel Hall; at which time plans were discussed for the enlargement of the organization's enrollment.

At present the membership is restricted to a definite number of Science students from each class. This limited membership was decided to be disregarded and selection of members to be unlimited.

The new system provides that each member shall pay a quota of dues for every year he belongs to the fraternity, plus his initiation fee, plus the fee for his fraternity key. This amount shall not exceed $11. If it does the fee for the key shall be disregarded.

Several plans were discussed for social affairs; none of which was considered to be satisfactory. Discussion of a Thanksgiving dance will, however, take place at the next meeting.

An annual event of raffling off tickets to the Temple - Villanova football game, held on Thanksgiving Day, was decided to be held again this year. Tickets for the raffle will be printed and sold sometime this week, and the grand drawing held shortly before the Thanksgiving holiday.

Representation of the organization in intra-mural sports has been planned, the teams to be selected from the members only. The group hopes to add color and interest in this manner to its ordinary routine. Detailed plans will be formulated and discussed at the next meeting.

THIS football season will go down as one of the dizziest on record. If there are not at least a dozen upsets each Saturday the fans think they have been "cheated." Speaking of upsets, probably the most disastrous upset of the season so far as we are concerned was last Saturday's loss at the hands of the Detroit U. eleven.

With the most promising team in years, it appeared that Villanova would be able to meet a strong Temple team with no losses to its credit, not that a loss or two will change the situation at all, but that it lends color to the annual affair. However, the fact that the Blue and White gridders lost last week is no excuse to stay away from the games, for despite their recent setback, our team has the color and possibilities.

—V—

In a recent issue of Varsity News (Detroit U. paper), we read an article written by the sports editor in which he criticizes the team severly and predicted an easy Villanova victory because of the defeat at the hands of the Catholic University eleven. With the result of the last contest still fresh in his memory he may predict an easy Detroit victory next Saturday. Well, here and now we wish to correct him on his views because the next game will be ours.

—V—

Every football season finds some rumor emanating from the lips of sports critics and followers. The latest is to the effect that Harry Stuhldreher will leave Villanova for the stamping grounds of the Lafayette Leopards. We wish to point out at this time that such reports have been heard for the last few years, and Harry is still here.

As a matter of fact, just recently the coach made a statement to the effect that he would remain at Villanova College as long as the authorities wanted him, and with the record he has made here in the way of wins and losses, our Athletic Council surely would not let him go.

Probably Lafayette would like to have him, but you second-guessers can rest assured that they won't get Stuhldreher . . .

Conference Out

Last week, in this column we mentioned a Catholic Conference possibility, and we stated that a former Holy Cross star, Gus Cervani, had taken steps toward its attainment. However, from the Fordham campus comes the report that the Rams are not interested in having strictly religious groups as their opponents.

It once played Georgetown and Holy Cross as well as Boston College, all of which are Jesuit institutions; but relations have been severed with all.

In declining the invitation to the to the league, Fordham authorities say that, "We will not yield to any college in Catholicism, but our football tastes are catholic. We aim to present the country's outstanding teams for followers, regardless of ivy associations."

St. Mary's, a Christian Brothers College, is the only Catholic institution on the Maroon schedule for 1936.

And with the Rams' stand on the matter topples all hopes of the much demanded league, including Holy Cross, Villanova, Boston, Manhattan, Duquesne, Catholic U., Georgetown and the aforementioned Fordham team.

The recent contest between our lightweights and those of Yale was marked by thrill upon thrill. Every minute of the game was filled with anxiety for both sides. At one stage of the game Charley Kain, Villanova left halfback, intercepted a Bulldog pass, and raced from his own 20 to the opponents' 10, for 70 yards before being downed from behind.

This play was only one of the many exciting ones, that lent color to the situation, we mention this here because the advance reports had conceded the locals a very slight chance of winning, in view

Winners Second Half Drive Overpowers 15-6 Lead Of Villanova

In a wild and nerve-wracking game played last Saturday, the Villanova varsity football squad was knocked from its perch of unbeaten and unscored upon supremacy. It was a battling underdog University of Detroit eleven, that blasted the Cats streak of five wins, winning out in the last quarter by the score of 19-15.

Being on the losing end of a 15-6 score at the half, the charges of Gus Dorais rallied with a mighty pile-driving attack and an assortment of passes through the air managed to eke out their margin of victory.

All but one of the Titans touchdowns came via the air route, with Dick Lutze doing the flinging, and Jones doing most of the receiving, it was one of these plays that saw a Stuhldreher coached team fail.

The Titans surprised the Wildcats with a touchdown on the third play of the game, Lutz, who with Jones and Charley Payne, were the big guns for the victors on the offensive, hurled the pigskin to Jones for a 51 yard gain. After being helped by a penalty, Detroit went through the line to the 7 yard marker and Lutz tossed the ball to Jones for the initial score.

An attempt at the extra point by place kicking was missed by Andy Frakas, substitute back.

Wildcats Launch Attack

From this point on the Wildcats really became wild and launched an attack that gave them the lead at half-time, 15-6. Immediately after the Detroit score the Felines worked together on an attempted punt by the aforementioned winners, and blocked it, with Michaels and Mellus doing the heavy work. Then in the second period, two touchdowns by Fox, the right end, via forward passes and a conversion by Nick Kotys made up all the Villanova scoring for the day.

Villanova scored its safety when John Mellus, brilliant tackle broke through the line and with Captain Michaels blocked Payne's punt on the eight yard line and the ball bounded into the end zone.

Mellus starred again at the start of the second period when he recovered a fumble by Frakas on Detroit's 20. Within five plays, the fighting Blue and White were over the last stripe, Andy Stopper, who had replaced Kotys at left halfback, passing to George Fox. Mellus' kick went wide in the try for conversion.

The Felines scored again in the second period when Fox went over the line on a forward pass from Johnny Higgins, the signal caller. This score was preceded by Raimo's and Nick Kotys's brilliant smashes and passes to Detroit's eight yard line. Kotys converted the extra point.

Detroit took the field in the second half, however with a determination that could not be denied. A Red and White line that was unbalanced in the opening minutes, became a stone-wall that wreaked havoc with the Wildcats on the offense.

INTER-DORM LEAGUE BEGINS FOOTBALL

Return of Touch Game Revives Previous Interest Of Student Body

With the rapid approach of November, the school authorities are now turning their attention to intra-mural touch-football.

For the past decade interest has run high in this extra-curricular activity.

The moderator of intra-mural sports, has laid particular stress on this outdoor pastime. It is his desire that every student be engaged in some outside competition.

Last year the laurels were equally divided between Austin Hall and Alumni. But with the addition of a large freshmen class this competition will be even keener than in previous years.

Intra-mural touch-football gives everyone an equal opportunity to display their hidden talents.

All students are eligible for participation, except anyone who is engaged in varsity athletics.

Managers Appointed

The school authorities request all those who are desirous of participating in touch-football to communicate with the manager of their respective dormitories. Pat Marquette will direct the proceedings at Fedigan. Jim Conroy will be in charge of Austin's team, while Harold Hart and Bill Smith will superintend at Mendel Hall and Alumni respectively. The Day Hops will also be represented in these contests by Al Fitzpatrick.

All games will be played on Mendel Field, on either Thursday or Sunday.

DAY HOPS ATTENTION

The Day Hops are scheduled for touch football this Thursday; all those interested are to be in the rear of the dining hall at 1:30 sharp.

LIFE SAVING LESSONS

Students Interested in Course Report to Coach Gill This Week

Life saving instructions are again to be conducted by Mr. Gill, a member of our faculty, in a few weeks. The first course conducted here at Villanova was instituted last year and proved very successful.

John McManus, manager of the swimming team has requested that all students who are interested in the art of life saving see him during the coming week, so arrangements can be made for the proper class schedule. All the students who have fulfilled their requirements for the course and who pass the examinations given will receive a certificate for their work.

150's PLAY RUTGERS

New Brunswick Foe Rates First In Intercollegiate Circles

This coming Saturday the Villanova 150-pound team will journey to New Brunswick to battle the Scarlet and Black of Rutgers. The charges of Frank Foster and Charley Cox will put in a strenuous week in an effort to be at top form.

After dropping a 9-0 decision to the University of Pennsylvania 150-pound team and playing a scoreless tie with Yale the lightweights will be gunning for their initial victory over the team from the banks of the Raritan.

In meeting Rutgers the Villanova boys will be up against the Intercollegiate Champions in the 150 division. The Blue and White were the victims of a 19-0 walloping at the hands of the Scarlet and Black aggregation and they will be out to avenge it.

The team will entrain for North Jersey late Friday evening and will rest in New Brunswick until game time.

Thirty-three men, in addition to the coaching staff, faculty adviser and the manager, will swell the party to nearly forty.

TRACK CANDIDATES START PRACTICE

Veterans Supervise Sessions In Absence of Regan, Regular Coach

Villanova's fall track season is now in full swing. Every day on the stadium track or around the surrounding countryside harriers under the tutelage of Ben Maloney and Tom Cook, two of last year's veterans, can be seen working out.

The boys who have come out are working hard and faithfully, but Ben Maloney, who has assumed the task of getting the track squad together, wants to see more out for the practices. All upperclassmen, whether experienced or not, are asked to help bolster the team if they feel they have the ability.

There will be no fall training for freshman trackmen, as there will be indoor meets arranged for them.

Distance Men Prevail

At the present time, of the members of the squad, the majority are distance men. The standout performer and the one of whom most is expected is Ben Maloney, a point-hus' kick went wide in the try for conversion.

The Felines scored again in the second period when Fox went over the line on a forward pass from Johnny Higgins, the signal caller. This score was preceded by Raimo's and Nick Kotys's brilliant smashes and passes to Detroit's eight yard line. Kotys converted the extra point.

150 Team Battles In Scoreless Tie With Yale

TEN TEAMS REMAIN WITH PERFECT MARK

Temple Leads With Six Wins; Dartmouth Sports Most Points Scored

Going into the home stretch, there are only ten Eastern football squads with an unblemished record, and there are three more with tie games marring a perfect record.

By virtue of its win over West Virginia, Temple took the lead in this department with six wins in as many starts. Trinity and Dartmouth, with five wins apiece rank second, but the Indians lead the Owls and the rest in the number of points scored. Compiling 200 points against 13 for the opposition.

Among the undefeated elevens to drop from the undefeated ranks were: Yale, being humbled by Army; Penn State, that fell to a belated Pittsburgh rally, after putting a scare into the Pitt club; and Villanova.

Albright, "the little school," has the distinction of being the only institution left in the unscored upon field. In three games played, no advance has been sufficient to dent their goal line.

Prior to Saturday's tussles both Villanova and Army were in the same category.

The three squads with ties are Holy Cross, Northeastern and Boston University.

Following is the present standing of the Eastern and Pennsylvania teams:

Team	W.	L.	T.	Pts.	Opp.
Temple	6	0	0	128	19
Dartmouth	5	0	2	200	13
Trinity	5	0	0	129	19
Princeton	4	0	0	104	19
New York U.	4	0	0	99	26
Army	4	0	0	95	8
Syracuse	4	0	0	91	24
Catholic	4	0	0	67	14

of the fact that they made such a poor showing against Penn.

In the last issue of the VILLANOVAN there was a notice for the student body to watch for news concerning intra-murals. After a consultation of the Athletic Council last Monday, it was deemed worthy of starting touch football, as a mode of diversion for the interdorm league. This sport has fast gained popularity at other colleges, and after a lapse of two months due to the uncertainty of the interest it would create here, Mr. Stuhldreher has drawn up a schedule.

As in the past, the success of the thing depends largely on the attitude that the day students take. Heretofore they have not been efficient in their support of the intramural campaign, but we make an earnest plea to them to help out by organizing among themselves.

—V—

Future Foes

Penn State, which will entertain Villanova November 9, at its home grounds, put on a surprise show last week and forced the University of Pittsburgh eleven to the limit before falling by a score of 9-0.

All the points gathered by Pitt, came in the second half. A three-pointer was registered by Patrick in the third quarter and in the last period he crossed the Nittany Lions' line. Jock Sutherland was compelled to expose all his tricks to the scrappy bunch from State College. The defeat removed Penn State from the undefeated and unscored upon class.

Taking a glance at Temple, we find that Pop Warner's boys came through their sixth game with an undefeated record. In so doing, however, they were extended for three quarters of the game, before they managed to break down the Mountaineers of West Virginia. The initial score was made by the Owls and the half-time mark found them leading by a scant one point, 7-6.

Davidson, substitute halfback, tallied twice in the final period to give the Cherry and White a 19-6 margin. Renzo, Kusko and Bill Docherty were the big guns in the winners' attack.

By NORTON C. PADEN

HEY! What's everybody yelling for? Have they gone absolutely screwy? Oh, Villanova made another touchdown, eh. Doggone it, I knew I would miss something. I was looking at that blonde down there. I know there are only umpteen blondes in the place today. Let's see; 1, 2, 5; she's in the sixth row from the front behind the bird in the derby. Yeah, the one in the brown hat. Ain't she sumpin'?

Who made the touchdown anyway? Number 33. Wait till I get my program out. List of players — this is the place, number 33 — Say I wonder what she sees in that fellow she's with. I'll admit I'm no adonis but — yeah — she might be his sister. What did you say? Oh, yes, number 33. Why that's Nick Kotys.

Why didn't you tell me that it was Nick; that's right, you didn't know. Well, I'll tell you all about him. There goes the half.

It seems that about twenty-two years ago on a particularly bad night the little town of Monessen, Pennsylvania, raised its population from 18,179 to the grand total of 18,180. The next morning every one was going around saying "Have you heard the news? There's a new baby over to the Kotys house. No, it's a boy."

What! Monessen is about thirty miles from Pittsburgh! Now will you shut up and let me finish.

Well, it seems that during the next day or two they ran one of the loafers out of town and that brought the population right down again; so the people kinda forgot all about Nick till some five years later.

About this time, Nick decided to get some book larnin' so he entered grammar school in Monessen. By the way, they liked him so well down thar' that he never left the place. The next few years were sorta uneventful as Nick gradually got accustomed to having his few liberties curtailed and settled down to the life of a scholar.

During the years he was in grammar school a rivalry existed between the grades in basketball and Nick was right in the center of things. He played forward for the various rooms and he sure was sumpin' on the floor. When Nick started toward the other end of the floor, the opposing team wished they had brought their bicycles.

At the termination of his elementary education, Nick entered high school. The first year Nick devoted himself entirely to study, I hope, and getting himself acclimated to his new surroundings. But this was during the first year.

It was during his Sophomore year that he really started to go to town in the athletic side of the jernt. He played four sports and was dern good in all of them. He started his competitive football career playing end and he played forward on the basketball floor. Track took his attention and he ran the dashes, pole vaulted, and topped the hurdles. He almost drowned in his first swimming meet but continued to swamp the others. In his junior year Nick was switched from the line to the backfield on the gridiron and immediately won recognition for himself at left halfback and he has played this position ever since. Opposition found it mighty tough to tackle the snake-hipping Nick as he streaked for the goal line behind a formidable interference.

The winter season rolled around and Nick reported again for basketball. This year he again went great guns and was elected captain at the end of the season. Track and swimming claimed his attention for the remainder of the year. The remarkable thing about the whole business is that Nick was held in high esteem for his scholastic abilities. Where he ever found time to study is for someone to figure out that has a better imagination than I have.

Nick's senior year at the high school is merely a repetition of the previous two years competing in three major and one minor sport. By the time he had graduated from his second phase in his educational career he was quite blase in the matter of receiving letters. He had practically the whole alphabet at the time.

Say, that blonde just turned around and gave me the eye. Sure there are only 200 people between her and me but I think it must have been me. That bird with her just left; so maybe she craves company. Nope, here he comes back again. Well to continue with the story —

Back in the fall of '32 after the big wind Nick showed up at Villanova with a lot of little Frosh such as Michaels, Korchinsky, and Vidnovic and calmly began to ease himself into the routine of the place. Nick hung up a record during his first few weeks. I think it was for toting trunks or something like that.

When duty called, he reported for football and nailed down the position at left half. This year the Frosh team were veritable iron men. As there were no substitutions the eleven men played the full time in all the games. This year the yearling team had a schedule of four games, only one of which they dropped. This was to a semi-pro team from Williamsport.

During his Freshman year Nick devoted his time not only to football but also to basketball and baseball, playing forward and second base respectively.

Summer rolled around and with it came the annual vacation. Nick decided that as he had not worked during the year he would enroll among the cohorts at a neighboring coal mine and spend the summer in the subterranean regions mining coal with the best of them.

The next year Nick turned up in the best of condition with hopes running high for a permanent position on the varsity. These hopes were shattered along with Nick's leg in an early game. When they uncovered the pile, they carried Nick off to the hospital with a badly broken leg. For the remainder of the year Nick was unable to compete in any sport whatsoever.

In order to loosen up he did attempt to play intramurals.

In his junior year he again played football and attempted to play baseball, but as spring football practice interfered he was unable to continue in this field.

This is Nick's senior year and to date he is up among the leaders in collecting touchdowns for their respective schools. At halfback Nick is alternating with Andy Stopper to really put the 'Cat team on the map. At the present time he has collected in the neighborhood of 40 points.

Nick is a senior in the C. & F. school, majoring in education. It is his fond hop that he will be able to garner a job as teaching coach somewhere. He thinks that if the team plays heads up football they are bound to come through the season with a good record.

Lightweights Brilliant In Stalemate With Yale

New Haven Trip Finds Felines Improved Since Encounter With Penn; Captain Rodgers and Kain Shine

SPORTSMANSHIP OF TWO TEAMS FINE

A powerful Yale lightweight team played host to the Villanova 150's and an exciting struggle ensued. After being unbeaten in their first three games they were held to a scoreless stalemate by a scrappy Blue and White aggregation.

Villanova's 150's flashed some of the best football displayed in recent years. The Yale boys carried the fight into the Wildcat territory throughout the first half but the second half was a bitterly contested struggle for supremacy.

During the fray the Yale power plays with Gary and P. Wargo as spearheads of the attack forced a determined band of gridders to hold as stubborn as a steel wall.

Streak Snapped By Detroit Team

ning backs continually broke through the Villanova line for substantial gains.

Twice with the Titans within striking distance of their goal line the Blue and White gridders managed to hold off their opponents. But a penalty for interference with a fair catch finally gave Dorais' men their opportunity with the ball on the 25.

Here Payne showed off to advantage and with the aid of Lutz, they worked the pigskin over the last strips. The try for conversion was good and the score became Villanova 15; Detroit 13.

Then came a fourth drive that spelled the doom of the 'Cats. Lutz began things with a 15-yard return of a punt on the Villanova 30. Three line plays gave the Red and White a first down on the 16.

Jones Scores Final Points

At this stage of the playing, Lutz faded back and threw a pass over the goal line to the far left corner. From all appearances, it seemed that the heave would be wasted as both Kotys and Fox were attempting to knock the ball down. But Jones, the homesters' quarterback, was directly behind them and snared it high in the air for the counter.

The spot at which Jones caught the ball was so near to being out of bounds that the spectators thought for a while that the play would be recalled. Shade's try for the point went wide. But the score was enough to warrant the Flivvertowners a triumph.

Despite the efforts of the Wildcats, the Detroit eleven held on to their lead with a determined stubbornness in the remaining minutes. The one time threat the Wildcats had a chance in those last minutes, went for naught when Kotys ran the ball for 12 yards to his own 40, from which point he attempted a pass that was intercepted by Karpas. After a few plays the game was ended giving victory to an underdog that was conceded very little chance of winning.

improvement, as did Bill Dinges and Jack Geraghty.

Captain Rodgers played his usual brand of heads up ball, and his kicking in tight spots was superb.

Much praise should be given to the Yale aggregation. They gave an exhibition of clean hard football, and were very good sportsmen.

With Rodgers and Kerrigan toting the pigskin, it was Villanova's ball on their own 30. Rodgers quick kicked to Yale's 40 and Hughes returned to midfield. Yale was penalized 15 yards for holding and on the next play Hughes was tossed for a 10-yard loss by Murphy.

On last down a beautiful pass Childs to Murdock, placed the ball on the Villanova 3-yard line. Yale was held for two downs and on the third Childs was hit hard by Stead and Menocal and fumbled. Bittenmiller recovering on the 1-yard line.

Rodgers kicked beautifully to midfield and Villanova was again out of danger. While seesawing up and down the field, the half ended.

Yale kicked off to Villanova and Paul Kerrigan who played a bang up game all afternoon, carried the ball back to the 40-yard line. One the first play Kain made five yards and then Goumey, substitute half, placed the ball on the midline. Here Yale held and Rogers kicked to the Yale 20.

Yale Threatens

Here again with Worgo doing most of the carrying, Yale advanced the ball to the Villanova 20-yard line. On the first down, Lou Wyndell, left tackle for Villanova, snatched the ball out of the hands of a Yale man and zig-zagged his way 70 yards to the Yale 10-yard line before he was tackled by Hughes, the Yale safety man.

After two plays the ball was placed on the 4-yard line but a penalty moved it back to the nine. On the next play Yale intercepted a Wildcat pass and kicked out of danger. With Rogers, Lyons and Cousart carrying the ball the game ended with the ball in Villanova's possession on the Yale 18-yard line. So again the last frantic thrust of the mainliners was denied.

During the course of the game, not only did the first team show up well but the substitutes also played heads up football. The two quarterbacks showed a remarkable meets were held, but this season will see four or more contests. Such schools as Rider, Osteopathy, St. Joe's, La Salle, Temple, West Chester, and Drexel are being contacted.

Indoor Season Near

The immediate objective of the fall training, however, is the indoor season the highlight of which is the West Virginia Intercollegiate meet at Morgantown, W. Va. Villanova has entered this affair for the past few years, and if a good relay team can be put together Villanova's annual entry will be secured.

Two members of the relay team which gained a third in the Penn Relays are back. George Wrona and Fritz Monahan are the two returning quartermilers. Still there are two more needed, and if there are any aspiring runners among the upperclassmen they are urged to report to Ben Maloney or Tom Cook.

FATHER AND SON MEET

Harry Stuhldreher saw his father for the first time in five years last Sunday, when the Detroit to Pittsburgh P. R. R. flyer carrying the vanquished varsity home stopped at Mapilion, Ohio, for a brief moment.

William Stuhldreher last saw his son when the former Notre Dame star visited him in the Summer of 1930. However, the local coach has had so much to handle during the past several years, that it was hard for him to leave this vicinity at all.

PITT STAR HIGH SCORER

Frank Patrick, Pitt fullback still leads the scorers in the Eastern sector, by virtue of the nine points he contributed in the Penn State game. However, his lead has narrowed down to a scant two point margin over O'Malley, of Trinity, and Stone, of Salem College, who have 5 counters apiece.

Stuhlie Says

Detroit has been met for the first time in this series and they have taken us. It was the toughest defeat I have ever experienced. The boys played well enough to win any ball game, but the breaks were against us. I am firmly convinced that we have a better all-around club than Detroit, but it's just one of those things that come in any season. Villanova was rated a strong favorite all over the country, and while the defeat was not an upset, it was, however, a surprise.

The team is not disconsolate, not discouraged. They played a good game, they know it, and they deserved to win. They came away from the Detroit field, not a whipped team, but a team that had forgotten its loss and who were thinking only of the game next week.

Shone in Defeat

Even in our first defeat, the boys were still heads-up players. We still had our outstanding players. Eddie Michaels played his usual stellar game and was the backbone of the line. George Fox has the makings of a great end. He was responsible for our two touchdowns, made on passes in the end zone. He played a cool game, never letting himself get rattled.

On the third play, Detroit made us realize what we were up against. They lined up in a box formation, the ball was snapped, the guard pulled out, the backfield swept out around end, all the men running hard. Our secondary came in close to stop the run, the line charged in and suddenly, Lutz, the Detroit ball carrier, stopped, spun around and heaved a long pass across field to Jones, the quarterback who sneaked out of the melee and who was standing in the clear in the deep short side. The pass was completed, and a gain of 20 yards was ripped right off to pave the way for the first Titan big six.

Team Came Back Strong

The gratifying element in the first half was in the way that the team as a whole came back to overcome that lead. Every man on the field did his job savagely, with the result that when the halftime whistle blew, Villanova was on the long end of a 15-6 score. That rebound satisfied me as to the result; the team had shown enough power and brains to win any ball game. They alternated their passes and plunges in such a way as to bewilder the backers-up.

From the spectator's standpoint, it was a wonderful game. Thrills followed thrills as the two teams seesawed up and down the field. It was a great game to watch and a great game to have played.

HELD FOR ATTEMPT TO AID JAIL BREAK

Chinese Police Detain Former Collegian for Participation In Plot

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

EASTON, PA., Oct. 28, 1935.—Eugene Brinson, Lafayette, '31, is being held prisoner by Chinese authorities at Hankow on charges of "assisting Communists to imperil the Chinese government, bribing officers, and attempting to procure the escape of a convict," college authorities here have been informed.

Details of an alleged international plot, which it is thought included Brinson, are as yet very meager. The early information cabled to this country told how Brinson and a friend, Carl J. Lemcke, were detained when it became certain they were attempting to work the release of Joseph Walden, also known as "Dr. Rivosh of Berlin," believed to be a native of Latvia and an agent of the Ogpu, the Soviet secret political police, from a Chinese prison. Walden was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment for espionage.

According to a reliable Japanese source the plot to set Walden free was discovered when a Japanese gunboat on river patrol in the in the Yangtse intercepted a radio message from the Soviet steamship Sever, en route from Shanghai to Vladivostok.

Brinson and Lemcke, it is charged, had planned to bribe the assistant warden of the jail in Wuchang, where Walden is being held. Wuchang is directly opposite Hankow on the Yangtse. In this way the pair intended to gain admittance to the jail, let Walden leave and have Lemcke remain behind in his place. Once Walden was safely out of Chinese territory, Lemcke was to have effected his own release by a mere declaration of his true identity.

College Diplomas No Guarantee For Business Success

English Executive Denies Value of Education In Commercial Fields

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

BOURNEMOUTH, England, Oct. 28—College men are too diffident and refined to make good salesmen, in the opinion of Charles C. Knights, an English business executive who addressed a meeting of sales managers here recently.

"For 99 per cent of salesmen in their daily work, the university man has no advantage over the secondary schoolboy," he believes. "What use is a knowledge of Latin or Greek, or higher mathematics, to a salesman who is selling soap to a small shopkeeper — or, for that matter, selling steel to a motor car manufacturer?

"It is easy to talk in platitudes about a liberal education, but every employer of labor knows that the possession of a good academic record is absolutely no guarantee that commercial success will follow.

Educator Advises Light Lunch For Mental Alertness

Moderate Eating Advocated For Those Engaged In Brain Work

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28—You'll dispense with heavy lunches if you want to be alert for your afternoon classes. That is, you will if you heed the advice of Dr. Donald A. Laird, Colgate University psychologist.

While on a recent visit here, Dr. Laird has this to say about the effect of eating large meals at noontime:

"Our experiments showed conclusively that brain, or cerebral, anemia, caused by the digestive organs drawing the blood away from the brain, is the cause of the sluggish mental condition which afflicts office workers after the noon lunch period, and that this condition results in a definite impairment of the speed and accuracy with which their minds work.

Last year football attracted 90 men and crew only 73. Prospects for both Freshman crew and football are excellent.

NATIONAL POLICIES ALTER ENDOWMENTS

Former President Says Colleges Suffer by Devaluation Of Currency

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—The present United States national policies, especially in fiscal and currency problems, have brough an increase in the cost of living and at the same time are depreciating the purchasing power of the income from trustee securities, such as make up the endowments of universities, former President Herbert Hoover charged in a recent address here.

Speaking at a dinner of alumni of Leland Stanford Junior University, Mr. Hoover said that if the theoretical devaluation of the dollar by 41 per cent should be realized in actual effect, then the nine billion dollar property and endowments of universities, colleges, hospitals, public libraries and other welfare institutions would be devalued to the same extent.

"It would seem," Mr. Hoover said, "that the government, having chosen to devalue our endowment resources, might make the gates of giving more easy of access. If all taxes and the limitations now imposed were removed from gifts and bequests we would receive more of them. If the purpose of the people is to redistribute wealth, I know of no quarter into which such redistribution could flow that would be more advantageous to the people as a whole than into our educational institutions."

REILLY UNANIMOUS SELECTION TO HEAD ARTS FRATERNITY

Alvarez and Murphy Withdraw From Candidacy Leaving Reilly Uncontested

MALONEY WINS POST AS VICE-PRESIDENT

Wm. McLaughlin Elected Treasurer; Harold Hart Takes Office as Secy.

Elections of officers for the 1935-1936 term were held by the Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity on last Thursday.

The meeting was presided over by Rafael Martinez-Alvarez, who was last year's vice-president. In the presidential nominations, the candidates were Edwi Reilly, Daniel Murphy and Mr. Martinez-Alvarez.

In the elections, however, the latter two nominees withdrew in favor of Mr. Reilly. This withdrawal resulted in the unanimous election of Mr. Reilly, who immediately took the meeting in hand.

The newly elected president expressed his gratitude for the confidence that had been placed in him. He stated that he was determined to do everything in his power to make the fraternity as active an organization as it has been in the past, if not more so.

Benedict Maloney was elected as the vice-president of the Fraternity. William McLaughlin was chosen to fill the position of Treasurer, Harold Hart was elected to fill the capacity of Secretary.

With elections over, the Fraternity has but to look to the future. The Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity will play a large part in the many social undertakings at Villanova this year. It is rumored that a dance will be sponsored by the combined efforts of the Lamba Kappa Delta Fraternity and the Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity. If the rumors are correct, this dance is expected to be

Committee Reports Rings Will Be Available Before Christmas Holidays

The work of the Junior Ring Committee has been confined to the consideration of bids from various companies. Among the latter are included: S. S. Kind Sons; Bailey, Banks, & Biddle Co., Caldwell and many other companies too numerous to mention.

There has been a delay concerning the choice of the company on the part of the ring committee. This hesitancy is justified, however, in view of the fact that Chairman John Donovan, the committee and the class moderator, Rev. Francis Ludwig, O. S. A., are carefully considering the prices of each bid. Fr. Ludwig has expressed his desire to obtain a good ring for the least amount of money.

The bid from Caldwell, though not definitely expressed by the committee, appears to be satisfactory. It is evident, also, that Caldwell is most interested in getting the assignment, for that company has offered to manufacture the die of the ring at its own expense.

For the benefit of the junior class, the prices as offered by the tentatively chosen Caldwell firm are enumerated as follows: Price of 10 pennyweight ring, $16.00; charge of each additional 2 pennyweight, $2.15.

The Junior students are also afforded the choice of any one of four stones.

James McBrearty, Villanova, Delivers Paper on Thesis Requirements

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers held a convention at Penn State College on Friday, October 25, and Saturday, October 26.

Villanova was represented by a delegation which included Prof. Henry S. Bueche, James McBrearty, Edward Casey, and C. B. Constantine. This group left Villanova Friday afternoon and returned to the College late the following day.

At the first session, held Friday evening, representatives from the following schools submitted papers: Johns Hopkins, Case School of Applied Science, West Virginia University, Lehigh University, Penn State College and Villanova College.

For Villanova, James McBrearty, president of the local chapter of the A. I. E. E., presented a paper entitled "A Resume of Thesis of Recent Graduates of Electrical Engineering at Villanova College." In brief, the paper related the change in thesis work fr the old policy of requiring an original design and subsequent construction of that design to the newer policy of requiring a lengthy written thesis with a lesser amount of original design.

The Saturday morning session was divided into two sections, one composed of the attending professors and councillors, and the other of the various student delegations to the convention. At their session, the students were told ways and

Among the more prominent of the committee of 22 members are Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College; Governor James M. Curley, Harry Emerson Fosdick, Arthur Garfield Hays, John Haynes Holmes, Frank Ritchie and Mary E. Wooley.

College editors in the United States also are campaigning against American participation in the German Olympics.

At last bringing to the fore the dispute as to the rights of the German peoples to their free citizenship, regardless of their creed or family affiliations or racial descent, this body "believes that all right-thinking Americans and lovers of good sportsmanship must oppose participation in the Olympic games because of the attitude of the Hitler government in oppressing Jews,

YEARBOOK PHOTOS TAKEN THIS WEEK

Individual Sittings Begin Today and Will Continue Until Thursday

Today is the first day for individual senior sittings for the college yearbook.

Robert McGrory, editor-in-chief of the Belle Air, annual yearbook of the school, has announced that the dates which have been set aside for the individual photographing of the seniors will be final, and that the seniors will not have any other chance to have their pictures taken.

The days of the sittings are today, tomorrow, and Thursday. F. Troncelliti and his associates have approached each of the seniors and arranged a definite and suitable time for the sitting.

Each senior paid $1 at the time he made the appointment. Failure of the person to put in an appearance will result in the forfeiture of the dollar. Those persons having a book-room account may charge the dollar to it.

A representative of Zamsky Studios, photographers of the yearbook, spoke at a recent meeting on matters relevant to cooperation, insofar as photography was concerned. At a future meeting of the Belle Air, there will be representatives from the engraving and printing companies to address the staff members in each phase of their work.

The photography department of the publication has been progressing rapidly, and pictures of the campus and the buildings have been secured.

STUDENT COUNCIL MEETS

The Student Council will convene again tonight in its weekly meeting to formulate a new constitution.

As a matter of convenience to the members, tonight's session is scheduled for 5:30 rather than the usual time of 7:00.

BAND COMMENDED

Vice-President Receives Praise For Showing on Detroit Trip

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president of the College and Director of Student Activities, has been a recipient of verbal and written commendation for the splendid showing made by the band on the Detroit trip. Particularly was their gentlemanly bearing singled out as worthy of admiration which reflected great credit on the College.

THANKSGIVING EVE P. K. P. DANCE DATE

Alumni Members Pledge Support of Traditional Engineer Group Function

With the definite setting of the date of the 20th annual "Engineers' Ball," for Wednesday, November 27, Thanksgiving Eve, many of the plans for the affair have been finally settled.

Tickets for the occasion have been ordered and are expected to be placed on sale immediately.

Door Prize Announced

According to Mr. Munroe, chairman of the ball, a door prize will be awarded to the holder of the correctly numbered ticket. This award is a distinct innovation at the Engineers' Ball, as this is the first door prize ever awarded at an Engineers' dance. The exact nature of the prize has not as yet been divulged, but Mr. Munroe is certhat it will be a valuable and distinctive gift.

Since it is the belief of the committee for the dance, that widespread advertising is the best assurance of the greatest success, much consideration has been given to this detail. Posters and floaters of the social have been drawn up and are to be sent to press this week.

Meanwhile, the Engineering Alumni of Villanova College, as well as many of those graduates of the other schools on the campus, are voicing their intentions of supporting this annual reunion affair. John Lyons and James Nulty, two of the foremost members of the Phi Kappa Pi, last year, and John Klekotka, 1934-35 president of the organization, have been contacted and promise that there will be no lack of their classmates on November 27.

Approving greatly with the purpose of the Phi Kappa Pi in promoting the campus dance orchestra, the "Villanovans," all present and former members are already active-

PRE-MEDS TO RAFFLE TEMPLE GAME TICKETS

L. K. D. Also Discusses Dates For Annual Fraternity Dinner-Dance

Lamda Kappa Delta fraternity held its regular weekly meeting last Thursday with Joseph Bigley, president, presiding.

Raffle books were distributed among the members to be sold at the earliest possible time.

Tickets to the Villanova-Temple football game will be awarded to the holders of the tickets drawn.

This procedure is an annual event of the organization and has been successful for the past several years.

Several dates were advanced on which the annual fraternity dance is to be held. Those will be submitted to Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president of the school, for approval.

TRIP TICKET IS $5

Football Team to Return With Fans; Large Following Expected

A special train will carry Villanova rooters to the Villanova Penn-State game on Saturday, November 9.

The chartered express will leave the Villanova station on the campus grounds at 8.34 A. M. The special will have left Broad Street Station at 8.05, the Thirteenth Street Station at 8.08, the Fifty-second Street Station at 8.16, Ardmore at 8.20, Bryn Mawr 8.25, and will arrive in Paoli at 8.40 and Lewistown at 11.45.

Reservations for the trip were opened last Thursday, and will close this Thursday, November 7.

A large number of the student body is anxiously awaiting this encounter. It marks the only game of the year away from home that a large number of students will be able to attend.

The cost of round trip transportation has been fixed at the greatly reduced price of $5.00. This marks a saving of more than one half on the cost of the usual carrying charges to the State institution.

To assure everyone of a seat on the special it is expedient that anyone desirous of going should make his reservation early. This will aid greatly in tabulating reservations.

The college band, making its second trip off the campus with the football team, will make the journey on the chartered train, and add color and music to the occasion. The members will receive lunch and dinner at the Green Gables Hotel in Lewistown.

Immediately after the game the Villanova partisans will leave by bus for Lewistown; from there they will entrain for the return trip to Villanova at 7.40 P. M. and will arrive on the campus at 11.00 P. M.

The football squad will return on the same train making it a 100 per cent Villanova representation.

DEBATERS TO HOLD DOUBLE MEETINGS

Two Weekly Sessions On Same Day for Convenience of Members

In the future, beginning with today, there will be two meetings of Beta Gamma Chapter of the Literary Society every Tuesday, at 2:30 P. M. in the School of Commerce and Finance, and at 7 P. M. in Room 204, Mendel Hall, respectively.

Behind this move is the fact that many men who have made their desire to join the club known, have been unable to attend evening meetings as scheduled in the past. At the afternoon meeting, Joseph Carroll, vice-president of the Literary Society of Villanova College, will preside, while John Hallahan, president of the organization will continue to preside in the evening.

Both of these meetings will deal with identical business, although it has been suggested that the early gathering be known as debate practice. The latter group will officially control the society, although it will necessarily take into consideration all decisions of the afternoon meeting.

This change should make it possible for every interested student of the college to join the Beta Gamma Chapter, and all who find themselves thus urged, may attend the meetings today in order that the officers determine if this change actually is warranted.

Officers of the Literary Society will continue as at present, with the

NO AMERICAN PARTICIPATION IN GERMAN OLYMPICS

GERMANY has violated the Olympic Code! A bold statement to make and a bolder accusation against a great nation of the world, which is none-the-less the stark truth. Under its present leadership, Germany is not observing the principals of democracy and of equality upon which the Olympic Games are based. The Olympic Code, which recognizes in the realm of sports the absolute equality of all races and of all faiths is the direct antithesis of Nazi ideology.

Until the Nazi regime has ended, the American people will have no reason to believe that the true spirit of sportsmanship to which the Olympic games are devoted, can find expression in Germany. It has been the Utopia of former years that the Olympic Games were absolutely free of the virus of politics and religion that has been injected into them by the Hitler government. Today, sports in Germany, like all other activities of the German people, are controlled by the government, and more specifically by Hans von Tschammer-Osten, Reichsport Commissar, a political appointee designated by Reich president Adolf Hitler.

Under direction of the government, as represented by von Tschammer-Osten, Catholics, Jews and Protestants, in short, all who do not become absorbed in the system of National Socialist ideology, or to put it more bluntly, anti-Semiticism, are thoroughly ousted from sports clubs and the right to participate in sports or to establish their own organizations is denied them. That the right of the American people to their distrust in German sporting spirit is wholehearted and invinceable is proven.

The swastika will fly over the Olympic stadium in Berlin, when and IF the games are held their in 1936; the same swastika which Reichpresident Adolf Hitler calls the "symbol of eternal anti-Semitic thought," and which Prussian Prime Minister Wilhelm Goering calls "the standard of anti-Semites the world over," and which has now been adopted as the sole official flag of the German Reich.

A call is therewith made to American sportsmen to decry the outrage of this emblem; to refuse to give their sanction to its doctrine; to demand that, not the great nation which is Germany, but the Reich, which is Hitler's meager brain-child, be put in its deserving place at the very bottom of things. The United States stands for all that is equal in the lives of her citizens. The United States cannot subscribe to the [illegible]ich will certainly dominate the "Hitler" Olympic Games. The United States must either demand the removal of the contests to some more broadminded and enlightened nation, or, as her only alternative, she must refuse to participate in such a gigantic show of unsportsmanlyness by withholding her teams from the 1936 Olympics.

FOR AMERICA — PEACE OR WAR?

MANY MEANS have been formulated and measures adopted by peace-loving groups to keep America out of the future inevitable war. A war that we know will come when the propitious moment arrives for the advantageous nation to strike.

The recent neutrality policy adopted by the Administration is a step in the right direction. But a more vigorous strong-minded foreign policy is needed.

The foreign policy of America, heretofore, has been vacillating to say the least. It would seem that American statesmen are no match for their crafty avaricious European fellow diplomats.

America was drawn inexorably into the last war and will as surely enter the coming maelstrom if stringent measures are not adopted at once.

These corrective tendencies may be advanced by keeping American goods, credit and citizens at home.

This seems a very difficult task. Undoubtedly it is. We can keep our citizens at home in case of emergency by a Federal statute. American exports likewise can be stopped. The only hindrance then is credit. If American big business is willing to risk its fortune in a shaky Europe, America then should not step in and endeavor to save that credit and "make the world safe for democracy."

That was our fault in 1917. The same thing should never happen again.

SALUTING THE FLAG

A NECESSARY part of public school instruction consists in imparting to the pupils a thorough appreciation for the facts and principles upon which this country was founded; the characters and determination of the men who guided its fledgling efforts; and the necessity of maintaining this system in its unimpaired and ancestral purity.

The flag is the symbol of these ideals and accomplishments, and not a piece of dyed cloth chosen as a standard because of its texture and colorings. Children should be taught to associate with the flag the generations of honest and courageous men who have expended so many efforts to impress upon the people of their own country the ever-constant guardianship that is required to sustain the precepts upon which they founded the country.

Children, particularly those in the lower grades do not have these things called to their attention with sufficient force to provoke conviction. Their reaction to the flag is usually one of passive acceptance, simply because those around them are doing so, or as was in this case, a stubborn resistance because their associates take such an attitude. But in neither case are they actually guided by knowledge or appreciation.

The fact that some few pupils because of home training or the religious belief of their parents refuse to pay allegiance to the flag may be ascribed to an improper and insufficient instruction in the doctrines of American history for the majority of them are too young to do their own thinking. Those people who see in this refusal a breakdown in the theory of patriotism, should take these facts into consideration and they will doubtless realize that they are making much ado, in fact too much ado, about what is relatively speaking, nothing.

ODDS and ENDS

LAST Tuesday night was the big occasion in the life of Will Mahoney, famous American comedian, now doing a series of shows over across. Will, whose routine consists of spins cracking flops and tapping out tunes on the xylophone with his feet, had the audience in almost uncontrollable laughter and applause with his antics at the Palladium, London's leading vaudeville house. As his show went on Will was applauded more and more and the reserved popolace of London became an hilarious bedlam. And what is more than enough proof to show that Mahoney really was a "wow" foremost among the spectators in laughter and applause were King George and Queen Mary.

We only recently read of the case of an eminent Russian surgeon who through a grievous mistsight left a towel some two feet long in the body of a man upon whom he had just operated. The man unfortunately died and the doctor was given a year at hard labor.

Now that news item caused us to wonder why John Eck after his major operation didn't sue for damages when the surgeon left the sponge in him?

Somewhere, someone is catching the very dickens right now and for a good reason. In fact it might even mean the loss of that person's job. For didn't all of you notice in one of the local evening papers the picture showing the ultra-modern office of a telephone company here in town? The caption informed the reader that said company was making remarkable progress in the last decade with regard to telephone communication. But the pay-off...one of the old-fashioned standup phones was in evidence in the foreground.

The pampered, contented co-eds of St. Lawrence University now await their Sunday breakfast trays in bed. Such a step has been taken and declared a fundamental right for luxurious-minded women at this institution. According to Dean Louise Jones: "It's a little luxury at the end of the week which I think every woman is entitled to have."

The men of the school, who are used to dashing out for their ham and eggs every morning, are complaining; they are wondering what kind of wives they will get if the women are given such luxury now. They are picturing themselves scraping burnt toast in some kitchenette, while their better-half awaits the morning tray. However, the women demand: "Let us eat, drink, and be merry over a Sunday morning tray. Tomorrow we must bow our noses to the grindstone of home or office. Today we take our coffee served, please."

"On Wisconsin," one of the most famous of all college songs, will become the property of the University of Wisconsin for the first time since it was written more than 20 years ago. Words of the song were written by Carl Beck, former Wisconsin student in 1909, and the music composed by W. T. Purdy. Purdy died in 1918.

Beck has declared that the song, called by John Sousa "the most stirring, enthusiastic college melody I have ever heard," will be given to the University in 1937 when the present copyright expires. The song was published by a Milwaukee music firm, and neither Beck nor Purdy ever profited materially from it.

CAMPUS CELEBS . . By Guarini

As We See It . . . . . On Words

By HARRY PARKIN

IN THAT rather vast field of learning which we aggregately call lexicography there may be distinguished two separate departments, which are occasionally so intermingled that no definite limits may be ascribed to either, but which are, for the most part, so insulated one from the other, that we may classify them as the words of Science, and those of literature. The former are words having a precise definition, and whose function it is to teach. As such they appeal to the discursive elements of the intellect and seldomly stir one beyond purely mental operations.

The latter are those of a more pliant constitution, whose wealth of synonyms permit various degrees of the same meaning — although they may do so by way of the understanding, their ultimate end is the sentiments.

Familiarity with the words of Science (we do not refer, of course, only to their abstract meaning) unquestionably broadens one's field of learning, and in fact removes many of the barriers to others; but these are all upon the same earthly level — continued advancement in them enlarges the view but it does not raise us a single step above the same level — those of Literature, however, are not unlike a Jacob's ladder upon which we gradually ascend to the rarefied heights where earth is forgotten nd "truth and beauty are one."

They develop and expand our sympathies until they are attuned with the infinite. They restore to our minds the ideal of justice, truth, mercy, which for the want of our moral capacity would shrivel up with inactivity.

The words of Science have only one particular meaning and one field in which they may be exercised, as it would be ridiculous to attempt to write a book upon anatomy using the terms of mineralogy. Likewise are they forbidden the preserves of Literature, for no matter how well it is executed the discussion of a rose in the terminology of botany will never succeed in having a sensuous effect upon the reader. Their office is not to cause the reader to emotionally individualize himself with the articles he is reading. And any effort to use them in this capacity is at the expense of the reader's conviction and interest.

The words of Literature are mighty ones, they unfold to man feelings that he never knew himself to possess; they remove him from the petty rounds of the day, and cast him in a new and better character. The majesty and simplicity, the violence and serenity of nature find a new and more appreciative response in him.

His fellow man becomes more than an accidental mass of protoplasm struggling from nonentity to obscurity — ideals cease to be impractical mental meanderings, and become things to be held to, to be valued for the responses they provoke.

They are to be esteemed for the properties, for which some find them objectionable; namely, their intangibleness. A line of poetry may never have bought its author a meal, but who can say the number of men who have risen from its perusal more stimulated with hope for the future, than after a hundred meals.

The words of Science give man an ordered life, those of Literature a full one; but it is only in their proper combination that we are finally able to realize the complete individual.

By A. T. MELI

THERE they are, waiting and silent. They neither urge, nor call, nor press their claims. Mutely they are ranged along the wall. They seem to be asleep, yet from each one a name looks at you like an open eye. If you look their way or reach a hand toward them they do not call out, nor are they insistent. They make no demands. They wait until advances are made to them; then for the first time they open up.

"First, when there is quiet about us, peace within us; then we are ready for them. Some evening on returning from a tiresome round of duties, some day when one is weary of his fellow men, or in the morning when clouded and heavy with dream-laden sleep,—only then is one ready for books. You would like to hold a parley and yet be alone. You would like a dream, but in music.

"With the pleasurable presentiment of a pleasant experiment you go to the bookcase: a hundred eyes, a hundred names silently and patiently meet your searching glance as the slave women of a seraglio look to their master, humbly awaiting the call and yet blissful to be chosen. And then, as the finger gropes about on the piano to find the key for a hidden melody, gently it yields to the hand, this dumb white thing, this closed violin— in it the voices of God are locked up.

"You open a bowo, you read a line, a verse; but it does not ring clear at the moment. Disappointed you put it back almost roughly, until you find the right book for the moment. Then suddenly you are seized, you breathe rapidly and as you carry it away to the lamp, The Book, the happily chosen volume glows, dazzles with an inner light. Magic has been done; from delicate clouds of dreams there stalks forth phantasmagoria. Broad vistas open and your vanishing senses are lost in space."—Stefan Zweig.

In the foregoing paragraph is expressed what books do for the individual. It is a strange unfamiliar association to most of us yet it is strikingly true and entire. Stefan Zweig has set down in words the ideas conjured up in his mind by visits to various libraries. It is indeed a pity that most of us can not share the same idealistic attitude toward the library in general.

The majority of us when called to use the library do so half-heartedly. We begrudge the time spent in the library and make every effort to make our visits few as possible. In college the few books assigned in regular courses are read with displeasure and the efforts of a well meaning professor to increase our reading results only in our being bored or annoyed.

It may be said, without fear of arousing comment, that the majority of college students become only slightly familiar with their library and still less familiar with the books and manuscripts within it. But it is only fair to add that there are many who make real use of the library and use it to best advantage.

It is not toward these that the criticism is directed but toward those who while possessing the ability to profit by intelligent use of books, disdain to do so. Such a man may have the false idea that college education is contained wholly in class lectures in the various courses. Now is the time for that man to wake up and make the most of his time in polishing off his intellectual attainments and in acquiring a fund of reading knowledge.

The attitude on the part of the student body is well exemplified in their neglect to return borrowed books, in their mutilation of these same, and in their lack of proper conduct when in the library. They fail to take advantage of the facilities offered them, many of them not knowing that the latest in scientific and educational fields is being constantly supplied to the seeker in the form of phamplets, magazines and journals.

Librarians report that while these are the conditions now there is indocation of an increase in the number of the proper type of students; the one who knows the purpose of the library and makes it his purpose to take advantage of it.

SUCCESSFUL RALLY HELD

Students Attend Gathering in Large Numbers to Hear Various Speakers

Showing an exceptional interest in the coming return fracas with the University of Detroit last week the resident student body of Villanova College turned out for the most part to attend the initial Pep Rally of the current season.

Previous to this rally the spirit about the campus had been very lax, in fact so lax as to border on complete indifference. But last Wednesday night the Wildcat followers turned out in large numbers to attend the gathering.

The assembly heard such speakers as Rev. John O'Leary, O. S. A., Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., Harry Stuhldreher, Charley Cox, James Downs and William Vaughn.

For the most part these speakers pursued the same tactics, that is, their speech was given in such a way as to excite the students to such a pitch that their support at the game would be over enthusiastic.

THE PERFECT POKER FACE

Henry Prather Fletcher Is Shrewd Master of Maneuvering, but Hides Talents and Tactics Behind Enigmatic Face.

I HAVE met astute citizens before, but this man Fletcher is a graveyard." These were the words used by Frank Polk, Under-Secretary of State during the War, to describe the present chairman of the Republican National Committee, Henry Prather Fletcher. This remark, and other similar anecdotes, all indicate that though he lacks Farley's inherent ability to make even the most humble voter feel comfortable, he has qualities equally valuable — an inscrutable Machiavellian manner of getting things done in a less obvious way, and a perfect and perpetual poker face.

These very mannerisms have brought him under the fire of Republican leaders who have asked for more definite signs of a G. O. P. rebirth. But Fletcher has stuck to his guns, tried desperately to combine the warring factions within the party, and rolled up a surplus of $25,000 which looks like a million compared to the Democratic deficit.

Fletcher himself is the very epitome of Republicanism. Born in the Cumberland Mountains to parents of Scotch-Irish ancestry, he, like his rival Farley had scant education. He enrolled when 25, as a Rough Rider under Roosevelt the First, and through this contact, won himself a job on the legation in Havana. From there he went to China, then to Lisbon, and finally back to China as first secretary in Peking.

Among this peculiarly cosmopolitan Society, he won the reputation of being an amiable roughneck, with a remarkable knowledge of the most pungent profanity. He soon became a master at playing the outwardly polite but inwardly cunning game of "dollar diplomacy," and his natural intelligence and coolness won him the position as the first American Ambassador to Chile.

In Mexico, where he was stationed through the war, he did not fare so well. Dollar diplomacy suddenly backfired, but these years were not in vain. He mastered Castilian, acquired a London tailor, wore spats and carried a cane. Underneath, he was the same, but it was a more cultured and careful exterior which he now possessed.

After serving as Under-Secretary of State under Harding, he was appointed successively Ambassador to Belgium, and then Italy. Meanwhile, he had married Miss Beatrice Bond, a ward of William C. Whitney. His brother, Gilmore, was close to the Mellon Dynasty, and Fletcher's position was, to say the least, secure. Perhaps it was the lack of excitement, more likely it was the stock market — at any rate, Fletcher came home, and soon accepted the chairmanship of the Tariff Commission, for which, as a good Republican, he was well-suited.

Fletcher is perfectly frank to admit that he has no use for the measures which are warp and woof of the New Deal. Because he has spent most of his life abroad, and because of his business and family connections, he has little comprehension of the problems of the less fortunate. This also he is not adverse to admitting. But as mahout for the rather decrepit G. O. P. elephant, he has found a job which is demanding, and which calls forth all his powers of shrewdness and cunning.

Irrespective of principle and platform, this country will see a Republican Party coached by a strategist who knows all the tricks of the trade. If he is able to dramatize Republicanism in a form which promises economic, and not mere spiritual relief — and observers think this will be extremely difficult — there is no question that he will have reached the apex of a long and interesting career.

Now comes Fred Allen, to clinch the argument with an admission that his youth too was spent catching red, white and blue Indian clubs. Look at him! Pet of the radio studios, in demand by stage producers, tormented by less funny fellows who want him to write their material, he is about to appear as a film star, as well as in the Center Theatre's forthcoming "Thanks a Million." He writes 60 pages of material a week, single handed, and were his real name Sullivan, he himself doubts that he could do it all.

More singers have "got the gong" warbling "I'm in the Mood for Love" and "In the Middle of a Kiss" than any other popular numbers...

The most popular ditties with amateurs are "Dinah," "Sweet Sue," "Nagasaki?" "My Wild Irish Rose" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling"...No ventriloquist has yet made his bid for fame via the amateur route...The most unusual "artist" she has worked with is a poodle, whose specialty is a canine version of "My Wild Irish Rose."

GLOBE TROTTING

By FRED WATERS
(Information obtained from the native Puerto Ricans attending Villanova.)

JAZZ. On entering San Juan, capital of Puerto Rico, there is one outstanding feature that first attracts the attention of strangers. The noise. Honking horns, crying babies, excited shouting, blaring victrolas, screaming peddlers, all add to the general bedlam.

The city itself is very picturesque, with its low, rambling houses, narrow, busy streets and ancient landmarks. Notable is old San Cristobal fort, beset by crumbling parapets and moss-covered moats, harking back to the days of Spanish rule.

Everywhere, bands are forever playing. Upon investigation they are often found to be celebrating a funeral, using jazz as the accompaniment. One occasion is recalled which the bandmaster made notable by playing "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

TOURING. If a tourist wishes to leave San Juan and travel for any distance, he usually hires a bus, that in most cases is almost as dilapidated as some of the roads over which it travels. The driver usually goes at top speed, meanwhile chattering to his passengers, and paying little attention to his machine or the road ahead. Many of these contraptions have names scrawled on their sides. One was very appropriately inscribed: "In God We Trust."

While traveling through the countryside, one is surprised to see steep hillsides under extensive cultivation. A farm sloping at a 40-degree angle, is not an uncommon sight. Slanting acres of waving canes make a very pretty picture. Here, in the cutting season, the workers may be seen all day long felling the cane before the dextrous swing of the machete, a peculiarly shaped long knife, for which no machine has ever been substituted.

THE HOME. In one particular line of endeavor, the islanders have met with marked success — the propagation of large families. The average household has six members, while many have as many as 15 or 20!

The average house is quite simple and crude. It is commonly a one-floor, two-room hut-like affair, poorly constructed and furnished. This is the average home. There are better, such as the villas of the well-to-do and the more fortunate; but there are also worse, such as the squatters' barrios, or settlements of the ultra-poor and destitute. In some places, as near Hatillo, squatters have dug countless burrows straight into the hillside, in which they live like animals. Sanitary conditions are deplorable among these districts, and the death rate is very high. One such territory is aptly called: "Sal at Puede," (Save himself who can.)

AMUSEMENTS. Although prohibited by law, cock-fighting thrives on the island. The barrios, in particular, are constantly engaged in this diversion.

However, Puerto Rican youths are gradually taking to baseball and other sports, with more and more enthusiasm, and it appears likely that these activities will eventually replace cock-fighting as an amusement.

Tennis, soccer, and swimming are quite popular. Ample opportunity for indulging in the latter is readily afforded by the 50 rivers and thousand streams that form a net work over the country.

CUSTOMS. Holidays are frequent, since to all the American holidays are added the Holy-days, each one of which has its parade, its band concerts and athletic contests.

Dancing, along with music is very popular. At night, coming from the negro quarters, can be heard the weird strains of the barbaric "Bomba," which harks back to darkest Africa.

In concluding this narrative, we are going to mention one of the most interesting and amusing customs to be found on the island. Wherever one goes on the island, except in some of the larger cities, are found people always carrying burdens on their heads, seldom in the hand. Cakes of ice, babies and everything else are carried in this manner. Feats of balancing which seem extraordinary to Americans are part of the daily life of these people. For example, ladies have been seen, during showers, strolling with their umbrellas, of which they seemed totally unconscious, comfortably balanced on the head!

"The Nazi Government is deliberately planning to use the Olympic games to promote its political prestige and to glorify its politicians," reports the committee.

While the committee is making a drive against American participation in the Olympiad in Berlin, under Nazi auspices, they make it clear that they prefer a transfer of the games to some other nation, and will work toward that end if it is at all possible to do so.

That the Olympics, if they are held in Berlin, will be held under the auspices of the German Reich, and predominated by the German Nazi Swastika, is evidence that there will be little of equality and much of insulting discrimination against Jews, Catholics and Independent Protestants of even the most liberal of the participating nations.

It is a boast of the Hitler regime that the swastika, now the sole official flag of the Reich, is not an emblem to stand for constructive ideals, but is an emblem of anti-Semitism. Reichpresident Adolf Hitler terms the swastika the "symbol of eternal anti-Semitic thought," and the Prussian Prime Minister Wilhelm Goering calls it "the standard of anti-Semites the world over."

The National Committee on Fair Play in Sports believes that American participation under the swastika, would be a means of upholding the doctrines of that nation for which it has come to stand. They demand that there be "No American Participation in the Olympic Games Under Nazi Auspices" and they have adopted this policy as their byword.

1100 Alumni See Villanova Team Win First Homecoming Contest

Annual Homecoming at Villanova was a huge success. It was made a double success for the grads when the Wildcats' football team showed them that the present edition of their Alma Mater's athletes is going places in the athletic world by taking a thrilling game from Detroit, 13-7.

Thrill upon thrill served to remind the grads of their days here and made them forget the worries of business and home. Time and again they responded to the efforts of cheer leaders and it was surprising to hear the number of alumni that remembered the cheers and songs.

Many an eye was watery and many a sigh was cast when the band broke into the first strains of the Alma Mater and brought the remembering grads to their feet. Possibly the singing of the light "College Days" brought back to their minds the days when the Frosh were humble and the footballers had long hair.

After the glorious victory over Detroit they met in the gym and then renewed old thoughts and memories with a tour of the campus. Over eleven hundred of them met Saturday evening at the Hotel Walton for the big banquet and get-together.

Many famous personages from every section of the country were present. From Massachusetts on the North, California on the West, and Florida in the South, came our alumni to renew old acquaintances and revive old times. Many athletes whose names have made Villanova history were there and they were particularly pleased to notice that this year's victory over Detroit marks the first homecoming day that was ever won by a Villanova team.

Thus did present Villanova do its best to welcome past Villanova back to the scenes of the best days of their lives—their college days.

FOUR INSPECTION TOURS PROPOSED BY A. S. C. E.

Bethlehem Steel Co., Keystone Cement Plant Among Sites Chosen

Opening the scholastic year 1935-36, with its first meeting last week, the Villanova College student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers are planning a greater and more interesting schedule than has reviously been undertaken.

Under the faculty leadership of Professor T. J. McCormick, C. E., and the student control of William O. Munroe, president; Edward McHugh, vice president; Mario Menocal, secretary; Arthur Carlton, treasurer, the society is already on its way toward the accomplishment of its proposed calendar.

Among the proposed tours of inspection that are being lined up are those to the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia Water Works, and the Keystone Cement Plant. Further activity, in the form of entertainment such as smokers, or social gatherings of the members, will supplement the regular business trips from time to time.

Failure to Reach Definite Meeting Time Holds Up Activity of Society

With the Rev. John J. Fitzmaurice, O. S. A., presiding, the International Relations Society held its first formal meeting of the year on Tuesday, October 22.

The principal topic was concerned with setting a definite time and place suitable for the meetings. In setting this time, consideration must be given to both resident and day students, as well as members of the senior class who are doing practice teaching. No decision was reached.

Other business of the meeting consisted in the distribution of pamphlets and literature by Fr. Fitzmaurice, some of which were those disseminated by the Carnegie Endowment, of which the society is an affiliate.

The next meeting is called for Thursday, at 1:15, in Room 213, Mendel Hall.

Last year this club attemped a dance affair which did not materialize, due mostly to lack of cooperation and poor organization among the members. Mr. Reilly hopes to remedy this situation, through adoption of new by-laws for the club.

DEBATING CHAPTER SEEKS OPPOSITION

Exhibition Debates and Meets With Oxford, Cambridge Teams Suggested

Last Tuesday evening at the weekly meeting of the Beta Gamma Debating Society much enthusiasm was voiced and many constructive plans drawn up for the coming winter.

President John W. Hallahan, Jr., with the cooperation of Prof. Anthony Frayne, deftly painted with skilled rhetoric a future refulgent with glory for Beta Gamma and Villanova. Not only are exhibition debates before the Knight of Columbus being considered, but it is possible that Villanovans may yet see the Beta Gamma boys pitting their strength against Oxford and Cambridge teams.

In keeping with the times, Beta Gamma is busy revising its constitution. Edward Carroll, chairman of the constitutional revision committee, is busy with Anthony Differ and Bill Deency on this problem. Depression pocket-books ought to welcome the rumor that they are eliminating the $1 initiation fee.

The Finance Committee, headed by Joseph O'Loughlin and supported by Jack Rhoads and Jose Licha, plans to oppose this movement. The next meeting of the society is set for this evening, Tuesday, October 29, 1935, in Room 204, Mendel Hall.

An Entertainment Committee composed of Jack Robinson, Joseph McGonnell and Robert Deverall, is busy planning dances and various other means of entertainment for the coming year.

STUDENTS RECOVERING

The four boys who were recently injured in an automobile accident are rapidly recovering and will be here attending classes within a week or so.

ly setting about making the ball a success. The musical unit, on their part, have begun extensive rehearsal and arrangement work in order to present themselves at their best on that night.

Whether or not the false ceiling that has been used in previous years will be continued for this dance has not as yet been announced, but William O. Munroe, Jr., has made publ the fact that he intends to use a more effective arrangement for ceiling than was used at the first fall dance this season. His decorative scheme, he added, will be of the finest possible, with no expense spared, for he believes that sufficient support of the dance may be expected, to cover such expenditures as are necessary to bring the affair up to the standards set by the fraternity.

Actual design of the programs has not been effected to date, but that they will be representative of the level of the social is a predetermined fact. The program presented at every Engineers' Ball in the past (formerly this dance was known as the "Owl Hop"), was thoroughly appreciated and its standard will be continued this fall.

HOLY NAME SPEAKER

At its monthly Communion breakfast next Sunday, November 10, the Holy Name Society of the College will have for its guest speaker Mr. Theodore Osbahr. Mr. Osbahr holds the position of State Deputy in the administration of the Knights of Columbus in New Jersey. Theodore Osbahr, Junior Engineer, is his son.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY IN CRISIS MEETING

Belle Masque Will Disband If No Response Is Had Tonight

Attention is called to a meeting tonight at 7:00 P. M. of the Belle Masque Chapter of the Villanova Literary Society, which will be held in Room No. 204, Mendel Hall.

This is a combined meeting of both chapters and is important as it may mark the beginning of activity in dramatics at Villanova after a lapse of almost two years.

Every student of the college who is interested in any way in dramatics is called upon to take an active course toward this activity tonight at this meeting.

It is imperative that a representative showing of students be made this evening, for it is only in this way that it can be determined if there is sufficient interest in dramatics to continue the same at Villanova this year.

Actual plans for this year's Belle Masque productions have already been formulated and will be presented to the chapter by the president, John W. Hallahan, Jr., at 7:00 P. M.

In this respect, the principals involved strongly urge the present Junior students to cooperate in order to insure the success of the function of issuing the class ring.

THE marvelous new Parker Vacumatic is no more like the pens of yesterday than your 1935 car is like a '25 model.

It's the identical pen you've often said that someone ought to invent.

Scores of inventors tried to—fully 250 sacless pens were patented before this miracle writer was born. But none found a way to surmount the mechanical faults of squirt-gun piston pumps, valves, etc.

Then a scientist at the University of Wisconsin conceived the Vacumatic. And Geo. S. Parker, world's leading pen maker, agreed to develop it because it contained no rubber sac or lever filler like sac-type pens—no piston pump as in ordinary sacless pens.

That's why Parker can—and DOES—guarantee the Vacumatic MECHANICALLY PERFECT!

Because there is nothing else like it, the United States and foreign countries have granted Parker patents.

Sportorial

By A. R. C. Sports Editor

VICTORY over the Detroit Titans in the game played here last Saturday, had more than a win attached to it, that is as far as we are concerned in this column, for despite the thrill of taking over a great squad from the mid-west, there is some sorrow in the hearts of Villanova followers.

Many of the fans at the game were seeing one of the greatest players to attend this institution, play his last football game on the local gridiron, and playing it in a grand manner. We noticed many substitutions come from the Cats bench, but in the maze of all the replacements none was for Eddie Micheals.

Probably the most colorful figure on the field during his three years of varsity competition, our captain has been the mainstay of the "green and inexperienced line;" that is to quote pre-season forecasts.

Micheals has only two more games in which to lead the Blue and White gridders, both away from home, and against tough opposition. If his spirit can still be transferred to the others then we predict two victories.

Along with Micheals others to participate in their last contest on local soil were Walt Kozhinski, left end; Nick Kotys, halfback; Milan Vidnovic, the captain's running mate, Johnny Higgins and George Wrona.

Orchids to Players

While we are handing out orchids let's slip a few to Sala for his amazing catch of the winning forward pass; Christopher for his signal calling, and return to duty after an accident. To Franny Nye, an unheard of factor in Villanova, until his display of running last week, we also extend an orchid, and last but not least, to Jack "Ripper" Earle, sophomore fullback, who was to have started the season at that position but was forced to the sidelines till last week. Despite his inability to carry the ball, as his injury will not allow it yet, Jack gave us as pretty a demonstration of blocking as one could expect.

Upsets and Betting

Recently there appeared in the daily papers, articles in which the grid coaches and scribes throughout the country were indirectly accused for the heavy monetary losses incurred every week-end. In making this statement they contend that bettors depend upon the choice of the various coaches and sports writers before wagering.

If these same accusers were to look deeply into the matter they would find that very few of the mentors ever pick more than half of the winners in their selections. And speaking of selections, we hope that no one depends upon our selections to fatten his bankroll, for to date anyone relying on our choice would be deeply in the red.

Speaking of the red, reminds us still further, that with so many upsets occuring this season, it would be a safer policy to bet on an underdog . . . not to encourage betting, but to point out that grid upsets have been a common thing this year.

The biggest upset of the current campaign was Notre Dame's last minute victory over the powerful Ohio State team. Which is a brief reminder of what happened here over the week-end.

Temple met a determined bunch of scrappers in Michigan State, so determined that they took the measure of the Owls with a belated rally. In all justice to the losers, however, we must state that they were handicapped by an injury list among which were included the sensational Dave Smukler and Captain Jim Russell. After the game, "Pop" Warner could only give praise to the winners, and his own men.

Future Foes?

In the coming encounter with Penn State to be played away, the Blue and White lads will be out to upset the dope on the Nittany Lions. It is the boast of the Up-

He eventually got his man, one of the many times that he did. This run made way for the first touchdown that followed a few minutes later.

BOXERS' SCHEDULE AWAITS APPROVAL

Raimo and Sala Form Nucleus Of Intercollegiate Hopes This Year

Two more opponents have been carded for the Villanova boxers by Coach Joe Foley.

Springfield College and the University of Maryland are the latest additions to the list up for the approval of Rev. Charle J. Melchoir, O. S. A. The latter of the two meets will be held in conjunction with a basketball game at the home of the Southerners.

According to Foley, we have another intercollegiate champion in Art Raimo, the stellar fullback. The record made by Art in last season's campaign is proof that there is something in this statement.

Raimo bested Kaiser, of Western Maryland, in the dual meet with the Green Terrors, and the lad from Dixie reached the finals in the intercollegiates. This augurs well for the 165-pounder from Massachusetts.

Foley further states that the Wildcat ringmen will have a successful season if the new men live up to their past records. He predicts the possibility of taking the team title at the Eastern Intercollegiates to be held at Penn State in the future.

Outlook Promising

Should the Wildcats cop the banner a wider field of foes would be available. All in all, the ring followers may look forward to a successful season possibly culminated by an Eastern Intercollegiate Championship team with two individual champions in the persons of Tony Sala and Art Raimo.

It is not definitely known yet whether Paul Kerrigan, who had to withdraw from the squad in the middle of the season last year due to an injury to his teeth, will return to ring warfare for the coming campaign. At present he is starring on the 150-pound football team, and much depends upon how he fegls at the end of the football season.

Future Foes?

Villanova has among its ranks a transfer from Penn State, the scene of past Wildcat triumphs, in the person of one Kubilinski, a heavyweight battler, who is to take the place of Ed Sullivan, who was lost

PASS IN LAST MINUTE WINS FOR WILDCATS OVER TITANS

Stopper's Toss to Sala in Closing Minute Paves Way for Victory in Second Contest of Series

JACK EARLE PLAYS IN FIRST GAME

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Aroused by the memory of the previous week's heart-breaking defeat, a clawing, ripping, tearing pack of Villanova Wildcats outfought the Detroit Titans 13-7 before a Homecoming Day crowd of 10,000 in the Main Line stadium last Saturday.

Before the 'Cats gained the victory they knew they had been in a battle. For four periods two evenly matched teams fought each other to a standstill, and it wasn't until there was but a minute left to play that Villanova scored the deciding touchdown. Then Andy Stopper faded back to Detroit's 30-yard line and fired a perfect pass to Tony Sala deep in the end zone.

The turning point of the game came midway in the last period when the Titans were out in front, 7-6. A powerful Detroit running attack, paced by Piper and Payne had carried the ball to midfield. At this crucial point Coach Stuhldreher made four substitutions in the Villanova line; McKenna, Rizzo Sala and Bell. The Wildcats immediately braced and took the ball when Nick Kotys leaped high in the air to intercept a Detroit pass.

The first play was a beautiful pass from Andy Stopper to Bill Christopher good for 30 yards. Stopper smashed his way off tackle to pick up 20 more yards and a first down on the Titan 20.

Here the 'Cat attack was halted by the fighting Detroit line and it looked like curtains for the Main Liners. But the green-clad warriors of Villanova were aroused to a pitch of fury that could not be denied. Detroit was forced to punt, Wieczorek got off a nice one to the Villanova 30.

Raimo started the 'Cats toward a touchdown by ripping off a first down on a reverse. Stopper got a first down just in Detroit territory, and Nye smashed through the mid-

Dartmouth Sets Pace in East With Six Wins in As Many Starts

Dartmouth's win over its traditional rival, of New Haven, Yale puts the Indians out in front in points scored and wins. Without a defeat and emerging victorious with six victories in as many starts the Dartmouth aggregation is out in front.

New York University and Princeton and Syracuse follow close on their heels with five wins against no losses. Albright with an unscored upon record prior to last week's tussle also remains unbeaten.

By virtue of the surprise defeat handed them by the Mississippi State eleven, Army's team fell from the undefeated ranks. As did Temple. Boston University has not been defeated but has been tied three times.

The other undefeated but tied team is Holy Cross. The Crusaders have won six games, their perfect record was marred by Manhattan, who incidentally ranks well up among the leaders.

Other squads having one defeat to hamper the boasting of a clean slate are Villanova, Williams, and Army.

Catholic U., and Boston College also fall into this category.

Pitt and Fordham each lost and tied one in five. Bucknell has two losses and Manhattan has two losses plus a tie, along with Amherst.

Following is a summary of the records compiled by the leading Eastern teams.

Last Tuesday evening at the weekly meeting of the Beta Gamma Debating Society much enthusiasm was voiced and many constructive plans drawn up for the coming winter.

President John W. Hallahan, Jr., with the cooperetion of Prof. Anthony Frayne, deftly painted with skilled rhetoric a future refulgent with glory for Beta Gamma and Villanova. Not only are exhibition debates before the Knight of Columbus being considered, but it is possible that Villanovans may yet see the Beta Gamma boys pitting their strength against Oxford and Cambridge teams.

In keeping with the times, Beta Gamma is busy revising its constitution. Edward Carroll, chairman of the constitutional revision committee, is busy with Anthony Differ and Bill Deeney on this problem. Depression pocket-books ought to welcome the rumor that they are eliminating the $1 initiation fee.

The Finance Committee, headed by Joseph O'Loughlin and supported by Jack Rhoads and Jose Lichs, plans to oppose this movement. The next meeting of the society is set for this evening, Tuesday, October 29, 1935, in Room 204, Mendel Hall.

An Entertainment Committee composed of Jack Robinson, Joseph McGonnell and Robert Deverall, is busy planning dances and various other means of entertainment for the coming year.

STUDENTS RECOVERING

The four boys who were recently injured in an automobile accident are rapidly recovering and will be here attending classes within a week or so.

ly setting about making the ball a success. The musical unit, on their part, have begun extensive rehearsal and arrangement work in order to present themselves at their best on that night.

Whether or not the false ceiling that has been used in previous years will be continued for this dance has not as yet been announced, but William O. Munroe, Jr., has made publ the fact that he intends to use a more effective arrangement for ceiling than was used at the first fall dance this season. His decorative scheme, he added, will be of the finest possible, with no expense spared, for he believes that sufficient support of the dance may be expected, to cover such expenditures as are necessary to bring the affair up to the standards set by the fraternity.

Actual design of the programs has not been effected to date, but that they will be representative of the level of the social is a predetermined fact. The program presented at every Engineers' Ball in the past (formerly this dance was known as the "Owl Hop"), was thoroughly appreciated and its standard will be continued this fall.

exception of Joseph Denney, who turned over his office of recording secretary, at the last meeting. Election for treasurer of the society will be held this evening at 7 P. M. at which time a joint meeting of the entire literary group is called. Nominations for the office of recording secretary will be held at each of the meetings today.

HOLY NAME SPEAKER

At its monthly Communion breakfast next Sunday, November 10, the Holy Name Society of the College will have for its guest speaker Mr. Theodore Osbahr. Mr. Osbahr holds the position of State Deputy in the administration of the Knights of Columbus in New Jersey. Theodore Osbahr, Junior Engineer, is his son.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY IN CRISIS MEETING

Belle Masque Will Disband If No Response Is Had Tonight

Attention is called to a meeting tonight at 7:00 P. M. of the Belle Masque Chapter of the Villanova Literary Society, which will be held in Room No. 204, Mendel Hall.

This is a combined meeting of both chapters and is important as it may mark the beginning of activity in dramatics at Villanova after a lapse of almost two years.

Every student of the college who is interested in any way in dramatics is called upon to take an active course toward this activity tonight at this meeting.

It is imperative that a representative showing of students be made this evening, for it is only in this way that it can be determined if there is sufficient interest in dramatics to continue the same at Villanova this year.

Actual plans for this year's Belle Masque productions have already been formulated and will be presented to the chapter by the president, John W. Hallahan, Jr., at 7:00 P. M.

definitely made, plans will progress as rapidly as possible in order to obtain the rings in the near future. It is the desire of Mr. Donovan and the committee and junior class moderator, Fr. Ludwig, to have the rings ready before the resident students return home for the Christmas vacation.

In this respect, the principals involved strongly urge the present Junior students to cooperate in order to insure the success of the function of issuing the class ring.

Scores of inventors tried to—fully 250 sacless pens were patented before this miracle writer was born. But none found a way to surmount the mechanical faults of squirt-gun piston pumps, valves, etc.

Then a scientist at the University of Wisconsin conceived the Vacumatic. And Geo. S. Parker, world's leading pen maker, agreed to develop it because it contained no rubber sac or lever filler like sac-type pens—no piston pump as in ordinary sacless pens.

That's why Parker can—and DOES—guarantee the Vacumatic MECHANICALLY PERFECT!

Because there is nothing else like it, the United States and foreign countries have granted Parker patents.

VICTORY over the Detroit Titans in the game played here last Saturday, had more than a win attached to it, that is as far as we are concerned in this column, for despite the thrill of taking over a great squad from the mid-west, there is some sorrow in the hearts of Villanova followers.

Many of the fans at the game were seeing one of the greatest players to attend this institution, play his last football game on the local gridiron, and playing it in a grand manner. We noticed many substitutions come from the Cats bench, but in the maze of all the replacements none was for Eddie Micheals.

Probably the most colorful figure on the field during his three years of varsity competition, our captain has been the mainstay of the "green and inexperienced line;" that is to quote pre-season forecasts.

Micheals has only two more games in which to lead the Blue and White gridders, both away from home, and against tough opposition. If his spirit can still be transferred to the others then we predict two victories.

Along with Micheals others to participate in their last contest on local soil were Walt Korchinski, left end; Nick Kotys, halfback; Milan Vidnovic, the captain's running mate, Johnny Higgins and George Wrona.

Orchids to Players

While we are handing out orchids let's slip a few to Sala for his amazing catch of the winning forward pass; Christopher for his signal calling, and return to duty after an accident. To Franny Nye, an unheard of factor in Villanova, until his display of running last week, we also extend an orchid, and last but not least, to Jack "Ripper" Earle, sophomore fullback, who was to have started the season at that position but was forced to the sidelines till last week. Despite his inability to carry the ball, as his injury will not allow it yet, Jack gave us as pretty a demonstration of blocking as one could expect.

Upsets and Betting

Recently there appeared in the daily papers, articles in which the grid coaches and scribes throughout the country were indirectly accused for the heavy monetary losses incurred every week-end. In making this statement they contend that bettors depend upon the choice of the various coaches and sports writers before wagering.

If these same accusers were to look deeply into the matter they would find that very few of the mentors ever pick more than half of the winners in their selections. And speaking of selections, we hope that no one depends upon our selections to fatten his bankroll, for to date anyone relying on our choice would be deeply in the red.

Speaking of the red, reminds us still further, that with so many upsets occuring this season, it would be a safer policy to bet on an underdog . . . not to encourage betting, but to point out that grid upsets have been a common thing this year.

The biggest upset of the current campaign was Notre Dame's last minute victory over the powerful Ohio State team. Which is a brief reminder of what happened here over the week-end.

Temple met a determined bunch of scrappers in Michigan State, so determined that they took the measure of the Owls with a belated rally. In all justice to the losers, however, we must state that they were handicapped by an injury list among which were included the sensational Dave Smukler and Captain Jim Russell. After the game, "Pop" Warner could only give praise to the winners, and his own men.

Future Foes?

In the coming encounter with Penn State to be played away, the Blue and White lads will be out to upset the dope on the Nittany Lions. It is the boast of the Up-

He eventually got his man, one of the many times that he did. This run made way for the first touchdown that followed a few minutes later.

BOXERS' SCHEDULE AWAITS APPROVAL

Raimo and Sala Form Nucleus Of Intercollegiate Hopes This Year

Two more opponents have been carded for the Villanova boxers by Coach Joe Foley.

Springfield College and the University of Maryland are the latest additions to the list up for the approval of Rev. Charle J. Melchoir, O. S. A. The latter of the two meets will be held in conjunction with a basketball game at the home of the Southerners.

According to Foley, we have another intercollegiate champion in Art Raimo, the stellar fullback. The record made by Art in last season's campaign is proof that there is something in this statement.

Raimo bested Kaiser, of Western Maryland, in the dual meet with the Green Terrors, and the lad from Dixie reached the finals in the Intercollegiates. This augurs well for the 165-pounder from Massachusetts.

Foley further states that the Wildcat ringmen will have a successful season if the new men live up to their past records. He predicts the possibility of taking the team title at the Eastern Intercollegiates to be held at Penn State in the future.

Outlook Promising

Should the Wildcats cop the banner a wider field of foes would be available. All in all, the ring followers may look forward to a successful season possibly culminated by an Eastern Intercollegiate Championship team with two individual champions in the persons of Tony Sala and Art Raimo.

It is not definitely known yet whether Paul Kerrigan, who had to withdraw from the squad in the middle of the season last year due to an injury to his teeth, will return to ring warfare for the coming campaign. At present he is starring on the 150-pound football team, and much depends upon how he feels at the end of the football season.

Future Foes?

Villanova has among its ranks a transfer from Penn State, the scene of past Wildcat triumphs, in the person of one Kubilinski, a heavyweight battler, who is to take the place of Ed Sullivan, who was lost

Dartmouth Sets Pace in East With Six Wins in As Many Starts

Dartmouth's win over its traditional rival, of New Haven, Yale puts the Indians out in front in points scored and wins. Without a defeat and emerging victorious with six victories in as many starts the Dartmouth aggregation is out in front.

New York University and Princeton and Syracuse follow close on their heels with five wins against no losses. Albright with an unscored upon record prior to last week's tussle also remains unbeaten.

By virtue of the surprise defeat handed them by the Mississippi State eleven, Army's team fell from the undefeated ranks. As did Temple. Boston University has not been defeated but has been tied three times.

The other undefeated but tied team is Holy Cross. The Crusaders have won six games, their perfect record was marred by Manhattan, who incidentally ranks well up among the leaders.

Other squads having one defeat to hamper the boasting of a clean slate are Villanova, Williams, and Army.

Catholic U., and Boston College also fall into this category.

Pitt and Fordham each lost and tied one in five. Bucknell has two losses and Manhattan has two losses plus a tie, along with Amherst.

Following is a summary of the records compiled by the leading Eastern teams.

PASS IN LAST MINUTE WINS FOR WILDCATS OVER TITANS

Stopper's Toss to Sala in Closing Minute Paves Way for Victory in Second Contest of Series

JACK EARLE PLAYS IN FIRST GAME

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Aroused by the memory of the previous week's heartbreaking defeat, a clawing, ripping, tearing pack of Villanova Wildcats outfought the Detroit Titans 13-7 before a Homecoming Day crowd of 10,000 in the Main Line stadium last Saturday.

Before the 'Cats gained the victory they knew they had been in a battle. For four periods two evenly matched teams fought each other to a standstill, and it wasn't until there was but a minute left to play that Villanova scored the deciding touchdown. Then Andy Stopper faded back to Detroit's 30-yard line and fired a perfect pass to Tony Sala deep in the end zone.

The turning point of the game came midway in the last period when the Titans were out in front, 7-6. A powerful Detroit running attack, paced by Piper and Payne had carried the ball to midfield. At this crucial point Coach Stuhldreher made four substitutions in the Villanova line: McKenna, Rizzo Sala and Bell. The Wildcats immediately braced and took the ball when Nick Kotys leaped high in the air to intercept a Detroit pass.

The first play was a beautiful pass from Andy Stopper to Bill Christopher good for 30 yards. Stopper smashed his way off tackle to pick up 20 more yards and a first down on the Titan 20.

Here the 'Cat attack was halted by the fighting Detroit line and it looked like curtains for the Main Liners. But the green-clad warriors of Villanova were aroused to a pitch of fury that could not be denied. Detroit was forced to punt, Wieczorek got off a nice one to the Villanova 30.

Raimo started the 'Cats toward a touchdown by ripping off a first down on a reverse. Stopper got a first down just in Detroit territory, and Nye smashed through the mid-

In the past there have been several notices, but the attention has always been indifferent. Anyone who fails to attend tomorrow will automatically be dropped from the staff. All freshmen interested should also attend.

Penn State Next Foe Has Envious Record

STATE TEAM NEXT ON WILDCATS' LIST

Nittany Lions Play Host To Formidable 'Cat Eleven After 23-Year Break

TEAM TO LEAVE FRIDAY

Bezdek Outfit Has Lost Only To Pitt and Syracuse Elevens

After a lapse of 23 years, Villanova against resumes football relationships with Penn State when the Wildcats do battle with the Nittany Lions at State College this Saturday.

The last fracas with the Upstaters occurred in 1912 terminating a series that started in 1902. During these years, six games were played and Penn State took all of them without Villanova crossing their goal line.

One must remember, however, that these games took place in the first decade of the century before Villanova was a power in the football world. All Villanova's defeats came in the era of the flying wedge, mass plays, and piling up, before the forward pass and lateral pass came into prominence. These last two plays are the deciding factors in most modern football.

To date, the Lions have had a fairly successful season, dropping only two games. Their first defeat came at the hands of powerful Pitt eleven to the tune of 9 to 0 while a strong Orange team from Syracuse handed the Penn Staters the same medicine. Western Maryland was triumphed over by the small score of 2 to 0. If comparative scores mean anything Villanova has more than an even chance of coming through as the Villanova team walloped the Southerners by the score of 20 to 0.

Lebanon Valley and Lehigh were easy meat to the Lions both failing before a determined State eleven. Another all imposing asset to the Penn State eleven is their line. In the games that have been played, this portion of the team has stood out. Composed of many outstanding players it has been almost impregnable. Those who compose this bulwark and will in all probability see service against the Cats are Miller and Fry, ends; Captain Weber and De Marino, tackles; Wismer and Zochwoski, guards; and Cherundolo snapping the ball.

A fine assortment of backs are also in the possession of the State aggregation. Rabbit Wear may call signals against Villanova while O'Hara, Andrews, Cooper, Smith, Owens, and Donato will carry the mail. The last three mentioned were hurt in the Pitt game but they may have recuperated sufficiently to give the 'Cats quite a bit of trouble.

As yet there has been no definite information regarding the 'Cats lineup, but it is quite probable that the same lineup as of the squad that made the Detroit tri will also see action against the Nittany Lions.

By proving their supremacy over Detroit on Saturday, the Villanova eleven have shown themselves to be a worthy foe for the Upstaters. With six victories and one loss chalked up against the Main Liners every indication points towards a possible victory over the boys from State College.

Bill Christopher and Johnny Higgins will alternate as field generals while Kotys, Raimo, Stopper, Nye, Earle, Stovlak and Emmerling will take the pigskin. The forward wall will be well represented by the stellar playing of Captain Eddie Michaels, Mellas, Rogers, and Korchinsky.

Coach Bob Higgins will depend upon his modified Notre Dame Warner system, while Coach Harry Stuhldreher's boys will play the pure brand of ball that has been so advantageous this season.

One of the features of the Penn State team is their "pinch kicker." He is Bielicki, a regular on the soccer team. When field goal is sorely needed the man with the educated toe is sent in, to convert. On his off days he sits on the bench with the rest of the players. Knowing nothing of football he is the freak reserve of the season.

The team will leave Friday accompanied by its retinue of managers, assistant managers, trainers and last but not least the coaches.

C'MON let's get out of here. I told you that it wasn't such a hot idea to come stag to this dance. There's more duded up males here sans members of the female sex than I have seen in many a day. Sure I know that brunette in the green evening gown. Her grandpa died in our basement. No, I don't know her. Do you think I'm a walking date bureau? I know, you go over and introduce yourself and then bring her over and introduce her to me.

C'mon are we going or aren't we? Do you mean you really don't know who that blonde fellow with the six-foot shoulder spread. You're more ignorant than I thought it possible. Catch me taking you any place again. That bruiser my dear chap is Milan Vidnovic. Does all right for himself in the line of dates, too. Doesn't he?

In order to add to your knowledge and fix it so you will not make a break like that again I will endeavor to enlighten you a little on his private life.

Way back in 1912 the gossip mongers awoke one morning to find that a very choice bit of information had slipped by them while they were reposing in the arms of Morpheus.

For once your perception is overwhelming. You're right! The information was that the household of the Vidnovics had been strengthened by a blessed event. (Page Mr. Winchell.)

As it was a man-child he was duly christened Milan after one of his ancestors. I'm not sure on which side of the house the ancestor held sway but it's the same difference. Along with Milan's cowboy and Injun era or maybe it was cops and robbers came the desire to do something big, so he enrolled in the Fifth Avenue Grammar School.

Maybe it was the teachers or maybe it was the school in general, anyway Milan decided to pursue his education elsewhere so he entered Upston Plan Grammar School.

He finished his elementary education in Meyer grammar. Here he got his first taste of competitive football, playing fullback for the school team. As they were in no league they resorted to sandlot teams to provide competition.

At the termination of his elementary educational career Milan entered McKeesport High School. He entered in the midterm and finished his high school in the following two years. As you can plainly see he was no slouch scholastically. What he needed to finish his course he took in the summer.

For the two years that he attended the high school he was the mainstay of their football team playing fullback in his first year and tackle the second year. As a backfield man he could plunge the line as well as the best of them but on the line he was the thorn in the side of the opposing team.

After a few plays, the boys on During the summer Milan worked for various concerns in and near McKeesport, namely G. C. Murphy, the 5 and 10 people, where he worked as an assistant shipper. He also worked for a pipe mill and for a wholesale confectioner.

As you will see, Milan was quite a talented young man. During his high school days he not only wrote for the sports staff but was also interested in the glee club and dramatics. As Hamlet he made a better baritone.

the opposite side of the line soon found that the plays run through Milan's position failed to materialize.

Who was Hamlet? Will you get ont of here. Everybody knows who Hamlet was. He was a — he was a —well, anyway his name was Hamlet and he knew Shakespeare or sumpin'. If you want me to continue keep your questions to yourself. There goes our hero again, with a blonde this time. I sure admire his taste.

Well, to get on with the history—

After graduation, he entered Villanova when Ma Sopho were tough. He spent a little free time being instructed in the manly art of trunk manipulation. And also did a little room cleaning on the side.

He enrolled in the ranks of the Frosh footballers and helped to anchor the line with Michaels, Korchinski and also made holes for the agile backs to slam through.

His Sophomore year found him alternating with Barney Lee in the varsity lineup, and his fine work at that post sided many Villanova touchdowns. Junior year rolled around and football again caused our young hero to grunt and groan on the line. It was during this year that Milan also was on the Junior dinner-dance committee. This was an elegant affair held at Green Hill Farms and Milan was right in the center of things.

He is a senior Commerce and Finance man majoring in education. A position of teaching coach is his ultimate aim. His favorite is, of course, football and his other love is music (according to Milan). His favorite star is Grace Moore and light opera holds him spellbound.

According to Milan we are due for a good season. Listen to what he says on the matter, "The first Detroit game was a tough one to lose, though it really helped the team by changing their mental attitude. I believe we will finish the season on top."

Wait a minute there is a Freshman dancing with that brunette. Stay here a minute I'm going to get a dance. HEY FROSH!

Raritans Stampede Coxmen In One-Sided Game 43-0

Outplayed By an Undefeated Scarlet Squad, Villanova's Lightweights Display Undaunted Spirit

CAPTAIN RODGERS STARS IN DEFEAT

Rutgers' 150 pound eleven, undefeated in four years, opened its 1935 season last Saturday at Neilson field, New Brunswick, by crushing the Villanova lightweights 43 to 0.

The Blue and White were held to a single first down and failed to advance the ball beyond the mid-field stripe. They were constantly being pressed back by the long runs and spectacular passing of the speedy Scarlet backs, Klinsman and Chandler.

Coach Cox's Wildcats were outplayed but never out gamed. Rutgers went ahead in the initial period and by consistent play added touchdown after touchdown to its total.

The onslaught began when Barile, the left halfback of the home team, tossed a touchdown pass to Larson, the right end, who was waiting in the end zone and easily plucked the ball out of the air.

A few minutes later in this opening chapter Klinsman caught a Villanova punt, and side-stepping and slipping by grasping Wildcats he ran 62 yards for the second marker of the contest.

The home team scored two markers in every period but the third, when a Rutgers' fumble bounded over the end-zone for a safety.

Rodgers Stands Out

Captain Rodgers was outstanding both on offense and defense for the outclassed Wildcats. His sterling play evoked cheers even from rabid Rutgers' rooters.

The Villanova men were outclassed in this game apparently due to the overwhelming emphasis given to 150-pound play at Rutgers, and the lack of time that the Blue and dle of the Titan line for another on the 18-yard line.

Sala Scores on Pass

On first down Bill Christopher called for a pass. Andy Stopper faded back to the 30 and then heaved a beautiful pass to Tony Sala, who made a miraculous jumping catch in the end zone. For good measure Christopher converted the point after touchdown.

Two plays after the following kickoff the whistle blew ending the game as Stopper intercepted a pass thrown by Dick Lutz in a last desperate bid for victory.

Thus the Wildcats gained revenge in the hard-fought battle packed with thrills from start to finish. Detroit in defeat showed a mighty fine club, boasting of the shiftiest backfield that Villanova has faced this year.

Field Conditions Unfavorable

The slippery condition of the field didn't hamper the hard-running Detroit backs, and the Titans had a slight edge in the first quarter. Finally, toward the end of the period the 'Cats came to life and with Ray Stoviak doing most of the ground gaining got a first down on the Detroit 34 as the quarter ended.

A complete new backfield consisting of Higgins, Kotys, Raimo and Nye started the second quarter for Villanova. On the very first play Nye darted through the line and sped to the 5-yard line before being forced out of bounds. Nye fumbled on the next play, but very fortunately Johnny Higgins recovered on the one yard line. After Kotys was stopped twice Higgins himself on fourth down scored on a fake lateral, giving Villanova a 6-0 lead.

Following the kickoff the Titans made use of a fumbled punt to penetrate deep into Wildcat territory. They got a first down on the 12, where an inspired defense led by Captain Eddie Micheals and George Fox stopped the advance cold.

Farkus Scores for Titans

Dick Lutz threw a short pass to Andy Farkus out in the flat to the right. Farkus gave a dazzling exhibition of snake-hipping, open field running to score a big six pointer for the Titans. Three times Villanova tacklers had their hands on him, and three times he shook them off. Cooper's conversion put Detroit in the lead, 7-6.

Later in the period the Titans again cashed in on a Villanova fumble and once more were threatening to score. And once more Capt. Micheals saved the day for his mates by stopping a fourth down plunge for no gain.

Thereafter the Titans were content to protect their slim margin of one point, which they did until Stopper and Sala collaborated to produce Villanova's winning marker.

Although every man on the Wildcat squad played good ball, several were outstanding. The 'Cats uncovered a new backfield ace in Frank Nye, soph right half. He was an important factor in both touchdown drives and was a tower of strength on the defense.

Micheals in Whole Game

Capt. Micheals displayed his usual stellar brand of play. He played the full 60 minutes and kept going at top speed throughout. The defensive play of McKenna, Rogers and Fox was outstanding. Andy Stopper's kicking, running and passing were another big factor in Villanova's triumph.

The slippery condition of the ball caused frequent fumbles, and it was only the alertness of the Wildcats that saved them from disaster. They would not have been able to pull their first touchdown pass if Johnny McKenna had not recovered a fumble by Stopper.

Saturday's game saw Jack Earle in action for the first time this year. Though slowed up a bit by lack of practice, he turned in a very creditable performance and gave a marvelous exhibition of blocking.

Young Lady—"Who's that fullback for Detroit?"

Escort—"He's Payne."

Young Lady—"A pain? I think he's an epidemic; but what's his name?"

The spectators expected Beer to be sent into the game anytime after Villanova had scored the second time. Dorais, however, either didn't need a substitution at end; or he may have thought he was in North Carolina.

What Villanova needs at their football games, is a page boy to help the ladies in distress. The gal in velvet who had lost her escort seemed very disconsolate until the cheerleader paged her boy friend; who it seems had drifted way up in the stands.

What's a football game without the thrill of watching the kids crash the grandstand from the bleacher seats behind the goal posts.

Time to play—2 minutes.
Score—Villanova, 6; Detroit, 7.
Scene—Villanova Stadium.
First Fan—"Gosh! If the Wildcats only had a couple of men like Nott and Storrie they might be able to pull the game out of the fire."
Second Fan—"Huh?—Yipeeeeee! Holykowawa! Sala caught that pass from Stopper for a touchdown. The game's ours!—What were you saying about nuts and stories?"
First Fan—"Not a thing."

staters for having held Villanova scoreless in their five meetings, the last of which was in 1912. A long time off, but the rivalry will be resumed in a definite manner. Penn State has fallen twice but it took Pitt and Syracuse a long ways before falling.

Having considered Temple, let's glance backwards and see what past opponents are doing. We find Bucknell preparing for their tussle with Detroit next Saturday.

The Bisons have won four out of six so far and have a tough schedule ahead of them. Western Maryland has won three and lost as many. LaSalle also has a three-three record. Ursinus has won but two out of the six games played and P. M. C. has dropped five and gained the nod in one.

Nothing definite is known about the Frosh canvas-kissers except their past records. As much depends upon them for the success of the coming campaigns, the outcome is doubtful, though optimistic.

Coach Foley wishes it to be known that training will begin in earnest about the middle of December, as soon as the ring is erected on the gymnasium stage.

NATATORS TO BEGIN TANK SEASON SOON

Manager McManus Compiling Strenuous Schedule of Meets For Coach Gill's Swimmers

With the football season rapidly waning, it won't be long now before the splash of the Villanova natators will be heard.

Coach Gill, who is overseer of this group of athletes, will soon start them on their merry way.

Last season Villanova had a fairly successful swimming team, but this year it appears that Villanova is going to have a highly successful one. Such conclusions are drawn from the fact that such stars as Wilmer Booth, present Penn A. C. star, and Bill Leahy, former St. Joe Prep star, are acting as a nucleus, around whom Coach Gill should not have much trouble in developing a winning team with the host of new Freshmen swimmers who turned out at the call.

Hosey Lost

Captain of the team, John Hosey, however, will be lost to the team. John was one of the unfortunates who were injured in the auto crash; but even though he will be unable to actually compete he will surely be there in spirit. A winning team will do much toward bringing John rapidly back to health.

Manager McManus is now very busily preparing a strenuous schedule, which will be ready for presentation in a few weeks.

Villanova has a winning, fighting and a successful football team. If the swimmers follow in the steps of the football warriors and do their best in competition Villanova will also have a successful natatorial outfit.

Stuhlie Says

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stuhldreher, Head Coach of Football, is writing this column to explain in detail the inside story of the game of the previous Saturday, explaining the results of the game and why the game went as it did. He will also give a prediction, based on previous performances, as to the outcome of the game of the following Saturday.)

ANY coach is gratified to see a team come from behind to win in a tight game. And that is just what Villanova did against Detroit last Saturday. Trailing almost the entire game, the boys put on a powerhouse drive in the last five minutes of the last quarter to pull a victory out of the air on a forward pass.

To top the pleasure I felt at the win, the team surmounted bad breaks by the score to plug on to a win. The Titans were in a good spot, deep in our territory with all the odds against us, and the team held like a stone wall to prevent that drive and to come out on the long end of the score.

The first half saw a determined push from midfield to a score and a brand of grand defensive ball to prevent the impending Titan tally. Detroit put on a solid offensive in the first quarter to threaten our goal line, but were denied their touchdown by our defense.

Cats Win in Hardest Way

Villanova won the ball game in the hardest kind of way. We had the breaks against us, those breaks which are so important in any football game, and we were on the low end of the score. The psychological reaction was against us, too, as Detroit had shown plenty of latent power in the game of the previous Saturday, and the boys were never sure just when the power would irresistably break through again to overwhelm us.

Considering all of those factors, the team came through to win a hard ball game in the hardest kind of way.

With five minutes to play and the score standing 7-6 against them, Villanova launched a sparkling attack that took Detroit completely off their feet. It was the most thrilling drive of the game, and one which concluded successfully in a touchdown. The final play which gave us the game was a perfectly executed pass from Stopper to Sala. Our pass worked perfectly to give Stopper time to throw the pass accurately, and although Sala had Jones right in his lap, he made a wonderful catch of the throw to give us our winning score.

State is a Tartar

As to next week's game, the result is "shrouded in the mists of uncertainty." I was talking to Jock Sutherland, coach of Pitt, and he said that State had really put up a battle, and Pitt had eked out the game on a shoestring. The Nittany Lions should have beaten Syracuse, but State was beset by the breaks again. I look forward to a great game when we go to State next week, and I will make no prediction as to the result. I hope that a large number of students are going to the game. As I understand it, about four hundred will make the trip. When you students get there, make yourselves heard; the team will need it.

Although State's record is not overly impressive in its victories and defeats, they have shown their power in holding such a team as Pitt to a 9-0 score. If the game had ended three minutes sooner Pitt would have won by only three points. So the boys and I are going up to State College with our fingers crossed. I hope we get the breaks.

THE Vigilance Committee has been criticized by many of the upper classmen but for no reason other than for something to talk about...The Vigilance men have limited powers and can do nothing as far as hazing the Frosh goes...Many are of the opinion that the whole Sophomore class should be commissioned as Vigilance members so that the Freshmen will not have a chance to dodge any regulations...And some of the second year men are on the committee just for the souvenir hat that is part of their makeup...The mammoth pep rally held in the Commerce and Finance Building last Wednesday was a meeting well worth remembering ..."Buster Cox" gave an interesting talk...Charley picked up the name "Buster" when he was out West...He took down a championship as a broncho buster...

The University of Detroit completed most of its football scouting over a single week-end...Larry Boeringer, line coach of the Titans, took in the Catholic University-Duquesne game on a Friday night in Pittsburgh and after the game he entrained for Villanova to watch the Wildcats give the Bucknell Bisons a 25-0 lacing...As the Detroit team played on a Friday evening, also, Head Coach Dorais scouted Texas Tech in its battle with De Pauw in Chicago the following day ...Economical and convenient, to say the least...

Kinsey Jones, clever field general of the University of Detroit claims Villanova to be the toughest he faced so far this year..."In Detroit they had us on the run during the first half and things looked very dark. I think the turning point of the ball game was Wiezorik's quick kick. We had something to be proud of when we scored on Villanova through the line," said Jones. "You know both teams boasted of not having any team score on them through the line and that forward wall of the Villanova team was a bulwark on defense."...

The Penn State football team boasts of a native team... Ninety-eight per cent (98%) of the squad claims residence in the Keystone State...

One of the most colorful organizations on the campus receives very little recognition . . . I am referring to the Villanova College Band . . . The flood of compliments from the city of Detroit was sweet music to their ears . . . Two weeks before the opening game, Pio Goggi, drum major, was seen every morning at 7 o'clock down on the football field practicing the art (?) of flinging the drum stick over the goal post . . . Pio goes over great with the bleacherites . . . The Wildcats gained the grand total of nothing around the Detroit right end . . . Boglarsky, Titan end was a bulwark on defense . . . One of the finest to play against the Wildcats this year he gets the nomination, from this writer, along with Benjamin, of Western Maryland for the terminal posts on the Villanova All-Opponent eleven . . . Gus Dorias, who handles the reins of the Detroit club, is one of the calmest mentors in the profession . . . Gus lets nothing rattle him . . . If he keeps up his pessimistic attitude he will succeed Gloomy Gil Dobie, of Cornell, as the Chief Moaner among football coaches . . . Then again that seems unlikely as the Cornellians have suffered defeats at the hands of Western Reserve, St. Lawrence, Syracuse and Princeton in addition to a stalemate with Lou Little's Columbia outfit . . . The cry from high above Cayuga's waters is to oust Dobie and chances are that they (the Alumni) will . . . With Bart Viviano, All-American fullback from Cornell a few years ago getting the post . . . Hope the Main Liners are as fortunate against the Nittany Lions of State College as they were in their return engagement with the Lions from the Automobile City . . .

"POP" PREDICTS 'CAT WIN

Temple Mentor, Gloomy, Gives Villanova Victory by Reserve Strength

By JACK GERAGHTY

"Although Michigan State gave us a grand battle, we would have won the game if we had been able to make several substitutions in the last quarter. Temple was tiring rapidly, and could not hold Agett, Sebo and the other plunging Spartan backs. Michigan State has what we didn't. — RESERVE STRENGTH!"

The preceding paragraph was a quotation given out by Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, genial coach of the Owls, in commenting on the Templars first defeat. In these words, he prophesized the result of the Villanova Temple game without being aware of it.

In his words, "Reserve Strength," the Old Fox slipped up on himself and predicted as accurately as possible, the final result of the eagerly awaited Cats-Owls tilt on November 23.

Temple's starting backs have been seriously used up this season, we will have had a two-weeks' layoff before the Temple game, while the Owls will have a hard game with Marquette, a team which will probably defeat them, and in summing up the contingencies, it is almost a fact that this year's game will harken back to the great Cat victory of 1933, when Villanova won by a 24-0 count.

STANLEY LEADS SCORERS

Eddie Stanley, Williams College backfield sensation has forged to the lead in individual scoring honors. In so doing he replaces Frank Patrick, Pitt star who was the leader for the first five games played.

Stanley has compiled 12 touchdowns for a total of 72 points in six games. Dick, and O'Malley of Trinity College were also able to get ahead of the Pitt halfback, over the week-end. With 66 and 61 points respectively. Patrick has 56.

Hawaiian Football Players Spurn Shoes As Hinderance to the Game

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 4—If you've never seen a Hawaiian football player booting the ball in a neat 50-yard spiral, you don't know what can be done with the bare foot, says Bill Baker, University of New Mexico student and former player of the island game.

According to Baker, barefoot football in Hawaii is the starting point for all boys who play football there and sometimes those who play the shoeless game elect not to graduate into regular footbal' play as practiced in America with shoes and other equipment.

To a new fan, Baker says, the game is astonishing. Imagine a boy taking a pass from center and booting a 50-yard punt. That's a common performance. But to see a Hawaiian run and dig his toes into the ball on a kickoff, sending it over the goal for a touchback—there you really have something.

The game of barefoot football is faster than the regular shoe-clad game. Cutback plays are usually avoided because the shoeless wonders can't hold the ground for shifty work. The passing attack must be fast for the thrower is usually hounded by a pack of fast charging linemen. Punts develop quickly, because for some reason or another, perhaps because it's easier to take a bare foot in the face than it is hard leather, many of them are blocked.

The equipment used usually consists of a jersey, trousers called "sailor-makers" and a sailor's hat. Few injuries are the rule, rather than the exception, and the general motto is, "Either you can take it or you can't."

Barefoot teams play in regular leagues, organized according to the weights of the players, from 100 to 170 pounds. Although the barefoot players prefer their own style of game, they sometimes move into collegiate ranks. Mickey McGuire, Hawaiian star at the University of Wisconsin three years ago, could punt 60 yards barefoot.

COLLEGE EDITORS FAVOR ROOSEVELT

Poll Proves That Democratic Policies Still Hold Favor Of Students

Editors of college newspapers, magazines and yearbooks favor the re-election of President Roosevelt, according to the results of a poll recently conducted by "Pulse of the Nation," a monthly magazine of opinion edited by Albert J. Beveridge, Jr. The complete returns, announced November 1, gave Roosevelt 408 votes, Brah 52, Frank Knox 26, Herbert Hoover 23, Norman Thomas 23, Governor Alfred Landon 22 and other candidates from 1 to 8.

The separate poll for parties showed: Democrats 386, Republican 183, Socialists 45, Independents 20 and Communists 10. The Democratic Party led in all sections of the country except New England, where the Republican Party was ahead. Complete returns are listed in the November issue of "Pulse."

Student Has Varied Experiences As Sleuth During Summer Vacation

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 — John W. Kluge, '37, Columbia University, was walking down a dark street in Detroit last summer. There was a man following him, two black touring cars with New York licenses were parked at the curb, and a third was cruising back and forth in the street.

Kluge, who was working as a private detective, decided he was on somewhat of a spot.

"I recognized the man as someone whom I had seen walking behind me several minutes previously when I had happened to look around," he said. "I'd been working all summer, but this was the first time the shadowing had been done on me instead of by me."

Kluge finally got out of that scrape, but it took some fast thinking. He yelled, "Here come the police," as a Ford coupe, similar to a prowl car, sped up the street. His would-be assailants made a quick get-away.

During his career as a sleuth, Kluge has done just about everything. He worked as a laborer in a factory for ten days to keep watch over a suspect; he once played a slot machine for ten consecutive days in order to strike up an acquaintance, and on another occasion was forced to hide in a rumble seat until he nearly suffocated.

"That was a divorce case," Kluge explained, "I had dressed up as a kid and hid in the rumble seat. I was afraid to lift the seat cover, lest the driver see me, but it finally got so stuffy I had to have air, and I sat up. The fellow was furious, but when I told him I had taken a hitch to save ten cents bus fare to the movies, he gave me a dime.

A divorce was subsequently obtained on Kluge's testimony that the driver of the car had been with the woman in the case that night.

HIGH SCHOOLS TO BLAME

"No institution does as much to destroy the love of reading as the average high school," said Carl W. Hully, of DuBois. "Teachers destroy the desire of a student to read after he leaves school by the manner in which they cram the classics down his throat."

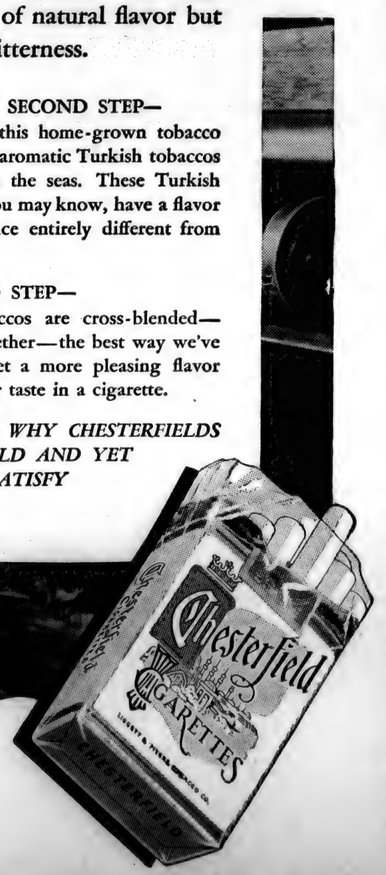
Mild and yet they Satisfy —how do you do that?

Well, to start with, we take tobacco from our own Southland — mild ripe tobacco with lots of natural flavor but no harshness or bitterness.

THEN AS A SECOND STEP—
We blend this home-grown tobacco with spicy, aromatic Turkish tobaccos from across the seas. These Turkish tobaccos, you may know, have a flavor and fragrance entirely different from our own.

AS A THIRD STEP—
These tobaccos are cross-blended—welded together—the best way we've found to get a more pleasing flavor and a better taste in a cigarette.

THAT'S WHY CHESTERFIELDS ARE MILD AND YET THEY SATISFY



In a single day people from ten different states visited our Chesterfield factories.
8,200 visitors during the past year saw Chesterfields made.

Plan to Have Freshmen Undergo Intelligence Tests In Near Future

After a lengthy and significant conference held last week, the Faculty of the School of Arts and Philosophy under Rev. Dean John F. Burns, O. S. A., Ph. D., decided to change drastically the policies of this Department by inaugurating comprehensive examinations for degree aspirants, installing full two hour quarterlies and raising the passing grades to 70 per cent.

The quarterly examinations will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, November eighteenth, nineteenth and twentieth of next week.

Regular classes will be suspended during these three days in the Schol of Arts and Philosophy, and will be resumed on Thursday, November twenty-first.

Absence from any of the quarterly examinations will be interpreted as inability to pass, and the absentee will be recorded as having failed. A period of two hours will

JUNIOR COMMITTEE DECIDES ON RINGS

Two Finishes and Variety Of Stones Are Available For Choice

Junior Ring Committeemen have succeeded in selecting a ring, which they believe, will prove suitable to the members of the junior class, according to John Donovan, chairman of the group.

After having given the matter careful consideration, the committee has chosen a ring that will give the purchaser good quality at a practical investment. The class rings will be manufactured by the Caldwell Company, a reliable firm of Philadelphia. They give every assurance of dependable workmanship.

The ring has been priced at the minimum of $16.00 for ten pennyweight. An extra charge of $2.15 will be made for each additional two pennyweight. The rings will have either a cut finish or a buff, whichever is preferable to the student.

The stone that will be mounted

ENGINEERS TO HOLD SMOKER ON TUESDAY

William Vaughn Appointed Chairman of First P. K. P. Function of Year

It was announced yesterday that the Phi Kappa Pi annual smoker and rush party will be held next week, on Tuesday, November 19.

One week from today, all freshman engineering students, as well as those upper-classmen who intend to apply for membership, and including all members in good standing are invited to attend this first social function of the fraternity.

William Vaughn, president of the senior class, was appointed to the chairmanship of the smoker and rush party. At the same meeting, Lawrence Shevland was appointed by the president, James Allan, to head the committee for the arrangement of the sports program of the club.

John Schlotterback and John Hallahan were appointed to the committee for publicity for the remainder of the school year, 1935-36. Although no committees have been named for the above two functions of the fraternity, William Vaughn announced through the president, that the smoker will include some kind of amateur entertainment. This social affair entails no admission fee whatsoever.

More Than 500 'Cat Followers See Penn State Upset Villanova

Last Saturday the Villanova College Band accompanied by a group of 500 followers traveled to State College for the first time since the two schools ceased relationship back in 1912.

The entire journey was made by train and then by bus from Lewistown to State College. The day could not have been more suitable for the occasion and the entire campus of State College witnessed one of its most spectacular and colorful house party week-ends by the arrival of the entire Villanova delegation.

The invasion of the Villanova Band made the local students and their friends take notice by their fine performance before and after the game. The unique formations which the small musical organization of the Main Line institution, as compared with that of the Blue Band of State College, was not outclassed in any fashion.

They introduced a very picturesque sight when they applied a double formation of lettering for the State's initials. This new formation of placing the hats of the members of the band on the ground for one letter and then marching on in an equal distance for the other took the crowd by storm.

The uniforms of the Villanova College band also received many worthy recommendations. After the game the bands of the two institutions joined in marching from one end of the field to the other while playing the Washington Post March.

There were several hundred students and friends who motored from the Main Line for the game,

NEED OF CATHOLIC ACTION EMPHASIZED BY SPEAKER

Vigorously Denies Theory Catholics Are as Rule Unpatriotic People

Responding to the invitation of Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., Mr. Theodore Osbahr, father of Ted Osbahr and State deputy for the Knights of Columbus in New Jersey, came to Villanova over the weekend and addressed the college Holy Name Society at its monthly Communion breakfast.

The main trend and subject of Mr. Osbahr's talk was about Catholic Organization and Action, in which he used his own organization the Knights of Columbus as an example.

"It is greatly important for you young men to know the strength of Catholic action to be found at the Communion rail," said the speaker. "There is no sight more edifying than to see a group of young men approaching the altar rail to receive their God. It shows that the foundations for Catholic action are strong within them and that they are ready to carry on and spread the faith and become good citizens."

Mr. Osbahr then went on to explain the history and the insurance system of the Knights of Columbus and the good results brought about by it. He explained that the ideals of the Knights are truly Catholic and that his organization is not Catholic Masonry as is so often the

Arthur Noble Named Head of Senior Ball With 28 Associates

Seven Members From Each of Four Campus Schools Selected for Committee Of Traditional Belle Air Ball

TENTATIVE DATE IS FEBRUARY 7

WITH the announcement of the Senior Ball Committee yesterday, came the first move toward the featured annual event of the Villanova College social calendar.

Arthur Noble, senior in the School of Arts and Philosophy was appointed to the chairmanship by the class president, William Vaughn, of the Technology Department. February 7, 1936 has been mentioned as a tentative date for the Class of '36 social.

Made up of 28 members in addition to the chairman, the group chosen to produce this year's Belle Air Ball is composed of seven men from each of the schools on the campus; Commerce and Finance, Technology, Arts, Philosophy, and Letters, and the Science School.

It will be noticed that this even distribution has become an established policy of the Class of 1936, to its great advantage.

Following the precedent set by the Senior Ball and Junior Prom of last year, will be a difficult task. However, both Arthur Noble and William Vaughn have volced their confidence in their class-mates abilities to put the dance over with great social as well as financial success.

When questioned as to the possibilities of the affair continuing along the lines established last year, Arthur Noble, chairman, declared: "If the Seniors cooperate this year aa they did for Junior Week, there is no reason why the Senior Ball should not be as big, if not a bigger success than the Junior Prom.

It was further mentioned in the interview that, in the event that the class desires to undertake to present an orchestra of the calibre set up as a standard by the dances in the past twelve months, it will still be necessary to underwrite the affair.

That the burden will not be nearly as great as it was during their Junior Week, is due to the fact that there is at present in the Class of '36 account with the Bryn Mawr Trust Company, with all debts paid, an amount totaling very close to $332.00.

This total had previously been

PROGRESS OF BOOK PLEASES M'GRORY

All Contracts Signed for Completion of Work On School Annual

Robert McGrory, editor of the Belle Air, today announced that all contracts for the annual have been signed. Zamsky and Co. will do all of the photography; the printing will be done by Clark, and the photo engraving has been assigned to Lotz and Co. That these three concerns are reliable firms has been proved by the admirable work all of them have done in the past issues of the year book.

Another important step was completed on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week when all the senior photographs were taken. Mr. McGrory expressed his appreciation of the fine cooperation given by all the seniors in being so prompt for their respective sittings.

Group pictures, the next phase in the photographic work, will be taken in the near future. The exact date has not yet been determined, but sufficient notice will be given to all organizations.

COUNCIL GROUP MEETS

Members Divided Into Group Which Will Draw Up Constitution

The Student Council will convene again tonight as usual to discuss a pep rally for the Temple football classic.

Another group will meet to continue with the formation of a new constitution for the organization.

At last week's conference, Chairman James J. Downs divided the members into these sections in order that the Council may accomplish the number of things that confront them in quicker fashion.

NEW CONSTITUTION DESIRED BY L. K. D.

New By Laws Would Allow For Increased Membership In Fraternity

Lambda Kappa Delta, the fraternity of the Science School, held its regular weekly meeting last Thursday, at which time a revision of its constitution was discussed.

Heretofore, the membership was limited to a total of 60. It was decided, however, that the membership should be enlarged to a total of 75.

Only twenty new members have been permitted to enter every year. This has been revised to permit a maximum of twenty freshmen to be admitted annually. The remainder of the entire membership necessary to complete the total of 75 will be drawn from the upper classmen, the approval of whom is to be made by a special committee appointed by the organization for that specific purpose.

This committee has formerly been the Governing Committee. It was agreed, however, that the commit-

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

THE recent ruling of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, upon the unconstitutionality of the State's attempt to forestall the publication of the proceedings of a criminal trial, by the imposition of fines upon the newspaper men who were reporting on the case, may be construed as another high court ruling upon the freedom of the press. Which in its capacity of keeping the public informed in current events must be permitted to carry out its own operations in the manner which only experience and policy can dictate. The newspapers of the country in their fight to maintain this standard, are safe guarding the foundations of democracy, for any curtailment in the freedom of their expression will be an abridgment of the public's right to an uninfluenced discussion of the news.

We desire no limitations upon the functions of the press except those which shall be arbitrary, there is an evident need for some newspapers to revise their standards upon what constitutes news, and more pertinently, news that will stimulate the mental and not the physical faculties of the reader. There is such a thing as that of abusing the freedom of the press, which in its final analysis has been delegated to it by the people themselves, who have been actuated by no other principle than the desire to receive an unbiased and undistorted recounting of facts. And in this respect the personal inclinations of the newspaper owners should be subordinated to the public rights. Editorial opinions do not belong in the news columns, regardless of the policy of the paper, for no press is entitled to any other policy, or should be dedicated to any other purpose than the truthful publication of facts. Any other attitude is a betrayal of public trust and confidence, and all their efforts for unstinted freedom degenerate into a personal desire to print the news as they would have it be and not as it actually is. Under these conditions a newspaper might be more beneficial to its readers if it was entirely out of circulation, rather than occupied in exploiting the subscribers confidence.

"LET THEM KEEP IT OVER THERE"

WHAT price Armistice? Or was yesterday actually the anniversary of the successful termination of the war to end all war? Are we today certain that the end of all war was determined by the end of the last Great World War? Why is the world today so hysterical in its demonstrations demanding peace? Is it because the peoples of the world know that peace is once again prepared to fly to some remote corner of the globe? Is it because we know that an even more terrible world conflagration is only too imminent?

Yesterday, the peoples of the Nations of the globe attempted to celebrate the cessation of hostilities in the Fall of 1918. Yesterday were the hosipitals and veterans' homes throughout the world the scenes of joyous celebration, permiated with a good-will toward all persons? We know differently. Yesterday, the peoples of the world tried to forget for a brief moment the horrors of 1914 to 1918. Those men who gave part of themselves, their legs, arms, faces, minds, to satisfy the greed of the world's wholesale murderers; who live in death in the hospitals and homes of the world, yesterday, did not forget that they will never walk again; they did not regain their eyesight; their jaws and faces were not replaced; their minds were not rejuvenated.

And yesterday and today, the world is again preparing for murder. 1914 and 1935; the difference in time is the only difference in atmosphere. Already there is war in Africa. God grant that it might stop there! Seventeen years ago, our mothers cried, "I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier!" Today, they demand, "Let them keep it over there!" War is at hand, but it can be stopped. Concerted action as that of yesterday can stop war. But it must be CONCERTED ACTION joined by every person in the United States. And it must be ACTION. The neutrality bill is the first realization that we DEMAND peace. Further demands MUST be recognized. NOW is the time to make them FORCE our nation into preserved peace! Yesterday was the opening gun in a war, not to end war, but to prevent war! Continue and our leaders must meet our demands. We will have everlasting peace!

A STARTLING ABDICATION

WITHOUT a doubt the most startling news item of the week, if not the year, the generation, the century, and yet it has been allowed to pass by with scarcely any notice or comment! We refer to the fact that Chicago, the queen of the middle West, has abdicated her throne and consented to take her place in the New York sphere of influence. For the famous "Windy City" has decisioned to move out of Central time and into Eastern time.

Haughty metropolis of the West, capital of the Valley of Democracy, self nominated and self-elected heart of the real America, she abdicates her primacy and becomes a satellite of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroad. One would have said that Chicago would rather see Michigan Boulevard sink into the lake and grass grow in the Stock Yards rather than submit to such a fate.

No one in his wildest dreams would have thought anyone could urge Chicago to embrace the effete standard time of the East. And just as wild the dream in which Chicago would say, "I will."

Or does it mean that henceforth in the Loop they will say that New York is living by Chicago time?

HOT DOGS AT VALLEY FORGE

IT HAS BEEN SUGGESTED by one of the local political party's administration to erect hot dog stands, peanut stands, and postcard racks at Valley Forge Park. This move to deface the beauty of the local park should be opposed strenuously by every red-blooded resident of this section of Pennsylvania and for that part every resident of the entire state.

Pennsylvania owes it to the nation itself to preserve Valley Forge from those spoilers who would fashion it into a county fair or three-ring circus. Let the would-be backers of the dispensers restrict their attention to the selling of frankfurters in Philadelphia.

HAVING been severely criticized in more than one instance upon the publication of last week's column for stealing bits from other papers, we feel it necessary at this point to wipe away the blemishes from our good (?) name by informing all our none too gentle critics that last week's patter was pounded out by a helper whose name it would be unfair to divulge. Which makes the difference between a good columnist and a punk one simply this, a good columnist gets his dope from sources quite secret and none to obvious. So dere youse are!

Investigation finally revealed to us why Dave Scanlon's countenance assumes a reddish hue whenever the topic of wheelchairs is brought up. It seems that shortly after the unfortunate accident in which friend Dave was involved, his condition became such that he was allowed to cruise about the corridors of the Bryn Mawr Hospital in a wheelchair. Dave felt high and mighty in his new speed wagon but at the same time couldn't quite figure out why all the nurses and attendants and visitors at the hospital wore ill-concealed grins when he passed by. Not until he had spent some time in his prowl car did Dave discover the reason. Painted on the back of the wheelchair in bold black letters was "Maternity Ward!"

Norbert Ford, he of the tapering waist, is still experiencing discomfort when he thinks of the recent dance held at Immaculata College. It seems that "Gable" received a last minute invite to the affair and being without his own formal "duds" he was obliged to borrow. Result: From the waist up our hero was attired in the outfit belonging to one of the campus's two hundred and twenty pounders while from amidships down "Lochinvar" was bedecked in the belongings of a measly 135-pounder. All in all, it was a great evening for "Gable." His combination wrestling trunks and sledding coat gave him a never to be forgotten appearance.

Here's a new one that is credited to the Northwestern Mounties. For it seems that it is not only a question of them getting their man nowadays but they also get their liquor. For the following is the tale of one of the organization's "best." . . . "I was chasing the car in one of our patrol cars when I saw B—— pouring some brown substance out of a bottle into the road. I leaned out the side of my car (which incidentally was 15 yards behind that of the fleeing B——) and tasted the stuff. It was rum!" Needless to say the adjournment sought by the defense attorney was granted.

At the University of Utah, a sweet young co-ed tripped up to the library desk and asked for "Horses' Oats." After much discussion with the head librarian it was finally decided that the young lady wanted "Horace's Odes."

College Chatter

By Carmen Giordano

AT Marquette, students living in fraternity houses have their names, characteristics and peculiarities listed with the police...There are just five thousand eight hundred and forty-four square squares of glass in the east and west dining halls at Notre Dame... Three students at the University of Colorado were suspended because they perpetrated the old college stunt of putting a cow in the belfry ...the bell did not ring that morning.

Students who are taking courses in philosophy will no doubt be glad to know the difference between a Stoic and a Cynic; a Stoic is that which brings the babies, and a Cynic is that in which one washes the dishes.

Here's one for you slide rule boys. "If Eve wrote down a column of figures, would Cain be Able to Adam?"

So says a De Pauw freshman, probably telling his date how it felt to be collegiate, "Before I came to this campus I was one of the most conceited men you ever saw. But since my fraternity has knocked some of the conceit out of me, I am one of the best men in the pledge class."

Probably the most unique scholarship in America is one offered by Hamilton College. It is worth $500 and is open to all men in America by the name of Leavenworth.

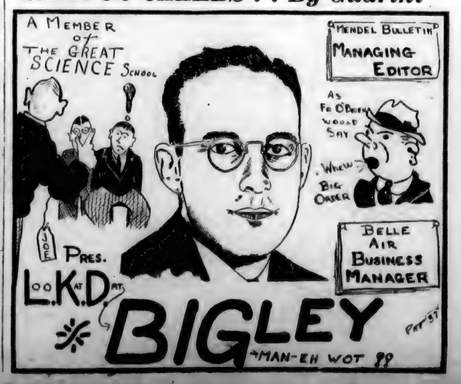
Gatekeepers at Ohio State University have a novel method for deciding whether you're sober enough to enter the stadium. If you can wiggle your thumbs in unison, you're O. K. Otherwise you can watch the game from a telegraph pole.

A Harvard professor recently promised to eat his shirt if he was proved wrong in an argument. When he was convinced that his opponent had the better of him, he dissolved the shirt in an acid. Then he neutralized it with a base; the precipitated material was filtered, and he then spread it on a slice of bread and proceeded to eat it.

Librarians at Bucknell University have introduced a new system. No longer will co-eds or males walking around in a daze have to thumb through the shelves until they come to something that suits their fancy. Enterprising librarians have arranged the volumes according to moods. If you are feeling a bit fretful and unsettled, there is the "love" shelf; and should you have a cold in the head and feel sour and disillusioned about it all, there is the "gall and bitterness" shelf.

A story about freshmen is always welcomed. Here's one which actually took place within these dear portals of Villanova. A certain freshman was sent on an errand to one of the offices. He knocked on the door...no answer. Timidly he opened the door to see if anyone was in the office. Not seeing anyone in the room he closed the door and began knocking again until it occurred to him that no one was in there.

CAMPUS CELEBS . . By Guarini



As We See It . . . Reflections

By HARRY PARKIN

WE are inclined toward the opinion that it would be difficult to find a more useless individual than the average college student. Society, as personified by his parents, has tolerated and supported him for some nineteen or twenty years on the supposition that their indulgence by the existence will be justified by the existence in him of the potentiality for ultimately proving beneficial to the human race. They hope, in other words, that his future usefulness will do more than counter belance his present uselessness. For 20 years or so he is principally occupied in absorbing the products of other people's labors, and will not infrequently become so entrenched in his attitude toward life, that you will find him complaining at any stint or even apparent diminuition in the privileges which he has come to regard as his title.

We often wonder how many students have ever thought upon their general uselessness to society—how many have realized and appreciated their utter dependence upon another's good will and labors, or conjectured upon the peculiar elements that comprise the disposition of their parents that they should be prompted to so many concessions, when often it would have been much more convenient, and certainly far more profitable to withhold their bounty and leave the student else out his livelihood from a reluctant world, and obtain his education only as the result of individual ambition and exertion. Parents are indeed peculiar things but the misfortune of their existence is the length of time that it requires their sons to understand how fortunate a thing it is for him that their peculiarities are of such a wonderful kind.

We have always found it difficult to reconcile the female character that will exercise itself in the derogation of the comelines, personality, or social pretensions of some less fortunate member of the sex, and still believe herself entitled to all the civilities that man is accustomed to accord to her kind. Man's respect for woman is measured, as much by her esteem for her own sex, as it is by her respect for herself. Women in their criticisms of one another should be mindful of this, as well as the fact that the weaknesses and delinquencies which they view with such concern in their sisters, may be due as much to infelicitous circumstances as to any want of personal stability. As it is impossible to remove certain limbs from the torso without impairing the symetry of the whole, so it is impossible to disparge the individual members of a group without all those who comprise it suffering a proportionate lessening of one's regard.

Someone said, although his name escapes us at the present writing, of Lord Shaftesbury that he seems to write with his coronet on and his mantle before him. A description which we may apply with no little difficulty to many contemporary writers. The satisfaction a person derives from seeing his lucubrations in print is quite likely to conclude them irrefragable. He can, and all too readily, convince himself that publication confers infallability, with the result that he frequently becomes more positive in his assertions, and more denunciatory in his condemnations. This attitude can and usually does have but one termination, and that, he finds himself engaged in a discussion about which he not only knows nothing, but his every opinion makes him the subject of derision and scorn.

in the ring can be selected from any of the following: Sardonyx, Onyx, Blood Stone. There will be another type of stone to be decided upon later.

Orders for the rings will be taken any time after tomorrow. Members of the committee, two from each school, will handle every order with exact precision. A deposit of $5.00 is required to accompany each order of a ring. Junior students are requested to cooperate with the committee by securing their rings at the earliest possible date.

In the Library

THIS week we are publishing a poem whose author prefers to remain anonymous. While it is not meant for students at Villanova it nevertheless might be well harkened to by some.

"The Book's Lament"

Out of the stacks and far away
You carried me, to read, one day.
You cast me aside, and here I lie
Neglected, unused—perhaps to die.
I'm mixed with books which breeding lack,
For I have a number on my back.

Oh, dear, dear student, be my friend;
I crave this unsought journey's end.
Please take me back and let me rest
Where catalogers thought me best.

Those of us who frequent the library merely for the pleasure of reading books may have felt that there are too many books to read and too many writers to become familiar with, for the limited time we have to spare for this enjoyment.

Read Widely But Wisely

While it is relatively impossible for us to read every worthwhile book in our library, we can endeavor to read the best. Likewise, while we may not become familiar with every good author, we may take the most important authors and become familiar with examples of their works.

For instance we should all know Shakespeare. But it does not follow that we must read everything Shakespeare ever wrote. If we used this procedure we would be able to know few authors of note.

A really educated man has a well rounded reading. He has read representative works of poets and writers of the various periods of literature. Briefly then, it is the reading of representative writings that tend to make a man cultured and polished.

In college it should be our aim to obtain some of these valuable and vital connections. We should not "bite off more than we can chew." If we can attain a start in reading, if we can ascend the first few rungs of the ladder to literary knowledge, then we will be doing the most in our power. It is for the years after we leave college, when we have settled down, that we should look to the connections made with books in our college years.

Suggested readings:

MacManus, S., "Bold Blades of Donegal"; Bragg, Sir W., "Universe of Light"; Davis A. H., "Modern Acoustics"; Zworykin, V. K., "Photocells"; Calkins, G., "Biology of Protozoa"; Ward, H. B., "Fresh Water Biology"; Leven, M., "America's Capacity to Consume"; Nourse, E., "America's Capacity to Produce"; Phillip's, H., "Art in Short-Story Narration"; Phillips, H., "Plot of the Short Story"; Swisher, C. B., "Roger B. Taney"; Alexander, C., "Catholic Literary Revival"; Ecker, Dr. E., "Anatomy of the Frog"; Curtis, W. C., "Textbook General Zoology."

This week's list of books includes:

Bragg, Sir W. — "Universe of Light."
Curtis, W. C. — "Zoology."
Zworykin, V. K. — "Photocells."
Ward, H. B. —"Fresh Water Biology."
Calkins, G. — "Anatomy of the Frog."

Collegiate Press Convention Draws Record Attendance

Some 340 Representatives Of College Publications Are On Hand

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov 1, 1935—Three hundred and forty college publication business managers and editors attended the Associated Collegiate Press convention in Chicago last month—setting an all-time high for attendance records of the fourteen annual meetings of the organization.

The three-day session in Chicago's Medinah Athletic Club featured important and informative round table meetings and lectures by famed newspaper and advertising executives—not to mention the many brilliant entertainment features of the most exclusive program ever planned for an association meeting.

The 340 delegates to the convention came from 35 States and represented 160 publications in 131 colleges and universities. A perusal of the list of delegates found in the last pages of this issue of the Collegiate Press Review will show you that delegates came from the remotest sections of the United States to attend the only national college press meeting of the 1935-1936 school year.

Summaries of the most important discussions at the convention will be sent to you in the monthly magazines of the Associaton—the reports on the editorial meetings in the Collegiate Press Review and the reports on the business meetings in the Business Review.

In this issue we are presenting the complete text of the report made to the convention on "A Survey on Current Practices on Collegiate Publications," made by R. E. Blackwell, assistant to the president of the University of Louisville.

Subsequent issues will feature reports on the speeches given by Harry B. Rutledge, director of the National Editorial Association; Prof. Kenneth E. Olson, director of the Rutgers University school of journalism; Grant Olson, advertising manager of the Sheaffer Pen Company; Curtis D. MacDougall, editor of the Evanston News-Index, and others.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI.

THE radio industry is moving ahead rapidly, according to figures published by the magazine "Radio Today," a 60- to 100 per cent production increase is announced by leading set makers. Set sales are up from 2,027,000 during the first half of 1934 to 2,453,000 for the first half of 1935.

The business outlook of radio is the best pictured since 1929. Because of its continued improvements the future for this field should become correspondingly brighter not only for the employment of capable radio men but also for the merchandising of radio and its new developments.

Television is rapidly reaching the stage where it will not be long before it will be used in the home. Plans for an independent nation-wide television network have been discussed in New York and Washington during recent weeks.

Nosin' Round Radio Row . . . Carmela Ponselle and the sponsors of her "Broadway Varieties" on WABC are planning to air a radio opera in English . . . Lawrence Tibbett comes forward with the news that young actors, painters, scientists and writers, do not receive as much encouragement these days as the future singers . . . Jack Benny gives his two hundredth broadcast next Sunday . . . Henry King's orchestra will have a CBS wire from the Central Park Casino . . . The Music Publishers Association is giving a free feed in honor of Harold Stern at the Fifth Ave. Wednesday night . . . Most of the stars of the NBC will offer their services . . . and gladly . . . during the supper dance of the networks engineers on November 19. You see, the man in the control room is as important to a radio performance as the cameraman is to a movie actor. He can make or break an artist. So it's no surprise that among those performing, free, will be: Dick Mansfield's band, Paul Whiteman, Graham McNamee, Ramona, Rudy Vallee, Clem McCarthy and other headliners . . .

Ray Benson and his orchestra are the new tunesmiths at the glittering Central Park Casino. A native of Pontiac, Mich., he is a graduate of New York University, a member of the bar (legar, not musical) of New York State, arranges his own music and is an accomplished violinist, pianist and organist.

Its popularity as a nightly feature proved after ten weeks on the air, the "March of Time" has been given an indefinite extension contract. Effective Monday, November 25, the program will continue over the Columbia network Mondays through Fridays from 10.30 to 10.45 P. M.

Starlines . . . Perhaps one of the most capable and lavish music conductors on the air today is Andre Kostelanetz. The noted orchestra conductor of the CBS Chesterfield program was born in St. Petersburg, Russia. He was educated there and began study of music at the age of 3. When 5 he played the piano and conducted an orchestra before the public. With such rapid advancement made before he even had long pants on, Andre soon made his professional debut at 8 in Petrograd as a solo pianist. Then he started his years of work as a school boy wherein he managed to become a linguist, being capable of speaking and reading fluently, Russian, English, French, German, Italian, Polish, Spanish and Finnish. Rather remarkable considering the fact that some college students today can't even say one complete sentence in a language they have studied for four years. In 1929 he arrived in New York and shortly afterwards made his radio debut and joined the Columbia System in 1929. Since that time Andre has been a headliner in radio programs and his excellent arrangements of popular pieces for glee clubs, and his equal ability to direct a concert orchestra make him superb.

A COLLEGE PROFESSOR DISCOVERED

That Often It Isn't a Student's Brain but his Pen that Runs Dry—causes Failure—in Classes and Exams!

So he invented this sacless Vacumatic, and Parker engineered it to perfection—gave it 102% more Ink Capacity—made its Ink Level VISIBLE, so it suddenly can't go empty!

YES, a scientist on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin was amazed to find how pens that run out of ink slow down classes, demoralize thinking, and bring marks that no student wants to write home about.

His observations led to the birth of the revolutionary Parker Vacumatic. This miracle pen writes 12,000 words from a single filling—shows when it's running low—tells when to refill!

Any good store selling pens will show you how the Parker Vacumatic eliminates 14 old-time parts, including the lever filler and rubber ink sac found in sac-type pens. And due to this, it has double room for ink, without increase in size.

But don't think that sacless pens containing squirt-gun pumps are like Parker's patented Vacumatic. This new creation contains none of these. That's why it's GUARANTEED MECHANICALLY PERFECT!

Parker VACUMATIC
GUARANTEED MECHANICALLY PERFECT
Junior, $5 Over-Size, $10 — Pencils, $2.50, $3.50 and $5

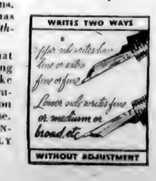

Go and try writing two different ways with its Reversible Point—solid Gold combined with precious Platinum—skillfully fashioned to write on both sides—slightly turned up at the tip so it cannot scratch or drag, even under pressure!

Do this and you won't let an old pen impede your learning another day. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin.

Send a Post Card for Free Bottle of Parker Quink—the marvelous new quick-drying, pen-cleaning ink, and throw your blotter away. Address Dept. 712.

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

HAVING been severely criticized in more than one instance upon the publication of last week's column for stealing bits from other papers, we feel it necessary at this point to wipe away the blemishes from our good (?) name by informing all our none too gentle critics that last week's patter was pounded out by a helper whose name it would be unfair to divulge. Which makes the difference between a good columnist and a punk one simply this, a good columnist gets his dope from sources quite secret and none to obvious. So dere youse are!

Investigation finally revealed to us why Dave Scanlon's countenance assumes a reddish hue whenever the topic of wheelchairs is brought up. It seems that shortly after the unfortunate accident in which friend Dave was involved, his condition became such that he was allowed to cruise about the corridors of the Bryn Mawr Hospital in a wheelchair. Dave felt high and mighty in his new speed wagon but at the same time couldn't quite figure out why all the nurses and attendants and visitors at the hospital wore ill-concealed grins when he passed by. Not until he had spent some time in his prowl car did Dave discover the reason. Painted on the back of the wheelchair in bold black letters was "Maternity Ward!"

Norbert Ford, he of the tapering waist, is still experiencing discomfort when he thinks of the recent dance held at Immaculata College. It seems that "Gable" received a last minute invite to the affair and being without his own formal "duds" he was obliged to borrow. Result: From the waist up our hero was attired in the outfit belonging to one of the campus's two hundred and twenty pounders while from amidships down "Lochinvar" was bedecked in the belongings of a measly 135-pounder. All in all, it was a great evening for "Gable." His combination wrestling trunks and sledding coat gave him a never to be forgotten appearance.

Here's a new one that is credited to the Northwestern Mounties. For it seems that it is not only a question of them getting their man nowadays but they also get their liquor. For the following is the tale of one of the organization's "best." . . . "I was chasing the car in one of our patrol cars when I saw B—— pouring some brown substance out of a bottle into the road. I leaned out the side of my car (which incidentally was 15 yards behind that of the fleeing B——) and tasted the stuff. It was rum!" Needless to say the adjournment sought by the defense attorney was granted.

At the University of Utah, a sweet young co-ed tripped up to the library desk and asked for "Horses' Oats." After much discussion with the head librarian it was finally decided that the young lady wanted "Horace's Odes."

College Chatter

AT Marquette, students living in fraternity houses have and peculiarities listed with the police... There are just five thousand eight hundred and forty-four square squares of glass in the east and west dining halls at Notre Dame... Three students at the University of Colorado were suspended because they perpetrated the old college stunt of putting a cow in the belfry ...the bell did not ring that morning.

Students who are taking courses in philosophy will no doubt be glad to know the difference between a Stoic and a Cynic; a Stoic is that which brings the babies, and a Cynic is that in which one washes the dishes.

Here's one for you slide rule boys, "If Eve wrote down a column of figures, would Cain be Able to Adam?"

So says a De Pauw freshman, probably telling his date how it felt to be collegiate, "Before I came to this campus I was one of the most conceited men you ever saw. But since my fraternity has knocked some of the conceit out of me, I am one of the best men in the pledge class."

Probably the most unique scholarship in America is one offered by Hamilton College. It is worth $500 and is open to all men in America by the name of Leavenworth.

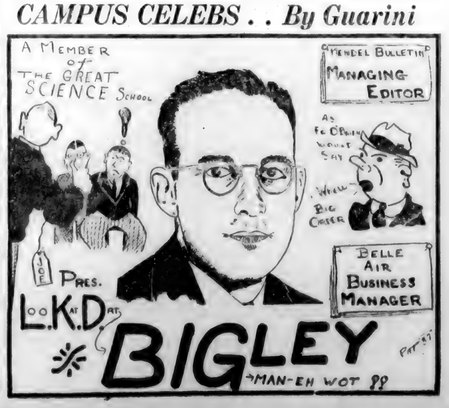
Gatekeepers at Ohio State University have a novel method for deciding whether you're sober enough to enter the stadium. If you can wiggle your thumbs in unison, you're O. K. Otherwise you can watch the game from a telegraph pole.

A Harvard professor recently promised to eat his shirt if he was proved wrong in an argument. When he was convinced that his opponent had the better of him, he dissolved the shirt in an acid. Then he neutralized it with a base; the precipitated material was filtered, and he then spread it on a slice of bread and proceeded to eat it.

Librarians at Bucknell University have introduced a new system. No longer will co-eds or males walking around in a daze have to thumb through the shelves until they come to something that suits their fancy. Enterprising librarians have arranged the volumes according to moods. If you are feeling a bit fretful and unsettled, there is the "love" shelf; and should you have a cold in the head and feel sour and disillusioned about it all, there is the "gall and bitterness" shelf.

A story about freshmen is always welcomed. Here's one which actually took place within these dear portals of Villanova. A certain freshman was sent on an errand to one of the offices. He knocked on the door...no answer. Timidly he opened the door to see if anyone was in the office. Not seeing anyone in the room he closed the door and began knocking again until it occurred to him that no one was in there.

CAMPUS CELEBS . . By Guarini



As We See It . . Reflections

By HARRY PARKIN

WE are inclined toward the opinion that it would be difficult to find a more useless individual than the average college student, Society, as personified by his parents, has tolerated and supported him for some nineteen or twenty years on the supposition that their indulgence by the existence will be justified by the existence in him of the potentiality for ultimately proving beneficial to the human race. They hope, in other words, that his future usefulness will do more than counter belance his present uselessness. For 20 years or so he is principally occupied in absorbing the products of other people's labors, and will not infrequently become so entrenched in his attitude toward life, that you will find him complaining at any stint or even apparent diminution in the privileges which he has come to regard as his title.

We often wonder how many students have ever thought upon their general uselessness to society—how many have realized and appreciated their utter dependence upon another's good will and labors, or conjectured upon the peculiar elements that comprise the disposition of their parents that they should be prompted to so many concessions, when often it would have been much more convenient, and certainly far more profitable to withhold their bounty and leave the student eke out his livelihood from a reluctant world, and obtain his education only as the result of individual ambition and exertion. Parents are indeed peculiar things but the misfortune of their existence is the length of time that it requires their sons to understand how fortunate a thing it is for him that their peculiarities are of such a wonderful kind.

We have always found it difficult to reconcile the female character that will exercise itself in the derogation of the comelines, personality, or social pretensions of some less fortunate member of the sex, and still believe herself entitled to all the civilities that man is accustomed to accord To her kind. Man's respect for woman is measured, as much by her esteem for her own sex, as it is by her respect for herself. Women in their criticisms of one another should be mindful of this, as well as the fact that the weaknesses and delinquencies which they view with such concern in their sisters, may be due as much to infelicitous circumstances as to any want of personal stability. As it is impossible to remove certain limbs from the torso without impairing the aymetry of the whole, so it is impossible to disparge the individual members of a group without all those who comprise it suffering a proportionate lessening of one's regard.

Someone said, although his name escapes us at the present writing, of Lord Shaftesbury that he seems to write with his coronet on and his mantle before him. A description which we may apply with no little difficulty to many contemporary writers. The satisfaction a person derives from seeing his lucubrations in print is quite likely to conclude them irrefragable. He can, and all too readily, convince himself that publication confers infallibility, with the result that he frequently becomes more positive in his assertions, and more denunciatory in his condemnations. This attitude can and usually does have but one termination, and that, he finds himself engaged in a discussion about which he not only knows nothing, but his every opinion makes him the subject of derision and scorn.

in the ring can be selected from any of the following: Sardonyx, Onyx, Blood Stone. There will be another type of stone to be decided upon later.

Orders for the rings will be taken any time after tomorrow. Members of the committee, two from each school, will handle every order with exact precision. A deposit of $5.00 is required to accompany each order of a ring. Junior students are requested to cooperate with the committee by securing their rings at the earliest possible date.

In the Library

THIS week we are publishing a poem whose author prefers to remain anonymous. While it is not meant for students at Villanova it nevertheless might be well harkened to by some

"The Book's Lament"

Out of the stacks and far away
You carried me, to read, one day.
You cast me aside, and here I lie
Neglected, unused—perhaps to die.
I'm mixed with books which breed-ing lack,
For I have a number on my back.

Oh, dear, dear student, be my friend,
I crave this unsought journey's end.
Please take me back and let me rest
Where catalogers thought me best.

Those of us who frequent the library merely for the pleasure of reading books may have felt that there are too many books to read and too many writers to become familiar with, for the limited time we have to spare for this enjoyment.

Read Widely But Wisely

While it is relatively impossible for us to read every worthwhile book in our library, we can endeavor to read the best. Likewise, while we may not become familiar with every good author, we may take the most important authors and become familiar with examples of their works.

For instance we should all know Shakespeare. But it does not follow that we must read everything Shakespeare ever wrote. If we used this procedure we would be able to know few authors of note.

A really educated man has a well rounded reading. He has read representative works of poets and writers of the various periods of literature. Briefly then, it is the reading of representative writings that tend to make a man cultured and polished.

In college it should be our aim to obtain some of these valuable and vital connections. We should not "bite off more than we can chew." If we can attain a start in reading, if we can ascend the first few rungs of the ladder to literary knowledge, then we will be doing the most in our power. It is for the years after we leave college, when we have settled down, that we should look to the connections made with books in our college years.

Suggested readings:

MacManus, S. "Bold Blades of Donegal"; Bragg, Sir W. "Universe of Light"; Davis, A. H. "Modern Acoustics"; Zworykin, V. K., "Photocells"; Calkins, G., "Biology of Protozoa"; Ward, H. B., "Fresh Water Biology"; Leven, M., "America's Capacity to Consume"; Nourse, E., "America's Capacity to Produce"; Phillips, H., "Art in Short Story Narration"; Phillips, H., "Plot of the Short Story"; Swisher, C. B., "Roger B. Taney"; Alexander, C., "Catholic Literary Revival"; Ecker, Dr. E., "Anatomy of the Frog"; Curtis, W. C., "Textbook General Zoology."

This week's list of books includes:

Bragg, Sir W. — "Universe of Light."

Curtis, W. C. — "Zoology."

Zworykin, V. K. — "Photocells."

Collegiate Press Convention Draws Record Attendance

Some 340 Representatives Of College Publications Are On Hand

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 1, 1935—Three hundred and forty college publication business managers and editors attended the Associated Collegiate Press convention in Chicago last month—setting an all-time high for attendance records of the fourteen annual meetings of the organization.

The three-day session in Chicago's Medinah Athletic Club featured important and informative round table meetings and lectures by famed newspaper and advertising executives—not to mention the many brilliant entertainment features of the most exclusive program ever planned for an association meeting.

The 340 delegates to the convention came from 35 States and represented 160 publications in 131 colleges and universities. A perusal of the list of delegates found in the last pages of this issue of the Collegiate Press Review will show you that delegates came from the remotest sections of the United States to attend the only national college press meeting of the 1935-1936 school year.

Summaries of the most important discussions at the convention will be sent to you in the monthly magazines of the Associaton—the reports on the editorial meetings in the Collegiate Press Review and the reports on the business meetings in the Business Review.

In this issue we are presenting the complete text of the report made to the convention on "A Survey on Current Practices on Collegiate Publications," made by R. E. Blackwell, assistant to the president of the University of Louisville.

Subsequent issues will feature reports on the speeches given by Harry B. Rutledge, director of the National Editorial Association; Prof. Kenneth E. Olson, director of the Rutgers University school of journalism; Grant Olson, advertising manager of the Sheaffer Pen Company; Curtis D. MacDougall, editor of the Evanston News-Index, and others.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI.

THE radio industry is moving ahead rapidly, according to figures published by the magazine "Radio Today," a 60- to 100 per cent production increase is announced by leading set makers. Set sales are up from 2,027,000 during the first half of 1934 to 2,453,000 for the first half of 1935.

The business outlook of radio is the best pictured since 1929. Because of its continued improvements the future for this field should become correspondingly brighter not only for the employment of capable radio men but also for the merchandising of radio and its new developments.

Television is rapidly reaching the stage where it will not be long before it will be used in the home. Plans for an independent nationwide television network have been discussed in New York and Washington during recent weeks.

So it's no surprise that among those performing, free, will be: Dick Mansfield's band, Paul Whiteman, Graham McNamee, Ramona, Rudy Vallee, Clem McCarthy and other headliners . . .

Its popularity as a nightly feature proved after ten weeks on the air, the "March of Time" has been given an indefinite extension contract. Effective Monday, November 25, the program will continue over the Columbia network Mondays through Fridays from 10.30 to 10.45 P. M.

So it's no surprise that among those performing, Andre was born in St. Petersburg, Russia. He was educated there and began study of music at the age of 3. When 5 he played the piano and conducted an orchestra before the public. With such rapid advancement made before he even had long pants on, Andre soon made his professional debut at 8 in Petrograd as a solo pianist. Then he started his years of work as a school boy wherein he managed to become a linguist, being capable of speaking and reading fluently, Russian, English, French, German, Italian, Polish, Spanish and Finnish. Rather remarkable considering the fact that some college students today can't even say one complete sentence in a language they have studied for four years. In 1929 he arrived in New York and shortly afterwards made his radio debut and joined the Columbia System in 1929. Since that time Andre has been a headliner in radio programs and his excellent arrangements of popular pieces for glee clubs, and his equal ability to direct a concert orchestra make him superb.

A COLLEGE PROFESSOR DISCOVERED

That Often It Isn't a Student's Brain but his Pen that Runs Dry—causes Failure—in Classes and Exams!

So he invented this sacless Vacumatic, and Parker engineered it to perfection—gave it 102% more Ink Capacity—made its Ink Level VISIBLE, so it suddenly can't go empty!

YES, a scientist on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin was amazed to find how pens that run out of ink slow down classes, demoralize thinking, and bring marks that no student wants to write home about.

His observations led to the birth of the revolutionary Parker Vacumatic. This miracle pen writes 12,000 words from a single filling—shows when it's running low—tells when to refill!

Any good store selling pens will show you how the Parker Vacumatic eliminates 11 old-time parts, including the lever filler and rubber ink sac found in sac-type pens. And due to this, it has double room for ink, without increase in size.

But don't think that sacless pens containing squirt-gun pumps are like Parker's patented Vacumatic. This new creation contains none of these. That's why it's GUARANTEED MECHANICALLY PERFECT!

TWENTY-FIVE MORE MEMBERS NEEDED TO FILL GLEE CLUB

Forty Promising Candidates Report to Choristers' First Call of Season

MR. TEEL CONDUCTS AGAIN

In its first rehearsal of the year for the purpose of reorganizing the club the Glee Club met last Thursday afternoon in the commerce and finance auditorium.

Rev. Charles B. Brown, O. S. A., with the assistance of Paul D. Teel, musical director of the college, gave auditions to the forty candidates for the club. Each candidate's voice was graded. Twenty-five more applicants are needed to make the club a first class organization.

Meetings will be held on Monday night after chapel and on Thursday afternoons at four o'clock in the commerce and finance auditorium.

Last fall, not long after the beginning of the first semester Fr. Brown determined to give the college a glee club that would become a permanent organization upon the campus, therefore, he posted a call for candidates and enlisted the services of Mr. Teel to train the group. The going was hard but after much effort, a first class glee club was formed.

Fr. Brown sincerely hopes that more interest will be prevalent than has been shown in the first meeting. It is hoped that more candidates will report on Thursday afternoon this coming week. All those wishing to report and are unable to appear on Thursday may report to the rehearsal on Monday night.

tee should be abandoned and in its place the new committee be appointed.

Payment of dues was also discussed. The point in the constitution referring to this item was revised so that dues may now be made in weekly payments of twenty five cents each.

Any member, however, who becomes four weeks in arrears will be subject to discipline.

All dues, then, by this new plan, should be finally paid in full by the end of the first semester.

Tomorrow the organization is calling a special business meeting. Its purpose is to determine the amount of money collected from the sale of raffle tickets.

Two tickets to the Villanova-Temple football game, to be held on Thanksgiving weekend in Philadelphia at the Temple Stadium, is the prize to be given away to the holders of the tickets drawn at the Grand Drawing next Thursday.

It was resolved that the revised constitution should be submitted to the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president of the college for his approval.

There has also been submitted to him several dates on which the organization plans to hold its annual fraternity dance. For the past several years this affair has been successfully held, and it is hoped that another such successful event may again be conducted.

It is expected that Fr. Albers will have passed on one of the dates submitted by the time of the next meeting.

If he does, plans for the affair will be put under way and a committee appointed to handle all the business of such an affair.

As a result of discussion it was decided that a list of last year examinations given in the Science School to the junior, sophomore, and freshmen classes will be posted in the various dormatories. The organization thus hopes to materially aid its fellow members of the school of science.

A special committee will be appointed to look after this project and care for it in detail.

VICE-PRESIDENT TALKS

Rev. B. M. Albers, O. S. A., Addresses Gathering of Coatesville Club

Very Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president of Villanova College, was the guest speaker at a meeting of the Coatesville Men's Club at Coatesville, Thursday last. In addition to his regular address Fr. Albers showed the moving picture, "Life at Villanova."

Air Conditioning Equipment, High Vacuum Line Installed

Rev. John F. Hammond, O. S. A., and Professor J. Stanley Morehouse, of Villanova College, are installing new equipment in their respective departments. Fr. Hammond is building a high vacuum line while Prof Morehouse is assembling an air conditioning unit.

Fr. Hammond's equipment will be used solely for research purposes of a highly scientific type. Through its intricate tubing and mechanisms he hopes to obtain a vacuum of one ten-millionth of an atmosphere.

By this means reactions can be carried out that would otherwise be affected by the oxygen of the air. It will be possible also to investigate living tissues in glass with greater rapidity than in animals. These experiments would be impossible without a high vacuum.

The manner in which the vacuum is obtained is by means of a three stage mercury vapor pump backed by a Hyvac oil pump. Pyrex glass is used throughout and the rack on which it is built is conveniently fitted with outlets for gas, water, oxygen, electricity and compressed air. The value of the apparatus is approximately five hundred dollars.

With this new high vacuum line Villanova College is equipped to attempt the solution of many problems in modern organic and physical chemistry. Although this is constructed mainly for chemical purposes, it will be used as an indispensible tool in modern physics, particularly in problems dealing with the structure of matter.

Villanova steps ahead again in securing a special air conditioning unit by Prof. Morehouse. Commercial parts were bought with special equipment to make it adoptable for testing purposes.

When it is completely set up, the unit can humidify, dehumidify, cool, or heat a room. It is glass enclosed so that the machinery can be observed in operation. The Junior and senior classes in mechanical engineering will conduct about twelve experiments with it.

Prof. Morehouse also stated that the college has recently been given a 1936 Buick motor and chassis. This will be equipped to make tests in the shop and on the road.

Italian-Ethiopian Situation Is Question Discussed By First Year Men

The regular meeting of the Freshman Debating Society of Villanova College was held last Tuesday evening at 7:00 P. M. in Mendel Hall. The moderator of the society, Joseph T. Houseman, presided only at the inception and at the termination of the meeting.

At this gathering the whole of the meeting time was taken up by actual debating activities. The question at hand was, Resolved: That Italy is justified in making Ethiopia an Italian colony. Both sides to question, the affirmative and the negative, were defended by three members. The constructive arguments covered a period of five minutes; the rebuttal, three minutes, and an interval of three minutes between the presentations of the opposing speeches.

The affirmative group included the following individuals: First speaker, F. Mellan; second speaker, H. Quigley; third speaker, T. Delate. The negative side to the question was upheld by the following First speaker, P. Calabro; second speaker, F. Waters; third speaker, M. Kassell.

During the course of the speeches Mr. Houseman jotted down notes concerning the work of the speakers. No verdict, however, was given upon the completion of the debate. Although the debaters were sincere in their efforts, there is much room for improvement. The speakers were not entirely at fault, however, because the audience did not behave as it should have.

Next Tuesday's debate topic is, Resolved: That arms and munitions should be placed under Federal control. The speakers are: J. Butler, F. Capelara and P. Messer defending the negative side, and J. Dimon, T. Furey, J. Ferguson upholding the affirmative side. The different teams are advised to discuss and prepare their issues before the meeting. The student body is invited to attend.

COMMITTEE ANNOUNCED

Wilkes-Barre Club Selects Group To Arrange for Xmas Dance

A meeting of the Wilkes-Barre Club of Villanova College was held last Thursday evening. The following committee was announced for the annual Christmas dance, which will be held the night of December 25.

Charles Betz has been decided upon to head the committee in the capacity of chairman. The following aides will support him: John Neil, William Cleary, Paul Milnanow, Edmund Verushky, Stanley Galazin, Witold Kryzwicki, James Gallagher and Donald Hudson.

The club has decided to meet the first Thursday of every month. At the next meeting the committee will announce the orchestra which they have selected and will present a sample of the chosen favor to the club members for their approval.

ANNUAL SOPH-FROSH FIELD DAY CHOSEN

Saturday of This Week Selected as Date of Yearly Tussle

This Saturday, November 16, has been chosen as the date for the annual Soph-Frosh Field Day, it was revealed yesterday.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the Class of '38, when interviewed on the subject, stated. "I intend to stress the fact to both groups that one hundred per cent attendance is expected. This program has not been made up for any chosen few, but for both classes as units."

The program for Saturday includes: Rugby, in the stadium at 9:30, which will be played by two groups from each class, alternating so as to give all an opportunity to play. The next exent is the 100-yard wheelbarrow race, followed by a three-legged race over the same distance. The fourth event is the traditional tug-of-war, which will be engaged in by both teams, the numbers on each depending on the percentage of the classes represented in attendance. The site of this encounter has not yet been decided upon, choice lying between the lake and the stadium. This will be decided later in the week. In the afternoon the classes will engage in a touch football game. Then, compiling of points begins, the result of which will decide the future of Freshman regulations.

Each class will meet later this week to organize for the coming games. All members of the Freshmen football team and those Sophomores who are members of the varsity team are not eligible to compete in any of the contests on Saturday.

affording a sound representation for Villanova. Many of the followers remained in State College for the night were treated in a very friendly manner by the Staters. Several public demonstrations were witnessed in many of the fraternity houses with the singing of the school songs of each college.

This sincere friendship was edifying and should be commended upon with such a keen rivalry on the gridiron. Although the team and band returned after the game many students remained until Sunday so that they might visit friends and their families who reside in that section of the State.

JERSEY CLUB INCREASES

Eighteen New Members Added To Roster of North Jersey Club

The North Jersey Club held its third meeting of the year on November 7th, in 216, Mendel Hall. Because of pressing business the organization will meet the second Thursday of each month. Heretofore the club had scheduled its meetings to be held the first Thursday of each month.

The enrollment of the organization was greatly increased by the addition of eighteen new members. Since the North Jersey men now number forty strong, they are entering a basketball team to compete in the intra-mural contests. Plans for social activities during the Xmas holidays are also being discussed.

be allowed for each examination. The main Bulletin Board in Mendel Hall may be consulted to ascertain the time and place for the examinations.

At a meeting of the faculty of the Schol of Arts and Philosophy, which was held during the past week, it was decided that the passing grade in all courses taken by the candidates for the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Philosophy will be seventy percent.

Re-examinations will be permitted to students who are graded below seventy and above fifty. Students who are graded below fifty in mid-year and final examinations will be required to repeat the courses in which they have been so graded, the mid-year and final examinations will cover the work done in the preceding semesters.

Candidates for the above-named degrees in the Senior Class will be required to pass a comprehensive examination covering the work done by them in their Freshman, Sophomore and Junior years. These comprehensive examinations will be held shortly after the mid-year examinations.

Senior students are advised to review their work in Religion, English, Philosophy, History, Latin, Science, Mathematics, and Modern Language. In respect to Latin, and to the Modern Language studied by each Senior, evidence of a general reading knowledge will be required.

In the near future it is planned to provide intelligence tests for the students in the Freshman class. Determination by these tests of the "I. Q." of each student will be of advantage both to student and professor.

The student particularly will be benefited because of the enlightenment he will receive as to his "native" abilities—or inabilities. He will therefore be enabled to plan his study accordingly. It is not to be understood that the results of these tests are a final indication of any student's rating or potentialities.

The dean and the members of the faculty of the School of Arts and Philosophy expressed their pleasure with the efforts of the students to this date in the matter of achieving high academic standards in their work.

It is believed that class recitations and supplementary work in the library and by ways of complementary reading have never been better than they are at the present time. Dr. Burns' opinion is that "The steady and serious student will see the fruits of his earnest work in the results of the rapidly approaching quarterly examinations."

given as being a bit higher, but this was due to the fact that up until the past few weeks the bill for the Junior Prom programs had not been met.

When questioned as to the probable orchestra or orchestras to be considered, Arthur Noble explained that the matter will be entirely up to the class itself, and they will decide this at their next formal meeting, the date of which has not been announced as yet.

The following men from the School of Commerce and Finance were appointed to the Belle Air Ball Committee: John Carr, Philip Carson, John Higgins, Thomas Ryan, Joseph Foran, James Downs, and F. Troncellitti.

From the School of Science are these: Joseph Bigley, Frank Bellarmino, David Cragg, Dom Mauro, Charles Miller, Harry Podall and Frank Shaeffer.

In the School of Arts and Letters the following are to serve in the group: Anthony Catrambone, John DiJoseph, John Eck, Carmen Giordano, Arthur Mahan, Leo Mooney, John Robinson and the chairman, Arthur Noble.

Supplementing the above are these engineering students: Joseph Braheney, Joseph Doherty, Joseph Hooven, Joseph Malcolm, William Munroe, Lawrence Shevland and Walter Weis.

These above-mentioned committeemen are requested by the chairman and by the class president, William Vaughn, to closely watch all bulletin boards for announcements of their meetings, which will be made in the very near future.

The above list of committeemen were selected by Mr. Vaughn, approved by class moderator, Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., vice-president of the college and the deans of the various schools.

accusation. Its ideals of charity, unity, fraternity and patrotism he illustrated with many interesting examples. Particularly did he emphasize the ideals and necessities of unity and patriotism.

"Unity is especially important to you Catholic young men because of the obstacles you will meet in the days after Villanova. Because you are Catholics you will not find it easy to obtain positions in many large organizations."

As regards patriotism Mr. Osbahr said that the K. of C. amply proves the falsity of the utterly unfounded theory that a good Catholic cannot be a good American. He showed us how the Knights of Columbus gave much toward the comfort and recreation of the American soldiers during the great World War; and he pointed out the great number of Catholic homes that yielded their boys to the American cause.

Among other things the speaker spoke of the progress of the Knights in the field of retreats and boy guidance. In the state of New Jersey alone there are two large retreat houses and two summer camps for boys who could not otherwise afford the advantages of camp life.

In closing Mr. Osbahr reminded the group that they being blessed with the advantages of Catholic education should leave Villanova and become the leaders of Catholic Action and Catholic organization in various communities.

With all due respect to the Penn State football team, and with no intention of degrading from the efforts of the players in their victory last Saturday, we would like to express our opinion of the actions of the officials in the contest.

First let us discuss the continual moving of the ball; every time a Villanova back was tackled, and irregardless of the position of his body when the whistle blew, the ball was put down at the point where the tackler first touched the ball carrier, this in itself is ridiculous, because in all cases the ball carrier will drop two or three feet forward, except when he is standing still.

In the consideration of this point, it would not be astounding to note that at least one hundred yards were added to the Lions' yardage, and a like number taken from the Wildcats.

Then, the officials pulled a blunder by calling a Villanova offside, when it was apparent that number 16, wearing a Blue and White jersey was in the Cats' defensive territory before the passing of the ball. What really makes this an outstanding boner, is the fact that the mass of the State College supporters surrounding us got a big laugh out of the decision. If Mister Referee was puzzled because the colors of the two schools are similar, we would like to inform him that our boys wore green jerseys on that day and there is no number 16 on the Villanova squad going by the name of Miller.

Pre-game dope had the State Collegiate eleven as a good defensive team. Well, we grant them that; the Lions certainly proved their defensive ability, but let's add that they also brought out an unexpected offensive power, which completely baffled us.

With Knapp, plunging; O'Hara, the 129-pound quarterback, passing and receiving; and Cooper doing everything, the State squad made things miserable for the followers of Villanova.

It was a bitter pill for Stopper, Kotys and Sala to swallow, as their many friends were in the crowded stands, however the three boys showed enough to warrant their supporters belief in them. The first two alternated at left halfback while Tony was only in the game for a short while, as he received the first serious injury of the tussle.

Penn has its John Smith, who is one of the influential alumni, he has the solution to the whole problem as far as the team is concerned. We don't have a John Smith among the graduates who has done his share of talking but we most assuredly have many in the alumni who have last week's upset solved.

What might have been a pleasant return trip was turned into an incoherent meeting to determine a plausible means of figuring out how the win went to the other fellow. Outstanding in forming opinions were the ladies.

The odds on the Temple-Villanova game were 3-1 against the Wildcats at this time last week, and show every indication of climbing. Not to encourage betting, but anyone who thinks that the Owls will take us with ease are in for a nerve-wracking afternoon, Saturday a week.

With the one week layoff Stuhldreher will have ample time to bring his team around. Then Temple has one of its toughest assignments of the season when the Marquette Golden Avalanche is met this week. The visitors will have an unbeaten, untied record to protect and they will not let Temple mar it if they can help it.

STATE TROUNCES 'CATS, 27-13

INTER-DORM LEAGUE STARTS PROMISING BASKETBALL SEASON

Most Popular Game on Campus Arouses Interest Of All Students

ALUMNI DEFENDS LAURELS

In the very near future the intramural sports program for 1935-36 will really get under way when the intramural basketball season is inaugurated. This sport has in past years been the most popular and most successful of the whole program.

Last year was far from being an exception as it produced the most thrilling race in the history of intramural sports at Villanova. Overtime games were the rule rather than the exception, and the margin of victory was never over ten points.

Basketball is one sport in which the Dayhops have consistently put out good teams. This has been a very important factor in the yearly success of the basketball campaign, because it makes basketball the only sport that gets 100 per cent cooperation from the student body.

Not only the whole-hearted enthusiasm of all the teams but also the sterling brand of basketball displayed by most of the quintets helped to make last year's race so close and exciting.

Alumni Defending Crown

The two frosh teams representing Mendel and Alumni Halls showed the way by taking the first and second half championship respectively.

The Mendel club, displaying a smooth style of teamwork wonderful in view of the fact that the boys played together only a few short weeks and without the help of any coaching, swept aside all opposition to cop the first half leadership very handily.

The second half of the season witnessed most of the fireworks. The Alumni team came back strong to nose out Austin Hall, Mendel being shoved down to third place.

In the playoff for the championship laurels the Alumni Steamrollers kept up their great streak by besting Mendel's "Coachless Wonders" in two out of three games.

Although no schedule is arranged as yet and plans are still in the formative stage, a strong bid is being made now for 100 per cent backing of this most essential part of the intramural program. Intramurals got off to a good start this fall when the tennis tournament was a success, but since then interest has fallen off quite a bit. However, a successful basketball campaign will make up for anything that has been lacking so far.

NOTICE—DAY-HOPS

Due to inclement weather the touch-football contest scheduled for last Thursday between Alumni Hall and the Day Hops has been indefinitely cancelled.

It will only be played in the event that either team figures in the finals to such an extent as to warrant the meeting. However, the day students are scheduled for a tussle with Austin Hall, Thursday.

All those who desire to take part in the contest will report to Al Fitzpatrick, in the rear of the dining hall at 1:15 P. M.

STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the sports staff tomorrow afternoon at 12:45 P. M. All writers are requested to attend.

WALT KORCHINSKI

An instrumental figure in the two touchdowns gathered by the Villanova team last Saturday, Korchinski aided Olivar across the goal line late in the second period, who had taken a lateral from George Fox on the three-yard line. Korchinski scored a touchdown himself, early in the third period, when he took a pass from Stopper over the goal line, without an enemy hand being placed on him. Although he did not start, Korchinski, upon replacing Tony Sala, who was injured, put on a display of superior football.

DARTMOUTH LEADS EASTERN COLLEGES

Only Four Remain Undefeated In Collegiate Circles With Close Near

The list of the undefeated teams in the East was again shortened this week leaving only four major teams unbeaten and untied with Dartmouth still the high-scoring leader. Albright was eliminated from this distinction by a defeat at the hands of West Chester State Teachers College, by a single point after touchdown.

Princeton, Syracuse, and New York University, continued on the unbeaten path. Princeton climbed at a 35 to 0 expense of a luckless Harvard team, while Syracuse took the Columbia aggregation by 14-2 score, and N. Y. U. swamped C. C. N. Y., 45-0. Holy Cross, sustaining no defeats, but having one tie, has the distinction of being the best defensive team. Only 13 points have been scored on them up to date. Dartmouth, in the offensive role, has rolled up a score of 248 to the opponents' 19.

Following is a list of the leading teams.

150's CONFIDENT OF GAINING WIN

Point to Lafayette Tussle For First Victory Of Campaign

Villanova's 150 pound team travels to Easton, Pennsylvania, this Saturday where they play Lafayette. Despite their defeat by Rutgers the boys have great hopes of conquering their Easton rivals.

The Maroon and White of Lafayette has one of the strongest teams in the Eastern lightweight division this year, Penn and Yale having fallen before the onslaught of the Leopards. Should the 'Cats claw the Leopards it will be their first victory in four starts and this added incentive has made them even more eager to beat the Lafayette boys.

Danny Murphy, whose play on the line for the Blue and White against Rutgers was outstanding, will bolster the forward wall again at Easton, and Charlie O'Connor, injured end, has responded rapidly to treatment and will be ready to play Saturday.

According to Charlie Cox and Frank Foster, mentors of the dollar and a half boys, the backfield has finally hit its stride and should be at its best when the opening whistle blows. Incidentally, Cox and Foster are confident of victory for their charges.

SALA ABLE TO PLAY

Tony Sala, versatile left end, of the Villanova team, who suffered an injury in the game played with Penn State last week, will be able to play in the oncoming Temple game.

VILLANOVA ELEVEN FALLS BY PASSING ATTACK OF LIONS

Supposedly Defensive Team Becomes Offensive In Winning

KORCHINSKI AND OLIVAR SCORE LOSERS POINTS

Passes Feature Scoring Tries Of Both Teams On Slow Field

BY JACK GERAGHTY

State College, Pa., November 9. — Fighting a highly touted Villanova eleven to the last yard marker, Penn State defeated the Wildcats here this afternoon, 27 to 13, in a great football game between two great teams.

The Nittany Lions, aroused by two previous defeats, slashed the 'Cats ferociously to tab four touchdowns and three extra points.

In the first few minutes of the first quarter, State made its power felt when they climaxed a 30-yard pass to have Bill Copper dash across the final marker for a touchdown. Barth then converted the extra point to give the Lions a 7-0 lead in the first eight minutes.

By taking full advantage of every break of the game and by fierce blocking and tackling that completely confounded the 'Cats, State won its decisive victory.

Following Cooper's initial touchdown, the ball seesawed up and down the field, neither side being able to penetrate the other's defense. Penn State's first touchdown came as the result of a blocked kick. The Cats lined up on their own 45 yard line, third down and four to go. They shifted, the ball was snapped to Stopper, who dropped back to kick, but the hard-charging center trio came in fast and Wismer dove to block the ball as it dropped off of Stopper's right toe. It was then that Reds O'Hara, State's passing star, tossed a long one to Knapp, who was downed on the two-yard line. Cooper then made the first touchdown of the game, the point was converted, and Villanova was scored upon by the slashing Lions. Score, Penn State, 7; Villanova, 0.

In the second quarter, State unleashed its latent power to drive over two more touchdowns, while the Cats retaliated with one.

All State in Second Quarter

The high scoring period opened with the ball in State's possession on its own 40 yard line. State had fourth down and three to go. Cooper kicked, but the Villanova line crashed through to spill the punter. Officials saw fit to call a five-yard penalty on the Cats for roughing the kicker to give State first down. It was then that the Lions opened up. Cooper then took a wide-awake side end sweep around Villanova's end to romp to the Cats' 14 yard line before he was brought down hard.

State took to the line and in four downs crashed through to Villanova's three, four downs and goal to go. The Cat line held for two

VARSITY QUINTET BEGINS PRACTICE FOR '35-'36 TILTS

Last Year's Frosh Supplies Material to Offset Veterans' Loss

GERAGHTY LEADS DRILLS

Last Monday, Nov. 4, Villanova's basketball squad began practice for the 1935-1936 season. The highlight of the Wildcats' schedule is a Christmas night game with George Washington University in Newark, N. J. Other outstanding teams to face the Villanova court machine are: Dickinson, Western Maryland, City College of New York and Temple.

The squad is captained by Ben Geraghty, former St. Benedict's Prep luminary, and includes in its ranks three seniors in addition to the leader. These are Tommy Ryan, Jack Robinson and Mike O'Meara. O'Meara is an alumnus of Philadelphia's Northeast Catholic High, and Robinson and Ryan are from the metropolitan area, having starred at Brooklyn Prep and Newtown, respectively.

Four Veterans Lost

Coach Jacobs will have to replace Jack Barry, Johnny Shevlin, Barry's running mate, John Torpey and "Pop" Travers; Barry and Shevlin were guards and Torpey held down the center, while Travers alternated between guard and forward; all these men were lost by graduation.

There is a wealth of material from which to choose in the number of graduates from the freshman squad of last year. Among the ex-yearlings are Eddie Collins, former West Catholic basketeer; Charlie Noonan, Salesianum forward and high scorer of the frosh quintet; Walt McKenna, Horace Mann Ace; Harry McNally, of Manhattan Prep; Don Brennan, stellar center; Joe Hopkins, Malvern's representative, and Paul Peluso, and Walt Sheftic of Asbury Park and Boswell, Pa., respectively.

Bill McLaughlin, Camden High School star, and Leo Schoppmeyer varsity baseball player, are new comers into the fold and will try to earn a place on the squad.

If last year's frosh continue the brand of ball displayed by them last season, the coming campaign will be a most successful one. The youngsters dropped only two of twenty-two or more games.

Geraghty Conducts Drill

As yet "Doc" Jacobs has been unable to supervise the practice sessions because of football. During his absence Captain Geraghty is cracking the whip with much energy.

Wildcat rooters may look forward to exciting encounters with Temple this year, as the Owls took the first tussle last season and the boys are gunning for two triumphs over the Philly courtmen in the coming campaign. The Owl yearlings took two from the Kittens, so the Sophomore members are sharpening their eyes for the Temple tussles.

Big Schedule

The complete schedule will be announced in the very near future. The program will include well over fifteen contests, among which will be Western Maryland, Duquesne, St. John's and naturally Temple.

In the doubleheader attractions, the Blue and White representatives will compete against the already mentioned George Washington five at Newark, N. J. Rutgers will be one of the other attractions on the same card. Then the Felines will have three twin bill engagements at Philadelphia. The opposition will be Temple, Manhattan and Duquesne.

In the Limelight

By NORTON C. PADEN

Listen my children and you will hear,

No not of the ride of Paul Revere, but of another gentleman who is at present residing at Villanova. As he was to have been in the Limelight it is quite a coincidence that I received a letter from one of the boys concerning just this personage. For your information I am enclosing the letter.

Sports Editor,
Villanovan,
Villanova College,
Villanova, Pa.
Dear Sir,

A few days ago a certain matter was brought to my attention which

I hope you can clear up. At a gathering of the boys one of the players on the Wildcat Varsity team was discussed but I didn't catch his name. I have quite a bit of information on hand concerning this certain player and I will relay it to you in the hope that you can identify him.

He was born on the next to the last day in the month of August in the year of our Lord 1913. His ushering into the world took place in Kulpmont, Pa.

After loafing for a period of about five years, he decided that if he was ever to make anything out of himself he had better start so he enrolled in the Kulpmont grammar school. True to his objective his eight years in this institution were eventful scholastically for our hero but he did not take an active interest in school sports for the main reason that there weren't any to take an interest in. (The man's a wit). Outside of school hours he played football and all other sports with the boys on the vacant lot. He was recognized as one of the fastest runners on his block.

This is always an advantage especially after giving the bigger boys the bird.

After the completion of his career at Kulpmont grammar our young hero hied himself to High School. This time it was Mount Carmel High in Mount Carmel, Pa.

As High School was quite a deviation from his former experiences in school it took him quite a while to get acclimated. After this period of getting accustomed to a new routine was over this young man became his jovial self and added much to the enjoyment of his classmates. His teachers found him a willing and eager student and his scholastic fame shot skywards.

About this time our hero decided that he was getting soft so he enrolled in the ranks of the wearers of the moleskin. He was a welcome addition to the team and his nimble legs accounted for many a touchdown during his football career.

Track also claimed his attention during these years and after watching his performances the School Board though seriously of building an asbestos track. The cinders just couldn't take it.

In a track suit he moved with the speed and assurance of a certain Englishman's Bluebird but in a football uniform he hit the line with the power of a baby tank.

Mount Carmel High was sure sorry to have him go upon graduation but he was greeted with open arms at Villanova, the College of his choice. Here he conformed with all the Frosh regulations and was considered a good guy by all concerned. During his Freshman year football claimed his complete attention that is along with his scholastic endeavors.

In his sophomore year though the track team was mighty glad of his assistance and it was during this season that he was a member of the winning relay team representing Villanova at the Penn Relays. When the fall season rolled around though he was also found at his old position on the gridiron. These two sports claimed his full attention for his three years as an upperclassman. He has been a Varsity track man these three years running the quarter-mile and the half-mile, and is a member of the relay team.

On the gridiron he is a member of the Varsity team and fills the position of halfback when the occasion demands it. So far during this season his senior year he has

NEW COACH AT BOSTON

McNamara Forced to Resign Due To Long and Critical Illness

According to the Associated Press the authorities of Boston College announced acceptance of the resignation of John R. (Dinny) McNamara, football coach, and the appointment in his place for the remainder of the season of Harry J. Downes, line coach.

McNamara, whose greatest achievement in his short time as coach of the Maroon and Gold forces was the surprise defeat of Michigan State two weeks ago, suffered a recurrence of a nervous ailment which kept him away from practice the first part of the season.

John P. Curley, graduate manager in announcing the change, said Downes will be assisted by William N. Ormsby, end coach and Frank Maloney, backfield coach.

COOPER TABS THREE LION TOUCHDOWNS

downs, but again Cooper smashed through guard for his second touchdown of the game. Barth was rushed in to substitute for Wismer in order to make the extra point, but his kick went wide. Score, Penn State, 13; Villanova, 0.

State's third score came in the latter end of the first half, with a Villanova fumble paving the way. Villanova took the ball on its own 22 yard line when a State pass was dropped in the end zone, on State's fourth down.

On Villanova's first play, Raimo fumbled, and Weber recovered for State on the 'Cats' 12. Wear then passed to Smith who was downed in his tracks on the two-yard line. Silvano, substituting for Knapp at fullback, dove over on the first play and then converted. Score, Penn State, 20; Villanova, 0.

'Cats Score at Half

In the waning minutes of the first half, Villanova put on its big offensive thrust. After State's kick-off, the Stuhldrehermen climaxed an 80-yard drive down the field to score its first big six.

After Raimo was tackled on his own 20, Villanova let loose its offensive weapons and gave everything they had, passes, off tackles, line thrusts, end sweeps, everything in the book to make the first dent in the victorious Nittany Lion's score sheet.

The last 17 yards were the hardest. Villanova arrived there and stuck. State held like a stone wall for three downs and it looked as if the 'Cats were pursuing a lost cause. With the defense bunched at the scrimmage line, Nick Kotys dropped back and shot a low fast pass to George Fox. Fox was tackled but before the whistle had blown, he flipped a lateral to Olivar, 'Cat tackle, who ran across the line standing up.

Score, Penn State, 20; Villanova, 7.

At the beginning of the second half, Penn State proceeded to show that it still had plenty of power. As it gave its ball carriers better interference than could the 'Cats, they drove down the field to grab their last touchdown of the day. Cooper was the sparkplug of the second half. He ripped and tore from the Villanova 25 to the 17. At this point, the State attack bogged down, and three line bucks brought no result. It was then that O'Hara tossed another of the passes that ultimately spelled disaster to Villanova. He threw a 21-yard pass that was good to Knapp's hands. Knapp, however, was downed on the 'Cat five-yard line. Cooper then took three downs to give the Lions their last touchdown, and he converted the extra point, to give Cooper 19 points for the afternoon and to make him high scorer of the game.

Score, Penn State, 27; Villanova, 7.

Villanova rooters then took solace from Notre Dame's victory over Ohio State and fervently believed that the 'Cats would still win the ball game. Their hopes were bolstered when the 'Cats put another drive on, this one good for 65 yards. Penn State held on its own 15 and Stopper dropped back to pass to Walt Korchinski who scored. Stopper then failed to make the extra point.

a total of 53 points, while Bucknell was held scoreless.

La Salle met a strong Manhattan eleven and fell 54-13. The Ursinus Bears were too weak for the F. and M. gridders falling 59-0. P. M. C. took the measure of the University of Delaware.

In the very near future the intramural basketball program will get underway. It is the hope of the sponsors of the program that it will meet with the same amount of interest that it has created in the past. Alumni Hall, last season's champs in this particular sport will have a new squad and those members of the winning combination are scattered through the various dorms.

The Dayhops have several candidates who will strengthen them, incidentally this sport is the only one in which the "train and trolley" boys show more than just an indifferent intrerest.

'Cats' Meow

Last week we mentioned that it was possible for Villanova to complete the season having defeated every opponent met; although having lost one game. We still say it WAS possible.

—V—

Harry Stuhldreher tried to upset the old adage that the Lion is king. With his pack of Wildcats, Stuhldreher invaded the lair of the Nittany Lions. Today the Lion is still king; but among his subjects the Wildcats will ever be the unruly, fighting, disloyal and mutinous subjects they have always been.

—V—

The Villanova team can't kick about the spectators sitting on their bench. They were not promised an "All rights reserved" bench.

—V—

The referee seemed in a daze. At one time, he did get mixed up and walked a step backward with the ball, when State had the oval, instead of forward. You know, one cannot keep on doing that and not get mixed up once in a while.

—V—

Too bad we couldn't play State at home. Away games with a group of sophomores on the team do always prove disastrous.—One overenthusiastic non-student Villanova fan remarked: "If the Wildcats played all their games at home they could even beat the "Irish."

—V—

Temple's next on the schedule—and away. Let's hope for the best against the "Wise, old, Fox," and his "hooting Owls."

not participated in many games.

This is the information that I now have on hand. Can you identify this man from these few bare facts. If you can do so please write me immediately.

Yours truly,
Quintuplets X. Honeypuss,
Class of '89.

We are very glad to have received a letter from Mr. Honeypuss at this time as he shows that he still has an interest in the paper and the College. If you will remember he was a regular contributor to this column in the past. We are answering Mr. Honeypuss and will give youse guys a preview of the epistle.

Dear Mr. Honeypuss,

I was very glad to hear from you and of your evident interest in the boys. From your information I was able to apply it to only one person. He is George Joseph Wrona a Senior in the Commerce and Finance school.

I also have some information on hand so the next time that the boys get together you won't feel to much out in the cold.

During his summer vacations he was wont to work in the coal mines near his home. He was engaged in the honorable profession that is known to the most of us as bootlegging coal. Far below the earths surface George and the rest of the boys labored from dawn to dusk or vice versa removing the black diamonds.

In his junior year he was an active member of the junior Prom Committee and worked faithfully to make this dance a big success which ultimately it was. During his Sophomore and Junior years he was on the honor roll at the Commerce and Finance School and in his Junior year also he was the third in his class. As you can plainly see he is no slouch scholastically.

Upon graduation G. J. will enter upon a teaching career as he is majoring in Education.

Thanking you for your interest I remain,

The Stooge.

DETROIT ROUTS BUCKNELL

Detroit University playing host to the Bucknell team last Saturday handed the visitors a terrific trouncing, 53-0.

Scoring their touchdowns through the air and on straight plays, the Titans gave the Bison clan an unpleasant afternoon. Coach Dorais used his entire squad against the weak opponent.

Both these teams were faced by Villanova this season.

ED STANLEY LEADS COLLEGE SCORERS

Williams, Sensational Back, Has 84 Points in Seven Games

Eddie Stanley, fleet Williams halfback, continues to lead the individual scorers in the Eastern sector of collegiate football.

Stanley made two touchdowns last Saturday as Williams defeated Wesleyan; while his rivals of the previous week failed to show any scoring power, O'Malley and Walt Dick.

Syracuse's sensational fullback, Vannie Albanese, who made all his points against Columbia, replaced O'Malley as the runner-up, with 69 points.

Douglas Stone, Salem College fullback, fell one short of tying the Syracuse flash, and O'Malley follows directly on his heels with 67.

Frank Patrick continues to lead in field goals, with his fourth one coming against the Army eleven last week. Ken Sandbach, of Princeton, lost his leadership in points after touchdowns to Handrahan, of Dartmouth, who has 19, two more than the former leader.

Records of the leading individual scorers follow:

FROSH FOOTBALL SQUAD GIVES BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Two Scrappy Elevens Struggle For Supremacy on Gridiron In Near Future

Although much has been said about our Wildcats this season, little recognition has been given to the Kittens. The Kittens, you know, are the Frosh footballers who have been toiling in yon greensward stadium since Sept. 9th.

This year the freshmen did not compete with rival freshmen squads but worked primarily to get the varsity in shape by scrimmaging them while equipped with future opponents plays. Coach "Doc" Jacobs has two formidable elevens which alternated in testing the varsity.

The Class of '39 presents a squad which compares favorably with former freshman elevens at Villanova.

Sometime before the Temple contest the two freshman teams will collide at the stadium in the "Battle of the Frosh" and then watch the fur fly.

LINEMEN PREVAIL

Alabama boasts of favoring linemen for Captains of their football teams.

Within the past ten years, the Southerners have elected a lineman eight times. The exceptions being in the '23 and '28 campaigns.

Stuhlie Says

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stuhldreher, Head Coach of Football, is writing this column to explain in detail the inside story of the game of the previous Saturday, explaining the results of the game and why the game went as it did. He will also give a prediction, based on previous performances, as to the outcome of the game of the following Saturday.)

In a few words, we were outplayed out-maneuvered and beaten by a better team. Penn State came out on that field determined to take that ball game if they never took another one. Their fierce blocking and tackling proved that. They gave no quarter and they expected none. As soon they had their hands on a break of the game, they held on to it with a grip that wouldn't say "No." That's how they won the ball game.

We had one of those days where everything went wrong. The team didn't click, we didn't block, the pass defense was shoddy. The team was wrong. Every team has at least one of these days when every man on the squad just doesn't do his job. It's no great fault, it's universal and we had one.

I am not saying this to detract from Penn State. They have a great team and they certainly deserved to win that game. They put up a determined fight, they were out to take us and they won.

Penn State is an alert team. They took instant advantage of every opportunity that we offered them, and they capitalized on those breaks to take a decisive win.

Cooper's Kicks Too Much

Just as an indication of how things were working against us, on two occasions, Cooper kicked. The results of those kicks were indication of the day as a whole. The first occasion was the result of a punt from our own 40 yard line. Cooper kicked, the ball landed on our own two yard line, about 15 yards in from the sidelines. It took a crazy right angle bounce high in the air and went out of bounds on our one yard line.

Another time, Cooper kicked the greatest punt that he has ever made. Penn State was on its one yard line, with Cooper standing deep in the end zone. Our safety man was standing rather deep, on about State's 40. The ball was snapped, and Cooper kicked a long high one that went over Higgins' head, Higgins having run back still further when he saw it coming. That kick of Cooper's bounced down the field and when Higgins got the ball, it had travelled 88 yards.

We have forgotten the game. It's over, we've lost it and we can't win it now. We are now realizing that Temple is just around the corner, they are the best team we have met all year and we are preparing for them.

In order to have an even chance with Temple, we will have to be in tip-top condition and take advantage of every break we get.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

ALMOST a month of fine weather, and now rain for the past week...Just as intramural football was to be launched on its way...Launched is right... Anyway, the football team will get plenty of muddy weather practice ...All of which reminds us that the Detroit game was played on the most slippery field of the year...All of the other contests were played with summer weather prevailing... Basketball is just around the corner...Frank Moriarity, baseball manager, never steps on the threshold when he enters a classroom...He steps over it...

The Sophomore pre-meds are a bit worried about organic chemistry ...Don't let it worry you, boys... the horse has not yet gone...Training table for the varsity basketball team is the latest talk floating about the campus...Something that puzzles us...How rumors start... Picture, if you can, the look on the faces of Villanovan rooters if Tony Sala had dropped that pass of Stopper's...Away from football for a second...Tony claims he doesn't want any part of the Brown Bomber (Joe Lewis)...even if he was tendered a lucrative offer...The University of Syracuse officials do not allow scouts to occupy a scouting box at their games...Instead they sit among the Syracuse rooters and while copying the Oranges' weakness the students peer over their shoulders and make notes of the same an inform the powers behind the gridiron forces...Not bad at all...

Ray Murphy, denizen of the pool room, is head manager of basketball this season, and Joe McCabe, of 150 pound fame, is taking charge of the Frosh bookings...About the 150 pounders...Many of the candidates at the beginning of the season reported for the sole purpose of making the trip to New Haven... and seeing the Army-Yale game to boot...Some of them have since turned in their uniforms...Already plans are under way for a monster pep rally and bon fire for the Temple game...One dormitory will uncover a mighty fine display on the eve of the encounter.

An excellent idea would be to offer a prize of some sort for the best spirit and representation displayed by the dorms in conjunction with the Owl-Wildcat game...And another thing that would add color to the annual engagement would be to have the freshmen wear a nice black bow tie and the "dink," that is a part of "regs."...The City of Williamsport was well represented at the State game, chiefly, to see Andy Stopper perform...A time worn football adage is "That a team is as good as its reserve strength." The Wildcats have nothing to fear in that case...With a wealth of backfield material and six tackles that tip the Fairbanks well over the two hundred pound mark, the Main Liners bear out the axiom to the letter...Or should I say the player...Basil Dobrowolski, head of the Circulation Department, is a worker whose ability is never recognized...

VARSITY QUINTET BEGINS PRACTICE FOR '35-'36 TILTS

Last Year's Frosh Supplies Material to Offset Veterans' Loss

GERAGHTY LEADS DRILLS

Last Monday, Nov. 4, Villanova's basketball squad began practice for the 1935-1936 season. The highlight of the Wildcats' schedule is a Christmas night game with George Washington University in Newark, N. J. Other outstanding teams to face the Villanova court machine are: Dickinson, Western Maryland, City College of New York and Temple.

The squad is operated by Ben Geraghty, former St. Benedict's Prep luminary, and includes in its ranks three seniors in addition to the leader. These are Tommy Ryan, Jack Robinson and Mike O'Meara. O'Meara is an alumnus of Philadelphia's Northeast Catholic High, and Robinson and Ryan are from the metropolitan area, having starred at Brooklyn Prep and Newtown, respectively.

Four Veterans Lost

Coach Jacobs will have to replace Jack Barry, Johnny Shevlin, Barry's running mate, John Torpey and "Pop" Travers; Barry and Shevlin were guards and Torpey held down the center, while Travers alternated between guard and forward; all these men were lost by graduation.

There is a wealth of material from which to choose in the number of graduates from the freshmen squad of last year. Among the ex-yearlings are Eddie Collins, former West Catholic basketeer; Charlie Noonan, Salesianum forward and high scorer of the frosh quintet; Walt McKenna, Horace Mann Ace; Harry McNally, of Manhattan Prep; Don Brennan, stellar center; Joe Hopkins, Malvern's representative, and Paul Peluso, and Walt Sheftic of Asbury Park and Boswell, Pa., respectively.

Bill McLaughlin, Camden High School star, and Leo Schoppmeyer varsity baseball player, are new comers into the field and will try to earn a place on the squad.

If last year's frosh continue the brand of ball displayed by them last season, the coming campaign will be a most successful one. The youngsters dropped only two of twenty-two or more games.

Concerted Protest Marks Student Reaction to Screen's Derision

An articulate, concentrated protest against propaganda in two of the mediums most recently adapted to it, the screen and newspaper comic strips, has been increasingly evident in college communities, an Associated Collegiate Press survey shows.

Most bitterly protested has been the movie "Red Salute," starring Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Young, with most of the newsreels and such comic strips as the Chicago Tribune Syndicate's "Little Orphan Annie," coming in for heavy criticisms and action that has often resulted in boycott.

"Red Salute," which is said to deride student anti-war sentiment and to attack the right of free speech by students and professors, has been picketed on campuses from New York to Chicago, and has received cancelled bookings in other places. Eighteen C. C. N. Y. students were arrested for picketing the film in New York, and in Madison, University of Wisconsin students came to blows when pickets were attacked by a group of athletes.

"Students will not be lied about or kidded out of their opposition against war, and the picket lines in front of theatres showing 'Red Salute in college towns throughout the country have shown the movie makers that they had better stick to romance instead of Hearstian lies about undergraduates," says the Penn State Collegian.

Commenting on the action of John Clendenin, editor of the Huntington, W. Va., Herald-Dispatch, in throwing "Little Orphan Annie" out of his columns, the Minnesota Daily has this to say:

"Considering that comic strips were primarily intended for the kiddies, one can easily see that their purpose has well nigh gone astray. More action like that taken in Huntington against artists who endeavor to advance their pet ideas or instill the glory of war, or the mechanism of underworld organization, would be advisable in order to protect at least the funnies from the nuisance of propaganda."

FINDS RELATIVE IN ANATOMY LAB

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov 11—A search lasting several weeks ending recently for Into Karimo, a University of Minnesota student, when he found the body of his uncle, Herman E. Karimo, in the anatomy laboratory of the Minnesota medical school.

The youth had been unable to locate his uncle at the beginning of the Fall term and had appealed to police for aid. Detectives assigned to the case found Herman Karimo had changed the addresses under an assumed name and had committed suicide September 4. The body lay unclaimed in the county morgue until September 17, when it was removed to the university.

Collegiate World

By COLLEGIATE DIGEST and Associated Collegiate Press

There are two, and just two, reasons why freshmen flunk out of college—says Dr. L. L. Click, of the University of Texas.

1. Either freshmen get too scared of their studies.

2. Or they don't get scared enough and go to sleep.

Along with every other profession, the profession of being a college student is over crowded, says no less an authority than the New York Times, after a survey of 67 colleges and universities.

The surveyor makes the assertion that only 30 per cent of young college men and women are capable of thinking for themselves, which means that the other 70 per cent are just being "carried along."

Bright light from the columnist in the paper at the University of Illinois:

"Sing Sing ought to get a game with Army and prove that the pen is mightier than the sword."

An enterprising professor at Northwestern University put a list of questions with suggested answers before a large group of high school and delinquent boys. To the question, "Which is the most serious offense?" most of the boys answered, "Stealing your mother's wrist watch to pawn it."

ROOMMATE REVEALS FOIBLES OF FRIEND

Co-ed Airs her Grievances In Columns of College Newspaper

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 11—Most students are inclined to bear the foibles of their roommates in more or less anguished silence, but a University of Wisconsin co-ed burst into articulate annoyance recently, and in a communication to the Crippers' Club, student paper column, set forth the woes of all roommates everywhere.

"My dear, dear roommate," she wrote, "we have now enjoyed each other's delightful company for three whole weeks. When I first met you, that beautiful maiden's smile of yours, your ever-gay disposition, your happy-go-lucky air assured me that our school life together would be semester after semester of bliss. Certain minor things have come up that irk me. I have tried to tell them to you time and again, but when I see you go blithely through the day, a personification of a ray of sunshine, I haven't the heart to take the chance of spoiling your happiness. So, my beloved roommate, I am taking this opportunity to get these irksome things off my mind, out of my hair. I know you won't read this, and even if you do it will do no good. At any rate, sweetheart, here is what I increasingly can't stand.

"(a) Wipe that perpetual silly grin off your kisser.

"(b) When I lend you silk stockings I expect them back. Christmas is a long way off.

"(c) Who cares how popular you were in your home town? The fact is that my boy friend is sick of forever fixing you up with dates, consequently making himself Man to be Avoided No. 1 among his friends.

"(d) Give me at least a 50-50 chance at the candy I get from home.

"(e) If you can't stand having your clothes in order, at least let them accumulate on your own bed and chair.

"(f) I know that because of your country peaches and cream complexion you don't use cosmetics while I do. But do you have to make this fact the principle theme of conversation whenever we double-date? Lovingly, Alias Sally."

CO-EDS SAID TO LACK MANNERS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 11—The average male student is so much more polite than the average co-ed that it's far from funny.

According to the standards of good manners laid down by the Emily Posts of the land, young women should smile and whisper "thank you" in response to small favors. Maybe some young women do, but co-eds do not, at least they don't at Ohio State.

"MARCH — YOU WILDCATS, MARCH RIGHT ON TO VICTORY"

VILLANOVA GRIDMEN, we do not have to mention to you the fact that tomorrow you will meet in contest one of the greatest football teams Temple University has ever had. You are well aware of it; more so than we. But, the fact we would like to get across is that you can beat them. PERHAPS they have met tougher opponents, compiled better averages, and records than you, but they also have reached their peak of the season.

You have played great football and compiled as good records as any Villanova team. But you have not reached your peak of the season. You will reach your peak tomorrow when you DEFEAT our "bitterest friendly" rivals. We know this because you have demonstrated several times your will and ability to win.

"BEAT TEMPLE" is your task for tomorrow. You can do it and we know that you will do it.

Villanova students, do you want your team to beat Temple? That we shall know by noting your respone tonight to the huge pep rally and bonfire. By noting, not whether you attend the game, but HOW you will attend the game. A football game is no place for a blind, deaf and dumb person. You can help the team which represents you by showing a LOT more spirit than you have heretofore in the way of cheers and songs. Learn them and use them.

How Rival Coaches View Tomorrow's Annual Contest

Glenn S. "Varner, nationally known coach at Temple, writes:

"Although I have been at Temple but three years, the traditional spirit of the Villanova-Temple game has gripped me completely, and I regard it as the most important game on the Temple schedule. The general student attitude at Temple is that if we beat the 'Cats, our season is successful, regardless of our preceding record. That is the way that I now feel. If Temple takes the Villanova game, I am thoroughly satisfied with the results of the season as a whole.

"The team was at its highest peak of the season against Marquette. They played as an absolute unit, and the fundamentals of the game were perfect. They were at a psychological peak as the result of a two weeks' rest, and it will be difficult to get them at the same peak, as will be necessary to defeat Villanova tomorrow.

"I am looking forward to the toughest battle we have faced this year. I have a wholesome respect for Mr. Stuhldreher's boys, and win or lose, I'll be glad when tomorrow is over."

Coach Harry Stuhldreher states for the VILLANOVAN:

"Temple is here again, and we have a decidedly happier outlook than we had last year. The team has had a successful season, the boys have had a two weeks rest, they are tops physically, and they are all eagerly awaiting the opening whistle.

"Public interest is focused on tomorrow's game, as it has become a Philadelphia institution. We realize that, and we are determined to prove that we can click against any opponent.

"We regard Temple as the toughest assignment on our schedule, and the team that we are most anxious to beat. We received a setback last year, but that's in the past. We have a new, fresh team now, eager to test their mettle against the Owls. It is on this new team that I am relying. The older boys realize their responsibility and will give their utmost, but the sophomores want to show those Temple boys that experience doesn't necessarily make a winner."

Owl Captain Thinks 'Cats Most Important Game

Jim Russell, Temple grid captain, writes:

"Our athletic relations with Villanova have been running for a long time, and any contest between the two colleges is always a serious one. The chief aim of any Temple team in any sport is to beat Villanova, with football among the first.

"With that thought in mind we are going into the Villanova game. We think more of winning tomorrow's game than any on our schedule. To us, it is our most important game, and we are more determined to take it than any other on our schedule.

Wildcat Leader Believes His Team Will Upset Owls

EDDIE MICHAELS, Villanova Captain, says:

"We're going into this Temple game with the express idea of winning. The team can do it, they're a grand bunch of fellows, and they will do it.

"In our last game, we had a tough break. We just weren't 'up.' Consequently, we 'et State take the game from under our noses before we realized what was happening. That won't happen against Temple. We've been eating, sleeping, thinking ons thought for two weeks, and that's to beat Temple.

"The spirit of the players is high, they are in good shape, and ready. "We are waiting for the kickoff."

Huge Pep Rally Tonight

PROMINENT GUEST SPEAKERS, BONFIRE FOR DEMONSTRATION

"Beat Temple" Is Throbbing Theme of Campus Conversation Throughout Week

"EAT 'EM UP WILDCATS" WILL BE HEARD AT RALLY

Coaches, Fr. O'Leary, Fr. Melchior, Bradley, McLaughlin, Lynch, Dalton Speakers

Throughout the halls of Villanova College during the past week the main topic of conversation, aside from the drudgery of examinations, has been "Beat Temple."

Students have been saying it to the team, have been writing it in their letters, and are wearing big buttons with the phrase spread all over it.

"Beat Temple" is the spirit of the campus, and "Beat Temple" will be the spirit of the big prep rally to be held tonight in the Commerce and Finance School auditorium at 7.30. Many prominent speakers including Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher, Coach Bob Regan, Rev. John O'Leary, O. S. A., and "Reds" Bradley will be on hand.

Those who have heard "Stuhly," Regan or Fr. O'Leary at former rallies know just what they are in for when the speakers come to the fore tonight. However, a word of explanation may be necessary to introduce to the newcomers the genial "Reds" Bradley.

Mr. Bradley, a former Wildcat gridder, is, as you may have guessed, carrot-topped and possesses a wonderful spirit in his 200-pound frame. Besides being full of spirit "Reds" is good luck to Villanova teams and will try his charm tonight at the rally.

Other prominent speakers for tonight include Charlie (Eat 'em up Wildcats) Laughlin, an ardent Villanova rooter and grad who is heard at every Villanova game; Leo Lynch, Villanova football star of 1917; John Dalton, prominent attorney and Villanova alumnus; Martin McLaughlin, another alumnus and recently appointed by Mayor-

Underdogs In Contest Against Owls Tomorrow, 'Cats Appear Confident

Eighth Annual Game Has All Indications Of Being Close Despite All Pre-Game Predictions

RENZO OUTSTANDING BACK OF FOE

By A. R. CATRAMBONE

VILLANOVA'S Wildcats meet the Temple University eleven tomorrow afternoon in their eighth annual contest, at the Temple Stadium. Holding the edge in the series with four wins against two losses and a tie game, for this game the charges of Harry Stuhldreher will be the underdogs.

Facing a potent Owl squad, tutored by that great figure and originator of the Warner System, Glenn S. ("Pop") Warner, the Wildcats appear to be in for a very tough afternoon. Efficient in every phase of the game, the Cherry and White will present a formidable group of pigskin toters. With an envious record to protect plus the fact that Villanova is their traditional rival the Owls will be doubly inspired.

The record compiled by the Owls consists of seven wins and one loss, administered to them at the hands of the Michigan State clan, who in turn were knocked from the undefeated ranks by Marquette. The Cats have seen action in as many games but lost one more than their foes.

The Temple record includes the most recent victory over the Marquette "Golden Avalanche," which boasted an unbeaten and untied record prior to their invasion of the Temple Stadium last Saturday. In setting down the mid-westerners, the Warnermen had things their own way.

Renzo Sensational

Dave Smukler, last year's sensation, and instrumental in the last victory over the Wildcats has been on the sidelines for the major part of the current campaign, but he will be available for tomorrow's contest. In the star fullback's absence another figure has come to the front for the charges of "Pop" Warner.

Only a sophomore and already a sensation throughout the eastern sector of the gridiron world, Vince Renzo, doughty left halfback for

FOOTBALL DINNER TO BE HELD DEC. 10

Bellevue - Stratford Chosen; Award for Prominent Alumnus to Be Given

In an official release from the Alumni Office, the date set for the Fifteenth Annual Football Dinner, will be Tuesday evening, December 10, with dinner being served at 7:30 P. M.

In anticipation of the large number of Alumni and students who are expected to attend, arrangements have been made to hold the dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Broad and Walnut streets, Philadelphia.

Tickets for the dinner are now on sale in the Alumni Secretary's Office, Room 108, Mendel Hall. The price has been set at $2.50 per plate, and all students, as well as the alumni and their friends are cordially invited to pay tribute to the Wildcat football squad on this occasion.

As customary, many prominent personages of the athletic world have been invited as guests of the Alumni. In the near future the VILLANOVAN will publish a list of these men who will attend. The rest of the evening will be given over to a grand reunion of young and old grads and friends of Villanova.

Joseph D. Freney, '26, chairman, heads a committee of twenty-three,

Quickest Routes to Temple Stadium By Both Automobile and Street Car

Below are given the best routes both by automobile and street car, to get to Temple Stadium, Vernon Rd. and City Line, Philadelphia. These routes have been compiled by the VILLANOVAN, for those who are not familiar with the streets of the Quaker City.

By Machine:

For those who will leave for the game from the central part of the city, two routes may be taken. The more direct route, if taken, is to proceed north on Broad Street to its end, then turn left to Cheltenham Ave., continue on Cheltenham Ave., to Vernon Rd., and the parking ground adjacent to the stadium.

Another route may be taken, which though longer, can be covered in less time. Go out the Parkway to the East River Drive in Fairmount Park; then continue on the drive to the Wissahickon Drive (joins East River Drive at Ridge Ave. and City Line). Continue to the Lincoln Drive, to dead end, and turn right to Germantown Ave., double car-tracks; bear right again, and at the first traffic light, turn left (Mt. Airy Ave.), then follow till you come to the stadium.

The latter route is suggested as being the most desirable, for the reason that the heavy traffic encountered on Broad Street is avoided.

Those from South Philadelphia, will proceed north on Broad Street to City Hall, and then take their

Student Opinions On Game's Outcome Favor 'Cat Gridmen

Frank Bellarmino, Senior Science—"Temple has played a very hard schedule and has been somewhat weakened by injuries received in these tussels. It seems likely that Villanova, which has been more fortunate, will be the better team."

Joe Toland, Sophomore Science—"Temple has a great and powerful team and should prove a test for any football machine. But Villanova, much improved by intense practice, displaying great fighting spirit and showing the strength to come back after a defeat by the Detroit team, will rebound again to defeat the 'Warnermen'."

Pio Goggi, Junior Science — "In the two years that I've been at Villanova I've always witnessed a game full of bitter rivalry and splendid sportsmanship when the Wildcats met the gridiron men of Temple University. I expect this game to have that same rivalry and

BAD BUSINESS

FEDERAL relief agencies in this country certainly overlook the purpose of their creation when they feel that they are called upon to save a penny or two by buying materials out of the country. We may point out as the classical instance of official stupidity the attempt to buy steel in Germany for part of the structure of the Tri-borough Bridge in New York. This blunder has caused, to use a mild expression, a furore in all circles of New York.

Federal expenditures on projects such as the Tri-borough Bridge have as their prime purpose the provision of employment, not merely for those who are to work on the bridge itself but for those who would be put to work in the course of furnishing material for the bridge — steel, cement, etc. Any expenditure of government money in foreign countries, even if there were a saving, would be the height of something or other; for after all how much would be saved?

The American public might as well face the facts. We are trying to work our way out of a depression and it needs no master mind to see that it can't be done by cutting across any corners in such a fashion.

SONGS

ALMA MATER

By Al Dubin and Joseph Burke

When the twilight shadows gather
Out upon the Campus green,
When the blue and purple night
Comes stealing on the scene
Loyal sons of Villanova
Sing a hymn of praise
To our dear old ALMA MATER
And our College days.

Villanova, Villanova,
When we leave your shelt'ring walls,
We shall leave an echo ringing
Through your treasured halls
We will leave an echo ringing
In the silent night
While our memories are singing
Of the Blue and White.

When the last big game is over
And the last roll call is heard
When the oldest pedagogue
Has had his final word
We shall come to ALMA MATER
In our dreams again
With a prayer for Villanova
And a sweet amen.

THE MARCH OF THE WILDCATS

By Carmen Giordono, '36

March, you Wildcats—march right on
We are out to win the day
We'll march straight through to victory
So onward let us go — Rah! Rah!

Let us fight, fight, fight, fight, fight,
Villanovans one and all
Join to sing a praise to Alma Mater
Hail, Blue and White.

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

BY dint of extensive study of the inane contraptions featured each week in the COLLEGIATE DIGEST as a means to solve the various perplexities of life, "Cholly" Bruno has rigged up an outfit of his own with which he is well satisfied, and for a good reason, we say. By means of a piece of cord and two indispensable accessories, as far as the present day collegian is concerned, the radio and an alarm clock "Cholly" is on his way to greater things, as it were.

The Austinite is a heavy sleeper and it takes a by-no-means-meager process to bring him to complete consciousness. Hence the three articles named above. By simply tying the cord to the alarm key of the clock and to the knob whereby the radio is turned on "the sleeping beauty" has perfected a "never-fails" system of awakening. For the cord is tied in such a manner that when the alarm rings the key which turns slowly winds up the cord thereby turning the radio dial and lo, the radio is turned on. Should Charles be still in slumberland when this process is completed he is softly aroused from his guerile dreams by the strains of some early morning musicale.

We doff our hat to you "Cholly" —great idea!

It should be the fervent wish of every member of all four classes of Villanova College that the skies are clear on the day set for the annual Temple classic. Not to assure Wildcat backs and linemen sure footing but to enable John Hosey, John Burke, and Edward Donovan three of the six students involved in the unfortunate auto crash some six weeks ago. To attend the game. For it has been arranged that should the weather permit the trio will be on hand at the Owl stadium for the fray. They will be conveyed to the stadium and then posted in a choice place where they will be able to watch the contest from wheel chairs provided for the occasion.

Ever since their inopportune confinement the boys have been looking forward to attending this great battle and now that it is within their grasp we should all say an extra prayer or two for their sake that the fates will be kind and permit their attendance.

IT IS SAID that the cafeteria waiter at Holy Cross are forbidden to serve milk by the glass at the soda fountain. However, one wise senior wrangled a glass out of them by making them pour the milk into a can, put it under the electric churner, and set it up as a chocolate milk shake. That's what a course in scholastic philosophy will do for one.

The Dean of Women at Wisconsin keeps a list of "approved" roadhouses, dance halls, etc. Wisconsin women are then forbidden to be seen in places not on the list. So the tale goes, one day the dean stopped in a pretty little tea room (not on the list) and ordered a cup of tea. Finding it a charming place, she immediately annexed it to her O. K. list. But the laugh was on her. The waiter had recognized her and had scurried about for a tea ball. Students later found it to be the town's leading dive.

As We See It . . . Reflections

By HARRY PARKIN

MANY PEOPLE, whom we think unmannerly are usually so, through inadvertence rather than design. These individuals need hardly to open their lips without offending someone. And their halting attempts at explanation usually gain them little more than the ill-will of the bystanders. Whether this attitude can be ascribed to misguided good humor, or an unconscious manner of expression, that through some quirk or other has taken a provocative turn, is beside the necessity for such persons, to studiously exercise themselves in the correction of this fault.

While praising and seeking to emulate those things which raise human nature, and shunning those which degrade and scorn it, we are, as a nation, too prone to fasten upon any whim or fancy that is presented to us, so long as it is advanced with a semblance of reasonableness. Fortunately for our moral and social stability the elements in our nature most designed to be our undoing is frequently our protection. For as eagerly and completely as we embrace one concept, so we are as apt to relinquish it in favor of another, without having to suffer too strongly the pains of our adoption.

Simplicity of character is frequently the outcome of profound thought Proportionately as a man's vision is increased so the importance of his immediate surroundings is diminished. For no one can constantly occupy himself with the great and ennobling thoughts that are possible to mankind, and still derive any conscious pleasure from an indulgence in the follies and affectations that so many people adhere to.

In the Library

THE desire to know just what is most profitable to read is in the mind of every literate person. Villanova students can find no greater inspiration than that derived from reading biography, for the life story of great men is more interesting and stirring than fiction, since actual difficulties and actual triumphs are more appealing than imaginary difficulties and imaginary triumphs.

Indeed, some modern educators would have all instruction proceed from the biographies of those men who have been most closely associated with the progress of history and of knowledge. Those who enter the world of books through the field of biography, however, need some suggestions and guidance, for even Carlyle tells us: "A well-written life is almost as rare as a well-spent one."

Roger B. Taney

The biography of ROGER B. TANEY by Carl Brent Swisher meets both of these requirements, it is decidedly well-written and anyone who reads it will know that it is the history of a "WELL-SPENT" life. For Catholic students, who should be awake to the responsibilities and duties due to their vast numbers, the life of TANEY has an especial appeal, for he stands as one of their number who fought in defence of unhampered Judiciary at a time when national policies were in their inception and territorial jealousies were rampant.

The present great interest in the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States and the attendant abuse and praise which has been the lot of the court since its NRA decisions provide a fitting background for this book, which deals with a period productive of many cases similar in character and fraught with the same danger to the Court and to the country.

White-Headed Eagle

The author of the book, while not a Catholic, has presented an unbiased account of a Catholic subject. There may be one or two lines which will cause a momentary check to the reader in regard to the supposedly pre-nuptial agreement of Taney in regard to the religion of his children, and again in the account of Taney's burial, when the author remarks: "Thus matters of religious dogma which could not separate the devoted husband and wife while they lived, separated their bodies when they were gone. He who ponders the matter will decide whether such a question, at this late date, was a matter of importance."

However, such matters are of more importance to the hypersensitive Catholic than hey are to the person who knows that in the finest head of lettuce there are tiny bits of sand and who has learned that one imperfect stitch does not spoil a whole garment. No Villanova student can afford to miss this story of a man who was terribly misunderstood, who held high office with dignity, who could have had myriads of friends, but who yet died in seclusion; a man who lived by his convictions and to whom even his enemies gave sympathy and admiration.

The Commerce and Finance students should find it right in line with the courses they are pursuing.

And while we are on the subject of BEST SELLERS, if any of our students had chanced to look at the New York Herald Tribune, Books, dated Sunday, November 10 (on paper rack in the Library) he might have noticed that there is a title noted there which states that THE WHITE-HEADED EAGLE by Richard G. Montgomery is a best seller in three great cities of the United States. Certainly it is true that a BOOK is sometimes without honor in its own "LIBRARY" for this book has been on the Book Display Rack for a number of weeks in Villanova Library, but now that other cities are telling us what an outstanding biography we have, perhaps some of us will discard some of our cheap literature and try for something worth while. You who loved to pore over Wild West stories in the days gone by will find amble entertainment in this hero, Dr. John McLaughlin (THE WHITE-HEADED EAGLE) of the great Oregon country and before your mind's eye will arise visions of covered-wagon caravans, Canadian voyageurs, fur traders of all nations, missionaries and the whole panorama of the twenty-five years during which McLaughlin was the supreme dictator an diben the story of how in his mature manhood after reading Milner's "End of the Controversy" he made his humble submission to the Catholic faith and finally in the midst of innumerable woes when greeted on his deathbed by the familiar "Comment allez vous," THE WHITE - HEADED EAGLE chose to answer literally "a Dieu."

ESSAY CONTEST IS OPEN TO STUDENTS

New York Association Offers Cash Prizes and Expenses For Tours

Panhellenic House Association of New York has extended an invitation to Villanova College students to participate in its Second Annual Nationwide Essay Contest on the subject "Why I should see New York."

In conducting this contest, The Panhellenic House has in view the interesting adventure it will be to all students in the literary field and the usefulness it will be to those students majoring in History, English, Commerce and associated subjects.

Besides its usefulness, however, the contest has the inviting and practical aspect of offering a first prize of $100, plus a week's all expense stay with entertainment at the Beekman Tower, home of the association. If the winner should live at such a distance from New York that the $100 is insufficient to cover traveling expenses, the railroad fare to New York and return will be paid in lieu of the $100.

There are also two other prizes for the second and third best essays. The second prize is $25 and a week's stay with entertainment as a guest at Beekman Tower, and the third offers a prize of $15 and a week-end stay at the same place.

Another opportunity the contest affords is that of bringing new literary talent to the attention of the judges and New York editors. Last year's contest winner received several offers of employment.

Any student who wishes information and entry blanks for the contest may have such by applying at the VILLANOVAN office.

STAFF MEETING TODAY

The entire VILLANOVAN staff will meet this afternoon in the office, Room 119, Mendel Hall, at 1:00 P. M. Those who have classes report at earliest convenience.

GLOBE TROTTING

By FRED WATERS

(From an interview with Raymond A. Gomes, Villanova student, native of Kauai, Hawaiian Islands).

A HUMAN FISH — "How are travelers greeted when they visit Hawaii?"

Hawaiian girls, dressed in their native costumes, greet the visitor as soon as his ship enters the port, and very graciously place a "lei" wreath about his neck.

While at the dock, but still on board, the passengers are entertained by throngs of divers who swim around the vessel. When a passenger throws a coin overboard, the wildest scrambles imaginable will result. The spectacle of these expert swimmers gliding about under the surface of the water, each trying desperately to grasp the money, is well worth the value of the piece thrown to them.

PIT OF HELL—"What is the natural attraction of Hawaii, most interesting to tourists?"

Foreigners are always enthralled by the wonders of Kilauea, the largest active volcano in the world. Here in an immense crater, many miles wide, molten lava is constantly boiling at an enormous temperature, filling the atmosphere with clouds of gas and wild flames, striking skyward for miles. The tourist may witness here, probably the nearest reproduction of the torments of the damned, to be found anywhere on this earth.

WORLD MELTING POT — "Are Hawaiian cities and homes modern?"

Our cities are as modern as those found in America in almost every respect. In addition they are usually very beautiful. Honolulu, for example, with its palm-lined avenues, its modern buildings, its brilliant gardens, and its numerous parks, is one of the most modern and attractive cities in the world.

The many types of homes found in the country are so diversified that it would be impossible to describe them without going into a description of the various households to be found in about a dozen foreign countries. Immigrants have to a great extent brought along with them the customs of living in their native nations, and usually live in groups.

For this reason Hawaii is often called the "melting pot of the world." However, in spite of this wide divergence in mode of living, socially the inhabitants live in peaceful accord. All are patriotic American citizens, and hope one day to become a state of your great nation.

SPORTS—"What sports are common in Hawaii?"

Baseball, tennis, golf, swimming, canoeing, surf-board riding and football are very popular.

Many football leagues play barefoot. It is not unusual to see a shoeless player kick the ball 50 or 60 yards!

Surf-board riding is very highly developed in my country. Many thrilling feats can be performed by an experienced native. Imagine someone on a surf-board, turning somersaults, walking on his hands and standing on his head, all while the board glides rapidly over the waves, and at the slightest miscue who capsize!

Fishing is also quite popular. In Hawaiian, the largest fish is called "air", while the smallest is named "humuhumumukumukuapuoa!"

THE HULA-HULA — "Tell us about the Hawaiian Hula-Hula." The Hula always intrigues visitors. Much has been written abroad about this feature of our island.

Foreigners like to imagine a land of throbbing rhythm, savage charms, soft breeze and softer charms. Life floating along, indolent, languorous. This is the Hawaii you must feel before you can underatand the Hula.

Sportorial

By A. R. C. Sports Editor

EACH GAME on the Villanova schedule is taken at it's worth, but when the time for the Temple contest rolls around, the fervor of the student body is aroused to its highest pitch. Some are inclined to be deeply pessimistic over the 'Cats' chances, others ask higher-ups what are the Villanova chances gainst this Temple grid machine.

The VILLANOVAN has interviewed the football players and all express the belief that Villanova will play its best game, some go as far as to predict a 'Cat victory. There are those on the squad who feel that they will win because of the eagerness that the sophomore members have displayed.

Now a word to the student body; there is no need to discuss the question of school spirit, but tonight there is to be a gigantic "pep rally," and the easiest way to let the fellows on the team know that you are with them is to attend and lend your vocal support.

Our team will go into the game as the underdog, and each member of the team fully realizes it: it will take more than just the coaches' words to stir them into an atmosphere of confidence when the going gets tough. Your chance to help lies in your attendance tonight, and at the game tomorrow.

Record have meant nothing in the past and tomorrow's contest will be no exception to the rule. Temple may have it's Renzo and Smukler, but Villanova has its Stopper and Michaels. With the latter as the spark plug on the line, the Owls will have more than just an ordinary bunch to face.

Pre-season dope had the Blue and White group rated as a green and inexperinced squad, but after eight tussles from which they have been returned victorious in six, you can rely on their having polished off the greenness and inexperience.

GEORGE "DOC" JACOBS, who directs the Freshmen football, varsity basketball, and Varsity baseball squads and does all the scouting for the Varsity football team in his spare time, is looking forward to the Temple game with great anticipation.

Having seen the Owls in several games this year, he admits to quite a knowledge of their strength and of their weaknesses. However, about the outcome of tomorrow's game, "Doc" will not state definitely, but says, "It will be a tough battle. You can't tell who is going to win until the 60 minutes are over. It should be close until the final whistle."

Robert P. Reagan, line coach of the Villanova varsity, expressed his opinion on the outcome of the annual Owl-Wildcat tilt as follows: "It's going to be a tough game. If we can keep the score to 30 points, we'll be doing a good job. I'm sure the boys will play a good game as long as they last."

Coach Reagan's comment may sound pessimistic but in reference to his comments before past Temple games it actually sounds encouraging.

Alexander G. Severance, when interviewed this week, made a brief but meaningful statement: "Too much power."

He did not enlarge upon this so we have understood it to mean that Coach Reagan has a comrade in his pessimism, although we would like to interpret his statement as referring to Villanova's wealth of reserves.

Array of Stars Make Final Appearance for 'Cats Against Owls

MICHAELS IN LAST FRAY

Tomorrow's tussle with the Temple University gridders, finds six Villanova players engaging in their last collegiate football game. Although this year's number is not as great as that of previous seasons it bears many stars who will be sadly missed.

Leading the football team out on the field for his last time is Captain Eddie Michaels one of the most colorful figures to represent the Wildcats on the field. Michaels came to Villanova from Salesianum High School, Wilmington, Del. ton, Del.

In his sophomore year he played a guard position, alongside of Vince Zizak, another great football player. Here it was that the Villanova star made himself known, through his peculiar habit of refusing to wear a headgear. This habit made Michaels the talk of the fans. But his real popularity came from the fact that his stamina carried him through game after game, in his first season on the varsity.

Harry Stuhldreher, the local coach, converted the Wilmington flash into a tackle since the Wildcats were weak in this department during the 1934 season. Again his ability to take it warranted the attention of the opposition, and especially the praise of "Pop" Warner.

He has been the leader of what appeared to be a green and inexperienced squad, however, his efforts have been an incentive to his team mates, especially the sophomore members of the squad. The record made by this green team can be attributed to the ceaseless efforts of its leader.

With the loss of this figure Villa-

Wildcats Ready for Game With Temple Tomorrow

Kusko, a rough and ready ball toter, the typical Warner system fullback. Weighs 186, but he has the drive of a two hundred pounder. Incidentally Kusko is replacing Smukler.

Renzo, if you see a figure tearing down the field with the ball safely tucked under his arm, all you have to look for is the number (30) on the jersey and you will immediately recognize Pop Warner's latest sensation. This individual will probably be the greatest nemesis to the Wildcat aggregation.

Davidson, who fills the right half spot, does not do much ball carrying, but when he does Villanova will know it. He is one of the best blockers on the Owl squad.

Longsderff, who alternates with Davidson at the right half position is also a great blocker, and can be counted on for a couple of yards every time he carries the pigskin.

Frey does the Owl's signal calling, and in doing it has no flaws against him, his alertness has been instrumental in many a Temple touchdown in the past, and he will surely pick up any break afforded him tomorrow.

Walker, exactly six feet in height and can he utilize it on receiving passes. His greatest asset, however, is his ability to size up plays of the opposition. A run around his end will find a stumbling block.

Ippolito, on the right end will afford plenty of trouble to the Villanova attempts. "Ippo" is not exactly a seasoned veteran but his efforts are always satisfying to Warner.

Mowrey, Renzo's alternate, is a senior member of the squad, and can always be counted upon if needed. He was instrumental in the Temple victory last year and will surely be ready to aid the cause of his Alma Mater again.

Docherty, left tackle is second only to his leader in his ability as a lineman. "Doc" does the kicking-off and extra point kicking for his team, and in last week's tussle with Marquette was able to make three out of four tries for conversion, while he put the invaders deep in their own territory on the kick-offs.

Messervey, has been injured for the greater part of the season but will be available for tomorrow's contest, as a pivot man he is great; as a defensive player he is greater.

Konopka, a veteran of the Temple team, and who has been doing well in the absence of Messervey, will be on hand to aid the centerman.

Zanin, who will be the only Owl to play without a headgear will be opposite Villanova's own Eddie Michaels. Moe is the spark plug of the Cherry and White line. Tomorrow will find Zanin opposing a Blue and White team for the last time. He has been a guard on the squad for three years.

Gurzynski, the sophomore sensational right guard was all over the Marquette backfield last Saturday, tomorrow he will try to break through the Wildcat defense. If his efforts are successful, there is the possibility that the 'Cats backs will get nowhere.

Smukler, the hero of the Cherry and White victory last year, Dave will have to start from scratch tomorrow, as a knee injury has been the Temple aggregation is the latest contribution to All-American consideration from these parts.

The Villanova eleven got off to a good start emerging victorious in their first five games with no points scored against them. However, the home and home series with Detroit U. found a split in the wins. In the last game played two weeks ago at State College, however, the Wildcat eleven fared miserably.

Sophomores Predominate

As Temple, the Blue and White representation affords many sophomores who have stood out during the season and are to be reckoned with for tomorrow's contest. Leading the pack of first year men are Andy Stopper and Ray Stoviak, in the backfield, with Mellus and Olivar being the best performers on the line.

In the early stages of the season, the Temple squad was regarded as possessing no reserve material, however these rumors were soon stopped, when with the injuries of Smukler, Messervey and Captain Jim Russell, all coming at the same time, Warner brought out several capable substitutes in Kusko, Landis, and Konopka.

Of the forty-two members on the rival squad, the great majority of them have seen plenty of action this season and will be ready at their tutor's call.

It was the opinion of the Villanova players that they would have a better chance if Temple were to trounce their opponents last week. Villanova saw them do it, now Villanova must act with greater effort for in winning the Owls were at their best without having to call on the reserve strength.

EACH GAME on the Villanova schedule is taken at it's worth, but when the time for the Temple contest rolls around, the fervor of the student body is aroused to its highest pitch. Some are inclined to be deeply pessimistic over the 'Cats' chances, others ask higher-ups what are the Villanova chances gainst this Temple grid machine.

The VILLANOVAN has interviewed the football players and all express the belief that Villanova will play its best game, some go as far as to predict a 'Cat victory. There are those on the squad who feel that they will win because of the eagerness that the sophomore members have displayed.

Now a word to the student body; there is no need to discuss the question of school spirit, but tonight there is to be a gigantic "pep rally," and the easiest way to let the fellows on the team know that you are with them is to attend and lend your vocal support.

Our team will go into the game as the underdog, and each member of the team fully realizes it will take more than just the coaches' words to stir them into an atmosphere of confidence when the going gets tough. Your chance to help lies in your attendance tonight, and at the game tomorrow.

Record have meant nothing in the past and tomorrow's contest will be no exception to the rule. Temple may have it's Renzo and Smukler, but Villanova has its Stopper and Michaels. With the latter as the spark plug on the line, the Owls will have more than just an ordinary bunch to face.

Pre-season dope had the Blue and White group rated as a green and inexperienced squad, but after eight tussles from which they have been returned victorious in six, you can rely on their having polished off the greenness and inexperience.

GEORGE "DOC" JACOBS, who directs the Freshmen football, varsity basketball, and Varsity baseball squads and does all the scouting for the Varsity football team in his spare time, is looking forward to the Temple game with great anticipation.

Having seen the Owls in several games this year, he admits to quite a knowledge of their strength and of their weaknesses. However, about the outcome of tomorrow's game, "Doc" will not state definitely, but says, "It will be a tough battle. You can't tell who is going to win until the 60 minutes are over. It should be close until the final whistle."

Robert P. Reagan, line coach of the Villanova varsity, expressed his opinion on th outcome of the annual Owl-Wildcat tilt as follows: "It's going to be a tough game. If we can keep the score to 30 points, we'll be doing a good job. I'm sure the boys will play a good game as long as they last."

Coach Reagan's comment may sound pessimistic but in eference to his comments before past Temple games it actually sounds encouraging.

Alexander G. Severance, when interviewed this week, made a brief but meaningful statement: "Too much power."

He did not enlarge upon this so we have understood it to mean that Coach Reagan has a comrade in his pessimism, although we would like to interpret his statement as referring to Villanova's wealth of reserves.

Array of Stars Make Final Appearance for 'Cats Against Owls

MICHAELS IN LAST FRAY

Tomorrow's tussle with the Temple University gridders, finds six Villanova players engaging in their last collegiate football game. Although this year's number is not as great as that of previous seasons it bears many stars who will be sadly missed.

Leading the football team out on the field for his last time is Captain Eddie Michaels one of the most colorful figures to represent the Wildcats on the field. Michaels came to Villanova from Salesianum High School, Wilmington, Del. ton, Del.

In his sophomore year he played a guard position, alongside of Vince Zizak, another great football player. Here it was that the Villanova star made himself known, through his peculiar habit of refusing to wear a headgear. This habit made Michaels the talk of the fans. But his real popularity came from the fact that his stamina carried him through game after game, in his first season on the varsity.

Harry Stuhldreher, the local coach, converted the Wilmington flash into a tackle since the Wildcats were weak in this department during the 1934 season. Again his ability to take it warranted the attention of the opposition, and especially the praise of "Pop" Warner.

He has been the leader of what appeared to be a green and inexperienced squad, however, his efforts have been an incentive to his team mates, especially the sophomore members of the squad. The record made by this green team can be attributed to the ceaseless efforts of its leader.

With the loss of this figure Villa-

Wildcats Ready for Game With Temple Tomorrow

Kusko, a rough and ready ball toter, the typical Warner system fullback. Weighs 186, but he has the drive of a two hundred pounder. Incidentally Kusko is replacing Smukler.

Renzo, if you see a figure tearing down the field with the ball safely tucked under his arm, all you have to look for is the number (30) on the jersey and you will immediately recognize Pop Warner's latest sensation. This individual will probably be the greatest nemesis to the Wildcat aggregation.

Davidson, who fills the right half spot, does not do much ball carrying, but when he does Villanova will know it. He is one of the best blockers on the Owl squad.

Longsderff, who alternates with Davidson at the right half position is also a great blocker, and can be counted on for a couple of yards every time he carries the pigskin.

Frey does the Owls signal calling, and in doing it has no flaws against him, his alertness has been instrumental in many a Temple touchdown in the past, and he will surely pick up any break afforded him tomorrow.

Walker, exactly six feet in height and can he utilize it on receiving passes. His greatest asset, however, is his ability to size up plays of the opposition. A run around his end will find a stumbling block.

Ippolito, on the right end will afford plenty of trouble to the Villanova attempts. "Ippo" is not exactly a seasoned veteran but his efforts are always satisfying to Warner.

Mowrey, Renzo's alternate, is a senior member of the squad, and can always be counted upon if needed. He was instrumental in the Temple victory last year and will surely be ready to aid the cause of his Alma Mater again.

Docherty, left tackle is second only to his leader in his ability as a lineman. "Doc" does the kicking-off and extra point kicking for his team, and in last week's tussle with Marquette was able to make three out of four tries for conversion, while he put the invaders deep in their own territory on the kick-offs.

Messervey, has been injured for the greater part of the season but will be available for tomorrow's contest, as a pivot man he is great; as a defensive player he is greater.

Konopka, a veteran of the Temple team, and who has been doing well in the absence of Messervey, will be on hand to aid the centerman.

Zanin, who will be the only Owl to play without a headgear will be opposite Villanova's own Eddie Michaels. Moe is the spark plug of the Cherry and White line. Tomorrow will find Zanin opposing a Blue and White team for the last time. He has been a guard on the squad for three years.

Gurzynski, the sophomore sensational right guard was all over the Marquette backfield last Saturday, tomorrow he will try to break through the Wildcat defense. If his efforts are successful, there is the possibility that the 'Cats backs will get nowhere.

Smukler, the hero of the Cherry and White victory last year, Dave will have to start from scratch tomorrow, as a knee injury has been the Temple aggregation is the latest contribution to All-American consideration from these parts.

The Villanova eleven got off to a good start emerging victorious in their first five games with no points scored against them. However, the home and home series with Detroit U. found a split in the wins. In the last game played two weeks ago at State College, however, the Wildcat eleven fared miserably.

Sophomores Predominate

As Temple, the Blue and White representation affords many sophomores who have stood out during the season and are to be reckoned with for tomorrow's contest. Leading the pack of first year men are Andy Stopper and Ray Stoviak, in the backfield, with Mellus and Olivar being the best performers on the line.

VARSITY QUINTET PRACTICES WITH FOUR LETTERMEN

Three Juniors and a Senior Among the Candidates For Vacant Berth

7 SOPHOMORES REPORT

As the Villanova varsity basketball squad enters its third week of practice, fifteen members are trying out for positions. In the absence of Coach "Doc" Jacobs, freshman football mentor, Captain Ben Geraghty is leading the drills.

Of the fifteen candidates, five are seniors, three are juniors, and the remainder are members of the sophomore class. The basketeers who are facing their last year on the Wildcat court are Geraghty, Tommy Ryan, Jack Robinson, Mike O'Meara and Leo Mooney. The last mentioned is a newcomer to the hardwood floor, being better known as a hurler on the baseball squad for the past two years.

Don Brennan, Harry McNally and Leo Schoppmeyer are the representatives of the third-year class. Schoppmeyer, who played basketball in his freshman year, confined himself to intramurals last year, starring for the Austin Hall courtsters.

The remainder of the squad consists of sophomores. Bill McLaughlin, left-handed flinging star of the Frosh baseball team, is another newcomer to the hardwood, although the game is not new to him, as he played for Camden High. "Abe" Collins, former West Catholic star; Charlie Noonan, of Wilmington, Delaware; Walt McKenna, from the metropolitan area; Paul Peluso, resident of the world's playground city; Joe Hopkins, Malvern alumnus, and Walt Sheftic, former Somerset County, all-county star, complete the list of Sophomores.

Four Veterans on Squad

The nucleus of this year's quintet will probably consist of the four veterans: Geraghty, O'Meara, Ryan and Robinson. The center man will be a newcomer to the varsity, as the above mentioned are forwards and guards. Don Brennan is the logical candidate for the pivot post because of his experience with the stellar frosh quintet of last year, with Leo Mooney another contender for the post. This position was left open by the graduation of Johnny Torpey.

Forward positions are being contested for by Captain Geraghty, Mike O'Meara, Charlie Noonan, Walter Sheftic and Leo Schoppmeyer. The remainder of the squad consists of guard candidates who also know their way about the floor in the forward position.

An informal scrimmage was held on Tuesday, Nov. 12th, with Herbie Good's Haverford Aces furnishing the opposition for the Wildcats. Everyone on the squad saw action, and from the results of the first time that any of the men had an opportunity of tasting competition a good season may be looked forward to by the basketball followers of this school. The 'Cats ran up a high score on their opponents and showed some flashy ball for the first test scrimmage of the season.

Since this year's edition of the yearling quintet has begun practice, the varsity will be able to scrimmage more often. The frosh, from reports, should give the varsity some needed opposition to put them in trim for the coming campaign, which starts shortly after the first of next month.

Players' Opinions On Eighth Fray

bothering him since the opening game.

There are numerous others that could be mentioned, but to sum it all up; the Owls reserve, contrary to opinion is very strong.

Bill Christopher, "I'll do my talking after the game."

Bunny Galazin, "Boys on edge, ready to go."

George Fox, "I had the good fortune to see them last Saturday when they were at their best and I am firmly convinced that we will beat them."

Tony Sala, "We are on the rebound. I think we will win."

Dick Emmerling, "Villanova is not accustomed to losing two in a row."

Oliver Volpe, was ready with his prediction the moment he was approached. His statement was, "the Lions chewed the Wildcats, it would seem that the Wildcat is gone, but there will be a re-awakening and the Wildcats will devour the Owls."

Michael Garbark, says, "If we don't snap out of it, we're going to take another on the chin."

Andy Stopper, sensational triple-threat sophomore halfback, playing his first game against Temple says: "We are due to come back and I believe we will come out on top."

Joe Missar, sturdy sophomore guard, who bolsters the left side of the line states: "Win or lose, Temple will know they have played a real football game."

Bill Rogers, sophomore left tackle and heaviest man on the team says: "Temple is one of the best, but I think they are going to lose."

Jack Earle, slashing sophomore fullback, who has been kept on the sidelines most of the season because of injuries states: "If we get together and play the type of football we are capable of playing, I think we'll win."

Jordan Olivar, sophomore tackle, who makes his opponents wary of going through his side of the line, says about tomorrow's game: "We'll be at our peak for Temple when the opening kickoff takes place and we are not going to lose."

John Mellus, quiet, modest sophomore tackle who is different when opponents try to crash the left side of the line says: "We don't intend to disapoint the Villanova fans."

Val Rizzo, big Sophomore right tackle says: "I know this will be a hard ball game but we have what it takes to win."

Mike Hanna, Ed Michaels understudy states: "I realize that we are in for our hardest game of the season but I feel sure that we will emerge as victors."

Franny Nye, star Harrisburg sophomore back says: "Undoubtedly Temple is the toughest club on our schedule but I feel that our fellows are on the rebound and we'll pick ourselves a plume of Owl feathers."

Jerry Sherlock, Collingswood's gift to Villanova, states: "Unquestionably it will be our toughest game of the year but if our bunch play the type of football they are capable of we will finish on top."

Ray Stoviak, brilliant blocking halfback has this statement to offer: "Although Temple is a great team I believe that Villanova will prevail."

Johnny Higgins, veteran quarterback, playing his third and last game against Temple, says: "It looks like a tough game, but if we are 'right' we will take them."

Walter Korchinski, Villanova's blond Adonis, declares: "We're out to match that '33 score."

Nick Kotys, mite but mighty halfback and one of the highest scorers in the East says: "We are due for a good ball game tomorrow, therefore we will win."

Milan Vidnovic, a fine running mate for Captain Michaels, declares: "We are going to be in there cracking them for 60 minutes."

Ed Sydnor, hard-hitting sophomore states: "If Temple hopes to win they will have to surpass their previous efforts."

George Wrona, versatile utility man, playing his last game for the Blue and White, says: "When the Owls and the 'Cats clash, the 'Cats don't give a hoot."

150'S LOSE THIRD TO LEOPARD SQUAD IN 20-6 SETBACK

Farr Leads Lafayette Attack Against Kittens With Eight Points

DINGES AND MURPHY HURT

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 16.—With the temperature hovering around 30 degrees, Villanova's lightweights encountered their third defeat of the season. The cold weather had its effect on the players' hands for fumbles were numerous.

The final score was 20 to 6, but the dearth of touchdowns was due to the number of fumbles. In the very first period Lafayette recovered Kane's fumble on the Wildcats' 30-yard line and, taking to the air, they scored their first marker.

Farr threw a 20-yard pass to Arnold who was tackled on the goal line by Lyons. Arnold dropped the ball but the touchdown was allowed. Farr's placement was wide.

Another Kitten fumble, in the second period, paved the way for Lafayette's second touchdown. Lafayette's drive was then climaxed by Borrowman's touchdown thrust off tackle. This time Farr's placement kick found its mark.

Williams Scores

Shortly after the next kick-off, Corkill broke through the line and blocked a Lafayette punt. The ball bounded off his chest and Dinges recovered it for the 'Cats on the 1-yard line. On the first play Williams scored Villanova's only touchdown, skirting his own right end. An attempted line buck for the extra point was unsuccessful.

In the closing minutes of the second quarter, Villanova blocked another punt on Lafayette's 30-yard line, but four plays netted only two yards, and Villanova's last threat of the game came to naught.

Villanova outplayed the Leopards throughout the first ten minutes of the second half, but a 15-yard penalty for roughing the kicker, started Lafayette on another touchdown march. Farr going over on a 24-yard slice through left tackle. Once again Farr's placement was good.

The remainder of the game found neither team able to penetrate the other's goal line.

Kerrigan and Goomey were outstanding for the Kittens. The former being the only Villanova back to make any substantial gain against the Lafaye'' forward wall.

The game was very costly to the visitors with Bill Dinges, left end, and Dan Murphy, guard, suffering injuries. The former suffered a broken collarbone and the latter tore a ligament in his knee. Prior to his injury, which came late in the game, Murphy was playing a bang-up tussle.

VILLANOVA KITTENS START BASKETBALL

Wealth of Promising Cagemen Augurs Well for a Great Season

About 20 men answered the initial call for candidates for the freshmen basketball team. Coach Al Severance started drilling the squad a week ago.

This year's team will be out to equal or surpass the excellent record compiled by last season's Frosh basketeers, who won 23 of 25 games played.

Included among the many candidates are Jim Montgomery, and Frank Cantwell, who hail from Youngstown and Cleveland, Ohio, respectively. Morristown, N. J., contributes Art Vigilante, All-State guard for two years; while from the Smoky City of Pittsburgh, Pa., comes Johnny Kutulis.

Other promising candidates include Lou Dubino, from Pennington Prep; Horn, from Mt. St. Joseph, Baltimore, Md., and Lou Wanamaker, of New York City.

Hobson, Malvern Prep star who performed so brilliantly against the Villanova Freshmen team last year, is considered by Coach Severance as one of the most promising dribblers to spring up here in years.

The team is expected to engage in a strenuous schedule of about 25 games. Their is no definite information concerning the opponents listed, however.

It is very probable that Temple, which by the way, was the only team to down the Frosh last year, accounting for their two defeats, along with West Chester, Bucknell, Haverford Aces, and Dickinson, will be on the schedule.

nova's future hopes will be set back a stride.

Another figure to show off his ability for the last time is Nick Kotys, flashy left halfback. Suffering a broken leg in the opening game of his sophomore year, Kotys was really active for only two years. One of the smallest men on the squad throughout his college career, his efforts were great, and tomorrow may see him finishing in a maze of glory.

Making his last appearance in a blue and white uniform there is also Walter Korchinski, left end of the Wildcat team. Nothing flashy in his style of play, but still one of the most consistent players on the field.

Last for Higgins .

Johnny Higgins, who shares the field-generalship with Bill Christopher is also a last year man. Slim but slippery against the opposition Higgins will be available for the game with that determination that has made him desired in the past. He is the type that improves with every contest.

Milan Vidnovic, running mate of Michaels is playing his last game against Temple and is starting for the first time against any Owl eleven. A product from up-state Milan has been suffering with injuries during the season but is in shape for the game.

There is one figure on the Villanova bench who has been very patient for three years, he has never played in a Temple game, but if he should be called upon tomorrow he will give his all. George Wrona, who despite his efforts has been unable to make much progress is the silent member of the squad praying for a chance against the Cherry and White.

MAURO AGAIN WINS FOOTBALL TICKETS BY L. K. D. RAFFLE

For Second Successive Year Science School Student Gets Prize

For the second successive year Dom Mauro, senior in the science School, has won the annual Lambda Kappa Delta raffle of two tickets to the Villanova-Temple football game to be staged this year on Thanksgiving weekend.

The outstanding feature of his good fortune has been that he has won the tickets each year with the purchase of only one raffle ticket.

In addition to the grand drawing of the raffle the pre-medics discussed numerous topics and elected several committees.

Induction of new members was the chief item of discussion. It was decided that 20 new freshmen will be pledged immediately after the quarterly examinations. The pledges will of course be made on the scholastic rating of the student.

It was also decided that all upper classmen, who desire to become members of the organization, should contact any member of the Board of Admissions. Induction of upper classmen will take place within a few weeks.

The Board of Admissions was elected at this meeting and will henceforth act as the Board of Approval on all prospective L. K. D.'s. It will be its duty to approve of all new members before the latter are presented to the entire organization for induction.

This committee is composed of Albert Welsh, William Keffer, Joseph Tanzola and George Weber.

Another committee was also elected, an induction committe. The duty of this committee is to take charge of all induction exercises for the nominees to the fraternity. It has accordingly been named the initiating committee, and is composed of Charles Miller, chairman; Peter Faso, Robert Fitzgerald, William Christman, John Donovan, Edward Quinn, Marion Troncelliti, Leonard Batafarano, Louis Centrella and Edward Troncelliti.

Two weeks ago the final examinations given to the junior class were posted. Last week the organization posted the examinations given to the last graduating group. These questions are posted in all the dormitories on the campus and are to aid the respective members of the Science School.

Lou Marcotte, Senior Engineer—"All I can say is that Temple is going to be up against one of its toughest opponents. It will be a hard fought game with Villanova coming out on top."

Al Fitzpatrick, Junior Engineer—"There is no doubt of Temple's ability but Villanova is on the rebound, and is going to beat them with a satisfactory margin."

Dan O'Connor, Sophomore Engineer—"After suff ring a stinging defeat at the hands of Penn State, and with such a team as we have this year, Villanova will not lose two in succession."

Ed Matthews, Freshman Engineer—"Temple has an excellent team this year and I think they will win in a very tough battle."

Jim McNerney, Senior Business—"We are on the rebound. I honestly believe we will win after a tough struggle."

Edward Kelly, Junior Business—"Pop Warner has a great team this year with Renzo and Joe Zanin to back up Dynam te Dave Smukler, but with the team we have this year we will show Temple how football really should be played."

Peter McManus, Sophomore Business—"In spite of the fact that Temple has a good team this year I believe we will give them a good lickin'. As we all know Villanova has one of the bes teams it ever had. In order to keep this record we will have to beat Temple, so let 'em have it."

Frank Feron, Freshman Business—"In spite of the fact that we lost last year's game it only serves to bring us back with a new hope. From what I have seen of the team this year and with full cooperation on the team's part it ought to be an easy victory."

choice of ways outlined above.

From West Philadelphia, the route as suggested, is over Girard Avenue, cross the Schuylkill River Bridge and at the first semaphore signal turn left down the hill, and at the bottom bear to the right. From that point, follow the route marked out above, concerning the Wissahickon Drive, etc.

For students and the other followers of the team, use Montgomery Ave., to City Line Ave., then bear left and continue on City Line till Ridge Ave. (double car-tracks) is reached. From there follow plan outlined for those who will leave from West Philadelphia; namely, Wissahickon and Lincoln Drives, Allen Lane, Germantown Ave., and Mt. Airy Ave., to the scene of the fray.

By Street-Car

From City Hall, and South Philadelphia take the Broad Street Subway to Olney Ave.; then transfer to Route 6 trolley-car, to the game. When paying a fare on Broad St. Subway, ask for a transfer, which is to be used on Route 6.

For West Philadelphians, take Market Street Subway Elevated train to the 15th Street station. Get off here, and ascend the stairs and cross to City Hall; then go through the archway and down the stairway marked NORTH. The route to be followed from there is the same as that marked above.

From Villanova, use the Philadelphia and Western to 69th Street Terminal and then follow the way marked for the other routes.

Note:—When paying fare ask for a Broad Street Subway exchange ticket. At time of boarding the subway, hand cashier your exchange and ask for a transfer, to be used on Route 6, which you will get at the northern terminal.

PROOFS OF PHOTOS AVAILABLE MONDAY

Belle-Air Pictures Will Be Distributed for Choice Of Seniors

Proofs of the Senior photographs will be returned on Monday, November 25, at which time they will be distributed in the reception room of Mendel Hall, by the photography editor of the Belle Air, Florindo Troncellitti.

Within a week or ten days a representative of the Zamsky Studios will be at Villanova College to interview the individual seniors, regarding which proof is desired for printing in the Senior Annual. Also, at this time, she will take orders for any portraits that may be desired.

A list of prices of the various sizes will accompany the returned proofs. The deadline for the return of these proofs together with the one selected for printing will be published on the bulletin boards at an early date.

Reporters from the Belle Air staff are now distributing questionaires among the seniors, in order to determine the necessary data for the individual write-ups. Strictest co-operation of the class is urged to facilitate accurate material.

Group pictures are planned to be taken within the next two weeks, and all members of the several organizations are asked to watch the VILLANOVAN for the schedule of these photos.

SENIOR CLASS MEETING IS POORLY ATTENDED

President William Vaughn Urges All Members to Report On Tuesday

Particular attention was called by William Vaughn, class president, to the fact that at the proposed class meeting o fthe seniors yesterday, a group of less than 20 members of th eclass of '36 appeared. Since this meeting was called to determine the attitude of the class toward the selection of an orchestra for the Belle Air Ball, it was postponed until next Tuesday, November 26, at Room 215, Mendel Hall, at 1 P. M.

It is absolutely necesary that the clas meet at this time, as the result of another postponement may make it imposible to obtain a large name band for the ball. Entire class cooperation is needed to determine this point, and their absence is taken to mean their approval of a small orchestra.

VACANCIES FILLED

At its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, October 29, the Board of Trustees of Villanova College filled two vacancies. Mr. William Simpson, Business Manager of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Phillip A. Hart, President of the Bryn Mawr Trust Co., the Very Rev. Paul F. Healy, O. S. A., was elected to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. John Farrell, O. S. A.

producing the affair. One of the features of the evening is to be the presentation of the Philadelphia Club Award, a regulation sized silver football and a certificate which reads, "To an outstanding member of the Villanova College Alumni in recognition of his preeminent ability and loyalty to Alma Mater."

Started in 1932, Charles McGeehan, '12, then Graduate manager of Athletics, was the first man to whom it was presented. J. Stanley Smith, '93, a member of the Board of Trustees of Villanova College, founder and president of the famed Kingsley Club and Philadelphia lawyer, in 1933, and Martin J. McLaughlin, '14, recently appointed Director of Public Works, were the honored men in the last two years respectively. Martin L. Gill, Jr., '32, is to be the toastmaster of the evening.

PLAN OUTLINED FOR STUDENT DEBATING

Open Forum and Inter School Forensic Contests Are Announced

Prof. Anthony Frayne, instructor of public speaking, announced yesterday plans for the formation of inter-class and inter-school debating teams.

He intends these teams to be supplementary to the varsity debating team. In other words, the students participating will gain valuable experience which will better fit them for the difficult work of the Beta Gamma Fraternity.

"The first step will be in the selection of teams from every class in the various schools," said Prof. Frayne in outlining his plans. "The freshmen of the Commerce School, for example, will debate the other classes in their own school. The same procedure will be followed in the other schools on the campus. When these debates are completed, a number of the best men from each of the classes will be selected to represent the particular school in which they are students. Then the schools will engage in a series of intra-mural contests.

"In this manner, we hope to uncover the best talent in the entire college. If there is a lack of talent, then this will at least aid in the development of better material for the varsity debating team."

Prof. Frayne will also conduct an open forum every Tuesday afternoon in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre, to which anyone interested in public speaking or debating is cordially invited.

Plans are now being formulated whereby these gatherings will be addressed each week by men outstanding in the various phases of public endeavor. The first of these forums will be held on next Tuesday. The speaker will be announced in the coming issue of the VILLANOVAN.

PRESS APOSTOLATE STRESSES READING

Students Urged to Watch For Appearance of Notre Dame Periodical

"Catholic action and the encouragement of good Catholic reading have been lagging at Villanova for too long a time and it is now advisable that something be done about it," were the words echoed by the Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., at the last monthly meeting of the Catholic Press Apostolate Society of Villanova College.

At this time he encouraged the members of the society to get busy with their respective duties and keep the pamphlet rack and clipping board well supplied with material. The students are urged to use the pamphlet rack frequently.

Many students are unaware of the fact that a clipping board exists here at the college. Because of the former laxity of the society, very little was done to keep this work progressing. However, the clipping boad is now being taken care of again and students are urged to make a daily habit of reading it. It consists of clippings from Catholic and secularperiodicals that are of interest to students as Catholics, and secular periodicals that are of ligious bulletin board.

In a few days the famous religious bulletin of the University of Notre Dame will be found here and all students without exception are advised to read it. Look at the religious bulletin board with the same interest with which you peruse your school bulletin board.

Prominent Guests To Attend Rally

elect S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, to a post in his new cabinet.

The college band will be present to furnish music for the occasion and special handbills have been printed of the college songs. These will be given to the students at the rally who are urged to learn and sing them. Copies of the cheers will appear in the VILLANOVAN so there is no excuse for the upperclassmen not to help with the cheering.

As soon as the speeches and music in the auditorium are over everyone will go to the lot across from the gymnasium where the annual bonfire, burning Temple's hopes, will be set off. Here the cheers and songs will be practiced and the rally will end with the last glowing ashes of the bon fire.

It has been requested by the faculty and the coaching staff that the students refrain from all unnecessary noise after returning to the dorms so that members of the team will be able to get their full night's rest.

VARSITY QUINTET PRACTICES WITH FOUR LETTERMEN

Three Juniors and a Senior Among the Candidates For Vacant Berth

7 SOPHOMORES REPORT

As the Villanova varsity basketball squad enters its third week of practice, fifteen members are trying out for positions. In the absence of Coach "Doc" Jacobs, freshman football mentor, Captain Ben Geraghty is leading the drills.

Of the fifteen candidates, five are seniors, three are juniors, and the remainder are members of the sophomore class. The basketeers who are facing their last year on the Wildcat court are Geraghty, Tommy Ryan, Jack Robinson, Mike O'Meara and Leo Mooney. The last mentioned is a newcomer to the hardwood floor, being better known as a hunter on the baseball squad for the past two years.

Don Brennan, Harry McNally and Leo Schoppmeyer are the representatives of the third-year class. Schoppmeyer, who played basketball in his freshman year, confined himself to intramurals last year, starring for the Austin Hall contesters.

The remainder of the squad consists of sophomores. Bill McLaughlin, left-handed flinging star of the Frosh baseball team, is another newcomer to the hardwood, although the game is not new to him, as he played for Camden High, "Abe" Collins, former West Catholic star; Charlie Noonan, of Wilmington, Delaware; Walt McKenna, from the metropolitan area; Paul Peluso, resident of the world's playground city; Joe Hopkins, Malvern alumnus, and Walt Sheftic, former Somerset County, all-county star, complete the list of Sophomores.

Four Veterans on Squad

The nucleus of this year's quintet will probably consist of the four veterans: Geraghty, O'Meara, Ryan and Robinson. The center man will be a newcomer to the varsity, as the above mentioned are forwards and guards. Don Brennan is the logical candidate for the pivot post because of his experience with the stellar frosh quintet of last year, with Leo Mooney another contender for the post. This position was left open by the graduation of Johnny Torpey.

Forward positions are being contested for by Captain Geraghty, Mike O'Meara, Charlie Noonan, Walter Sheftic and Leo Schoppmeyer. The remainder of the squad consists of guard candidates who also know their way about the floor in the forward position.

An informal scrimmage was held on Tuesday, Nov. 12th, with Herbie Goode, Haverford Aces, furnishing the opposition for the Wildcats. Everyone on the squad saw action, and from the results of the first time that any of the men had an opportunity of tasting competition a good season may be looked forward to by the basketball followers of this school. The 'Cats ran up a high score on their opponents and showed some flashy ball for the first test scrimmage of the season.

Since this year's edition of the yearling quintet has begun practice, the varsity will be able to scrimmage more often. The frosh, from reports, should give the varsity some needed opposition to put them in trim for the coming campaign, which starts shortly after the first of next month.

TICKET SALE CLOSES TODAY

Temple ticket sales which were to have originally closed at noon today will be held open until 3:30 P. M. for the convenience of all students who have not already purchased them. All sales will close at this time. These may be purchased in the Bursar's Office on the main floor of Mendel Hall.

Players' Opinions On Eighth Fray

bothering him since the opening game.

There are numerous others that could be mentioned, but to sum it all up; the Owls reserve, contrary to opinion is very strong.

Bill Christopher, "I'll do my talking after the game."

Benny Galazin, "Boys on edge, ready to go."

George Fox, "I had the good fortune to see them last Saturday when they were at their best and I am firmly convinced that we will beat them."

Tony Sala, "We are on the rebound. I think we will win."

Dick Emmerling, "Villanova is not accustomed to losing two in a row."

Oliver Volpe, was ready with his prediction the moment he was approached. His statement was, "the Lions chewed the Wildcats, it would seem that the Wildcat is gone, but there will be a re-awakening and the Wildcats will devour the Owls."

Michael Garbark, says, "If we don't snap out of it, we're going to take another on the chin."

Andy Stopper, sensational triple-threat sophomore halfback, playing his first game against Temple says: "We are due to come back and I believe we will come out on top."

Joe Missar, sturdy sophomore guard, who bolsters the left side of the line states: "Win or lose, Temple will know they have played a real football game."

Jack Earle, slashing sophomore fullback, who has been kept on the sidelines most of the season because of injuries states: "If we get together and play the type of football we are capable of playing, I think we'll win."

Jordan Olivar, sophomore tackle, who makes his opponents wary of going through his side of the line, says about tomorrow's game: "We'll be at our peak for Temple when the opening kickoff takes place and we are not going to lose."

John Mellus, quiet, modest sophomore tackle who is different when opponents try to crash the left side of the line says: "We don't intend to disappoint the Villanova fans."

Val Rizzo, big Sophomore right tackle says: "I know this will be a hard ball game but we have what it takes to win."

Mike Hanna, Ed Michaels understudy states: "I realize that we are in for our hardest game of the season but I feel sure that we will emerge as victors."

Franny Nye, star Harrisburg sophomore back says: "Undoubtedly Temple is the toughest club on our schedule but I feel that our fellows are on the rebound and we'll pick ourselves a plume of Owl feathers."

Jerry Sherlock, Collingswood's gift to Villanova, states: "Unquestionably it will be our toughest game of the year but if our bunch play the type of football they are capable of we will finish on top."

Ray Stoviak, brilliant blocking halfback has this statement to offer: "Although Temple is a great team I believe that Villanova will prevail."

Johnny Higgins, veteran quarterback, playing his third and last game against Temple, says: "It looks like a tough game, but if we are 'right' we will take them."

Walter Korchinski, Villanova's blond Adonis, declares: "We're out to match that '33 score."

Nick Kotys, mite but mighty halfback and one of the highest scorers in the East says: "We are due for a good ball game tomorrow, therefore we will win."

Milan Vidnovic, a fine running mate for Captain Michaels, declares: "We are going to be in there cracking them for 60 minutes."

Ed Sydnor, hard-hitting sophomore states: "If Temple hopes to win they will have to surpass their previous efforts."

George Wrona, versatile utility man, playing his last game for the Blue and White, says: "When the Owls and the 'Cats clash, the 'Cats don't give a hoot."

SWIMMING POOL CLOSED

On account of the Temple game being played at Philadelphia, tomorrow afternoon, and due to the large number of fans following the squad, the pool room, and swimming pool will not open.

150'S LOSE THIRD TO LEOPARD SQUAD IN 20-6 SETBACK

Farr Leads Lafayette Attack Against Kittens With Eight Points

DINGES AND MURPHY HURT

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 16.—With the temperature hovering around 30 degrees, Villanova's lightweights encountered their third defeat of the season. The cold weather had its effect on the players' hands for fumbles were numerous.

The final score was 20 to 6, but the dearth of touchdowns was due to the number of fumbles. In the very first period Lafayette recovered Kane's fumble on the Wildcats' 30-yard line and, taking to the air, they scored their first marker.

Farr threw a 20-yard pass to Arnold who was tackled on the goal line by Lyons. Arnold dropped the ball but the touchdown was allowed. Farr's placement was wide.

Another Kitten fumble, in the second period, paved the way for Lafayette's second touchdown. Lafayette's drive was then climaxed by Borrowman's touchdown thrust off tackle. This time Farr's placement kick found its mark.

Williams Scores

Shortly after the next kick-off, Corkill broke through the line and blocked a Lafayette punt. The ball bounded off his chest and Dinges recovered it for the 'Cats on the 1-yard line. On the first play Williams scored Villanova's only touchdown, skirting his own right end. An attempted line buck for the extra point was unsuccessful.

In the closing minutes of the second quarter, Villanova blocked another punt on Lafayette's 30-yard line, but four plays netted only two yards, and Villanova's last threat of the game came to naught.

Villanova outplayed the Leopards throughout the ten minutes of the second half, but a 15-yard penalty for roughing the kicker, started Lafayette on another touchdown march. Farr going over on a 24-yard slice through left tackle. Once again Farr's placement was good.

The remainder of the game found neither team able to penetrate the other's goal line.

Kerrigan and Goomey were outstanding for the Kittens. The former being the only Villanova back to make any substantial gain against the Lafayette forward wall.

The game was very costly to the visitors with the two ends, Left end, and Dan Murphy, stellar guard, suffering injuries. The former suffered a broken collarbone and the latter tore a ligament in his knee. Prior to his injury, which came late in the game, Murphy was playing a bang-up tussle.

VILLANOVA KITTENS START BASKETBALL

Wealth of Promising Cagemen Augurs Well for a Great Season

About 20 men answered the initial call for candidates for the freshmen basketball team. Coach Al Severance started drilling the squad a week ago.

This year's team will be out to equal or surpass the excellent record compiled by last season's Frosh basketeers, who won 23 of 25 games played.

Included among the many candidates are Jim Montgomery, and Frank Cantwell, who hail from Youngstown and Cleveland, Ohio, respectively. Morristown, N. J., contributes Art Vigilante, All-State guard for two years; while from the Smoky City of Pittsburgh, Pa., comes Johnny Kutulis.

Other promising candidates include Lou Dubino, from Pennington Prep; Horn, from Mt. St. Joseph, Baltimore, Md., and Lou Wanamaker, of New York City.

Hobson, Malvern Prep star who performed so brilliantly against the Villanova Freshmen team last year, is considered by Coach Severance as one of the most promising dribblers to spring up here in years.

The team is expected to engage in a strenuous schedule of about 25 games. Their is no definite information concerning the opponents listed, however.

It is very probable that Temple, which by the way, was the only team to down the Frosh last year, accounting for their two defeats, along with West Chester, Bucknell, Haverford Aces, and Dickinson, will be on the schedule.

Senior Gridders In Last Contest

nova's future hopes will be set back a stride.

Another figure to show off his ability for the last time is Nick Kotys, flashy left halfback. Suffering a broken leg in the opening game of his sophomore year, Kotys was really active for only two years. One of the smallest men on the squad throughout his college career, his efforts were great, and tomorrow may see him finishing in a maze of glory.

Making his last appearance in a blue and white uniform there is also Walter Korchinski, left end of the Wildcat team. Nothing flashy in his style of play, but still one of the most consistent players on the field.

Last for Higgins

Johnny Higgins, who shares the field-generalship with Bill Christopher is also a last year man. Slim but slippery against the opposition Higgins will be available for the game with that determination that has made him desired in the past. He is the type that improves with every contest.

Milan Vidnovic, running mate of Michaels is playing his last game against Temple and is starting for the first time against any Owl eleven. A product from up-state Milan has been suffering with injuries during the season but is in shape for the game.

There is one figure on the Villanova bench who has been very patient for three years, he has never played in a Temple game, but if he should be called upon tomorrow he will give his all. George Wrona, who despite his efforts has been unable to make much progress is the silent member of the squad praying for a chance against the Cherry and White.

Al Fitzpatrick, Junior Engineer—"There is no doubt of Temple's ability but Villanova is on the rebound, and is going to beat them with a satisfactory margin."

Dan O'Connor, Sophomore Engineer—"After suffering a stinging defeat at the hands of Penn State, and with such a team as we have this year, Villanova will not lose two in succession."

Ed Matthews, Freshman Engineer—"Temple has an excellent team this year and I think they will win in a very tough battle."

Jim McNerney, Senior Business—"We are on the rebound. I honestly believe we will win after a tough struggle."

Edward Kelly, Junior Business—"Pop Warner has a great team this year with Renzo and Joe Zanin to back up Dynam te Dave Smukler, but with the team we have this year we will show Temple how football really should be played."

Peter McManus, Sophomore Business—"In spite of the fact that Temple has a good team this year I believe we will give them a good lickin'. As we all know Villanova has one of the best teams it ever had. In order to keep this record we will have to beat Temple, so let 'em have it."

Frank Feron, Freshman Business—"In spite of the fact that we lost last year's game it only serves to bring us back with a new hope. From what I have seen of the team this year and with full cooperation on the team's part it ought to be an easy victory."

Quickest Route to Temple Stadium By Both Automobile and Street Car

choice of ways outlined above.

From West Philadelphia, the route as suggested, is over Girard Avenue, cross the Schuylkill River Bridge and at the first semaphore signal turn left down the hill, and at the bottom bear to the right. From that point, follow the route marked out above, concerning the Wissahickon Drive, etc.

For students and the other followers of the team, use Montgomery Ave., to City Line Ave., then bear left and continue on City Line till Ridge Ave. (double car-tracks) is reached. From there follow plan outlined for those who will leave from West Philadelphia; namely, Wissahickon and Lincoln Drives, Allen Lane, Germantown Ave., and Mt. Airy Ave., to the scene of the fray.

By Street-Car

From City Hall, and South Philadelphia take the Broad Street Subway to Olney Ave.; then transfer to Route 6 trolley-car, to the game. When paying a fare on Broad St. Subway, ask for a transfer, which is to be used on Route 6.

For West Philadelphians, take Market Street Subway Elevated train to the 15th Street station. Get off here, and ascend the stairs and cross to City Hall; then go through the archway and down the stairway marked NORTH. The route to be followed from there is the same as that marked above.

From Villanova, use the Philadelphia and Western to 69th Street Terminal and then follow the way marked for the other routes.

Note:—When paying fare ask for a Broad Street Subway exchange ticket. At time of boarding the subway, hand cashier your exchange and ask for a transfer, to be used on Route 6, which you will get at the northern terminal.

PROOFS OF PHOTOS AVAILABLE MONDAY

Belle-Air Pictures Will Be Distributed for Choice Of Seniors

Proofs of the Senior photographs will returned on Monday, November 25, at which time they will be distributed in the reception room of Mendel Hall, by the photography editor of the Belle Air, Florindo Troncellitti.

Within a week or ten days a representative of the Zamsky Studios will be at Villanova College to interview the individual seniors, regarding which proof is desired for printing in the Senior Annual. Also, at this time, she will take orders for any portraits that may be desired.

A list of prices of the various sizes will accompany the returned proofs. The deadline for the return of these proofs together with the one selected for printing will be published on the bulletin boards at an early date.

Reporters from the Belle Air staff are now distributing questionaires among the seniors, in order to determine the necessary data for the individual write-ups. Strictest co-operation of the class is urged to facilitate accurate material.

Group pictures are planned to be taken within the next two weeks, and all members of the several organizations are asked to watch the VILLANOVAN for the schedule of these photos.

SENIOR CLASS MEETING IS POORLY ATTENDED

President William Vaughn Urges All Members to Report On Tuesday

Particular attention was called by William Vaughn, class president, to the fact that at the proposed class meeting of the seniors yesterday, a group of less than 20 members of the class of '36 appeared. Since this meeting was called to determine the attitude of the class toward the selection of an orchestra for the Belle Air Ball, it was postponed until next Tuesday, November 26, at Room 215, Mendel Hall, at 1 P. M.

It is absolutely necesary that the class meet at this time, as the result of another postponement may make it impossible to obtain a large name band for the ball. Entire class cooperation is needed to determine this point, and their absence will be taken to mean their approval of a small orchestra.

At its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, October 29, the Board of Trustees of Villanova College filled two vacancies. Mr. William Simpson, Business Manager of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Philip A. Hart, President of the Bryn Mawr Trust Co., the Very Rev. Paul F. Healy, O. S. A., was elected to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. John Farrell, O. S. A.

producing the affair. One of the features of the evening is to be the presentation of the Philadelphia Club Award, a regulation sized silver football and a certificate which reads, "To an outstanding member of the Villanova College Alumni in recognition of his preeminent ability and loyalty to Alma Mater."

Started in 1932, Charles McGeehan, '12, then Graduate manager of Athletics, was the first man to whom it was presented. J. Stanley Smith, '93, a member of the Board of Trustees of Villanova College, founder and president of the famed Kingsley Club and Philadelphia lawyer, in 1933, and Martin J. McLaughlin, '14, recently appointed Director of Public Works, were the honored men in the last two years respectively. Martin L. Gill, Jr., '32, is to be the toastmaster of the evening.

PLAN OUTLINED FOR STUDENT DEBATING

Open Forum and Inter School Forensic Contests Are Announced

Prof. Anthony Frayne, instructor of public speaking, announced yesterday plans for the formation of inter-class and inter-school debating teams.

He intends these teams to be supplementary to the varsity debating team. In other words, the students participating will gain valuable experience which will better fit them for the difficult work of the Beta Gamma Fraternity.

"The first step will be in the selection of teams from every class in the various schools," said Prof. Frayne in outlining his plans. "The freshmen of the Commerce School, for example, will debate the other classes in their own school. The same procedure will be followed in the other schools on the campus. When these debates are completed, a number of the best men from each of the classes will be selected to represent the particular school in which they are students. Then the schools will engage in a series of intra-mural contests.

"In this manner, we hope to uncover the best talent in the entire college. If there is a lack of talent, then this will at least aid in the development of better material for the varsity debating team."

Prof. Frayne will also conduct an open forum every Tuesday afternoon in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre, to which anyone interested in public speaking or debating is cordially invited.

Plans are now being formulated whereby these gatherings will be addressed each week by men outstanding in the various phases of public endeavor. The first of these forums will be held on next Tuesday. The speaker will be announced in the coming issue of the VILLANOVAN.

PRESS APOSTOLATE STRESSES READING

Students Urged to Watch For Appearance of Notre Dame Periodical

"Catholic action and the encouragement of good Catholic reading have been lagging at Villanova for too long a time and it is now advisable that something be done about it," were the words echoed by the Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., at the last monthly meeting of the Catholic Press Apostolate Society of Villanova College.

At this time he encouraged the members of the society to get busy with their respective duties and keep the pamphlet rack and clipping board well supplied with material. The students are urged to use the pamphlet rack frequently.

Many students are unaware of the fact that a clipping board exists here at the college. Because of the former laxity of the society, very little was done to keep this work progressing. However, the clipping board is now being taken care of again and students are urged to make a daily habit of reading it. It consists of clippings from Catholic and secularperiodicals that are of interest to students as Catholics, and secular periodicals that are of ligious bulletin board.

In a few days the famous religious bulletin of the University of Notre Dame will be found here and all students without exception are advised to read it. Look at the religious bulletin board with the same interest with which you peruse your school bulletin board.

Prominent Guests To Attend Rally

elect S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, to a post in his new cabinet.

The college band will be present to furnish music for the occasion, and special handbills have been printed of the college songs. These will be given to the students at the rally that they may be urged to learn and sing them. Copies of the cheers will appear in the VILLANOVAN so there is no excuse for the upperclassmen not to help with the cheering.

As soon as the speeches and music in the auditorium are over everyone will go to the lot across from the gymnasium where the annual bonfire, burning Temple's hopes, will be set off. Here the cheers and songs will be practiced and the rally will end with the last glowing ashes of the bon fire.

It has been requested by the faculty and the coaching staff that the students refrain from all unnecessary noise after returning to the dorms so that members of the team will be able to get their full night's rest.

Interesting Sidelights on Other Colleges

Subsidized College Football Team Advocated by Student Newspaper

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 18.—Honest, straightforward — and astounding—is the solution of athletic worries proposed by The Cardinal of the University of Louisville: "Why Don't We Buy a Good Football Team?"

Instead of joining in the charges of professionalism broadcast this year as every year by college editors, instead of adding their moans to the cries of defeat that surround every losing team, the editors of The Cardinal offer what is to them the only answer: "Why Don't We Buy a Good Football Team?"

"It is apparent to all followers of the game that college football is perhaps the leading commermial investment of institutions of higher learning," says The Cardinal. "There are fewer and fewer schools which, like the University (of Louisville) cherish the fond illusion that gridiron stars dash forth on the field after gruelling hours of practice to do or die for love of dear old Alma Mater, with the dollars that trickel into the University's coffers only an incidental consideration. Football where it is played hardest and best is frankly a business proposition.

"Football revenues are the mainstay of elaborate gymnasiums, spacious and beautiful stadiums and playing fields, the whole program of minor athletics, and student unions and other campus buildings in universities that are materialistic enough and realistic enough to recognize the fact that you've got to have money. And sad as it may seem it is football as often as it is academic standing that brings fat endowments from wealthy friends and alumni and spreads the fame of the institution far and wide.

"We want the administration of the University to cast all the lace trimmings from the football situation and shave it down to a core of hard facts. We need on the campus of the University of Louisville new buildings, especially a student union building. We'd like a swimming pool in a new gymnasium, plenty of new courses and equipment of one or another, and so on and so on. And we'd like a good football team that could meet outstanding competition successfully first because it will make possible the fulfillment of our other wants, and secondly because we like good football.

"To get a good football team, one pays for it. One offers good jobs with satisfactory salary and not too much work to local high school graduates who otherwise accept good jobs at Alabama, Michigan, Ohio State, Kentucky, or other universities which have already fallen from the heights of blissful idealism. One goes out of one's way to do all sorts of nice things for potential football timber, waving scholarships temptingly in the air at banquets and prep schools. And one invests rather heavily in a leading football coach, who usually brings along a flock of clear-eyed youngsters who know something about football.

"This is just what the Cardinal proposes that the University of Louisville do. Perhaps we're too brutally frank about the sordid facts of it all, but the athletic situation as it now exists makes us feel too frankly brutal to be gentle. We don't care a hoot whether the University goes about shouting at the top of its lungs that good jobs are open to gridiron huskies with a high school diploma, or whispers the facts amid a veil of serecy—just so long as it does it.

"And we venture to predict that when a few new buildings are erected on the campus, and more instructors and courses are added, and other improvements come into being, and Louisville plays and beats some good football teams, we won't be so terribly sorry that we cast off the shackles of misplaced idealism and admitted that "business is business."

CALL CADAVERS HICKS

Janitor's Misunderstanding of "Hic Jacket" Cause Of New Name

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 18—Medical students at the University of West Virginia refer to their cadavers as "hicks" not, as is the almost universal custom, as "stiffs," and therein lies a tale.

It seems that in the old days the cadavers were entrusted upon arrival to the one and only university janitor, a campus character who spent much of his time loitering in the class rooms. One day he heard a professor of Latin, who was discussing the Aeneid, use the phrase "Hic jacet" (here he lies).

Thereafter, upon the arrival of each new cadaver, the janitor would discourse as follows: "Hick jacket, this man has come to an untimely death. The vox popuii cuticorpal cutaneous pressed down on his advelorum and caused his quietus."

Police Reveal Philosophy Students Secret Vows To Die

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia, Nov. 18 — Existence of a suicide club among students of philosophy at Sarajevo, members of which were sworn to kill themselves each year on the anniversary of the passing of the German thinker, Schopenhauer, was revealed here by the death of a student named Paul Seltbauer.

Seltbauer's body was found in a wild gorge some miles from town a few days after his disappearance. He had stripped naked in a nearby cave, burned his philosophic writings, cut the veins of both wrists, thrust a knife into his chest and hurled himself into the gorge.

At note proved he had committed suicide on the exact anniversary of Schopenhauer's death 75 years ago. Police discovered that a small circle of keen philosophy students had sworn to keep silence for the whole day on each anniversary of Schopenhauer's death and to commit suicide in a certain order.

A student named Avdo Srnitch was first on the list. He killed himself last year. Seltbauer was third, but "went out of turn."

Moral Stamina Of Youth Debated By College Officials

Discussion Arises As Result Of College President's Statements

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18—Modern youth can "take it."

At least that's the verdict of prominent Ohio State officials who were asked to comment on published statements of Dr. William P. Tolley, president of Allegheny College, to the effect that young people "Can't take it because they have never been trained to do it."

The colleges and universities are full of students who are proving their ability to weather tough going, the Ohio State educators said. They cited examples: a boy who works from six to midnight every night in an out-of-town industrial plant; a student with no income whatever, entirely dependent on a board-and-room job (there are lots of these, and they don't all have jobs for both board and room) and student members of police and fire departments.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ENGINEERS' BALL TOMORROW NIGHT

Villanovans to Furnish New Rhythms at Traditional Dance in College Gym

DOOR PRIZES FEATURE FAVORS FOR BOTH SEXES

Alumni Clubs Combine to Patronize Social; Novel Decorations Planned

Bells ring, birds sing, (except one) and all the campus will make merry tomorrow night at the Twentieth Annual "Engineers' Ball." Splendor is the keynote of the occasion, and nothing has been spared to make the guests of the Phi Kappa Pi feel perfectly at home.

As has been announced previously, the "Villanovans," college dance orchestra, will furnish the musical renditions from 9 P. M. 'till 1 A. M., in the college gymnasium. In the past few weeks this unit has been under great activity preparing original arrangements of the newest numbers and promises to be a really fine ensemble for the night.

Decorations of the gymnasium have been well planned and will be novel and entirely new. This particular dance has been noted in the past years for its originality and pleasing presentation, and the 1935 version is intended to follow former tradition along all lines.

With a view in mind toward making the affair even more interesting it has been decided to present two beautiful door prizes; one for the ladies and another for their escorts. The prize for the ladies will be a Westclock pocket-desk timepiece combination in the colors of Villanova College. The favor for the gentlemen, although its plan is as yet still a deep secret, is expected to be along the same general line.

With a presale of tickets to Alumni and outsiders that has far surpassed all previous Engineers' dances, tremendous success is presaged both socially and financially.

Villanova's Phantom Express Under Full Steam

Art Raimo, pile driving sophomore fullback of the Villanova Wildcats, is shown above at the start of his sensational 60-yard gallop through the heart of the Cherry and White line. So perfectly did his interference function that hardly a hand was laid upon the Main Line Express. Arrow indicates the prowess of Raimo as he pierces the Temple secondary defense.

Michaels Leads Team To 21 - 14 Triumph Over Rivals

RAIMO, HIGGINS, KOTYS, NYE, STAR

Unleashing a terrific second-half onslaught the ferocious Wildcats of Villanova College trampled a highly favored Temple team by a 21-14 score, at the Cherry and White's stadium last Saturday.

A crowd of 30,000 braved the snow flurries and chilly blasts to witness the most startling upset of the grid campaign.

The Blue and White finding themselves—in a football sense—for the first time this year gave a splendid exhibition of offensive and defensive play that left a badly battered Owl in its wake.

With the game less than five minutes old, Art Raimo, Sophomore fullback from Everette, Mass., darted through left tackle for sixty yards and a touchdown to give the Main Liners first blood. On his journey nary a hostile hand was laid upon him. Nick Koty's try for the extra point went awry.

Longsderff Scores For Owls

Temple evened the count on "Whip" Longsderff's two yard sprint around Villanova's right end, and went ahead on Docherty's extra point conversion. The score climaxed a 42 yard drive by the Owls in which Smukler, starting his first game since the West Virginia contest, Longsder and Renzo took turns reeling off yardage. A 13 yard aerial from Smuckler to Renzo was the longest advance with the ball resting 3 yards from the goal. Smukler gained one yard in three attempts against a powerful forward wall of Blue and White stalwarts then Longsderff took a reverse from Dave to score.

With only a minute and a half remaining in the first half Longsderff scooted off the right side of the line for 19 yards to give the Owls a 13-6 lead. Docherty again

MARTIN M'LAUGHLIN IN WILSON CABINET

Member of Class of 1914 Appointed Director Of Public Works

Alumni of Villanova College will be pleased to hear of the appointment of Martin J. McLaughlin, class of 1914, to the position of Director of Public Works-designate in the new Wilson Cabinet in Philadelphia.

This appointment of the former Villanovan came as a pleasant surprise to all his intimate friends although it is doubtful if there could be found a more suitable person to hold the office.

Mr. McLaughlin was a prominent member of the class of 1914 being of course a member of the Engineering school. During his civic life he has been connected with the Union Paving Company both before and after the war, but in 1920 he set up his own paving firm. In the year 1923 Mr. McLaughlin was appointed superintendent of asphalt, in 1928 he was appointed chief deputy of the Highway Bureau and at present holds this job.

Besides Villanova College, Mr. McLaughlin acquired his education at St. Charles' Parochial School, Roman Catholic High, and Villanova Preparatory School. While attending these institutions he was

Tickets for the annual football dinner are now on sale at the office of the Moderator of Athletics, Rev. Charles Melchior, O. S. A., and at the athletic office in the gymnasium.

The price of the tickets is $2.50 per plate.

Dinner will be served at 7:30 o'clock in the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia.

Seniors in Important Class Meeting Today

It is imperative that the entire Senior Class attend the important meeting at 1:00 P. M. in Room No. 215. Arthur Noble, chairman of the Belle Air Ball, and William Vaughn, class president, request that all members without exception, attend this meeting.

It has been announced that the purpose of the meeting is to determine just what type orchestra is desired for the Senior Dance. Unless the entire class makes known its cooperation, it will be impossible to carry out the elaborate plans for the affair.

Over 25 Colleges to Send Representatives to Atlantic City Convention

Arrangements have been made to hold the Eastern regional meeting of the National Catholic Educational Association on Friday and Saturday, November 29-30, of this week at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, was announced yesterday by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., acting chairman of the Eastern Regional Unit of the N. C. E. A.

Over twenty-five colleges here in the Eastern section of the country will be represented at the conference. Colleges from Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, District of Columbia, and Pennsylvania will be among the number sending representatives to Atlantic City.

This plan of regional units was formulated last April at the annual meeting of the group in Chicago and at the same time acting chairmen were selected to arrange for the annual meetings. The meeting

Stringent Rules Imposed Upon Students of Early Villanova

By HO HO MacINTOSH

Quite by accident your writer had the very good fortune to stumble upon a set of rules which were used here at Villanova College in the early days of the Augustinian House of Higher Learning. Far be it from us to ridicule the efforts of such a worthy group so we will submit some of the standards of living to you for your approval.

Rule 1. All must rise in the morning without delay and, when dressed, each one must remain by his bed until the order is given by the prefect to leave the dormitory. (We wonder what punishment would be inflicted upon that rascal who dared to stand by the door or the window instead of the bed?)

Rule 2. The use of fruits and other edibles is allowed in no part of the college but the play room. (Jahn dear, come into the play room with me won't you? Mother sent me some oranges. And by the way bring your sponge ball and jacks with you and we will play a game of jacks.)

Rule 3. When out walking the students should not separate from the prefect, nor go into any store or dwelling, without the special permision of the vice-president. Prefects will designate the direction to be taken.

No permission is granted to go out walqink without a prefect. (Wait a minute fellers will ya? I gotta go see Fr. Albers to see if

'CATS CRUSH OWLS

TWENTIETH ANNUAL ENGINEERS' BALL TOMORROW NIGHT

Villanovans to Furnish New Rhythms at Traditional Dance in College Gym

DOOR PRIZES FEATURE FAVORS FOR BOTH SEXES

Alumni Clubs Combine to Patronize Social; Novel Decorations Planned

Bells ring, birds sing, (except one) and all the campus will make merry tomorrow night at the Twentieth Annual "Engineers' Ball." Splendor is the keynote of the occasion, and nothing has been spared to make the guests of the Phi Kappa Pi feel perfectly at home.

As has been announced previously, the "Villanovans," college dance orchestra, will furnish the musical renditions from 9 P. M. 'till 1 A. M., in the college gymnasium. In the past few weeks this unit has been under great activity preparing original arrangements of the newest numbers and promises to be a really fine ensemble for the night.

Decorations of the gymnasium have been well planned and will be novel and entirely new. This particular dance has been noted in the past years for its originality and pleasing presentation, and the 1935 version is intended to follow former tradition along all lines.

With a view in mind toward making the affair even more interesting it has been decided to present two beautiful door prizes; one for the ladies and another for their escorts. The prize for the ladies will be a Westclock pocket-desk timepiece combination in the colors of Villanova College. The favor for the gentlemen, although its plan is as yet still a deep secret, is expected to be along the same general line.

With a presale of tickets to Alumni and outsiders that has far surpassed all previous Engineers' dances, tremendous success is presaged both socially and financially.

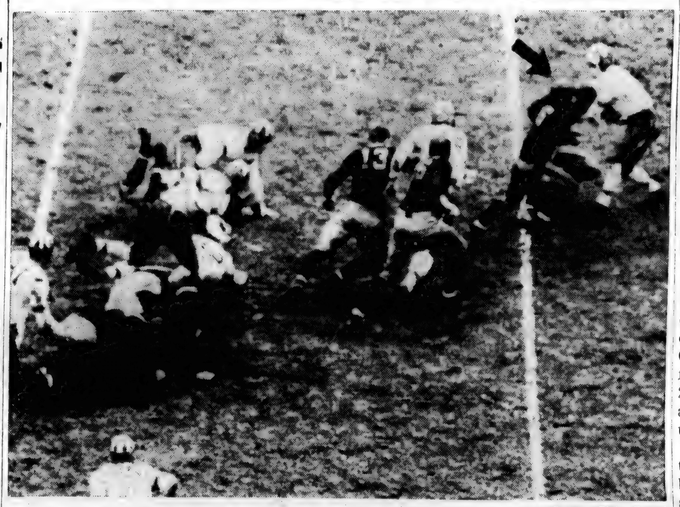
Villanova's Phantom Express Under Full Steam



—Courtesy Phila. Record

Art Raimo, pile driving sophomore fullback of the Villanova Wildcats, is shown above at the start of his sensational 60-yard gallop through the heart of the Cherry and White line. So perfectly did his interference function that hardly a hand was laid upon the Main Line Express. Arrow indicates the prowess of Raimo as he pierces the Temple secondary defense.

35,000 SEE INSPIRED TEAM WIN

Michaels Leads Team To 21 - 14 Triumph Over Rivals

RAIMO, HIGGINS, KOTYS, NYE, STAR

Unleashing a terrific second-half onslaught the ferocious Wildcats of Villanova College trampled a highly favored Temple team by a 21-14 score, at the Cherry and White's stadium last Saturday.

A crowd of 30,000 braved the snow flurries and chilly blasts to witness the most startling upset of the grid campaign.

The Blue and White finding themselves—in a football sense—for the first time this year gave a splendid exhibition of offensive and defensive play that left a badly battered Owl in its wake.

With the game less than five minutes old, Art Raimo, Sophomore fullback from Everette, Mass., darted through left tackle for sixty yards and a touchdown to give the Main Liners first blood. On his journey nary a hostile hand was laid upon him. Nick Koty's try for the extra point went awry.

Longsderff Scores For Owls

Temple evened the count on "Whip" Longsderff's two yard sprint around Villanova's right end, and went ahead on Docherty's extra point conversion. The score climaxed a 42 yard drive by the Owls in which Smukler, starting his first game since the West Virginia contest, Longsder and Renzo took turns reeling off yardage. A 13 yard aerial from Smuckler to Renzo was the longest advance with the ball resting 3 yards from the goal. Smukler gained one yard in three attempts against a powerful forward wall of Blue and White stalwarts then Longsderff took a reverse from Dave to score.

With only a minute and a half remaining in the first half Longsderff scooted off the right side of the line for 19 yards to give the Owls a 13-6 lead. Docherty again

MARTIN M'LAUGHLIN IN WILSON CABINET

Member of Class of 1914 Appointed Director Of Public Works

Alumni of Villanova College will be pleased to hear of the appointment of Martin J. McLaughlin, class of 1914, to the position of Director of Public Works-designate in the new Wilson Cabinet in Philadelphia.

This appointment of the former Villanovan came as a pleasant surprise to all his intimate friends although it is doubtful if there could be found a more suitable person to hold the office.

Mr. McLaughlin was a prominent member of the class of 1914 being of course a member of the Engineering school. During his civic life he has been connected with the Union Paving Company both before and after the war, but in 1920 he set up his own paving firm. In the year 1923 Mr. McLaughlin was appointed superintendent of asphalt, in 1928 he was appointed chief deputy of the Highway Bureau and at present holds this job.

Besides Villanova College, Mr. McLaughlin acquired his education at St. Charles' Parochial School, Roman Catholic High, and Vilanova Preparatory School. While attending these institutions he was

Seniors in Important Class Meeting Today

It is imperative that the entire Senior Class attend the important meeting at 1:00 P. M. in Room No. 215. Arthur Noble, chairman of the Belle Air Ball, and William Vaughn, class president, request that all members without exception, attend this meeting.

It has been announced that the purpose of the meeting is to determine just what type orchestra is desired for the Senior Dance. Unless the entire class makes known its cooperation, it will be impossible to carry out the elaborate plans for the affair.

NOTRE DAME THANKS COLLEGE FOR WIRE

Telegram of Sympathy Made Mention of in University Bulletin

Richard Sullivan, 19-year-old Notre Dame student from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., died last Saturday from injuries sustained in an inter-hall football game.

Before his death the following telegram was sent James J. Downs, Student Council Chairman. "The Student Council of Villanova College extend to the student body of Notre Dame University sincere sympathy because of the serious injury sustained by Richard Sullivan in the intra-mural football game on last Sunday Stop Prayers for his spiritual and temporal welfare are being offered by the Villanova students.

"James J. Downs, Chairman.

N. C. E. A. SESSION MEETS THIS WEEK

Over 25 Colleges to Send Representatives to Atlantic City Convention

Arrangements have been made to hold the Eastern regional meeting of the National Catholic Educational Association on Friday and Saturday, November 29-30, of this week at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, was announced yesterday by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., acting chairman of the Eastern Regional Unit of the N. C. E. A.

Over twenty-five colleges here in the Eastern section of the country will be represented at the conference. Colleges from Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, District of Columbia, and Pennsylvania will be among the number sending representatives to Atlantic City.

This plan of regional units was formulated last April at the annual meeting of the group in Chicago and at the same time acting chairmen were selected to arrange for the annual meetings. The meeting

Stringent Rules Imposed Upon Students of Early Villanova

By HO HO MacINTOSH

Quite by accident your writer had the very good fortune to stumble upon a set of rules which were used here at Villanova College in the early days of the Augustinian House of Higher Learning. Far be it from us to ridicule the efforts of such a worthy group so we will submit some of the standards of living to you for your approval.

Rule 1. All must rise in the morning without delay and, when dressed, each one must remain by his bed until the order is given by the prefect to leave the dormitory. (We wonder what punishment would be inflicted upon that rascal who dared to stand by the door or the window instead of the bed?)

Rule 2. The use of fruits and other edibles is allowed in no part of the college but the play room. (Jahn dear, come into the play room with me won't you? Mother sent me some oranges. And by the way bring your sponge ball and jacks with you and we will play a game of jacks.)

Rule 3. When out walking the students should not separate from the prefect, nor go into any store or dwelling, without the special permision of the vice-president. Prefects will designate the direction to be taken.

No permission is granted to go out walqink without a prefect. (Wait a minute fellers will ya? I gotta go see Fr. Albers to see if

THE RESURRECTION OF THE NRA

THE NRA has been interred, none too honourably perhaps, but nevertheless with a finality that indicates business' disinclination toward any kind of Federal control of its activities. So that we can expect few or no definite results from the conference of business, labor, and consumers, that has been called in Washington on December 9, under the direction of George L. Berry, the recently appointed Coordinator for Industrial Cooperation.

Nothing in the present condition of business justifies the contention that there is any need for a resuscitation form of the NRA. The Department of Commerce reports in its monthly survey that industrial production and employment are now at their highest level since the Fall of 1930. Likewise it cannot be disputed that business has taken a turn for the better since the Supreme Court struck off the irksome shackles of Administration control.

Aside from the deleterious effects that any attempt to resurrect in any comprehensive form a bill for the Federal supervision of industry, will have upon business itself from the stubborn resistance with which it will be met, we cannot deny that the NRA contained many provisions, which business will ultimately come to consider as beneficial to its own progress, and accept as such. The vast number of unemployed in the country still represents a large potential market for the consumption of goods, and some provision must be made in order that they can exercise this prerogative. The only manner in which industry can absorb these individuals is by shortening the hours of those who are already employed, but without any diminuition in their incomes. Similarily the Chamber of Commerce should formulate some plan whereby they can, either alone or in conjunction with the Government, compel the sweatshops to operate upon an equitable basis. The need for business, for its own preservation, to embody these things into the principles upon which it operates is so obvious that it should take some immediate and concrete steps toward their realization.

CANADIAN WHEAT

WHEAT production and foreign sale has almost been doubled since the advent of the A. A. A. The import duty on this valuable commodity has been lowered by Canada, favoring the United States, from 30 cents to 12 cents per bushel. Yes, Canada now sells the States close to 50 per cent of her wheat export. Up until November 15, it has been announced from Winnipeg, Canadian wheat exports to the United States up to November 15, 1935 totaled 17,240,000 bushles, 10,000,000 more than in the same period last year. Since their sale to the United Kingdom amounts only to 18,000,000 bushels, one can realize the great importance of the newly created American market.

We must have a fine feeling of security, to know that when we feel the need for this quantity of wheat, we have only to go across the border to Canada, to obtain our needs. It was not so long ago, though, that we grew and exported our own wheat; previous to the coming of the A. A. A. These days cannot be gone forever, we hope. The tariff gesture of Canada is quite magnanimous, considering the fact that the wheat is not pouring the reverse direction, but we have gained one point, however, wheat in the United States has risen in price, even if the profit does not go to American wheat growers.

MODERN AIRWAYS

ANOTHER step has been taken in linking more closely the various countries of the earth via the airlanes.

The China Clipper, ace liner of the trans-Pacific mail routes, brought its mail through from Honolulu to the tiny Midway Islands, thus completing the second leg in its epochal flight to its ultimate destination, Manila, from the starting point of Alameda, Calif.

Twenty-one persons were abroad the sky liner. It also carried 1700 pounds of mail and supplies for way points.

The schedule of the clipper calls for flights to Wake island, to Guam and finally Manila.

The 8000 miles from Alameda to the Philippine capital will have taken five days if the voyage is successfully completed. It takes 17 days by steamer.

Midway, for years off the course of commercial steamers, visited only by vessels bringing supplies or relief crews to a cable station, suddenly became a metropolitan point, figuring in the international "air bridge" being established.

This chain of islands in the route to the East is but another link in the vast number of airways soon to span the earth. Day by day barriers which for centuries restrained man are constantly being broken down before the onslaught of the air armada.

PEACE IN RHINELAND?

MANY harsh words have been uttered and written by Adolph Hitler about France and the latest appear in his "Mein Kampf" in which he designates France as Germany's eternal enemy. He intimated ominously that one day these two nations would fight it out for a final decision on European hegemony.

Yet last Thursday he received the French ambassador to Berlin, Andre Francois-Poncet, and talked with him for two hours. After their meeting the Wilhelmstrasse issued a communique stating that the conversation had been characterized by a spirit of friendliness etc.

What was said during the conversation was a major topic of conversation in Europe's Foreign Offices this weekend. Germany, observers in Europe say, wants peace with France so that the Reich may go ahead with its plans in Eastern Europe. It is also stated that Germany's rearmament is straining the Reich's budget and Berlin wants to put the brakes on—if France will make a return concession.

France also wants peace, but not at the cost of German expansion in Eastern Europe, which would mean the relegation of France to a secondary position in the Continent

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

AT THIS POINT it is our pleasure to take to task a certain columnist who in some way managed to blunder into such a position on the Penn State publication. The columnist's name is Walter Freunsch and heads his pillar thus, BETWEEN THE LIONS.

Said Freunsch in last week's issue had the gall to print degratory remarks about a certain Harry Stuhldreher, who we think to be one of the finest coaches in the country. However, it seems that our dear friend Freunsch is inclined to disagree. In fact here is what he says...

"Stuhldreher is being talked of as successor to Bob Higgins. If the athletic powers here want to swap horses in midstream it's hard to believe they plan to pick CROWBAIT for the job. Moreover as long as Higgins has brought the team, etc..."

So there you have Penn State Walter's opinion on the matter. Nothing more need be said at this point save if Walter is listening in we offer him the suggestion that he take himself off to the wilds where his ranting and raving will not publicly brand him a first-class idiot.

—o—

Our choice for the outstanding gag of the week goes to WPA Administrator Hopkins. Delivered while addressing the Conference of Mayors in Washington last week the gag went as follows:

A certain Bronx landlord had a number of Communist tenants who were always picketing him, bearing placards on which all sorts of demands were written. Finally he called the tenants together and told them he would grant every demand. He would cut rents, repaint rooms, repaper walls, install new plumbing and lights.

"But," he demanded, "will you please tell me how in h—l I am going to free Tom Mooney?"

And while on the subject of gags 'n stuff we feel it is the proper time to put John Eck in the limelight once more. John as you know has a great sense of humor once he resurrects it from the depths of oblivion. It seems that John has amused the residents of the third floor of Fedigan hall with this, his latest caper. When in one of his playful moods, John will clasp an avarm clock to his manly bosom and stride up in his room, crying in a voice emulating that of Jimmy Wallington, "The March of Time." One of John's more intimate friends, suggested that without the burden of the clock John could still march hither and yon and in the same stentorian tones announce, "The March of Time."

—o—

To John "Hack" Donovan we offer congratulations and expressions of highest esteem for the splendid work he accomplished in the resurrection of the mammoth edifice which provided the tinder for annual pre-Temple game bonfire. Of course "Hack" was not alone in his efforts to construct the huge framework but it was through his untiring efforts and expert qualities as a carpenter that the work was as successful as it was. A member of the crew on every trip the collectors of the wood and other material made, "Hack" was invaluable to the cause.

It is our opinion that without his aid both in the process of the piling up of the firewood, etc., and the construction of the platform and also the procuring of helpers and bonfire would have been much less of a success.

Jim Schell, the sage of Frederick, who has been a source of constant side aches about the campus, caused by his ready wit and insatiable humor, rocked a group of the inmates of Austin hall recently with the following: "Yessir, mister, it sure is great how these here graveyards of ours are all prettied and dandied up nowadays. Heck, it's got so that ah can't pass one of 'em without just a wantin' to die!"

As We See It . . . . . On Truth

By HARRY PARKIN

TRUTH is as essential to man's social and intellectual existence, as the balanced continuation of the laws of nature are to his physical preservation. Upon truth rests all human knowledge, it is the guidance of conduct, the perpetuator and preservative of life. Hence the almost universal distrust for falsehood, is founded upon its direct and pernicious tendency to vitiate and disturb the even tenor of man's social relations, by the introduction and maintenance of so many gradations of mischief that the whole organization will suffer proportionately.

Yet, in spite of the natural inclination of all men to speak and adhere to the principles of truth, not only because we should be well informed of those things which make for an amiable existence, but also as an aid to the understanding and interpretation of natural phenomena; candour cannot reconcile, tho it be at the expense of appearing paradoxical, the human appreciation and acknowledged interest in truth, with the disposition to accept, with such perfect credulity, as representative of truth, books whose moral and philosophical quiblings are either indicative of a mind that refuses to confess the truth that it has found, or one that has contented itself with a cursory examination of existent facts, without making any effort to inquire below their superficial aspects.

Truth is professed and denied in as many different guises as there are men, who are able to distort or misinterpret the logical processes of reasoning. It is proffered as anything from a dismal unknowable, to the personal construction of distinctly individual metaphysical fancies. The former holds, that truth is so much moral and religious cant that has been sentimentally trimmed to please and satisfy us—that the human race is more ancient than the ten commandments. But likewise were men able to measure the passage of the day, and navigate their ships beyond the sight of land, long before Copernicus and Kepler systematized the laws of astronomy and Bowdich had published his astronomical tables. Truth similarly antidates its formal promulgation. In fact the history of mankind more thoroughly refutes the falsity of these claims more completely than can any analogies. For no matter how savage his condition of life, how inconsistent and incommensurate his desires, there has usually been some indication that he did have some kind of duties; that he had a concept of something owing to himself, to his neighbor; to his God—there is some ideal of decency that he has striven for, some level of shame below which he would not stoop. The fact that he recognized the rights of the members of his own tribe, and failed to apply them to other people, does not derogate the concept but only the understanding of it. From this stage it requires little education to make the original belief embrace the whole of humanity. The latter class would have it that right and wrong is a matter of time, place, and condition; and that which is sensuously beneficial will necessarily be considered good, while everything to the contrary is evil. Good is that which exigency ordains, and not the result of applied reasoning. In Contradistinction to this we find from experience, a resemblance and often a contiguity about the various ideals of human behaviour, that a similarity of intent. Further, it is worthy of our consideration that men so widely disparate in their line, learning, and opportunities should all attain to such similar conclusions.

In the ordinary life about us we find so many violations of truth that we wonder if the educational system is so effective as it proclaims, or the requirements of social precedence worthy of the attention that so many accord it. The first of these faults is vanity, the desire to be thought interesting, to excite curiosity, and escape from the pains of obscurity. The next is the liar, who believes life to insipid, and must invent rare occurrences, stimulate emotions, and ride supreme upon the envy of others through a whirlwind of zestful experiences. Then the affected with his cultivation of the fancied postures and grimaces of superiority and boredom. The cheat, whose pernicious deceptions are studied efforts to defraud; who would rather live a sumptuous lie, than a mediocre truth. And a whole raft of this sorry lot who think the temporary plausibility of evasions and untruths, is preferable to the broad, safe highway of veracity.

He who has found but one truth, and holds to it will live a more satisfactory life, than the whole pusillaminous crew of dilletantes who can mouth at the slightest provocation; a volume of meritricious precepts concerning it.

Pass In Review

By R. I. G. DEVERALL

AS we wandered through Fedigan Hall the other evening, we heard a fellow reading poetry to a group of chaps. "Charlie, old fellow," I said to my companion, "is this Fedigan Hall or am I the victim of some sort of mental disorder?"

Well, it was Fedigan Hall! And I don't wonder that some of Villanova's boys have taken to poetry, for Henry Adams' MONT-ST-MICHEL And CHARTRES, now in the Villanova library, contains some of the best mediaeval poetry it has ever been my joy to read. Next time you have nothing to do (ah! blessed moments), why not drop over to the library and find out about this. After all, they read it in Fedigan Hall!

But poetry is not the only thing of interest to attract Villanovan bibliophiles. In CHRISTIAN ART, by Professor C. R. Morey, Princeton University, we find an excellent review of European art since the time of Christ. If you find the discussion abstruse at times, at least read and note the plates in the appendix. The pictures alone are worth the trouble spent visiting the library.

Do you ever read the DUBLIN REVIEW, that wonderful magazine founded by Cardinal Wiseman and Daniel O'Connell? In the latest copy, now in the library, we find a good discussion of what a Catholic institution of higher learning should mean. You men who lack the true college spirit should make a perusal of Dr. Agostino Gemelli's article "required reading."

Should you seek amusement, read the editorial in this month's CATHOLIC WORLD. Father Gillis, in a style that is all his own, takes "letters-to-the-editor" writers over the bumps. And does he know how to do it!

We met a fellow the other day—probably the worst loafer in the school. You know to whom I refer! While discussing books, he exclaimed: "You know, it certainly pays to read books now and then. I had a sociology exam the other day. But for my outside reading, I'd have flunked the quarterly."

A word to the wise is sufficient. Next time you have the "Brym-Mawr-Blues," investigate the library and meet the good friends you have been neglecting all these years.

Oh, yes! We must not forget to mention the best of our recent acquisitions: THE MEMOIRS OF COUNT APPONYI. Here is a biography that is infinitely better than the usual product. It is a scintillating portrait of a famous Catholic statesman. You may query: "But what do I care about that stuffy, old, Hungarian Count; what good does it do me to read his life?"

For the student of world affairs, of economics, of politics, and of men in particular, this charmingly written tome is a source of unending delight.

For the music lover, the character dealing with Richard Wagner and Franz Liszt is splendid. Through Apponyi, we obtain another side of the character of Richard Wagner, composer and author of the immortal Parsifal, and the stirring Lohengrin. As college boys, most of us consider it a heresy to listen to 'classical' music. How well may we hear Apponyi when he exclaims: "Music has influenced my whole existence. . . . I thank God, who gave it to me. . . ."

You should read this volume of memoirs for another reason. This generation is one of sophisticated cynics. Thanks to the influence of Bolshevists and so-called free-thinkers, we are informed that men of ideals and of spirituality no longer exist. We are told that religion has nothing to do with everyday affairs of men.

Read Apponyi to find a convincing argument against such utterly false notions. Apponyi, from the time he learned to speak his native language, was always a practical Catholic. He was always a Hungarian, yes! but first he was a Catholic!

Early History Of Old Ithan Told to Scribe

By JOSEPH TOLAND

WELL there is not much I can tell you boys," said E. Brooks Matlack as he carefully seated himself in a rocker on the porch of his old home in Ithan, "but if you will just take chairs I'll tell you what I can about old Ithan." After we were seated and his pipe had been lit old Mr. Matlack began his story.

"My family has been here for at least six generations," he said, "and as far as I can remember every one of them has worshipped in the old Quaker meeting house across the way. Most of them got their primary education in the old Quaker school by the church. As far as I can recall the old meeting house was started here in 1718 and has been open ever since. Sometimes the service would be crowded, while at times hardly anyone would come. For a stretch of about five years my grandfather Enoch Matlack was the only one who went there. Every Thursday morning he would go and sit there for one hour by himself so that the meeting wouldn't be closed.

In those days the country was quite different from now. In the first place the present town of Ithan was known as Radnor while Radnor was called Morgan's Corner. The old Radnor store was probably the first building in the neighborhood. Next came the Leedom house which stood at the corner of Conestoga Rd. and Sproul Rd., now called Spring Mill.

"Right across the street from there was the old Sorrell Horse Hotel. It is said that Washington stopped here on his way to Valley Forge. How true that is I don't know, but I do know that there was a mill down on Ithan Creek that ground grain for the Continental Army at Valley Forge. Another fact that makes it seem true that Washington stopped here is that the Revolutionary soldiers camped in the woods back of W. W. Atterbury's place in 1776."

Seeing that Mr. Matlack was warmed to his subject we continued by asking him about himself and his family.

"I was born about a mile from here on a farm. All my family were farmers of the best order. We got our mail from the Lewis Mills post office and went to school in the Quaker school. My grandfather built my present home and the Matlacks have been living here ever since. This is one of the oldest houses in Ithan and our family is the only one left of all the original settlers. The Leedoms have all long since passed. When we came here Milton Fussel and his family had taken over the post office and Radnor store."

We asked Mr. Matlack how Ithan contributed to the wars.

"We have had our share. All the Leedoms and Matlacks that were here fought with Washington. My father, Edwin Matlack, and Captain George Brooks, who lives down on the Chester road, helped the North put down the rebels in 1865. How many men went from here to the World War I don't know, but the percentage was high."

In reply to our question concerning other people of interest in the vicinity our friend replied: "The Donners are quite an interesting family. Young Elaine Donner was once married to Elliot Roosevelt. Everyone knows they are divorced and folks are calling her Miss Donner again. They only live about half a mile from here. Mighty nice people."

When we were about to take our leave Mr. Matlack, to whom we had been listening, apologized for not being able to help us in our quest of the history of Ithan. However, no one in the village knew any more than he. It was at a late hour when we finally turned our backs on our interesting informer and left behind us a true American and a real Ithanite.

DIAL-LOG

By FLO P. GOGGI.

THE dramatic finale of the Notre Dame-Ohio State football game had such repercussions that it almost wrecked the office of Walter O'Keefe, heard on the CBS network each Tuesday and Thursday evening. Walter, a Notre Dame alumnus, was listening to the radio description of the game with Charles Butterworth, noted comedian and former classmate of O'Keefe, and Bill Conselman, scenario writer. Walter was rather glum until that remarkable last period. Then when victory came for the Irish, Walter tossed a beaker of ice-water in Butterworth's face, tossed Conselman under a desk and emptied a box-case in the middle of the floor. That's college spirit for you!

Stars . . . stars . . . and still more stars passed before the mike during the dedication of the Will Rogers Memorial Stage at the Fox-Twentieth Century studios in Hollywood. Irving S. Cobb, Fred Stone, Gladys Swarthout, Shirley Temple and others paid tribute.

Nosin' 'Round Radio Row . . . Ladies and gen'men . . . the winnah! As very few of us expected, Alois Havrilla, veteran NBC announcer, walked off with the 1935 radio diction medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. The broadcasting world salutes Alois, a Czechoslovakian, who could not speak a word of English until he was five years old. And now he uses the President's tongue better than most native Americans! . . . Lillian Carmen, a comedy team, and Ralph Benson's Orchestra have been signed for a new CBS motor program. . . . David Ross, Columbia announcer, has written lyrics to Debussy's "Claire de Lune," and you'll hear them for the first time on Fred Waring's Program Tuesday. . . . So many persons ask for Kate Smith coffee at the grocery stores of her sponsors, that the name has been copyrighted for future marketing. . . . Lanny Ross presents a full hour of Jerome Kern music aboard the Showboat, Nov. 21. . . . Flash! . . . The Mystery Chef, who is regarded by many experts as the greatest of all cooking experts on radio, returns to the air for a new series on Dec. 4. He'll be heard via the NBC WEAF networks, Wed. and Fri. at 10.30 A. M. His contract is one of the weightiest in Broadcasting, being a noncancellable one, running for 52 weeks. Seventy-nine sponsors are behind it. . . .gas companies from Washington, D. C., to Maine. The Mystery Chef, a sportsman who took up the culinary art as a hobby, is a chap who some years ago won a commercial in a novel manner: He permitted a prospective sponsor to choose a girl who had never even boiled an egg . . . and within a day, taught her to serve a perfectly prepared formal dinner. The manufacturer enjoyed the meal . . .and the Mystery Chef has been in clover ever since.

Because of the avalanche of fan mail which followed Georgie Stoll's guest appearance on the Eddie Cantor program, he has been recently signed as the regular maestro of the Pebeco comedy which included Cantor, Parkyakarkus, Jimmy Wallington & Co.

A new and unique style of radio entertainment will, if acceptable, be presented by Station WOR. Known as the "Campus On the Air," it will be a program arranged, directed and presented entirely by college and university students and recent graduates.

The radio industry as a profession is seriously occupying the minds of college men and women these days. Since colleges are now providing instruction and preparation for radio training, they see an opportunity to enter that branch of the industry for which they feel qualified.

In the programs to be presented, many interesting features will be among those included. Periods of light and classical music and song, sport chats to be presented by well known campus luminaries, and a serious talk, or the use of dialogue, serious sketches as well as witty and sparkling dramatic presentation with scenes laid in college settings will all be included in this new "Campus On The Air" program.

CONCERT FOR YOUTH TO BE HELD DEC. 5

Under Direction of Stokowski Varied Program Includes Young Spanish Dancer

The second Concert for Youth will be held on Thursday evening, December 5, in the Academy of Music at 7:45 P. M. in Philadelphia. Leopold Stokowski will conduct.

The high spot of the evening will be Hari McDonald's Rhumba Symphony, which topped the list of requests voted for at the last Youth Concert. This symphony had its premiere at the regular Friday concert on October 4, 1935, under Leopold Stokowski. It is subtitled "Reflections on an Era of Turmoil." Dr. McDonald is already well known to Youth Concert audiences by his "Festival of the Workers," which was played two seasons ago.

Following intermission the University of Pennsylvania Varsity Glee Club will sing:

"Away to Rio, Georgian English sea chanty; "One of These Days," Negro spiritual; "Deep River," Negro spiritual; "Hanging Johnny," Elizabethan English sea chanty; "The Sleigh," Russian folk song.

Carola Collings, a young dancer of Spanish ancestry, will give four dances characteristic of her country; a Zamba, a Moorish dance featuring finger symbols; Fandanguillo Gitana, a rondo dating from the time of the Roman occupation of Spain; Mariposa, a tango in which the use of a fan is emphasized; and Farruca Divina, a dance of Seville.

The Youth audience will sing: "The Youth Song," "Massa Dear," "An Irish Love Song" and "Row Your Boat." These will be followed by Schreiner's "Concerto Grosso for Percussion Instruments and Orchestra," subtitled "The Worried Drummer," with Anna Mae Brogan as soloist.

The concert will end with Liszt's "Les Preludes."

FORD PLANT VISITED

A. S. M. E. Inspects Automobile Center at Chester on Its Initial Trip

Their first trip this year, the Villanova Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers last Monday visited the Ford Motor Company Plant in Chester, Pa.

The Society made a detailed inspection of the plant and went through the power plant and assembling line.

An interesting detail of the power plant was the marine steam engine. This engine was taken from one of the Ford transport ships about five years ago when Diesel engines were installed. The students also inspected two oil-burning boilers just recently installed.

Among other educational and interesting facts, the society learned that it takes just 35 minutes to complete a car on the assembling line.

This trip, arranged through Victor Nicholson and Joe Malcolm, was one of a series planned for this semester. The society is now planning to visit the Port Richmond Power Plant within the next few weeks with the intention of inspecting the newly completed steam generator.

GERMAN ATTITUDE TOWARDS OLYMPICS ONE OF DEFIANCE

Hostile Demeanor of Nazis as Regards Jews, Catholics Is Manifest

UNITED STATES UNDECIDED

Germany is breaking her pledges to the sporting world. She is persecuting the Jew and Catholic and barring them from participation in the Olympics wearing the colors of Germany.

In answer to the American Olympic Committee the German sportsmen claimed that racial discrimination would not be considered in the selection of Germany's team for the Olympics. She has broken this pledge and declared that Jews and offending Catholics shall not participate in the games. She has done this by refusing Jews adequate opportunities for preparation and by introducing religion and politics into the Olympic games.

For years, in fact since the beginning of the Olympic games, sports have been the main aim of the Olympic games. Politics and religion have been placed aside and international sportsmanship has been the dream of the Olympics. Until the present situation arose these dreams were realized until the power-crazy Hitler bulldozed a desperate nation into its present state.

However, the American Olympic Committee claims that these reports are entirely false and that the American team may enter the Olympics. They fail to realize that the Germans admitted inadequate preparation facilities for the Jewish athletes. They also fail to recognize the fact that it took two years of persuasion to get Miss Helena Mayer, famous Jewish fencer, on the German Olympic team.

The Committee for Fair Play, of which Rev. Edward V. Stanford, president of Villanova College, is a member is investigating the matter and will have the final decision to render concerning Uncle Sam's entrance into the 1936 games.

It is the opinion of that body if Germany continues to disregard sportsmanship in her actions towards the Olympics and if the games are not removed from Germany the athletes of the United States of America will not show their encouragement to such attitudes by entering the team in the 1936 Olympic games.

AFRICAN SITUATION IS TOPIC OF DISCUSSION

Rev. William Lunney, O. S. A., Conducts Weekly Meeting of International Relations Society

With Rev. William Lunney, O. S. A., presiding the International Relations Society held another of its weekly meetings on last Thursday afternoon.

A lengthy and lively discussion in regards to the Ethopian question was the highlight of the meeting. James Quigley defended the Italian side of the question and Edward Kelly took the Ethopian cause.

The discussion was cleverly presented by the aforementioned two students and proved very interesting to those in attendance.

Another meeting of th International Relations Society is scheduled for this Thursday afternoon.

MOTION PICTURE IS GIVEN BY A. I. E. E.

Inventions of Edison And Steinmetz Presented By Engineering Society

All members of the A. I. E. E. student chapter of Villanova College witnessed a motion picture at their meeting Monday, which dealt with the lives and accomplishments of two of the world's greatest genii, Edison and Steinmetz.

Dealing with the invention of the electric bulb, it showed in detail all of the developments leading up to the present-day light source produced by General Electric Company. The technical refinements and improvements as well as the discoveries leading up to them were dealt with in a most interesting and instructive manner.

Prof. Harry S. Bueche, E. E., immediately after the picture gave the society a short concise lecture on the more important details including a short summary of the history of modern light.

Of particular interest to the members of the chapter was the final scene, which showed the last meeting of Edison and Steinmetz, just previous to the death of the latter.

FIRST SMOKER HELD BY PHI KAPPA PI

Harry Stuhldreher Is Guest of Honor at Initial Fete of Fraternity

Phi Kappa Pi held its first smoker of the year last Tuesday night. The Freshmen were invited to take part in the activities of the fraternity for the first time this season.

After calling the smoker to order, William Vaughn, chairman, gave the members a short talk, and followed by introducing James T. Allan, president of the society. Mr. Allan explained the purpose and the programs of the engineering fraternity.

Harry Stuhldreher, Villanova's coach, was then introduced as the speaker of the evening. Speaking on the possibilities of positions for graduates, he congratulated the Technology students for their choice of profession. Further, he expressed the good of the engineering fraternity and the need for such affairs as the smoker, wherein all men are made to feel at home and entirely welcome.

Following Mr. Stuhldreher, William Munroe, chairman of the "Engineers' Ball" of November 27, this year, gave a general outline of the fraternity dance and urged all the engineers to support and foster the social affairs as well as the business side of college life. Al FitzPatrick gave the smoker a lighter aspect with his renditions of "Heat Wave" and "Sons of the Prophets."

James Nulty, as the alumni representative was then called upon as an especially proper authority on the "Engineers' Ball." He was the chairman of last season's successful social event.

A quintet composed of Joseph Duffy, Francis Winterer, Jerry Kunz, Thomas O'Brien and Paul Williams sang their own original and amusing version of the old faithful, "Sweet Adeline." James McBrearty closed the entertainment for the evening with an Irish melody sung in his own inimitable manner.

The successful and entertaining evening was brought to a finale with the serving of coffee and sandwiches. Cigars and cigarettes were distributed to all, and the smoker became history. Much of the completeness of the social is due to the work of William Vaughn, chairman, C. B. Constantine, and Edward Casey, as well as the many other members who gave their efforts toward its pleasure.

"Spanning the Golden Gate" Given By J. Canuso and A. Fitzpatrick

On Monday, November 18, at the regular meeting of the Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Julian Canuso, working in conjunction with Aloysius Fitzpatrick, presented a paper on "Spanning the Golden Gate."

The entire society thoroughly enjoyed the discussion and commended the two speakers for their excellence in topic and discourse.

William Munroe, Senior Civil Engineers and President of the society has announced that Edward McHugh will present a talk of a new civil engineering project at the next meeting.

The Class of '35, Engineers' Club that was organized last year, has made it known that they expect to attend the dance with few exceptions. Many other members of the fraternity ex-members organizations also have expressed their intentions in this same regard, and the dance should become quite a night for reunions of this kind.

William Munroe, chairman, has announced his plans for building a temporary stage for the orchestra for the evening, a much needed accessory to the decorative schemes adopted in the college gymnasium. It was through the planning and efforts of Bill Munroe that the stage for the Junior Prom of last spring was constructed and he intends to use much the same methods for the Phi Kappa Pi Ball.

FALSE ECONOMY BLAMED

COLLEGE GLEE CLUB LACKS ATTENDANCE

Better Spirit Required for Choral Society to Go on With Proposed Plans

Progress in the Villanova Glee Club has been slight because of the failure of its members to be consistent in their attendance at meetings. If better spirit and cooperation is not shown by the choristers, the society will be forced to break up and all plans concerning concerts and trips will have to be discarded.

However, those choristers who have been faithful in their attendance have given promise of making Villanova proud of its Glee club. Among their songs the singers have the old favorites, "Winter Song," "Tinker's Song" and "Finlandia."

Plans are still in progress for the proposed concert in Philadelphia with the glee club of the University of Pennsylvania. However, if the turnouts are not better, the moderators of the club will know that the student body is not interested in music of this type, and an excellent chance for cultural recognition will have been lost.

VILLANOVA ROUTS FAVORITE

—Courtesy Phila. Record

Longsderff, of Temple, is shown carrying the pigskin over the Villanova goal line in the second period of last Saturday's fracas. The play was made of fourth down and inches to go for a score. After Smukler had taken three unsuccessful stabs at the Villanova forward wall, Frey, Owls' quarterback, called for a reverse, Smukler to Longsderff, which caught the Wildcats unbalanced. The touchdown and the point after towchdown which followed, gave the Owls a short-lived lead of 7-6. Whitey scored again for the Temple team in the same period, but a second-half Wildcat rally offset his efforts.

Sportorial

By the Sports Editor

WITH the tremendous odds put before them last Saturday, the Villanova College football team showed itself to be one of the best in the history of the school. A concensus of the game found all sport writers and coaches picking the Owls. In our observation only "Pop" Warner picked the Cats. However it is well to note that it is "Pop's" custom to pick the opponent over his team regardless of their strength.

Regarded as having only an outside chance, and that arising merely from the fact that there existed a traditional rivalry between the two, the charges of Harry Stuhldreher stepped into the Temple Stadium, and after 60 minutes of action-filled with thrill upon thrill, were the proud boasters of a decisive victory over "Smukler and Company."

Harry Stuhldreher was so stunned and amazed at the outcome of the game that it took a local scribe several minutes to get his statement regarding the contest. His aides, Regan and Jacobs also found difficulty to express themselves, especially Bob Regan, who is inclined to take a pessimistic viewpoint on outcomes of these annual tussles.

The Temple victory would be enough to make any season a success, but with seven wins in nine starts this season has turned into one with complete success. Twenty-two sophomores and five juniors on the squad make the '36 campaign appear very promising.

MICHAELS sang his swan song so magnificently, that in our estimation he is deserving of recognition in the selection of the All-American team that will come about in a few weeks.

Figuring in almost every play, the modest Villanova captain was an added incentive to his sophomore teammates. His blocking of a Temple punt in the third period was the turning point in the fracas.

Villanova loses a great figure by the graduation of Michaels.

It is our hope that the writer of the article in the Norristown Times Herald which so ungraciously labeled Eddie Michaels as a highly over-rated football player, was fortunate enough to witness last week's game.

If that individual did see the contest, we would like to find out what his opinion is now. Anyone seeing Eddie play football could not make such a rash statement.

Vidnovic, Higgins and Kotys were a few of the heroes in the game. They donned their Blue and White uniforms for the last time. Through this column, we of the VILLANOVAN wish to extend our congratulations to them and the other senior men on the squad.

FROSH BASKETEERS CONTINUE PRACTICE FOR INITIAL FRAY

Large Turnout of Candidates for Posts Left Vacant by Promotion

HOBSON AMONG ASPIRANTS

Coach Al Severance's basketballers are practicing strenuously for the coming campaign, which contains as main attractions, clashes with the Owlets from Temple.

The Kittens have been scrimmaging with the varsity and have disported themselves commendably against their more experienced opponents. These sessions with the varsity should give the yearlings some extra polish which will be needed if they are to continue the fine record made by last year's courtsters.

To date nothing definite can be said about the individual players as the squad is quite large and a line on all the aspirants cannot be had. However, Montgomery, Dubino, Kutulis, Hobson, Vigilante, Wanamaker and Dempsey will probably form a nucleus of this year's Frosh court machine.

From the above successors to Don Brennan, Harry McNally, Joe Lotito, Eddie Collins, Walt McKenna and Charlie Noonan must be found. There is no doubt that these stars will be ably replaced if the class shown by the youngsters is any criterion.

The dribblers have shown some A-1 form in their tussles with the Wildcat varsity.

All Positions Open

The forward posts are open, as are all the other positions, to competition, but at the present time Montgomery seems to have one of the places clinched, although he has also been playing pivot during some of the scrimmages.

Lou Dubino, of Pennington Prep, rival of Benny Geraghty's Alma Mater, has been playing at center for the majority of the practice sessions. Art Vigilante, a North Jersey All-State guard for two years, and Johnny Kutulis, have been showing the varsity forwards how guarding should be done.

Lou Wanamaker, a son of the metropolis of New York, has been filling in at the other forward position, as has "Duke" Dempsey. Abe Hobson, Malvern's representative this year has been showing up well whenever and wherever put in by Coach Severance.

Other candidates for the team include: Bond, Carrig, Horn and Cantwell. The last-named has not been seen on the hardwood as yet, because of his participation in

Second Half Drive Wins For 'Cats Against Temple

came back from his tackle position to convert the extra marker and raised the scoring to 14 points.

On the short end of a 14-6 count at the start of the second half the Wildcats immediately set upon its prey with a tenacity characteristic of its name.

Joe Zanin, Temple guard, fumbled Mellus' kick-off and Frank Nye recovered for the Cats on Temple's 34 yard line. Jack Earle, starting at fullback in place of Raimo, reeled off seventeen yards in two tries. Carrying the ball again Earle was stopped without gain.

On third down Kotys on a spinner, twisted, dodged and squirmed his way 17 yards for a touchdown to put the Wildcats in arrears by two points, 14-12. The score remained the same as Kotys' second extra point attempt was wide of the uprights.

Villanova kicked off to Temple on the latter's 19. The Owls, after failing to gain, punted to Higgins who returned one yard to place the oval on Villanova's 45. Raimo made seven and Koty's five to place the ball on the Owls' 43. Here the Cherry and White put up a battle and forced Higgins to punt. And what a kick. Johnny "coffin-cornered" on the three yard stripe.

Michaels Contributes Safety

Frey went back in kick formation and hopes of a touchdown or safety swelled in the Villanova rooters hearts. The Wildcats charged through ferociously and Eddie Michaels—Captain and outstanding candidate for All-American honors—hurled his frame in front of the ball with the result that it bounded into the end zone for an automatic safety.

The charges of Harry Stuhldreher were now in the thick of the fight with the score stalemated at 14 all. The spirit of the Warnermen was fast fading in the face of the now inspired Wildcats. This was a break of the game and the Main Liners certainly capitalized on it. The Blue and White were coming and coming mighty fast and hard.

Docherty kicked-ff from the 20 to Nye who brought it back to the Owls 45. With Raimo bearing the brunt of the attack the ball soon rested on the Temple 8. Nye tried right end and failed to gain. On the next play Higgins went back and hurled a 13 yard pass to Nye who stepped over the last chalk mark for the score that topped the Owls.

After missing on two previous attempts, Koty's cut the heart of the uprights for the extra point to bring the score to 21-14 and triumph to a gallant bunch of everfighting gladiators representing the Main Line institution.

Whistle Stops Score

The Wildcats were on their way to another score but were halted by the whistle. The ball rested on the Temple five yard line when hostilities were postponed until next year.

Six members of the Villanova squad sang a victorious swan song. Led by Captain Eddie Michaels, who closed a colorful three year campaign as a member of the varsity, and Milan Vidnovic, the Blue and White's unsung hero, both proverbial Rocks of Gibraltar, the ranks included John Higgins, whose selection of plays left nothing to be desired, and Nick Kotys flashy ball carrier as the ones who saw action in the season's finale.

Walter Korchinski, reserve end, and George Wrona sub half back, round out the sextette.

Entire Team Shines

It is hard to single out any individual as the outstanding performer. The team played as a unit and displayed a brand of ball of which they are capable of playing.

The blocking of Mellus and Rizzo was a coach's dream come true. Sports reporters were high in their praise of the former.

Eddie Michaels certainly convinced the gathering that he possesses everything an All-American requires. "Mike" spent quite a time in the backfield of the Owls. If the game had probably gone five minutes longer he would have known the Cherry and White's signals.

His ability to diagnose plays and ever encouraging words proved beneficial to the Wildcats and his absence will be sorely missed when next season rolls around.

Truly, a great competitor, Eddie was the synosure of all eyes. His helmetless head making him conspicious from the others he put on an exhibition that will live long in the annals of Villanova history.

Michaels along with Fox and Sala were the only Villanova men to play the entire sixty minutes.

The ends were mighty powerful on defense and thwarted many an Owl thrust. The terminal posts were closed to Temple ball carriers. Joe Missar proved a capable understudy for Vidnovic.

Johnny McKenna split the pivot position and performed admirably. The latter started his first game and handled the assignment like a veteran. Johnny was removed from the fray at the end of the first period suffering from an injured arm.

Speed Factor In Win

The fast running backfield was the spark that touched things off. Kotys and Raimo with a touchdown apiece, plus two extra points for the former, gained 181 yards of the Wildcats 254 total. Art personally accounted for 122 in 18 attempts.

Stoviak and Nye who shared the right halfback post gave a superb exhibition of interference leading.

The kicking of Stopper put the Owls at a disadvantage any number of times. Jack Earle plowed through the Owl line for a few nice gains which bodes no good for future Temple teams.

The quarterbacking of Christopher and Higgins was without a flaw. Higgins gave a fine bit of masterminding in his final game.

For the vanquished Temple outfit "Whip" Longsderff, Kusko, Renzo and Smukler were brilliant. A recurrence of an old injury put Smukler out of action in the second quarter. On the line Stan Gurzyanski and Jim Walker put up a hard tussle—battling hard until the final whistle.

COX PROTESTS DECISIONS

Princeton, Nov. 21—Villanova's lightweight team closed its season last Thursday with a heart-breaking defeat at the hands of the Princeton bantam aggregation by a score of 13-0.

The game was played at Princeton and due to the late start the last quarter consisted of night football played without lights. Added to this obstacle were several questionable decisions handed down by the referee, and disputed by Coach Cox of Villanova.

The first three quarters of the contest were uneventful except for one serious threat in the second quarter by the Kittens. Jimmy Lyons, the blue and white quarterback, returned a punt 10 yards to his 40. From this point, Kain and Kerrigan, on successive plunges carried the b to the Tigers' 20-yard stripe.

At this stage of the game Villanova developed that saddening disease of Fumblitis, a common occurrence this season. Princeton recovered on their own 20 and marched for 10 themselves before they were overcome with the same malady.

Lew Biester then sliced off tackle for 10 yards to Princeton's 20. Here several attempted passes went astray, and the homesters held for downs. The Tigers then punted out of danger and Villanova's only real threat of the game was ended.

Tigers Tally Twice

For the remainder of the half and all during the third quarter play continued at mid-field, but in the fourth period, a break led to a Tiger conversion. It appeared that Lyons had recovered a fumble for Villanova at Princeton's 35-yard line, but the referee thought otherwise, and the Bengals took possession.

Princeton then opened up with a series of successful passes, with McElroy, tossing them to Jones and Van Hart. This passing attack brought the ball to the 'Cats' one-yard line, where after holding for two downs, Villanova finally wilted, and Mardfin finally tallied for Princeton on an off-tackle smash. The try for extra point by Mardfin went wide of the crossbars.

Shortly after the kick-off one of Captain Rodger's passes was intercepted, and Princeton took possession of the pigskin on the Feline's 30-yard line. Cousart and Carleton threw Landis, Tiger halfback, for a five-yard loss. However on the next play McElroy completed a pass to Van Hart, who was downed on the Villanova five-yard line by Rodgers.

Decision Questioned

On the fourth down Foldish hit off-tackle and the Kittens thought the scoring threat had been stopped; however, the referee's white shirted arms were raised in the darkness, and the Bengal's had their second marker of the tussle.

This decision delayed the game, for all the 'Cats' supporters were vehement in claiming that no touchdown had been made. However, the officials decision stood.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR INTER-DORM COURT QUINTETS

Equipment to Be Handed Out Includes New Outfits for Each Group

PLAY IN ALUMNI HALL GYM

Villanova's 1935-36 intramural basketball season will get underway this week when the two dayhop teams will meet in the Intramural Gym in Alumni Hall. The opening has been delayed because of the thorough renovation of the gym.

It has been painted from top to bottom, and the playing floor has been repaired and repainted. Before the opener, seats will be installed for the benefit of the spectators. The committee in charge is working hard to make this season the most successful in the history of intramural sports at Villanova.

In order to achieve this end new equipment has been purchased. Complete new suits for all six teams comprise the biggest feature of this equipment. The new uniforms, unlike those used last year, consist of jerseys and shorts to match. Austin will be arrayed in Blue, Fedigan in Crimson, Alumni in Green, Mendel in Gold, C. & F. in Gray, and Mendel Dayhops in White.

Uniforms Ready

This equipment will be distributed from the intramural headquarters on the first floor of Alumni Hall. The managers of the respective teams are requested to report on Wednesday or Thursday of this week to receive the uniforms for their clubs. In addition to the equipment already purchased several new basketballs will be bought.

The complete schedule has not been finished as yet, but it will be published in the next issue of the VILLANOVAN. However, the general arrangement of the schedule has been decided upon. As usual the season will be divided into halves, with the respective winners meeting in a playoff at the end of the regular campaign.

There is a strong possibility that awards in the form of medals will be presented to the victorious team. This is to be greatly desired inasmuch as it would be a further incentive to the various teams, and more interesting contests would naturally result.

Each team will play each other twice during each half. Thus every club has a schedule calling for 20 games. The afternoon contests are to be played on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, while Tuesday and Thursday evenings have been set for the inter-dormitory scraps.

As many games as possible will be played in the Intramural Gym, and only when positively necessary will the main gym be used.

Before the Christmas holidays a swimming meet will be held. It is the first of two to be put on this year. The running of two such meets in one year is an innovation in Villanova intramural circles, and both the committee and Coach Martin Gill of the swimming team are to be commended for their efforts to make this essential portion of the intramural program a success.

BUCKNELL UPSETS STATE

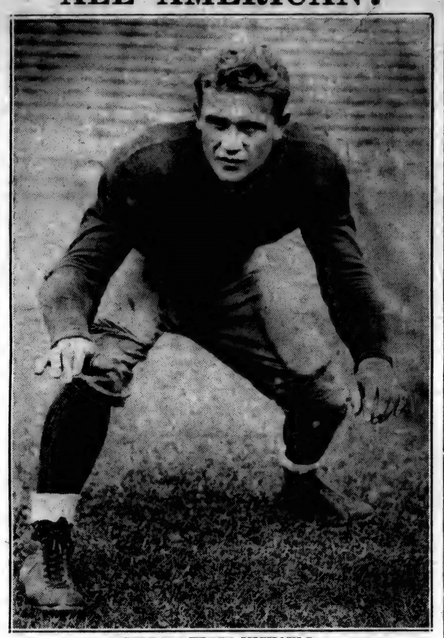
Safety in First Period Culminated in Victory for Bisons Against Foe

Bucknell added to the list of surprises in the gridiron world last week-end. Playing host to the Penn-State team, at Lewisburg, the Bison gridders eked out a 2-0 win.

In the opening minutes of play, an attempt to punt from behind their own goal-line found the Lions thwarted by several of the Bison men. O'Hara, the kicker, was forced to touch the ball down for an automatic safety.

Despite several determined tries, the Nittany Lions were unable to produce a score.

ALL-AMERICAN?



CAPTAIN EDDIE MICHAELS, stellar Wildcat guard, who climaxed his spectacular career Saturday by leading his team to a smashing victory over the Temple Owl. "Mike" has been invaluable to the Cats for the past three years, and as captain of the '35 squad, he outdid all his previous performances to place himself as a potential All-American.

In the Limelight

By NORTON C. PADEN

TO DATE those who have been in this column have been the senior members of the various athletic teams. In this issue we are deviating from this routine in order to give credit where credit it due. As you all know, those who work the hardest for their respective teams, and, in our opinion, get little credit for this, are the managers.

This week the Varsity football manager, James Patrick Conroy, revealed his past life to this inquisitive scribe. The interview took place in the VILLANOVAN office on Friday, November 15.

In writing a thumbnail sketch or in writing anything, for that matter, it is always logical to start at th beginning and so we will commence at J. P.'s. His natal day took place on December 21, 1911. He is a New England boy, being born in Newton, Mass.

Matriculating at Our Lady's Grammar School, Jim went through the eight required years without a hitch. As there were no athletics in the school, Jim got all his exercise on the sandlot.

At the completion of these years J. P. entered Our Lady's High School, where he did remarkably well scholastically, as well as in his extra curricular activities.

During these years at high school Jim played varsity basketball and baseball, playing guard and in the outfield, respectively.

In addition to attending to the athletic side of the school, Jim also tried his hand at the cultural activities, namely, debating and dramatics. No greater tragedian, comedian, or what have you, ever trod the boards as when Jim was called upon to fill the roles assigned to him. As a debater there were few to equal him, and his fellow-members in the "arguing" society relied on his help to carry them over the rough places.

During the interim between the completion of one term and the beginning of the following school year, J. P. worked as a playground instructor, teaching the little fellers the rudiments of our major sports and supervising their competitive games. According to Jim, this was very interesting work and helped to pass a Summer that ordinarily would have been uneventful and unprofitable.

At the termination of his high school career, Jim entered Villanova and this matriculating occurred in the Fall of '31. Jim was a good frosh in every sense of the word. Never causing any trouble, doing his share of the work and dodging that which was not necessary to his well being, Jim came through Freshman year in good shape.

During this year he enrolled in the ranks of the frosh pigskin toters and also worked at intra-mural sports. He also found time during this year to attend to his studies and ranked fairly high in his class when the reckoning came.

Sophmore year rolled around and Jim took over the job of managing the 150 pound football club. During this time he was also an assistant manager to the Varsity club. Intramurals also held his interest during this year, and he helped his Hall in all its sports.

In his Junior year J. P. was an active member of the Blazer Ball Committee and was also an usher for the hilarious farce, "Let's Go Places". During this year the job of assistant manager to the Varsity football team also fell to his lot. This year he was a little farther up on the list of assistant managers and in the line for the managership in his Senior year.

During the Summer Jim worked

'Cats' Meow

Back at the Temple Stadium for the annual classic . . . Wildcats have one to three chance to win . . . Owls in full force with Smukler, Russell, and Messervey in lineup.

—V—

Well! Well! Here come the two bands. They are making the Department of Public Works look like an amateur organization, the way they are ridding the gridiron of the snow . . . By the way, we forgot to mention the storm. Well, it's snowing here, too.

—V—

Let's have a "nip" pal . . . Hold it. Hold it son, Zanin just fumbled Mellus's kickoff and Villanova recovered. Let me write that down or I'll forget to mention it in the 'Cats Meow."

—V—

Art Raimo finds a hole opened by all-American calibre Michaels and left tackle Mellus, and slips through for a 60-yard touchdown, making Renzo, Temple safety man, look like a cigar store Indian. Don't take offense Vince, you're playing great . . . Score, Wildcats 6, Temple 0 . . . How do you feel "Pop?"

—V—

A reverse, Smukler to Longsderff, results in a touchdown. Docherty makes good the extra point. There's a resurrection in the Temple stands . . . Score, Owls 7, 'Cats 6.

—V—

Longsderff scores again for the Owls. Things are beginning to look worse. Half ends. 'Cats behind by eight points.

—V—

Michaels blocks a kick for an automatic safety. Teams are deadlocked at 14 all. Have care Owls. You are on the way to your slaughter and don't know it . . . Yep! I was right. Raimo advances the ball to the 19-yard stripe, and Higgins tosses a pass to Nye for a touchdown. Kotys converts . . . Score, 'Cats 21, Temple 14.

—V—

Kotys runs through the Owl team like a hurricane, and tallies. The Villanova stands vibrate as if there's an earthquake . . . Score, 'Cats 12, Owls 14 . . . Getting close.

—V—

There goes the whistle! Game's over. Tough. Another minute and the clawing Wildcats would have scored again. The ball rested on the 5-yard line. If you don't believe me, ask "Pop."

—V—

Well the goal posts are now in pieces. So is the Temple team . . . Stuhly pops "Pop" again.

—V—

What struck me as particularly funny was the lad with a nose that spelled "H-E-B-R-E-W," who was holding up a piece of the goal posts and shouting: "The Irish won!!"

—V—

Smukler played brilliantly; but he's also the goat. After shooting a long forward to Renzo on the first play of the game that put the oval on the 19-yard line, big Dave fumbles the pigskin on the very next play and attempts to recover; it comes up with a snowball instead of a football . . . 'Cats recover.

—V—

My jubilant friends want me to go out with them to celebrate the victory. Shall I go? I might as well go. Nothing to lose.

—V—

First stop is Connelly's at 69th St. (Connelly brothers are Villanova alumni) Posted up on the mirror behind the bar, there's a sign which read: "Roaring Wildcats 21, Featherless Owls, 14." Nice going Connelly.

—V—

We met Val Rizzo and Olivari outside the terminal disgracefully sober.

—V—

Next stop is a visit to the well-known Cafe' where "Tommy Rot" is featured . . . The band obligingly played "College Days" for us and we were called upon to sing it. And did we put it over!

—V—

We finally ended up at . . . well, Chester certainly heard enough about that Villanova-Temple game. A good time had by all and no damage caused.

—V—

Adieu Michaels, Kotys, Higgins, Vidnovic, Korchinski, and Wrona. Good luck. You deserve it.

MURAL ACTIVITIES REORGANIZED HERE DURING PAST WEEK

Meeting of College Prefects Results in Renewing of Old Plan

REILLY ELECTED CHAIRMAN

During the past week a complete reorganization of the committee on intramural athletics was effected. At a meeting of the faculty committee, consisting of the prefects of the various dormitories, it was decided to again place the running of the remainder of this year's program in the hands of last year's intramural committee.

At this same meeting, which was held during the week of November 10, Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., was unanimously chosen to act as chairman of the committee. Father McKee is no newcomer at this job as he occupied the same position last year.

A student sub-committee is also being formed. Its purpose is to take active charge of the intramural program, that is, to officiate the games, to distribute equipment, to keep records of all the contests, and to assist the chairman in drawing up a suitable schedule.

This committee when completed will consist of a chairman and one representative from each dormitory and dayhop organization. To date five of the seven men have been appointed.

Larry Reilly, the newly selected chairman, is well known to all the upperclassmen. He was a member of the committee last year and refereed most of the basketball games in a very competent fashion.

Hack Donovan is another member who needs no introduction to followers of intramurals. Last spring he handled the slants of Fedigan's slab artists, but he has moved to Austin in the meantime and will represent that hall on the committee. Al Fitzpatrick is the third member of last year's committee to be reappointed. Al is the representative of the Mendel Dayhops.

Two new men have been appointed. They are Joe Alessandroni, representing the C. & F. Dayhops, and Bill Smith, of Alumni Hall. To date no members have been appointed from Fedigan and Mendel, but they will be selected in the very near future.

A meeting of this sub-committee, or if possible a joint meeting of the will be held at the intramural faculty and student committees, headquarters every Friday at 1 P. M.

Lightweights Drop Last to Princeton

The attempted conversion after touchdown was good. The score stood at 13-0 throughout the rest of the game.

Corkill, Cousart and Menocal were brilliant on the line for the 'Cats, and the work of Kain, Kerrigan, Rodgers and Lyons in the Kittens backfield was outstanding, both offensively and defensively.

After the game Coach Cox expressed satisfaction with the team's showing and said that in their last game they had finally played the brand of football he knew they were capable of playing. He especially commended the squad on its fine spirit throughout the season.

During the season the Kittens dropped four decisions and held a strong Yale team to a scoreless deadlock. Only once were the Villanova men completely outclassed, that being when Rutgers, eastern 150-pound champs, threw a powerful team against the small Villanova squad.

Outside of this one lapse the smaller Cat team must be commended for its fine showing against superior odds.

freshman football practice. He will report at the conclusion of the football season.

Manager Joe McCabe has not completed the schedule of the Thirty-Niners yet, but expects to have a formidable array of opponents for his proteges. McCabe also states the boys have been measured for new suits and will present a neat picture upon the court. If clothes make the basketball player, the Frosh should have no excuses to offer for any losses.

CAUSES OF GRIDIRON DEATHS EXPLAINED

Football Institute Puts Blame On False Economy Of Schools

With the many deaths on the gridiron this season, the critics of the sport have very boldly come out with statements that are injurious to the game. The Football Institute of America has sprung to the defense of the American pastime by issuing a bulletin with a survey taken throughout the country, and in various types of schools, ranging from grammar to colleges.

Their survey show four immediate causes through which serious injuries or deaths have arisen, and at the same time they have issued a bulletin of five major reforms, necessary to make the game saft.

The causes are: Haphazard selection of coaches, and improper coaching facilities, inadequate equipment, improper technique in the execution of fundamentals, and lack of proper medical supervision.

The high school coach in particular has to handle the assignment that should be taken care of, by at last two or three men who are particularly acquainted with a phase of the game. This i itself is practically suicide.

Because of the necessary physical contact in sports as we know them in America, and especially in football these conditions become false and dangerous economy.

To correct them it is necessary to accomplish the following reforms: Select coaches and assistants that are capable. Insistence upon protective playing gear and equipment especially designed for football; impressing upon the young coaches the necessity of teaching sound fundamentals for they are most important in avoiding injury. There should be high school representation on all national rules committee.

This year, his Senior year, Jim is the Senior manager of the Wildcats and to date he has done a remarkable job of it. He is in the Commerce and Fina: ce School and is due to graduate this June. Upon graduation he is almost sure of a job with the Home Loan Association. As he is majoring in accounting, this will be a great opportunity for our hero.

So runs the story of one of the hardest workers for the cause of Villanova that we have seen aroun here in many a day. May this column be the first to wish him luck in any and all of his endeavors in the world upon graduation from Villanova.

For QUALITY ROSEMONT FEED & SEED COMPANY

Stuhlie Says

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stuhldreher, Head Coach of Football, is writing this column to explain in detail the inside story of the game of the previous Saturday, explaining the results of the game and why the game went as it did.

Our dream has come true. And you want to know what our dream was? To see that highly geared, high scoring team find itself and come through, although carrying a heavy burden.

The boys played good ball in the first half, but not good enough, and came off of the field in a precarious position. In order to win, two scores of any kind were necessary.

In the second half, a new team was on the field; a team that could not be beaten. It was not only that we outplayed Temple, but we outspirited them, beat them down by ferocity of our attack, and drove on to win by scoring 15 hard fought points under the most adverse conditions.

As Mike Muphy so often said, "A team that won't be beaten, can't be beaten." That spirit was exemplified last Saturday afternoon. It is only a really great team that can make such a complete reversal of form to come out at half-time and overwhelm a team like Pop Warner's.

Not until Saturday at 3.15, when the second half whistle blew did Villanova actually play the brand of football that we were actually capable of all season. Every minute of that dynamic second half, the team worked together as one man. The entire eleven clicked as a unit, and showed the power of a unified team.

On Saturday morning, when I saw the snow, my spirits reached a new low. On days like Saturday, Warner's outfit holds a slight edge in power. Our light, shifty backs would be slowed down, while Temple's horses could plough through by sheer force of numbers. However, five minutes after the opening whistle, I felt considerably better. The team that day didn't need any firm footing; they just seemed to glide over the slippery surface.

I have never worked with a finer bunch of boys. They gave everything they had for 60 minutes, and played their utmost. The spirit could not have been higher, and their fight rose so high as to almost overwhelm them.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

THE rumor to the effect that Harry Stuhldreher will be at the helm of Penn State's football team seems to be spreading like a forest fire. . . . The latest has Harry and his aide, Bob Reagan, slated for the Nittany Valley institution. . . . And who do you think will fill Harry's shoes at Villanova? . . . The grapevine has none other than Marty Brill, ex-Notre Dame alumnus and now head man at La Salle College as the number one choice to fill the bill. . . . Marty will bring along as his assistant Jim Henry, former end star at Villanova, and at present line coach at the Olney Heights school. . . . Still from another channel flowa the information that "Sleepy" Jim Crowley, coach of Fordham, will be tendered a contract. . . . How things like the above are even given a second thought is beyond the writer's comprehension. . . .

When the Wildcats played at State College it was one of those days when it did not pay to get up. . . . I mean the Main Liners could not get started. . . . Coach Stuhldreher says the second year men were pressing too hard and rightly so. . . . Not detracting from the Higgins-coached team, for they played superb football. The point I am trying to bring home is this. With many members of State's alumni looking on and seeing an exhibition such as Villanova displayed I do not think there would be any thought of bringing Stuhldreher there. (This is based on a fact that the State Alumni judged on this game alone). Graduates of State seldom see Villanova in action and consequently formed their opinion accordingly. To repeat about the wonderful performance on State's part, Bob Higgins' stock must have jumped about 100 per cent. True, on the following Saturday the Nittany Lions were trampled by Penn, but it happened to be Penn's one good game of the season. (Heaven knows it was about time they won one).

No, dear football fans, the quarterback of the famous Four Horsemen will be back at Villanova. Harry himself says so and anyone who knows him will say that his word is enough. Villanova has achieved a great deal of success athletically and chiefly through the efforts of Stuhldreher. The Wildcats have had a pretty good year and received more national recognition than any other Wildcat team. The five game undefeated, untied and unscored upon record had football heads sitting up and taking notice.

All rumors can be set to rest now. . . . You can bet your bottom dollar that Harr will not leave such promising material for another coach to take and lead to a great season. Yes, Stuhldreher will go to Penn State when "Sad" Sam Jones, former White Sox pitcher, wins thirty games in a season.

—o—

It was very gratifying to see so many members of the '34 football team cheering the team on. . . . Don Blanchard drove all night to get here in time for the game. Bill Grimberg, last year's captain and Bus Nowe, ex-pivot man were among the many thousands. . . . The management of the pool room wishes to announce that all those interested in entering the annual Pool and Bowling Tournament to file an entry blank at the Villanovan office or in the recreation room in the gymnasium. . . .The Council on Intercollegiate Athletics have been dickering for a game with a New York University on the night of December 14, in Newark, N. J. . . . Bob Geasy, head of the Publicity Department of Temple, swooned when Michaels blocked Frey's kick. . . Jimmy Foxx, A's first sacker and Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox ogled the doings on Saturday. . . , Tommy Richardson, Williamsport's famed after dinner speaker, was beaming all over at the end of 60 minutes. . . So long. . . See you all next week. . . .

STANLEY LEADS SCORERS

Ed Stanley, Williams' halfback; appears to be the logical candidate for high scoring honors in collegiate circles. With 96 points to his credit, the Williams star leads his closest rival by 16.

COLLEGE STUDENTS RALLY FOR PEACE

Demonstration Most Impressive of Its Kind in Collegiate History

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

New York.—College students all over the country rallied last week to give the most impressive peace demonstration in American collegiate history.

Gathered in groups ranging from one or two hundred to well into the thousands, the men and women who would be asked to bear the brunt of "the next war," reaffirmed their intention to do everything within their power to prevent armed conflict between the nations, and to stay out of it if they cannot prevent it.

The demonstrations were quiet, free from violence or disturbance in most instances, although anti-pacifist groups did make their presence felt on some campuses. Pamphlets ridiculing the demonstrators for peace were distributed in some places, and counter-rallies were staged. Five hundred members of the Boston University R. O. T. C. attended a mass meeting, on orders from their commanding officers, who stated, however, it was their intention to "show that soldiers, too, seek peace."

In contrast to similar demonstrations in previous years, the demonstrations were for the most part well-ordered, quiet, and in deadly earnest.

PUT INTO TRANCE FOR THREE DAYS

Psychology Experiment Has Peculiar Effect Upon Unintended Victim

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 25.—Charles Hudson, Emory University student, spent three days in a hypnotic trance recently when the professor who had inadvertently hypnotized him was unable to bring him out of it.

Professor W. G. Workman, of Emory's psychology departure attempted to hypnotize a student for demonstration purposes during a lecture. He was unsuccessful, and was about to give up when he noticed that Hudson, watching, had gone in a rigid trance. When he refused to respond to normal treatment, Professor Workman prescribed exercise and normal activity, and for three days Hudson was walked about the campus, taken for rides, to the movies.

Suddenly, on the third day, he blinked and asked what had happened.

It is all gentle spoofing, no doubt, but most entertaining—this story the columnist in the student paper at the University of Illinois was telling.

A state senator, returning from the capital to his home town, was met at the station by an angry constituent who berated him for not cutting down the funds allotted to the state university.

"Don't you know," crackled the citizens, "Don't you know that at that school, men and women students have to matriculate together. Yessir! Furthermore, they have to use the same campus!"

Fairly interesting. Now if they will show the girls what chance they have of marrying a college man who can get a job and support them, we might have something.

FINDS MEDIUM FOR CANCER GROWTH

Seen as Definite Step Towards Cure of Dread Disease

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Ithaca, N. Y.—What may prove to be another milestone on man's long road toward a cancer cure has been uncovered by Dr. W. F. Bruce, instructor and research worker in the chemistry department of Cornell University, who has isolated a new material called the most active substance now known for the production of cancer.

This new substance—a hydrocarbon called methylchloranthene—was discovered while Dr. Bruce was pursuing an investigation begun by English scientists. They had discovered that the skin cancer so prevalent among workers with coal tar is caused by a particular hydrocarbon occurring naturally in the coal tar.

"It is necessary," says Dr. Bruce, "that a rational idea of the cause of cancer be obtained before a cure can be instituted. Positive proof of the ability of the new substance to initiate cancer has been demonstrated.

"From the medical point of view, the field of cancer research has been characterized by a leading investigator as 'hard and stony ground.' Therefore, the work of the organic chemist would appear to offer a new and encouraging method of approach to the problems of this field."

DECLARES GHOSTS NOT IMPOSSIBLE

Persistent Laboratory Experiments Advocated to Prove Or Disprove Theory

(By Associated Collegiate Press).

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—There may be ghosts.

Perhaps there aren't, maybe it's all superstition, but Dr. Alexis Carrel, the Nobel Prize biologist who has kept a chicken heart beating in a bottle since 1912, says that he at least is unwilling to deny it.

Thought transference, intuition and clairvoyance are logically provable phenomena, says Dr. Carrel, and maybe, after all, there are ghosts and maybe little people in the trees in the full of the moon.

"The existence of telepathic phenomena, as well as other metaphysic phenomena, is not accepted by most biologists and physicians. They are hidden in the enormous mass of superstitions, lies and illusions accumulated for centuries by mankind . . . it is nevertheless a fact that they are normal, although rare, activity of the human being."

Only persistent laboratory experimentation can tell us, Dr. Carrel believes, whether there are ghosts and "little people in the trees," or not.

SENIORS PERMITTED TO OBTAIN MONEY AT 6 P. C. FOR BALL

Questionnaires Distributed To Determine General Class Reaction

DINNER-DANCE UNDER GROUP CONSIDERATION

Amount of Underwriting Available to Decide Calibre Of Orchestra

That the Senior Classmen and their friends, or any parties interested will be allowed to underwrite the Senior Ball of February 7, for a profit of 6% of the amount placed on deposit, was the context of an announcement made last week by the chairman of the dance, Arthur Noble.

At the last meeting of the Class of '36, this matter was fully explained by William Vaughn, president, to mean that it will be again possible to undertake an affair of the size and expense of the Senior Ball and Junior Prom of last year's social season at the college.

Included with this announcement, was the distribution of the questionnaires, through which the leaders of the Senior group expect to ascertain the extent to which the class wishes to go, in so far as plans for the dance are concerned.

A further and very important bit of information which should be forthcoming as a result of this questionnaire, is the exact amount which the various members of the class will subscribe toward the underwriting.

Another matter of prime importance which has been discussed in recent meetings of the graduating class, is that of the desire for a dinner-dance to immediately follow the Belle Air Ball, or, if desired, it is preferred to present this affair at a later date.

Insofar as the orchestra presentation for the Senior Ball is concerned, it is reported by the chairman of the orchestra comittee, Wil-

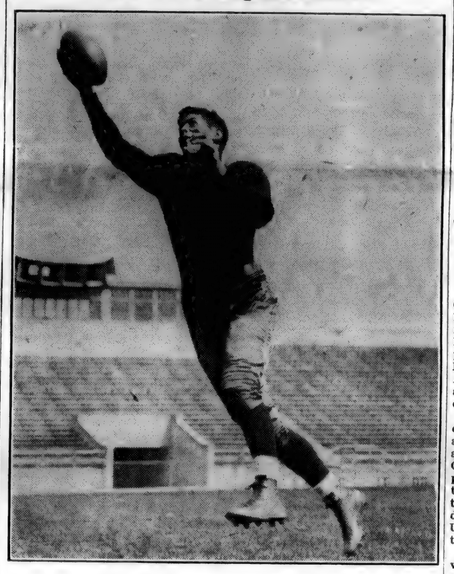
1936 Grid Captain-Elect



Anthony Sala, Boxing Champion Elected to Lead 1936 Wildcats

Anthony "Tony" Sala, stellar end of the Villanova eleven, was selected to pilot the Wildcats in their 1936 campaign, by a majority vote of the lettermen, at the gymnasium last Friday afternoon.

Sala will succeed Eddie Michaels, who was voted one of the best linemen in the East. Michaels also received honorable mention in the official All-American selection for 1935.

Tony, a Donora, Pa., boy, entered Villanova in 1933 and enlisted in the ranks of the freshmen gridders under Coach "Doc" Jacobs. Here he made a name for himself and excited comment from those "in the know."

In his sophomore year, Tony alternated with Walter Korchinski at the varsity wing position and played bang-up ball all season. It was during this year that he won the light heavyweight intercollegiate boxing crown. He gained prominence for himself in this field, as he was never defeated. He was held to a draw by Bernie Kaplan, of

Phila. Alumni Club to Honor Coaches, Squad

Over 500 Expected To Hear Noted Guest Speakers

Tonight, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, the Villanova Alumni Club of Philadelphia will hold its 15th annual football banquet.

Honor guests at the function will be the entire football squad, headed by Captain Edward Michaels, and the coaching staff, led by Head Coach Harry A. Stuhldreher.

Joseph A. Freney, Philadelphia attorney, is chairman of the committee in charge of the dinner. "We expect the 1935 football dinner to be the largest ever held," he said. "We have issued invitations to some of the country's leading football coaches and sports figures. Many of them have signified their intention of joining us tonight."

Among the guests who had accepted up to publication time of this issue were: Rev. B. M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president of Villanova College; Rev. C. J. Melchior, O. S. A., faculty moderator of Athletics and procurator at Villanova College; Dr. B. B. Widmann, world famous x-Ray specialist; Mr. H. J. Swarts, director of Intercollegiate Athletics at the University of Pennsylvania and Mr. L. R. Yeomans, director of Athletics at Temple University.

Approximately 500 are expected to attend this evening. This figure includes invited guests, members of the varsity football team,

COLLEGE HAS SMALL SCHOLARSHIP FUND

Comparative Figures Show Villanova Far Behind Other Institutions

While the property and equipment at Villanova College are evaluated at more than four million dollars, the college can boast of no large scholarship endowment in the ordinary meaning of the word. In fact records show that Villanova College in comparison to other colleges here in the East of corresponding size has a comparatively small endowment for scholarships.

Although an increase in scholarships is to be noted in the new catalogue, the total amount of invested funds for scholarship purposes is only $36,123. For the sake of comparison the following colleges and respective figures might be quoted:

Boston College, $385,864; Holy Cross, $170,225; Muhlenburg, $107,400; Lafayette, $143,935; Ursinus, $86,356.

It is to be noticed that these scholarships mentioned above do not include loan funds, prize awards and scholarships, for which there are no invested funds. In each case principal sums are given and only the interest is used for scholarships.

An increase in the fund of five scholarships and the addition of three new scholarships to those already in standing helps to swell the fund here at Villanova but as yet there is not a sufficient fund on hand as is warranted by the size

THOMAS M. DALTON WINS ALUMNI AWARD

Fourth Annual Presentation To Be Made at Banquet Tonight

Thomas M. Dalton, Class of 1912, will receive the fourth annual alumni award, given by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia, at a banquet held by this association tonight at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

This award has been given annually to the outstanding alumnus of the college for the past four years. The association selects a man, successful in his accomplishments, who has shown unflinching loyalty and a diligent regard for the further advancement of his Alma Mater, during the past year.

Mr. Dalton is a member of the Dalton Brothers firm, general contractors, of Paoli. He graduated from Villanova in 1912 and since then has displayed prominence in the business world and has been outstanding in his activities as a member of the alumni. Happily married for a number of years, Mr. Dalton is the proud father of two children.

The first award given by the association was bestowed upon Charles McGeehan who was professor of engineering here for many years prior to his death in 1933. During his professional career at Villanova he also undertook the duties of coach of varsity basketball and graduate manager of athletics.

J. Stanley Smith was the second

ILLOGICAL REMARKS BRING CONTROVERSY

Prof. William Henry Takes Author to Task in Newspaper Article

William C. A. Henry, professor of business law and insurance at Villanova College, came to the fore in challenging certain remarks passed by Abe J. Golden, Esq., in an address given before the Insurance Society of Philadelphia, November 21, 1935.

In his delivery Mr. Golden is quoted as having made statements that were altogether "unfair, illogical, and quite erroneous" concerning the Roman Catholic Church. The following is Prof. Henry's reply to the aforementioned speaker through the Legal Intelligencer, which published Mr. Golden's speech.

Editor of The Legal Intelligencer:

On Monday, November 25, 1935, an article appeared on Page 4 (Vol. 1060) of your publication, which was titled "Theory and History of Insurance," that in one paragraph was misleading, illogical, unfair, and an antiquated error. Your author, in the article referred to, in writing about the regulation of the business of insurance stated: "The abuse of the insurance contract as a gambling device causing the early enactments and the laws of the Roman Catholic Church against usury, were restrictions which kept the business from expanding for a long period of time."

In the first place, usury, or making a charge for the loan of mon-

First Quarter Honor Ratings Issued by Dean

School of Commerce And Finance Announces Winners Of Class Honors

Last Tuesday the ratings of the students in the Commerce and Finance School were posted by Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., dean.

In the Senior class, Robert Wally merited first place, closely followed by George Wrona.

The honor men of the Junior class were William Mink, ranking first, and Philip Murray a good second.

Sophomore rating placed Robert Connolly on top, with Jordan Olivar and Olivar Volpe as other honor students.

Freshman leaders were Norman Klein first, succeeded by George Bishop, Fred Waters and John Costello.

Fr. Bartley is of the opinion that the posting of ratings would encourage others in their studies.

Debates Planned

Beta Gamma, the debating society is organizing several teams to take part in a proposed porgram of intercollegiate debates, which are to follow the Christmas vacation.

The probable question for debate this year will take up the current resolution concerning the granting to Congress of the power, by a two-thirds vote of both houses, to override any five to four decision of the Supreme Court.

WORK ON BELLE AIR ALMOST COMPLETED

Many New Features Will Make Class Annual One of Best Ever Produced Here

According to all present indications the Belle Air yearbook of Villanova College will be in the hands of the students this year on time. So far the write-ups and photograph returns have been coming in to the office almost on time and the book is fast rounding into a presentable production.

Many new features will be combined with those of the annuals of former classes to make the 1936 Belle Air one of the best ever produced by the college.

Robert McGrory, editor of the annual, says he is well pleased with the way things have been going. "For the most part the fellows of the staff have been cooperating with Fr. Falvey and me as well as can be expected. However, there are a few who still are lax in turning in their articles and this slows the progress of the book not a little. We hope that they will soon produce the goods. All the students' pictures have been given to them and, for the most part, have been returned to us. Nevertheless, some of the seniors have failed to bring their proofs to us and it will be necessary for them to return them themselves to the Zamsky Studio at 902 Chestnut Street, in Philadelphia."

At this time Editor McGrory announced that there will be an important meeting of the entire staff

THE FOOTBALL DINNER

TONIGHT the 15th Annual Football Dinner sponsored by the Philadelphia Alumni Club will take place at the Bellevue-Stratford. We think it is another opportunity for the students of Villanova to show that they are behind one of our greatest football teams by attending this affair and at the same time demonstrating their spirit of cooperation with the Alumni. We, as students, have called on the graduates many times in the past to support our activities and no doubt will call on them many more times. They have always given a generous response to our pleas. Now, isn't it only fair that we should show our spirit of cooperation and aid them when they sponsor an activity which should not have to be told to attend? Show your appreciation for their support of our activities by attending the dinner tonight.

MAINTAIN THE HONOR OF THE COURT

IN order that the honor and integrity of the courts be respected and preserved it is necessary that they be kept free from the taint of political patronage. The nature of the courts' functions demand that they be permitted to operate with the minimum of restrictions. Only men of tried and proven experience and value in the public service are entitled to its positions. The fact that irremediable damage can, and has been done by the placing of untrustworthy individuals in this branch of the government, should prompt Governor Earle to exercise the greatest care in his selection of the man to fill the vacancy caused by the elevation of Judge Horace Stern to the Supreme Court.

It is an unfortunate adjunct of our political system that the election of a man to public office entails on him the necessity of distributing positions on the public payroll to all those who have been instrumental in his election. Too often this system is maintained to the detriment of the efficient operation of the several departments of the State. The harm in the system is found in the fact that it causes men to be appointed to places of responsibility not because of any especial ability, but simply because they happened to exert themselves on behalf of the successful candidate.

Succulent and desirable as are the plums of political preference, the courts do not belong in this category. Nor should political preference, the courts in the determination of the men who fill its places. Governor Earle should bear these facts in mind when making the appointment, and finally resolve upon the most qualified individual he can find. In this respect he will do well to consider the abilities of the three men recommended for the position by the Philadelphia Bar Association. Which is most qualified to determine upon the most representative members of its group, who are worthy to succeed to the position that Judge Stern filled with such honor and fidelity.

SENATOR NORRIS RECONSIDERS

SENATOR George Norris will be a candidate for re-election next year. With the release of the above news many, many hearts throughout the country were warmed, for earlier in the fall the beloved Senator had announced his intention to withdraw from office following the completion of his present term.

Under pressure of strong pleas from President, his Senate colleagues, and thousands of admirers in all parts of the country, the veteran Nebraska liberal has reconsidered his previous decision. Since his issue of that statement some weeks ago, Senator Norris has been deluged with letters and telegrams urging him to carry on. In this home State, Nebraska, a movement was launched to put his name on the ballot despite his declaration.

While Norris has decided to seek another term, he has not as yet made up his mind on what ticket he will run. In the past he has hewed an independent course regarding national issues and candidates, but personally he has always run as a Republican. Close friends now say, however, that he now wants not part, even nominal, of the G. O. P.

On the other hand, while this admiration for F. D. R. is unchanged and he expects to support him for re-election, the Democratic party label holds no attraction. It is therefore very likely that he will run as a progressive, casting aside all party affiliations.

But whatever be his course Senator Norris may rest assured that he will have the whole hearted support of many a person all over this wide nation of ours.

MODERN ACHIEVEMENTS

ANOTHER step has been taken by man in his centuries old quest of the elements. A giant telescope greater in size than any other hitherto attempted by science has just been removed from its cast in Corning, New York.

The mammoth reflector is 200 inches wide, a blue and pale tan piece of glass the size and shape of a circus ring. It had been cooling for a year and a day in its huge casting oven.

Astronomers accepted the disc and ordered it shipped to Pasadena, Calif., as soon as possible. There it will be ground and polished to a perfection of one millionth of an inch.

The "figuring" is expected to take possibly five years. Then it will be used as the eye for a 200 inch telescope, an instrument twice as big as any now in existence.

The emergence of this biggest piece of glass from its coal black iron oven was photographed and watched by an audience packed around a square gallery. The "eye" is expected to see three or four times farther than man ever saw before, to look at 27 times more volume of space, to see perhaps the incredible distance of 1,200,000,000 light years, the distance it takes light to travel so long.

This modern miracle will open up an infinitely wide horizon to the scientists of astronomy and will perhaps result in the discovery of many new facts now unknown to man.

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

CONGRATULATIONS to Tony Sala, veteran wing man of the Wildcat gridders, upon his election to the captaincy of the 1936 team! We feel sure that Tony will make a great leader for next season's group of stalwarts, basing our judgment on the scintillating play of Ed Michaels' successor in all past conflicts.

To fill the shoes now left vacant by Michaels, who was without a doubt the greatest leader that ever donned moleskins at the local institution, is no small order. In fact, it is the toughest assignment a person could possibly face and yet we feel certain that Tony will carry out this task to the letter. In all fairness to the incoming captain we might say that we never expect to see another player here at Villanova College reach the heights of inspirational leadership that the Wildcats' "Mike" attained, but we do hope that Tony Sala, the new grid captain, has the very best success possible.

Those of you who have had the good fortune to have seen the above beauty spot will agree with us that the site is indeed very adaptable for such proceedings. Menuhin has been giving concerts as a soloist since the age of seven and he is now approaching his twentieth year. Supported unanimously by critics as the outstanding virtuoso, regardless of age, for the past several years Yehudi will rest on his California ranch for one year before he takes up his work again. He has only recently returned to London after completing a world tour of some 75,000 miles consisting of over 100 concerts in a total of sixty three cities.

REFLECTIONS

FEW institutions are so unhappily designed as that which predicates a single standard of conduct as necessary to feminine well-being. At one ghastly stroke womankind is to be denied the civilities that custom and usage has found to accord with her disposition and nature. She, so esteemed for her virtue, respected for her delicacy, admired for her dignity, and desired for her gentleness, who once by the very alchemy of her personality was wont to transform the remnants of the day's cup of tribulations into a last revivifying draught, has submerged this heritage of her sex in the mad and profitless scramble for preference in the opportunities that equalization supposed to have opened for her. The feminine character has, undeniably, blossomed under the light of freedom, but with so many contrasts to the portents of its budding that we are unable to find any resemblance between the two—it is as though the bud of the lily had flowered into a dandelion. Certainly she derives but a dubious satisfaction from the knowledge that she has forfeited our former regard for the honour of drinking at the bar, having questionable stories told in her presence, and leaving herself open to the veiled insults of innuendo. In fact her change has been so great, that one unfamiliar with her lineage would experience no little difficulty in attempting to find any resemblance between the present blatant, painted, tinsellated charmers of the night, with the modest, kindly, and lovely creatures of the past.

One feature, that seems to characterize the work of most contemporary essayists, is the desire to establish a new philosophy, or what is perhaps more precise a new morality, which will be suitable to the social problems of the day. Our book marts abound with their feeble and futile efforts—futile because it is impossible to reconcile indulgence with restraint, and feeble because the things they advocate are so contrary to man's customary ways of thinking and expressing his thoughts, that they require an entirely different standard of cultural and moral values to make their appeal to, as well as a vocabulary, whose definitions are more commensurate with the precepts they advance.

The evils of today require no special or complex kind of philosophy to correct them, for essentially, they are the same as those of yesterday's "ten thousand years." Modern man, it seems, has suddenly developed a personality which must be permitted to operate according to its natural inclinations; and any attempt to limit its whimsical functions to the decisions of the intellect is more likely than not to disrupt the continued orderliness of his life. Similarly it is advanced, that happiness is an inalienable right of man, before which all other considerations, even the well being of others, and the restrictions of the moral and natural laws are to be disregarded. These writers must be sincere in their efforts, but it is unfortunate that they should remain unmindful of the fact that the relative freedom or restriction of the personality, as compared to the necessity for the individual's strict adherence to the fundamental precepts of morality, is inconsequential. So far as actual happiness is concerned we doubt if it can be of any permanency unless it is centered in the service and happiness of others.

We submit these aphorisms to the reader with the intention that all such sayings are devised; but with the rather dismal conviction that they will be forgotten as rapidly as they are read.

Each day is a life. Live it as though you were to be called to account with the setting of the sun.

More imaginative answers than the facts will warrant are the rewards of curiosity.

The beauties of the setting sun are seen by the just and the unjust alike, but with what different feelings does each seek his couch.

Reason is the staff of the wise, but the whittling stick of the fool.

Luck is the excuse that indolence applies to the fruits of labor.

The seeds of the field care not who sows them, but flower only as they are sown.

Affluence is the parent of pride.

THE CRY of the poor does not permit us to tolerate any longer the monstrous empire of money-lending which has risen step by step with the decline of the Christian Faith—the evil insolence of rich men enjoying power just because they are rich!"

No! This was not said by some Union Square radical. No Boston Commons Communist uttered it. Just read Christopher Hollis' "The Breakdown of Money," now in the Villanova library, and find out all about our so-called "great" financiers. Hollis clearly shows how the present economic system, by giving control of money to a few private individuals, is slowly bringing about the impoverishment of the masses and the enrichment of a few. There is nothing new in this book. The ideas were stated years ago by Pope Leo XIII in his "Rerum Novarum." Hollis documents the case so neatly, however, that to read it is to believe. Those who have read his "Erasmus" would expect this.

The National Catholic Alumni Federation, a new, virile, widely organized association of Catholic Actionists, has just issued a booklet: "Catholic Thought and National Reconstruction." Prominent Catholic clergy and laymen contribute to make it a stimulating contribution to economic and sociologic thought. Write to the Federation, Lock Box No. 744, Chicago, Ill., for a free copy. (Yes! I said free.)

For those interested in mediaeval history, we recommend Vol. 22, Number 4, June, 1935, issue of "University of Colorado Studies." Among other things, this group of papers contains an excellent treatment of episcopal and monastic finance in 14th Century England.

The apostle of Germany, Saint Boniface, has found a new biographer. Last week, Bruce Publishing Company, Milwaukee, printed Father Day's translation of Kurth's "Saint Boniface." This book is most timely. Hitler and his Nazi cohorts are endeavoring to purge Germany of Jewry, of Communism —and of Christianity. The German people owe to the Catholic Church what civilization and culture is still to be found in the Fatherland. Read Tacitus' "Germania" to meet Germans in the 1rst Century. Then read "Boniface" to appreciate the debt Germany owes to that which it persecutes: Holy Mother Church.

Living here in one of the most beautiful States in the Republic, we fellows frequently let the affairs of the world slip by without notice. It is hard to admit that few of us care about the future of Western civilization. Indeed, it is difficult enough to understand this civilization, let alone decide its fate!

Ross J. S. Hoffman, professor of history at New York University and recent convert to the True Church, has just completed a monumental work. In "The Will to Freedom," Professor Hoffman discusses the world crisis. The old Liberalism is tead. But its child remains. It is now called the Totalitarian State (page Hitler and Mussolini) or the Communistic Servile State (page Stalin and the O. G. P. U.). In our own country, a country whose political traditions are far from Catholic, there is a grave danger. We are, at this very moment, steering near to the Scylla of Fascism and the Charybdis of Communism. One or the other is inevitable, says Professor Hoffman, unless we Catholics come forth with clear principles of authority. Real freedom comes from obedience to real authority. A sound society is one based on natural law, popular sovereignty, social contract, democracy and sound morality.

The Catholic Church occupies a unique position in the world, for only She has defended — in season and out — these very principles.

If you must read the funny-sheets on Sunday, do so—and may God Bless you. But, please, for the sake of God, Church and Country, read Professor Hoffman's 139-page essay!

ey, was not only prohibited by early canons of the Roman Catholic Church, but it was prohibited by Mosaic precepts and by the early civil law of Rome and the Continental European countries. The reason for such prohibition is known to all having any acquaintance with economic history.

Usury had nothing to do with precluding the formation of a mere insurance contract. In my experience no reputable authority on the subject will corroborate the statement at issue.

Such a statement in your article seems to have been intended to mislead your readers that membership in the Roman Catholic Church was a hindrance to progressive merchants in their desire to protect themselves from financial loss. Yet, your author in his treatise emphasizes that "Marine insurance was the first branch of insurance to develop into a business as we know it today. The Italian merchants had much to do with this development. From the 12th to the 16th (not to forget the 13th, the greatest of centuries) the Italian Republics of Venice, Florence, and Genoa were leaders in the field of maritime commerce." Does your author recall anything significant about this? Those who gave the initial impetus to our present-day business were members of the Roman Catholic Church. What religious body encouraged the Guilds and the Lombards?

Your author's statement is unfair in that it is true in its own circumstances. To place it in isolation without any revelant explanation gives the impression that the Roman Catholic Church during the first few centuries had created inhibitions which influenced commercial transactions more than 1000 years later.

I noticed that your article was an address delivered before the Insurance Society of Philadelphia and, consequently, is not an indication of your policy. However, as a member of the Philadelphia bar, I feel that you are always prompt to obviate any misunderstanding among the readers of your columns. This is especially true in connection with your author's erudite thesis as aforesaid.

ENGINEERING GROUP HEARS TWO TALKS

Edward McHugh, Julian Canuso Address Society; Inspection Tour Is Planned

Setting a precedent for future members of the Villanova Chapter of the A. S. C. E., the members of the student society of civil engineers are progressing quite rapidly in their schedule.

Last Monday, at the weekly meeting two discussions concerning, as usual, engineering topics that were of interest to those pursuing the civil engineering profession.

Edward McHugh delivered a concise discussion on "New Engineering Topics." Although necessarily technical in terminology and subject matter, this talk was on the whole very interesting.

The second discussion was given by Julian Canuso. His talk, "My Experiences on the Henry Avenue Bridge," a result of his employment on the project during the summer vacation, was very enlightening from the practical viewpoint. Many "trick" of the trade" were revealed by Mr. Canuso that held the steadfast attention of the audience.

At the conclusion of Mr. Canuso's discussion it was announced that complete arrangements for the Bethlehem Steel Company trip have as yet not been realized. However, the committee of Aloysius Fitzpatrick and John Hallahan, recently appointed by President William Munros, are giving this matter their full attention and hope to make possible the trip shortly after the holiday season.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI.

A LITTLE-KNOWN job is that of the murmerer, called in to supply atmosphere on broadcasts requiring "crowds." All the murmurers have to do is to sit in the studio and talk in an undertone loud enough to give the effect of miscellaneous verbiage to listeners via the microphone. Technique of this kind is very common in the various dramatizations produced by radio.

More than 1500 American composers are competing for the awards of $1000, $500 and $250 offered by the National Broadcasting Company for new and original chamber music works by native and naturalized musicians.

According to the terms of these awards, all manuscripts must be filed anonymously, with the composers true name on an official entry blank enclosed in an official envelope bearing his pseudonym.

Once again from the shores of England, Cambridge University has sent two of her finest debaters to compete against our American Universities in another series of international debates. On Monday, December 2, over WJZ-NBC network, an enticing verbal combat flowed over the ether waves when debaters from New Rochelle College, New York, formed the opposition to the gentlemen from England.

To say the least, the question, Resolved: A written constitution is a hindrance rather than a safeguard to social progress, was handled in a fine manner. Miss Rita Armstrong and Miss Gertrude Finnigan for New Rochelle, upholding the negative, were superb in their presentation of the subject matter. The former, who also gave the rebuttal, proved to be perhaps the best of all speakers heard. Her apparent ease at the microphone and her ability to pour forth her arguments in a flowing manner, distinguished her from the others.

Mr. John Royale and Mr. Cutten Alport representing Cambridge University, likewise performed well presenting sound and forceful arguments, but displaying a certain amount of nervousness, which, however, did not detract from their speeches. Mr. Royale gave the rebuttal.

Local announcements during station breaks between network commercials are irking the big-time sponsors. Individual stations sell the spots immediately preceding or following national broadcasts, with the result that listeners at times are confused as to the actual backer. Pressure is being brought on NBC and CBS for elimination of the "chiseling."

The favorite Wednesday night program on the campus seems to be "Refreshment Time" featuring Ray Noble and His Orchestra with Connie Boswell. Ray has been playing some very fine arrangements of the more popular songs lately which still places him as the dean of jazz arrangers.

Nothing delights Fred Allen more than showing up for broadcasts at the very last minute and grinning at the sponsors about to tear their hair.

Louis Sorin, whose rich variety of dialects is an amusing highlight of Walter O'Keefe's CBS Caravan program, received a pleading letter from an admirer in St. Louis the other day. The letter ran:

"Dear Mr. Sorin: Will you please teach me your Jewish dialect for $3 per half-hour lesson over the long-distance phone? I have always wanted to be a Jewish comedian and I will gladly pay the phone company's toll charges in addition to my fee to you. Could you talk to me over the phone half an hour after supper — say from 7:30 to 8 P. M. — three times each week? We have an extension upstairs and my mother would enjoy listening to us. G. W. T"

Louis politely turned down the request, explaining that he, too, had an upstairs extension and was afraid his mother-in-law would insist on listening in.

Phil Baker was trying a few mashie shots on the lawn of his Mamaroneck estate not long ago and accidentally drove the ball through the living-room window. Mrs. Baker came out and asked very gently what he was doing. "Just practicing," he replied.

"I see," said Mrs. Baker, "and what'll you do when you get perfect — knock out the bedroom windows?"

There is a possibility that WIP will air a Sunday afternoon New York Philharmonic program here for CBS. The regular Columbia outlet, WCAU, cuts off the concert at intermission to make way for Father Coughlin.

ENGINEERS HOLD LIVE DISCUSSION

All Inspection Trips Postponed Until After Christmas Vacation

Villanova's Society of Mechanical Engineers kept its rapid stride intact at its regular bi-weekly meeting Monday of last week, when a lively round table discussion on the recent November meeting of the senior society took place.

Great interest was manifested in the discussion of the exhibits, experiments and lectures. This particular phase of the discussion held the floor for quite some time since several of the members were unable to attend the senior society's meeting, held at the University of Pennsylvania.

Following this absorbing discussion, arrangements for the society's proposed trip to the Port Richmond plant were gone over, and, because of the nearness of the Christmas holidays, it was decided to postpone the trip until classes are resumed in January.

Although this trip was to have taken place before December 18, it was quite impossible to arrange for the trip on so short a notice. However, to make the trip more interesting and practical, engineers from the plant will attend one of the society's bi-weekly meetings and explain the functions of the new 165,000 k. v. a. generator, recently completed in the plant. Last year, the society saw this generator being constructed, while this year they will see it entirely completed.

It was announced at the close of the meeting that the annual convention of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will take place at Lafayette College.

COMMERCE FACULTY DISCUSSES METHODS

"More Effective Teaching Through Use of Library" Is Keynote Of Teachers' Gathering

Various means of improving scholarship was the principal subject discussed at last Thursday's teachers' meeting held in the Commerce and Finance School.

The keynote of the session was "more effective teaching through use of the library." It was suggested that this be brought about by the assignment of reading matter, weekly papers, and any other work that would require the use of the library.

Comprehensive exams were also considered. Rev. Joseph Bartley, O. S. A., dean, spoke at length on this topic, explaining that the chief purpose of such examinations was diagnostic and to round out the subject matter covered during the entire college course.

Part of the meeting was devoted to the discussion of particular students who, unless they begin to show noticeable improvement, are headed for rough times.

Science Fraternity Must Compile New Constitution To Govern Society

SPECIAL MEETING FRIDAY

It was announced to the members of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, at their meeting last Thursday, that their revised constitution, which had been submitted for approval to Rev. B. M. Albers, O. S. A., had been rejected.

Membership to the organization and the collection of dues are the important items that would have been affected by the change. Membership would have been enlarged from the present number of 60 to include 15 more members, thus bringing the total to 75. Dues, which are at present collected in lump sums, would have been collected in weekly payments of 25c. This would have enabled the members to complete their payments in full and on easy terms by the beginning of February.

Since the constitution, however, has been rejected and the pre-medicals still feel that they wish to be governed under a new constitution, it was decided that a full and complete set of by-laws should be prepared and presented to the organization at its next meeting.

Joseph Big'y, president of the fraternity, was authorized to compile the new constitution. To assist him in this work it was decided that a board should be appointed to take the place of the present Board of Governors.

To date it has been the object of the Board of Governors as the title denotes, to assist the president in the enforcing and preparing of new regulations of the organization. This board is to be replaced by the Board of Councilors.

It will be the duty of the Councilors, not to aid the president in enforcing the rules of the fraternity, but to sit with him in session and compile and present to the organization in the most concise and explanatory form such ideas that they consider will be beneficial to the group. This Board will be selected by the members and appointed by the president.

It was decided, after the Treasurer's report was given, that any member who has not paid his dues in full by the first meeting in February, will be expelled definitely from the organization.

After some discussion the LKD's agreed to hold a special meeting this Friday for the prime purpose of gathering together all those upper classmen in the Science School who are interested in joining the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity. This meeting will be held in Room 210, Mendel Hall, at 1 o'clock, at which time all the applicants will be interviewed and selected for appointment to the organization.

Fordham Meeting Hears President At Conference

Major Factors in the Problems of Youth Discussed At New York Gathering

Last Thursday evening Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, spoke at a conference on "The Major Factors in the Problems of Youth," which was held at the Woolworth Building in New York, for the graduate schools of Fordham University. The chairman for the meeting was Very Rev. Aloysius J. Hogan, S. J., president of Fordham University.

Speeches were given by representatives of various types of institutions concerned with the education and guidance of youth. The speakers enumerated the difficulties encountered in the operation of these institutions; the programs advocated, and the obstacles to be surmounted to atttain satisfactory solutions. Each speaker gave interesting sidelights that are witnessed and experienced in the various organizations throughout the country.

Among the speakers present were: a guidance counselor of the New York Board of Education, a principal of a boys' and girls' high school, a director of a State Employment Service, bureau representative of the National Youth Administration and a college president.

P. K. P. PROMENADE IS SOCIAL SUCCESS

Miss Rita Muller and Daniel O'Connor Are Recipients Of Novel Prizes

Miss Rita Muller and Mr. Daniel O'Connor were the recipients of the door prizes at the Engineers' Ball, annual dance of Phi Kappa Phi, which was held on Thanksgiving Eve. Miss Muller's prize was a combination ladies' handbag and boudoir watch with the college seal on it. Mr. O'Connor received a man's desk set, which also had the college seal on it.

William Monroe, chairman of the dance, expressed satisfaction in regards to the attendance. Mr. Monroe has not as yet made a financial report on the affair, but the ball proved to be a grand social success.

The "Villanovans," college dance orchestra, which furnished the rhythms for the dancers, gave several new renditions of college songs, which proved popular with the audience. This unit has improved considerably over past editions of the "Villanovans," and was a really fine ensemble for the occasion.

In 1934, the award went to Martin J. McLaughlin, new Director of Puplic Works, designate, of Philadelphia, who left Villanova a graduate of engineering and who since then has come into public esteem.

The annual dinner which will be held tonight at the Bellevue-Stratford will be attended by Villanova faculty members and by the alumni from Pennsylvania, Delaware, New York, New Jersey and the New England States.

RELATIONS SOCIETY DISCUSSES GERMANY

Students of International Affairs Invited to Attend Lecture in Phila.

An interesting talk concerning Germany was the subject considered in the last meeting of the International Relations Club whose primary purpose is to discuss international conditions and affairs. The talk was presented by Rev. William Lunney, O. S. A., instructor of languages.

After the presentation by Fr. Lunney, there was a general discussion on the subject, all members present expressing their views in an interesting and intelligent manner. The talk and subsequent discussion consumed most of the time devoted to the meeting.

In the remaining portion of the meeting, an invitation was extended to Rev. John Fitzmaurice, O. S. A., the moderator of the society, and also to the members to attend a lecture to be presented by the National Academy of Political and Social Sciences at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, December 18.

The lecture is to be presented by Dr. Andre Siegfried of Paris, the title of his subject being: "The World Challenges Europe." Dr. Siegfried is a recognized authority in the matter of international affairs, his activities being devoted to the touring of various countries and presenting speeches of particular value to those international affairs.

Football Dinner Celebrated Tonight

the coaching staff, alumni, students, and friends.

Newspapers represented include the Philadelphia Record, the Inquirer, the Bulletin, the Public Ledger, the Daily News, the Main Line Daily Times and the Associated Press.

The annual football dinner is one of the oldest functions of its kind in the country, as Villanova alumni were among the first to honor its football team at the close of each season.

The football dinner was inaugurated at the close of the 1921 season, which was one of the most successful campaigns ever waged by the Wildcats. In that year they lost only one game out of nine, that defeat being at the hands of Army. Fordham and Catholic University were among the outstanding clubs who fell before the onslaught of the 'Cats.

In order to honor the successful team, the alumni held the first of the present series of banquets. Each year since then the same procedure has been followed, and each year the affair has become "Bigger and Better." Tonight's dinner, it is hoped, will set a new high mark in size and success.

In conjunction with the dinner the club will make its third annual award to the alumnus who has brought signal honor upon his alma mater this year. The recipient of the award will be Thomas M. Dalton, of the class of 1912.

Twenty-five varsity letters will be awarded to members of the football squad. A varsity letter will also be given to James P. Conroy, the senior manager.

Tickets for the occasion are priced at $2.50 per plate. Dinner will be served at 7:30 P. M.

liam O. Munroe, Jr., that much has been accomplished, and that they have received numerous bids, many of which are, at present, under consideration.

Although nothing definite has been announced as to which bands are preferred, or which are to be available for the occasion, this is due to the indefiniteness of the amount of underwriting and working capital that will be at the disposal of the committee.

It is expected, that the last of the questionnaires will be returned to the class officers late today, and the results will be immediately tabulated and the amounts made public. Great optimism is expressed by the class president as to the outcome, due to the fact that those returned to date are exceptionally favorable.

Shortly after this announcement will follow the names of the probable bands to be considered, as well as the decision of the class on the dinner-dance plans.

BAND, GLEE CLUB TO MAKE RECORDS

Leonard Co., of New York, To Do Recording Tonight In Auditorium

Continuing its active season, the Villanova band will be joined by the college glee club in making phonograph records this week. The Leonard Sound Company of New York will record the musical selections of these two organizations tonight at 7 o'clock in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

The Villanova "Alma Mater" and "March of the Wildcats," both written by students, were chosen for this project. Larry Riley, of the golden tenor voice, will be featured in the "Alma Mater" with accompaniment of the band. Several numbers may also be rendered for a recording by the "Villanovan" dance orchestra.

This year's band, under the direction of Paul Teel, the finest band in the history of the school, has had many presentations in addition to the football games. They have gone on the ether waves twice this year; once over KYW the night preceding the Temple game, and once in conjunction with a football discussion by Coach Harry Stuhldreher on the Stoney McLinn sport hour. It was the successful result of these broadcasts that prompted the Leonard Co. to come to the campus and put their music on wax discs.

The other musical organization of the school, the chorus, will cooperate with the band in this project. This club has yet to make its first public appearance, but will have a series of concerts in the school, other colleges, and in parishes when their director, Mr. Teel feels that they are capable.

TO ORANGE BOWL for Villanova — it would seem, according to newspaper accounts, that Villanova was turned down. On this point we should like to clear the matter as far as Villanova is concerned. The reason for the Wildcats missing out on this classic was not because the Miami Chamber of Commerce wished to have another Eastern representative, but after lengthy consideration the Villanova Athletic Council decided against the idea; since it was considered unwise to gamble on an unstable enterprise. Briefly, the terms were not acceptable to this institution.

Incidentally, Vanderbilt and Auburn, of the South, the logical representatives to represent that sector at Miami, have declined the bid because of the same reason.

— V —

Another point incidental to this matter which has not been called to the attention of the general public is that of an arrangement whereby a Northeastern collegiate team was to have encountered a Southwestern squad at the Atlantic City Convention Hall on New Year's Day. Again Villanova was honored as the northern selection, and the foe was to have been the strong Texas Christian team. However the "Horn Frogs" were invited to play against Louisiana State in the Sugar Bowl classic, as a result nothing further was said about the matter.

— V —

CAPTAIN EDDIE MICHAELS has been reaping the honors within the past few weeks. The Philadelphia and New York papers have given him high ranking in their All-American selections. Among the highest to pay him tribute were the Philadelphia Record and New York Journal.

In an All-Eastern release issued by the Associated Press, Michaels was awarded a tackle post on the first team.

In its All-American release this same syndicate favored him with a guard position on the second team. A poll taken by the National Catholic Weekly found Eddie leading the guards, and receiving quite a bit of praise. International News Service awarded him a position on its All-Eastern selection. In glancing over the various newspapers we find him coming in for many more honors. The result of which in our estimation, should reach the eye of the All-American Board.

— V —

Basketball makes its debut tomorrow night for Villanova when Seton Hall is met at our floor. The "Pirates" are reputed to have a large squad, but according to the reports emanating from the gym, with four veterans starting Doc Jacobs boys should win very easily.

With doubleheaders stealing the spotlight in intercollegiate basketball, the Villanova varsity aggregation has scheduled four of these encounters. The first twin-bill assignment finds St. Joseph's College and Temple meeting in the opener, Villanova and Westminster playing the second half of it. The other doubleheaders find Villanova meeting Duquesne, Manhattan and Temple.

Other outstanding foes on the schedule include St. John's College, Western Maryland and Dickinson.

— V —

Intramural activities have enlivened somewhat with the innovation of the basketball season. The greatest interest has been created among the two Day-hop aggregations. They met last Monday and the Mendel boys won out. Incidentally the dormitory teams better watch themselves for it seems that the Mendel commuters are very strong this year.

We believe that someone should express their thanks to the intramural committee for their splendid work to date.

—V—

Although the current rumors that have spread about the campus concerning the possibility of Bob Reagan leaving Villanova have not been duly supported by the proper authorities we wonder who, if Bob should leave, will direct the future of the Wildcat track teams as long as there are such outstanding performers in the school?

WILDCAT GRIDDERS SELECT 1935 ALL OPPONENT ELEVEN

Temple Owls Land Two Berths On Mythical Pigskin Team

DAVE SMUKLER DROPPED

Along with the termination of the football season, comes an influx of all-star teams chosen by various scribes and organizations throughout the country.

Villanova is no exception to this mania and an annual all-opponents' team emanates from the college at this time of the year, every year.

The job of selecting an all-opponents' team this year was the most difficult so far. The elevens met throughout the season had at least one outstanding player and some had more.

Each player on the Wildcat squad submitted his selection and the final note made in this paper is the sum of the consensus of opinions of the players.

Among the players receiving this honorable (?) award there are no repeaters on the first team.

No Repeaters

Dave Smukler, who received an unanimous rating for halfback last year was dropped to the honorable-mention field this season.

On the other hand Zannun, also a Temple player who received honorable mention for the guard position last year rates a first-team position this season.

The basis of picking the players lies in their ability. Some players are wizards on offense but their defensive game falls below par or vice versa. The difficulty lies in the choice of a player who plays a bang-up game both offensively and also on the defense.

The team is picked by players on the Wildcat squad who were actively engaged throughout the season.

As these men have a chance to observe the chosen few both affensively and defensively their choice is usually quite accurate.

Bowling and Pool Contests Begin To Decide Interdorm Supremacy

The annual college bowling and pool tournament commenced December 9. Ray Murphy is conducting this year's affair and he anticipates a heated struggle for supremacy. Among the candidates for laurels is Frank Foster, former moleskinner, who looms as the outstanding pool artist, while Jordan Olivar is credited with being the tops among the rollers.

Although these men are favorites, there are reputed to be in the ranks of the newcomers several men who are capable of waging a fair battle for the spoils of victory.

ARENA DOUBLEHEADER

Next Monday night the first of a series of basketball doubleheaders will be the wind-up game between Arena at 42d and Market Sts.

The main attraction of the night will be the win-up game between the Villanova quintet and the crack Westminster five. In the first game the fans will see the Temple Owls in a scramble with the St. Joseph's Hawks.

Guarantee Insufficient For Orange Bowl Game

Post-Season Game in Atlantic City Was Pending on Acceptance of Either Southern Methodist or Texas Christian

CONVENTION HALL WAS TO BE SCENE

By NORTON C. PADEN

At last the truth comes to light why Villanova declined the bid to play in the New Year's game at the Orange Bowl in Miami, Florida. According to an official statement emanating from the offices of the Athletic council, the guarantee was not sufficient to warrant the acceptance of the offer.

With the interest of the players at heart, the game was cancelled, for without an adequate guarantee it would have been necessary for the squad to make a flying trip to the South with no stopovers. After the game had been played, the team would again entrain immediately for the North.

This would have been too much to ask the players to do. Realizing the sacrifice the boys were making by giving up their Christmas vacation in order to make this game possible, it was decided that they should have at least ten days in the South.

This would leave given the team time to see the sights and have a rest too. As this trip would have caused the college expenses too great to carry at this time, the whole idea was abandoned.

The New Year's game was originated by the Miami Chamber of Commerce to excite interest and draw the pre-season crowds to Miami. As yet, the game has aroused little interest in that locality.

Last year's crowd at the Miami-Bucknell Orange Bowl game was very small, only about 3000 were in attendance. As the guarantee specified only half of the gate receipts after all expenses had been paid, it was decided that it was not worth the risk.

About the same time that the bid for the Orange Bowl game was received another game was hanging fire. This was to have been for the Northeast, Southwest championship. Villanova was chosen to represent the Northeast and either Southern Methodist or Texas Christian was to be the opposition, pending which one was invited to the Rose Bowl.

The game would have been played in Convention Hall at Atlantic City. It was scheduled for the Saturday before New Year's and would have been better for all concerned.

Southern Methodist accepted the bid to go to the Rose Bowl and Texas Christian was invited to the Sugar Bowl contest thus automatically cancelling this game.

If this game had been played the boys would have been able to go home for the holidays and still play a post season game.

It would have had a few days vacation in the "Playground of the World."

Eight Veterans Included In Seton Hall Squad Loom As Dangerous

HAVE EAGLE-EYED STARS

Tomorrow night Villanova will inaugurate its 1935-36 basketball season when the Wildcat quintet will meet their traditional first game rival, Seton Hall.

The boys from South Orange, N. J., will be well represented, as the squad is built around eight veterans who saw action against the 'Cats last year. Among these veterans are such notables as Ed Pietranski, who was high scorer last year for the Setonites, his runner-up Charlie Reilley and Jack McNally. "Doc" Bolan, Bill Morley, Bill Berry, Ray Keyes and Steve Ostaszewski are the other veterans who have reported to Coach John Colrick.

Seton Hall has always put a scrappy, fast aggregation on the floor, and we are looking for just this type of representation tomorrow night.

Last year, the South Orange boys were snowed under by the decisive score of 31 to 22. The game started off fast with Jack Barry garnering the first basket and establishing a lead that was often threatened but never surpassed.

25 FOOTBALL MEN OBTAIN VARSITY LETTERS TONIGHT

Fifteen Sophomores Among Lettermen; Only Five Juniors

SENIORS TO GET BLUE "V" AND WHITE SWEATERS

Michaels, Korchinski, Kotys, Higgins and Vidnovic Are Seniors

By JACK GERAGHTY

Twenty-five members of the varsity football squad, five of them seniors, will be awarded letters this week, according to Kevin Quinn, newly appointed senior manager of football.

Following a custom inaugurated last year, the retiring senior players will be given a heavy white sweater with a royal blue nine inch "V," while the underclass lettermen will be given the familiar blue sweater with the white, nine inch "V." Each sweater will have the owner's name embroidered on a band on the right side.

Senior Lettermen

The seniors who will get the dark blue "V" are: Captain Eddie Michaels, sensational guard, and varsity first string player for three years, will have three letter stripes on his sleeve. Michaels was chosen first team All-Eastern tackle, which is a distinct and enviable honor, showing his versatility. Last Saturday he was selected guard on second All-American team by the Associated Press. In making the selection Alan Gould, Press representative, said that the first four guards were on an absolute par, with hardly a shade of difference separating the first and last.

The other four seniors who will be awarded the blue "V" are Johnny Higgins, regular quarterback of the Villanova eleven for two years, who rose to the heights this year, and exceeded all expectations in the Temple game for his generalship and punt handling; Nick Kotys, flashy halfback, who was among the high scorers of the country for the past two years; Milan (Max) Vidnovic, a sterling, dependable guard who was Michaels' running mate, and who, although not as flashy as the stellar Michaels, nevertheless played a cool, heady game every minute of the season, and Walt Korchinski, tall, blinde wingman. Korchinski was first-string for two years, but,

Intra-Mural League Arouses Keen Interest

Mendel Hall Day Hops Take Intra-Mural Lead

Commuters Win Over Mendel Hall, 27-17; Alumni Victor Over Mendel Residents; Totin Stars in Austin Victory

TROLLEY BOYS OPEN WITH 22 - 16 WIN

Intramural basketball got under way last Monday afternoon when the C. and F. Day Hops met defeat at the hands of the Mendel Hall Day Hops by a score of 22-10. The two teams were slow in getting started but about the middle of the first half they started to play the brand of basketball for which the annual intramural contests are noted. Much can be expected from these two teams in future contests when they start to play as units.

Two old rivals met when Austin Hall defeated their friendly rivals from Fedigan by the count of 22-16. The game ended in a 16-16 deadlock but in the five minute overtime session Austin tallied three field goals in rapid succession. Fedigan fought back gamely but the Austinians froze the ball in a manner that was worthy of any college varsity.

Alumni Open With Win

On the same night the two Freshmen quintets met and Alumni Hall vanquished Mendel Hall to the tune of 26-15. Some remarkable shooting by Costello placed Mendel Hall in front during the first ten minutes by a 7-0 count. However, the Alumni five rallied and at half time had knotted the score at 7-7. Vincent McHugh and "Bud" O'Connell led the Alumni men in the second half and they crushed their brother frosh; the game ending as the Alumni team started to click. This game was marked by a dearth of substitutions by Coach Montgomery of Alumni Hall, who failed to notice several players who were forced to do all their shooting between the halves.

Wednesday afternoon the two teams from Mendel Hall clashed and the boarders met their second defeat at the hands of the Day Hops by an overwhelming tally of 27-17. Agnes and Beittenmiller shared the honors for the Day Hops as each tallied 7 points while Dunigan scored 8 points for the resident students. The boarders were unable to get started and so met their second defeat as compared with no victories.

In the first game of a doubleheader on Thursday night the Mendel Hall residents finally hit their stride and defeated Fedigan 25-20. Costello lead the scoring with 9 points and coach Vigilante seems to have struck a winning combination in Costello, Schaedler, Carroll, Dunigan and Capellaro.

Austin and Alumni Thrill

Thursday night's second game was exciting from start to finish. Austin and Alumni met in what may prove a very important game in deciding the first half championship. Neither team held a decisive lead at any point during the game. With 20 seconds remaining in the contest Referee Ed Reilly called a jump-off beneath Austin's basket. At the time Alumni was in front, 16-15.

As the time-keeper started to raise the horn to give the signal for the completion of the contest Totin sent a looping shot through the cords. The game ended with this shot and Austin went into a tie for first place with the Mendel Hall Day Hops by virtue of their 17-16 victory.

Thus went the first six games but the race is still on with six teams battling for the lead.

JACOBS CONDUCTS INTENSIVE DRILLS FOR VARSITY FIVE

Four Veterans Start Against Seton Hall in Opener Tomorrow Night

BRENNAN AMONG STARTERS

As the Villanova varsity basketball team nears the beginning of the 1935-36 campaign, intensive practice is being held under the direction of Coach "Doc" Jacobs. With the opener against Seton Hall College but a day away, the boys have rounded into shape and are determined to give a good account of themselves throughout the schedule.

Of the 14 members out for the squad, the probable starters in the first encounter will be Don Brennan playing at the pivot position, Harry McNally and Jack Robinson in the guard posts, and Mike O'Meara and Captain Ben Geraghty filling the forward positions. Able replacements for these men are to be found in Eddie Collins, Tom Ryan, and Walt McKenna, guards; Charlie Noonan, Paul Peluso, Walt Sheftic and Leo Schoppmeyer, forwards; and Leo Mooney, center.

Engage in Practice Tussles

The Wildcat quintet has been scrimmaging with Coach Al Severance's charges and Herbie Good's Haverford Aces, and the brand of ball shown by the courtsters presages a good season. Last Monday night the Penn Wynne team, composed of former college luminaries, furnished the opposition for the Jacobsmen. A heated struggle took place, and the results showed that the 'Cats have a strong defensive team, as well as an able offensive machine.

This year's combine is out to better the record of the team captained by Johnny Shevlin last year. The '34-'35 edition took 13 contests out of 20. Four members of that squad are back this year and they will be out to exceed their past record. Of the four veterans, two are high-scorers.

Mike O'Meara, former Northeast Catholic star, led the squad with 136 points in 20 games, and Captain "Bullet Ben" followed with an even 100 counters in a dozen games. An injury to his back kept the St. Benedict's Prep alumnus on the bench for a portion of the season. Tom Ryan and Jack Robinson, the other two representatives of last year's Wildcat five, were closely matched in the scoring with 44 points for Robby, and one point less for Ryan.

With close to 17 contests scheduled and pending, the new edition of the hardwood gladiators will be able to improve the past record set by Shevlin's lads under practically the same conditions, as many of the same teams will be faced this year.

Tony Sala Elected Football Captain

Western Maryland, but later defeated him in the elimination contest for the championship.

Sala's greatest contribution this year was the snaring of the pass that defeated the Detroit Titans in their second encounter. Tony received the pass from Andy-Stopper deep in the end zone for the deciding score.

Regarding his election Tony states "I know I have a big job on my hands, but I will do my best to give a good account of myself and I consider it an honor to succeed Captain Eddie Michaels in this position. I sincerely hope that we have as good a season next year as we have had this year."

EDITORS OPPOSE OLYMPICS

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 9—Opposition to United States' participation in the 1936 Olympic games to be held in Berlin is being strongly voiced by college editors throughout the country in spite of an announcement by the American Olympic Association declaring definitely for entrance, an Associated Collegiate Press survey reveals.

due to injuries did not start the last two games of the season. He was the mainstay of the 'Cats last year, due to his punting.

Sophs in Majority

The majority of the lettermen are made up of sophomores, but several juniors are also slated for the honor. The third year men who will receive the conventional royal blue sweater and white letter are Tony Sala, newly elected captain for 1936, and light heavyweight intercollegiate champion, who together with George Fox, right end, played sixty minutes against Temple; Fox, a slashing type of end; Bill Christopher, who alternated with Johnny Higgins in directing the team for two years and who will be next year's quarterback; Bunny Galazin, first-string center, who was injured in practice just before the Temple game; Dick Emmerling, who was looked to last year to fill Whitey Randour's shoes, and who played a sterling game at fullback this year.

Fifteen sophomores will be given their first varsity "V." These players are: Artie Raimo, line crashing fullback and one of the high scorers on the squad; Ray Stoviak, halfback; Frannie Nye, who scored one of the touchdowns in the Temple game; Joe Missar, understudy for Max Vidnovic, who was almost as good as the master; Val Rizzo, tackle; Ed Sydnor, guard; Johnny McKenna, center; Mike Hanna, guard; Jack Earle, stellar fullback, whose serious injuries held him back; Jerry Sherlock, halfback; Jordan Olivar, Johnny Mellus and Bill Rogers, three tackles about on a par, who alternated at first string listing, and Andy Stopper, halfback find of the season, who ran wild all year.

James P. Conroy, senior manager of football, retiring in favor of Quinn, will also receive a varsity "V."

1936 Prospects Even Better

1936 will see even a finer team than the 'Cats had this season. The sophomores have gone through a hard season and have acquitted themselves nobly. With the present juniors, the sophomores will combine to perform a powerful football team.

RETURN EQUIPMENT

Philip Murray, manager of the 150-lb football team for the past season, urges all those members of the lightweight squad who have not as yet turned in their equipment to do so at once. A number of uniforms have been turned in to date, but there are still many that have as yet to make their appearance.

Varsity Quintet Schedule Lists Fifteen Contests

Four Double-Headers Played at Philadelphia With Westminster, Duquesne, Manhattan and Temple

WILDCATS PLAY FIVE FOES AT HOME

Villanova's varsity basketball schedule has been officially announced. With 15 games already listed, only two open dates must be filled to complete the list.

The features of the schedule are the four doubleheaders which have been arranged, these games to be played in Philadelphia. However, the floor has not yet been definitely decided upon. It is only known that the first game, which will be played next Monday, is slated for the Arena. Westminster will supply the opposition.

The other twin bills find Duquesne meeting the charges of Doc Jacobs on the 11th of January, Manhattan, playing the role of the opposition on the 14th of February, and, Temple will be the opponent in the seasons finale on the 2nd of March.

The season will open officially tomorrow night when the Seton Hall Pirates come here to do battle. Saturday night, the Wildcat quintet will entertain the Western Maryland squad for forty minutes. Then the aforementioned Westminster game will be played.

In the past it has been the custom of the college officials to slate several contests during the Christmas holidays, but this season the varsity will get a complete rest during the sojourn. There was to have been a game scheduled for Christmas Eve at Newark, but the backers of the program seemed to have changed their minds.

Duquesne Next

After the holidays, the first foe will be the strong Duquesne five, in another doubleheader. Then follows a series of trips, George Washington U., at the Nation's Capitol, on the 14th of January, three days later Dickinson will be met at Carlisle and Bucknell, at Lewisburg on the following day, which will make Villanova's going rather tough.

January 24th finds the varsity travelling to Pittsburgh to encounter Duquesne, in return tussle.

St. John's College, which always boasts of good basketball clubs will be met on February 12th, on the local court. Manhattan comes here on the 14th. Providence will be met at the Rhode Island school.

Dickinson, C. C. N. Y., Lafayette, and Temple complete the schedule. The Temple game has the interest of the student body, for just as in football, the contests on the court have been just as hectic and exciting. However, this year will mark the first time that the two meet but once in a season. This encounter will be part of a doubleheader.

In the Limelight

By PAT M. VASSALLUZZO

IN THIS ISSUE we should like to put none other than Frank B. Rodgers on the "spot." The one and only, ladies and gentlemen. We are not soliciting sales, folks; but merely giving, free of charge, a little inside information on this colossal, gigantic, typical specimen of American manhood.

First, however, we should like to define "to put on the spot." The phrase might convey the idea that we wish to embarrass the gentleman; or it may mean, as it is generally used by gangsters (not the South Philly gangsters), to put him out of his misery. We mean neither. It is the sincere wish and purpose of this piece of journalism to honor the m . Take it or leave it, it is still an honor and a distinction to be in the limelight.

To get down to business—Frank B. Rodgers was born, as are all men. He came into the world on a bleak day in January of 1914. To be exact, it was January 26. To deviate a trifle from the story, we come to the realization that F. B. R. is as old as the Great War. If it probably was snowing on that day, as is customary in the month of January; but Frank doesn't remember. We prefer to believe that there was thunder and lightning on that day; for then we could have some excuse for his desire to become an electrical engineer.

As you probably surmised, Rodgers was christened Frank B., Jr. What the B stands for we do not know and could not find out. Your guess is as good as ours; but why try, it would probably not be what you are thinking anyway.

Where was Rodgers born? Why in Cynwyd, of course; or as he pronounces it, "Kinweed."

For several years Frank sat around and twiddled, or maybe sucked, his thumbs, until he was finally of age to enter school.

The required eight years passed and Frank graduated from St. Matthias' Grammar School, located in Bala, Pa. There he had learned the rudiments of football and baseball, participating in both these sports.

It was in the fall of '28—that this lad enrolled at West Catholic High School in Philadelphia. Before we go on, let's see how old he is now; 1914, 1915, 1916...figure it out for yourselves if you want to; we are content to take his word for it that he was going on 14, when he entered W. C. H. S. While at this institution Frank played frosh football, and then went out for the varsity team in his sophomore year. Here Lady Luck stepped into the picture; for in the second game of the season he sustained a back injury which forced him to become a "hors de combat" for the remainder of his high school career. He was awarded his letter, however. His injury did heal sufficiently enough to enable him to play tennis in his senior year; for which he also received a letter.

At the completion of his four years Frank tucked away his cherished diploma and set out on his journey to his goal, a B. S. in Electrical Engineering. In 1932, at the age of 18, F. B. R. matriculated at Villanova College, in the School of Technology, as a student of electrical engineering. He was given the proper and customary care by the V. C. (Vigilance Committee to you, but vermin clan to Rodgers), and became fully orientated to his abode of the next four years. By the way, Rodgers, Ryan is still around. (Ryan was a terror to the '32 frosh.)

As a frosh, Frank went in for track and intramural sports. There you are; who said all the day-hops are lacking interest in intramural activitieis? This brings to mind the fact that Rodgers has another distinction. He is the first day-hop to make the "limey" this year.

In his sophomore year the local boy played 150 football and earned his letter. Again he participated in intramural sports.

Junior year found Frank a member of the tennis team as well as the 150 football squad and the day-hop team. He received letters in both tennis and football. At the close of the "Lightweights" football season Rodgers was deservingly elected captain, and did a very good job of it this year.

Last summer Frank worked for a designer of machines for wrapping chocolate buds. By this time he should be very calloused to kisses.

Before we write our finis, we want to mention the fact that Rodgers has been a member of both Phi Kappa Pi, and the A. I. E. E. (American Institute of Electrical Engineers) for the past three years, and was vice-president of both in his junior year, in addition to being a representative of P. K. P. in the Student Council. He also finds time to write for the "Villanova Engineer."

We sincerely hope that Frank B. Rodgers, to mention his full name for the first time since his birth at the top of the article (what wittiesm), will, upon graduation, go out and conquer the "world of static."

'Cats Play Host To Seton Hall Five

time the 'Cats led by the score of 19 to 12.

In the second half, the Jacobsmen started off strongly but through the stellar shooting of Skeuse, a pirate guard, who tied with Geraghty for individual scoring, the score was kept close.

The smart team play of the Wildcats permitted the home boys to draw slowly away from the visitors, piling up points to culminate in the final score being in the 'Cats favor.

Because of graduation Doc Jacobs, Villanova coach, lost many valuable players and the aggregation representing the Wildcats will be composed for the most part of new material. For the last few weeks the basketeers have been practicing assiduously in order that they will be in top form for the game with the Pirates.

Of the 14 members out for the squad only four of these are veterans. Mike O'Meara, who led the squad last year in scoring, Captain Ben Geraghty, who wasn't far behind, Jack Robinson and Tom Ryan are the four men around whom the present squad is formed.

Frequent scrimmages with the Frosh quintet and practice games with other athletic clubs have proved that the 'Cat team is no set up, as the boys are going to do their best to equal and even surpass, if possible, the record set up by last year's team.

VARSITY SWIMMERS COMMENCE PRACTICE

Candidates Will Report For Drills Twice Weekly Until January

Organized swimming practice will be held in the gymnasium this week. This announcement was made by Manager John McManus.

Every candidate will be required to report for practice on two days which will be assigned early this week. This two-day schedule will be in effect for approximately one month. Then two weeks before the season starts practice will be arranged more frequently.

Donald Cantor, William Booth, Toby Greco, and Jim Cousart form the nucleus of this year's tank team. With these and the newcomers, Bill Leahy, Bill Britt, Bill Bailey, and Chick Kitchel who have been practicing iligently for some time a successful season is expected. The team is under the supervision of Professor Martin Gill.

The swimming team of Villanova College is in the process of construction. And therefore an expansion in the schedule is expected. New members are welcome to report for practice this week.

The swimming schedule is as follows: West Chester State Teachers, January 17, away; Osteopathy, date undecided, home; West Chester State Teachers, February 5, home; Osteopathy, February 12, away; Lafayette, February 19, away; Swarthmore, date undecided, away. The open dates are: January 11, 22, 24; February 8, 26. Meets with Penn State, Temple, Johns Hopkins, St. Joseph's College, and the Turner A. C. are pending.

FROSH BASKETEERS OPEN SEASON ON DECEMBER 11

Manager Joe McCabe has released the schedule for the Freshman basketball team, which is rounding into form under the guiding eye of Coach Al Severance. The opening game of the season will bring the formidable Banks College five here on Wednesday evening, December 11, opposing the Kittens in the game preceding the varsity clash with Seton Hall.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

TOMORROW the varsity basketball team ushers in the 1935-36 campaign...With Seton Hall providing the opposition ...And the proposed game with George Washington, at Newark, N.-J., scheduled for Christmas Day, may not be played...The financial backing of the enterprise took "a run out powder." Unless someone else is secured to underwrite the expenses, then double-headers in the Jersey metropolis will not be contested...

Unless arrangements are made later in the month the Wildcats and Owls will meet only once on the wooden way...This will be the first time since the series inception that only one game will be played...Heretofore the teams battled at home and away...Incidentally, the contest will take place at the Arena, in Philadelphia, as part of a double-header on March 2...

The Frosh basketeers show exceptionally good form at this stage of the preliminary workouts...The passing of the yearlings would do justice to many professional aggregations...

It would be a good idea for the Council on Intercollegiate Athletics to introduce season tickets for the football games...Many fans have been clamoring for an innovation such as this...And it would stimulate interest both from an athletic as well as a financial standpoint.

The football season is far from over...What with so many Bowls to be contested for...Out on the Pacific Coast we have Southern Methodist, with a 12-game winning streak to protect, going to wars with the Cardinals of Stanford...The latter have Monk Moscrip, field goal specialist, and Bobby Grayson, hard-running back, both repeat performers from last year's All-American team, while the Mustangs will throw 155 pounds of dynamite in the person of Bobby Wilson at "Tiny" Thornhill's eleven...

Down in New Orleans the prize will be much sweeter....Texas Christian, beaten only by the Southern Methodist tornado, will come to grips with Louisiana State...in the Sugar Bowl classic...The only thing that will be missing from this year's spectacle will be the late Senator Huey Long...And by the way...The Canebrakers are sorry that "Biff" Jones left, even though Coach Bernie Moore's eleven lost only to Rice (another Texas team), "Biff" was a favorite with everyone but the self-styled Kingfish...

Over on the Gulf Coast the University of Tampa will square off against our own Lebanon Valley gridders in what should be called the Cigar Bowl...Tampa is a noted tobacco center...

Following almost immediately upon Villanova's refusal to compete at the Orange Bowl came the refusal of Vanderbilt. We wonder if it was the same reason that caused the Wildcat backers to turn down the invitation that prompted the Commodores to do likewise, or was it because the strong Southern team wished to meet the Stuhldreher forces?

Another important game nearly slipped my mind...The annual tussle between the East and West, in San Francisco, the first of the year...Eddie Michaels, Villanova's All-American guard, will, in all probability be a member of the Eastern team...

Intra-Mural League Arouses Keen Interest

Mendel Hall Day Hops Take Intra-Mural Lead

Commuters Win Over Mendel Hall, 27-17; Alumni Victor Over Mendel Residents; Totin Stars in Austin Victory

TROLLEY BOYS OPEN WITH 22 - 16 WIN

Intramural basketball got under way last Monday afternoon when the C. and F. Day Hops met defeat at the hands of the Mendel Hall Day Hops by a score of 22-10. The two teams were slow in getting started but about the middle of the first half they started to play the brand of basketball for which the annual intramural contests are noted. Much can be expected from these two teams in future contests when they start to play as units.

Two old rivals met when Austin Hall defeated their friendly rivals from Fedigan by the count of 22-16. The game ended in a 16-16 deadlock but in the five minute overtime session Austin tallied three field goals in rapid succession. Fedigan fought back gamely but the Austinites froze the ball in a manner that was worthy of any college varsity.

Alumni Open With Win

On the same night the two Freshmen quintets met and Alumni Hall vanquished Mendel Hall to the tune of 26-15. Some remarkable shooting by Costello placed Mendel Hall in front during the first ten minutes by a 7-0 count. However, the Alumni five rallied and at half time had knotted the score at 7-7. Vincent McHugh and "Bud" O'Connell led the Alumni men in the second half and they crushed their brother frosh; the game ending as the Alumni team started to click. This game was marked by a dearth of substitutions by Coach Montgomery of Alumni Hall, who failed to notice several players who were forced to do all their shooting between the halves.

Wednesday afternoon the two teams from Mendel Hall clashed and the boarders met their second defeat at the hands of the Day Hops by an overwhelming tally of 27-17. Agnes and Beittenmiller shared the honors for the Day Hops as each tallied 7 points while Dunigan scored 8 points for the resident students. The boarders were unable to get started and so met their second defeat as compared with no victories.

In the first game of a doubleheader on Thursday night the Mendel Hall residents finally hit their stride and defeated Fedigan 25-20. Costello lead the scoring with 9 points and coach Vigilante seems to have struck a winning combination in Costello, Schaedler, Carroll, Dunigan and Capellaro.

Austin and Alumni Thrill

Thursday night's second game was exciting from start to finish. Austin and Alumni met in what may prove a very important game in deciding the first half championship. Neither team held a decisive lead at any point during the game. With 20 seconds remaining in the contest Referee Ed Reilly called a jump-off beneath Austin's basket. At the time Alumni was in front, 16-15.

As the time-keeper started to raise the horn to give the signal for the completion of the contest Totin sent a looping shot through the cords. The game ended with this shot and Austin went into a tie for first place with the Mendel Hall Day Hops by virtue of their 17-16 victory.

Thus went the first six games but the race is still on with six teams battling for the lead.

JACOBS CONDUCTS INTENSIVE DRILLS FOR VARSITY FIVE

Four Veterans Start Against Seton Hall in Opener Tomorrow Night

BRENNAN AMONG STARTERS

As the Villanova varsity basketball team nears the beginning of the 1935-36 campaign, intensive practice is being held under the direction of Coach "Doc" Jacobs. With the opener against Seton Hall College but a day away, the boys have rounded into shape and are determined to give a good account of themselves throughout the schedule.

Of the 14 members out for the squad, the probable starters in the first encounter will be Don Brennan playing at the pivot position, Harry McNally and Jack Robinson in the guard posts, and Mike O'Meara and Captain Ben Geraghty filling the forward positions. Able replacements for these men are to be found in Eddie Collins, Tom Ryan, and Walt McKenna, guards; Charlie Noonan, Paul Peluso, Walt Sheftic and Leo Schoppmeyer, forwards; and Leo Mooney, center.

Engage in Practice Tussles

The Wildcat quintet has been scrimmaging with Coach Al Severance's charges and Herbie Good's Haverford Aces, and the brand of ball shown by the courtsters presages a good season. Last Monday night the Penn Wynne team, composed of former college luminaries, furnished the opposition for the Jacobsmen. A heated struggle took place, and the results showed that the 'Cats have a strong defensive team, as well as an able offensive machine.

This year's combine is out to better the record of the team captained by Johnny Shevlin last year. The 34-35 edition took 13 contests out of 20. Four members of that squad are back this year and they will be out to exceed their past record. Of the four veterans, two are high-scorers.

Mike O'Meara, former Northeast Catholic star, led the squad with 136 points in 20 games, and Captain "Bullet Ben" followed with an even 100 counters in a dozen games. An injury to his back kept the St. Benedict's Prep alumnus on the bench for a portion of the season. Tom Ryan and Jack Robinson, the other two representatives of last year's Wildcat five, were closely matched in the scoring with 44 points for Robby, and one point less for Ryan.

With close to 17 contests scheduled and pending, the new edition of the hardwood gladiators will be able to improve the past record set by Shevlin's lads under practically the same conditions, as many of the same teams will be faced this year.

1936 Grid Manager

due to injuries did not start the last two games of the season. He was the mainstay of the 'Cats last year, due to his punting.

Sophs In Majority

The majority of the lettermen are made up of sophomores, but several juniors are also slated for the honor. The third year men who will receive the conventional royal blue sweater and white letter are Tony Sala, newly elected captain for 1936, and light heavyweight intercollegiate champion, who together with George Fox, right end, played sixty minutes against Temple; Fox, a slashing type of end; Bill Christopher, who alternated with Johnny Higgins in directing the team for two years and who will be next year's quarterback; Bunny Galazin, first-string center, who was injured in practice just before the Temple game; Dick Emmerling, who was looked to last year to fill Whitey Randour's shoes, and who played a sterling game at fullback this year.

Fifteen sophomores will be given their first varsity "V." These players are: Artie Raimo, line crashing fullback and one of the high scorers on the squad; Ray Stovlak, halfback; Frannie Nye, who scored one of the touchdowns in the Temple game; Joe Massit, understudy for Max Vidnovic, who was almost as good as the master; Val Rizzo, tackle; Ed Sydnor, guard; Johnny McKenna, center; Mike Hanna, guard; Jack Earle, stellar fullback, whose serious injuries held him back; Jerry Sherlock, halfback; Jordan Olivar, Johnny Mellus and Bill Rogers, three tackles about on a par, who alternated at first string listing, and Andy Stopper, halfback find of the season, who ran wild all year.

James P. Conroy, senior manager of football, retiring in favor of Quinn, will also receive a varsity "V."

1936 Prospects Even Better

1936 will see even a finer team than the 'Cats had this season. The sophomores have gone through a hard season and have acquitted themselves nobly. With the present juniors, the sophomores will combine to perform a powerful football team.

RETURN EQUIPMENT

Philip Murray, manager of the 150-lb football team for the past season, urges all those members of the lightweight squad who have not as yet turned in their equipment to do so at once. A number of uniforms have been turned in to date, but there are still many that have as yet to make their appearance.

Varsity Quintet Schedule Lists Fifteen Contests

Four Double-Headers Played at Philadelphia With Westminster, Duquesne, Manhattan and Temple

WILDCATS PLAY FIVE FOES AT HOME

Villanova's varsity basketball schedule has been officially announced. With 15 games already listed, only two open dates must be filled to complete the list.

The features of the schedule are the four doubleheaders which have been arranged, these games to be played in Philadelphia. However, the floor has not yet been definitely decided upon. It is only known that the first game, which will be played next Monday, is slated for the Arena. Westminster will supply the opposition.

1935-36 Basketball Schedule

Dec.	11	Seton Hall, home.
	14	West'n Maryland, home.
	16	Westminster, double-
Jan.	11	Duquesne, Double-header, Phila.
	14	George Washington, Washington, D. C.
	17	Dickinson, Carlisle.
	18	Bucknell, Lewisburg, Penna.
	24	Open - pending.
Feb.	4	Duquesne, Pittsburgh, Penna.
	12	St. John's, home.
	14	Manhattan, double-header, Phila.
	15	Providence, Providence, R. I.
	19	Dickinson, home.
	22	C. C. N. Y., New York.
	26	Lafayette, home.
	28	Open - game pending.
	29	Open - game pending.
Mar.	2	Temple, double header, Phila.

The other twin bills find Duquesne meeting the charges of Doc Jacobs on the 11th of January, Manhattan, playing the role of the opposition on the 14th of February, and, Temple will be the opponent in the seasons finale on the 2nd of March.

The season will open officially tomorrow night when the Seton Hall Pirates come here to do battle. Saturday night, the Wildcat quintet will entertain the Western Maryland squad for forty minutes. Then the aforementioned Westminster game will be played.

In the past it has been the custom of the college officials to slate several contests during the Christmas holidays, but this season the varsity will get a complete rest during the sojourn. There was to have been a game scheduled for Christmas Eve at Newark, but the backers of the program seemed to have changed their minds.

Duquesne Next

After the holidays, the first foe will be the strong Duquesne five, in another doubleheader. Then follows a series of trips, George Washington U., at the Nation's Capitol, on the 14th of January, three days later Dickinson will be met at Carlisle and Bucknell, at Lewisburg on the following day, which will make Villanova's going rather tough.

January 24th finds the varsity travelling to Pittsburgh to encounter Duquesne, in return tussle.

St. John's College, which always boasts of good basketball clubs will be met on February 12th, on the local court. Manhattan comes here on the 14th. Providence will be met at the Rhode Island school.

Dickinson, C. C. N. Y., Lafayette, and Temple complete the schedule. The Temple game has the interest of the student body, for just as in football, the contests on the court have been just as hectic and exciting. However, this year will mark the first time that the two meet but once in a season. This encounter will be part of a doubleheader.

EDITORS OPPOSE OLYMPICS

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 9—Opposition to United States' participation in the 1936 Olympic games to be held in Berlin is being strongly voiced by college editors throughout the country in spite of an announcement by the American Olympic Association declaring definitely for entrance, an Associated Collegiate Press survey reveals.

Tony Sala Elected Football Captain

Western Maryland, but later defeated him in the elimination contest for the championship.

Sala's greatest contribution this year was the smarting of the pass that defeated the Detroit Titans in their second encounter. Tony received the pass from Andy-Stopper deep in the end zone for the deciding score.

Regarding his election Tony states "I know I have a big job on my hands, but I will do my best to give a good account of myself and I consider it an honor to succeed Captain Eddie Michaels in this position. I sincerely hope that we have as good a season next year as we have had this year."

In the Limelight

By PAT M. VASSALLUZZO

IN THIS ISSUE we should like to put none other than Frank B. Rodgers on the "spot." The one and only, ladies and gentlemen. We are not soliciting sales, folks; but merely giving, free of charge, a little inside information on this colossal, gigantic, typical specimen of American manhood.

First, however, we should like to define "to put on the spot." The phrase might convey the idea that we wish to embarrass the gentleman; or it may mean, as it is generally used by gangsters (not the South Philly gangsters), to put him out of his misery. We mean neither. It is the sincere wish and purpose of this piece of journalism to honor the m . Take it or leave it, it is still an honor and a distinction to be in the limelight.

To get down to business—Frank B. Rodgers was born, as are all men. He came into the world on a bleak day in January of 1914. To be exact, it was January 26. To deviate a trifle from the story, we come to the realization that F. B. R. is as old as the Great War. It probably was snowing on that day, as is customary in the month of January; but Frank doesn't remember. We prefer to believe that there was thunder and lightning on that day; for then we could have some excuse for his desire to become an electrical engineer.

As you probably surmised, Rodgers was christened Frank B. Jr. What the B stands for we do not know and could not find out. Your guess is as good as ours; but why try, it would probably not be what you are thinking anyway.

Where was Rodgers born? Why in Cynwyd, of course; or as he pronounces it, "Kinweed."

For several years Frank sat around and twiddled, or maybe sucked, his thumbs, until he was finally of age to enter school.

The required eight years passed and Frank graduated from St. Matthias' Grammar School, located in Bala, Pa. There he had learned the rudiments of football and baseball, participating in both these sports.

It was in the fall of '28—that this lad enrolled at West Catholic High School in Philadelphia. Before we go on, let's see how old he is now; 1914, 1915, 1916 . . figure it out for yourselves if you want to; we are content to take his word for it that he was going on 14, when he entered W. C. H. S. While at this institution Frank played frosh football, and then went out for the varsity team in his sophomore year. Here Lady Luck stepped into the picture; for in the second game of the season he sustained a back injury which forced him to become a "hors de combat" for the remainder of his high school career. He was awarded his letter, however. His injury did heal sufficiently enough to enable him to play tennis in his senior year; for which he also received a letter.

At the completion of his four years Frank tucked away his cherished diploma and set out on his journey to his goal, a B. S. in Electrical Engineering. In 1932, at the age of 18, F. B. R. matriculated at Villanova College, in the School of Technology, as a student of electrical engineering. He was given the proper and customary care by the V. C. (Vigilance Committee to you, but vermin clan to Rodgers), and became fully orientated to his abode of the next four years. By the way, Rodgers, Ryan is still around. (Ryan was a terror to the '32 frosh.)

As a frosh, Frank went in for track and intramural sports. There you are; who said all the day-hops are lacking interest in intramural activities? This brings to mind the fact that Rodgers has another distinction. He is the first day-hop to make the "limey" this year.

In his sophomore year the local boy played 150 football and earned his letter. Again he participated in intramural sports.

Junior year found Frank a member of the tennis team as well as the 150 football squad and the day-hop team. He received letters in both tennis and football. At the close of the "Lightweights" football season Rodgers was deservingly elected captain, and did a very good job of it this year.

Last summer Frank worked for a designer of machines for wrapping chocolate buds. By this time he should be very calloused to kisses.

Before we write our finis, we want to mention the fact that Rodgers has been a member of both Phi Kappa Pi, and the A. I. E. E. (American Institute of Electrical Enginee.s) for the past three years, and was vice-president of both in his junior year, in addition to being a representative of P. K. P. in the Student Council. He also finds time to write for the "Villanova Engineer."

We sincerely hope that Frank B. Rodgers, to mention his full name for the first time since his birth at the top of the article (what witticism), will, upon graduation, go out and conquer the "world of static."

'Cats Play Host To Seton Hall Five

time the 'Cats led by the score of 19 to 12.

In the second half, the Jacobsmen started off strongly but through the stellar shooting of Skeuse, a pirate guard, who tied with Geraghty for individual scoring, the score was kept close.

The smart team play of the Wildcats permitted the home boys to draw slowly away from the visitors, piling up points to culminate in the final score being in the 'Cats favor.

Because of graduation Doc Jacobs, Villanova coach, lost many valuable players and the aggregation representing the Wildcats will be composed for the most part of new material. For the last few weeks the basketeers have been practicing assiduously in order that they will be in top form for the game with the Pirates.

Of the 14 members out for the squad only four of these are veterans. Mike O'Meara, who led the squad last year in scoring, Captain Ben Geraghty, who wasn't far behind, Jack Robinson and Tom Ryan are the four men around whom the present squad is formed.

Frequent scrimmages with the Frosh quintet and practice games with other athletic clubs have proved that the 'Cat team is no set up, as the boys are going to do their best to equal and even surpass, if possible, the record set up by last year's team.

VARSITY SWIMMERS COMMENCE PRACTICE

Candidates Will Report For Drills Twice Weekly Until January

Organized swimming practice will be held in the gymnasium this week. This announcement was made by Manager John McManus.

Every candidate will be required to report for practice on two days which will be assigned early this week. This two-day schedule will be in effect for approximately one month. Then two weeks before the season starts practice will be arranged more frequently.

Donald Cantor, William Booth, Toby Greco, and Jim Cousart form the nucleus of this year's tank team. With these and the newcomers, Bill Leahy, Bill Britt, Bill Bailey, and Chick Kitchel who have been practicing diligently for some time a successful season is expected. The team is under the supervision of Professor Martin Gill.

The swimming team of Villanova College is in the process of construction. And therefore an expansion in the schedule is expected. New members are welcome to report for practice this week.

The swimming schedule is as follows: West Chester State Teachers, January 17, away; Osteopathy, date undecided, home; West Chester State Teachers, February 5, home; Osteopathy, February 12, away; Lafayette, February 19, away; Swarthmore, date undecided, away. The open dates are: January 11, 22, 24; February 8, 26. Meets with Penn State, Temple, Johns Hopkins, St. Joseph's College, and the Turner A. C. are pending.

FROSH BASKETEERS OPEN SEASON ON DECEMBER 11

Manager Joe McCabe has released the schedule for the Freshman basketball team, which is rounding into form under the guiding eye of Coach Al Severance. The opening game of the season will bring the formidable Banks College five here on Wednesday evening, December 11, opposing the Kittens in the game preceding the varsity clash with Seton Hall.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

TOMORROW the varsity basketball team ushers in the 1935-36 campaign...With Seton Hall providing the opposition ...And the proposed game with George Washington, at Newark, N. J., scheduled for Christmas Day, may not be played...The financial backing of the enterprise took "a run out powder." Unless someone else is secured to underwrite the expenses, then double-headers in the Jersey metropolis will not be contested...

Unless arrangements are made later in the month the Wildcats and Owls will meet only once on the wooden way...This will be the first time since the series inception that only one game will be played...Heretofore the teams battled at home and away...Incidentally, the contest will take place at the Arena, in Philadelphia, as part of a double-header on March 2...

The Frosh basketeers show exceptionally good form at this stage of the preliminary workouts...The passing of the yearlings would do justice to many professional aggregations...

It would be a good idea for the Council on Intercollegiate Athletics to introduce season tickets for the football games...Many fans have been clamoring for an innovation such as this...And it would stimulate interest both from an athletic as well as a financial standpoint.

The football season is far from over...What with so many Bowls to be contested for...Out on the Pacific Coast we have Southern Methodist, with a 12-game winning streak to protect, going to wars with the Cardinals of Stanford...The latter have Monk Moscrip, field goal specialist, and Bobby Grayson, hard-running back, both repeat performers from last year's All-American team, while the Mustangs will throw 155 pounds of dynamite in the person of Bobby Wilson at "Tiny" Thornhill's eleven...

Down in New Orleans the prize will be much sweeter...Texas Christian, beaten only by the Southern Methodist tornado, will come to grips with Louisiana State...in the Sugar Bowl classic...The only thing that will be missing from this year's spectacle will be the late Senator Huey Long...And by the way...The Canebrakers are sorry that "Biff" Jones left, even though Coach Bernie Moore's eleven lost only to Rice (another Texas team). "Biff" was a favorite with everyone but the self-styled Kingfish...

Over on the Gulf Coast the University of Tampa will square off against our own Lebanon Valley gridders in what should be called the Cigar Bowl...Tampa is a noted tobacco center...

Following almost immediately upon Villanova's refusal to compete at the Orange Bowl came the refusal of Vanderbilt. We wonder if it was the same reason that caused the Wildcat backers to turn down the invitation that prompted the Commodores to do likewise, or was it because the strong Southern team wished to meet the Stuhldreher forces?

Another important game nearly slipped my mind...The annual tussle between the East and West, in San Francisco, the first of the year...Eddie Michaels, Villanova's All-American guard, will, in all probability be a member of the Eastern team...

College Students Revive Ancient Sport of Hunting With Falcons

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. Dec. 9—Devotees of one of the most unusual of all sports—the ancient art of falconry—are Frank and John Craighead, twin brothers who are freshmen at Penn State. They have been training and hunting falcons since boyhood, and they brought "Ulysses," peregrine hawk who is their present star performer, to school with them this fall.

Ulysses, although now living in comparative domesticity, has the same blood in his veins as the falcons of four and five centuries ago, when the birds were so highly prized that only a noble could own one. The brothers would match him against any falcon that ever lived, they say.

"What do you feed him, seed and things like that?" the twins were asked.

"Meat, beef," they said. "It makes him strong." It isn't merely a matter of putting the meat in the birdhouse, placed in the yard where the boys can keep an eye on the falcon from their room, filled with photographs of former pet hawks. Ulysses has to work for his food. One of the boys stands some distance from the perch, holding the meat in a gloved hand, and Ulysses takes to the air to make a dash for it. He must do this every time he's fed. It's good training for the business of "Coming to the lure" when he goes afield.

Ulysses does his hunting at a speed that would take him past a lot of airplanes, according to his brothers. Beginning to drop, or "stoop" on his prey from several hundred feet above, the hawk may be moving 180 miles an hour by the time he strikes, sends it tumbling dead to the ground with a blow from his balled talons. The game down, he flies back to his gloved master for his reward, a bit of meat.

Ulysses takes only game on the wing. The twins have had hawks trained to take rabbits and other game larger than themselves. Before coming to Penn State they freed Comet, a scarred veteran which had caught rabbits and squirrels.

Collegiate World

By COLLEGIATE DIGEST and Associated Collegiate Press

Now that the brave deeds and words of Will Rogers are being systematically unearthed for those who loved the man, we might quote the quip of Will's which is the only one we remember:

It came after he had been granted an honorary degree at some college. Said the comedian: "I knew they gave college degrees for nearly every kind of ignorance, but I didn't know they gave any for my kind."

At the University of Kansas, while a peace demonstration was in progress, scoffers constructed a snow man, hung a placard about its neck which said "Down with Pacifism."

In New York school children paraded down the streets bearing a clay replica of a scaly dinosaur. Placards said, "All Armor Plate, No Brains." "This Animal Believed in Preparedness, He Is Now Extinct."

Innovation in Education Designed To Afford Equal Opportunities

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 9 — Freshmen at the University of Florida who are mid-way through their first term are subjects of a new experiment in higher education. The enrollment of the class of 1939 marked the launching of Florida's new General College, organized to administer the work of the freshman and sophomore years from a point of distinctly new departure.

Avowed purposes of the new undertaking are to offer an opportunity for general education and to provide the guidance needed by all students in order that the choice of professional work may be postponed until the student knows better his capacity and disposition to undertake work that will be profitable to himself and society; to broaden the base of education for the students who are preparing for advanced studies in colleges and professional schools in addition to their two years of work in the General College.

To satisfy the needs of those who have only a limited time to give to college training and consequently should concern themselves with general viewpoint and major understandings, instead of introductions to special subject matter fields which they may never enter and to provide for the constant adjustments required in higher general education incident to the changing conditions of modern life.

Subject matter of the various courses and the methods of presentation are to be constantly varied in order to awaken the interest of the student, stimulate his intellectual curiosity, and cultivate the attiude necessary for enlightened citizenship.

ARCHITECTS LACK QUALIFIED HELP

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—There is an acute shortage of technical assistants in architecture, due probably to the recent revival of building activity, and architects in normal private practice are finding it difficult to obtain needed help.

So says Lucian E. Smith, chairman of the Architects' Emergency Committee of New York, in a recent report to the American Institute of Architects.

The proof of the cigarette is in the smoking . . . and it always will be

Smokers—both men and women—want a cigarette to be mild—yet not flat or insipid. At the same time they want a cigarette that gives them taste—taste they can enjoy.

Chesterfields are outstanding for mildness—outstanding for better taste. You can find that out by smoking them.

Just try them - Chesterfields are what they say they are

FEBRUARY 7TH IS SELECTED AS DATE OF SENIOR BALL

Class President Makes Definite Announcement For Annual Promenade

IMPORTANT MEETING IN AMPHITHEATRE AT 1 P. M.

Pledges Must Be Fulfilled Directly After Christmas Vacation Period

February 7th, 1936, has definitely been set as the date for this year's Belle Air Ball. William Vaughn, class president, made this announcement last week, at which time also he made notice of the fact that there will be an important meeting of all Seniors in the Mendel Hall Amphitheater, this afternoon at 1 P. M.

It was further made known that the class, by their response to the questionnaire distributed at the last meeting, have determined that the band for the dance is to be of the finest obtainable. It has been also decided to present a dinner-dance exclusively for the Class of '36 members and their friends. The date of this affair, voted by the class to be be February 8, has been approved by the administration.

Extensive investigations of orchestras will be under way during the Christmas holidays, as Arthur Noble will be in New York and intends to make numerous personal contacts with the various larger agencies. It is expected that in this way all the name bands, that will be available for February 7th, as well as their lowest possible prices, may be tabulated.

Immediately upon his return to Villanova College, Mr. Noble will call a meeting of his committee to select the most desirable of these propositions, and it is intended that the orchestra will be signed within three days of this gathering.

Mr. Noble has made public an urgent call for the pledges to be fulfilled Immediately after the Seniors return from the holidays, as this is imperative toward

LIBRARY DONATED OVER 300 VOLUMES

Rev. David Rubio, O. S. A., Ph.D., of Catholic University Foremost Contributor

Over 300 volumes were recently donated to the ever increasing Villanova library according to Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O. S. A., assistant librarian.

The Spanish Literature collection in the college library has been greatly increased through the generosity of Rev. David Rubio, O. S. A., Ph. D. who is professor of Romance Languages and Literature at the Catholic University, and consultant of Spanish Literature in the Library of Congress.

The new list consists of 65 volumes of the Castellion Classics, which are famous in the field of Spanish literature dealing with the biography and works of outstanding men and women in the Literature of Spain.

The 25 volumes of the Classical Library represent the biographies and works of the early Greek philosophers. In completing this list there are 23 volumes in French literature, some of the most outstanding are: The five books of Rabelais, Characters of Bruyere and an anthology of Contemporary French Poets.

Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Ph. D., donated books on Philosophy, English, and General Ref-

Councillors to Convene Tonight, Room 215, at 5:30

The compounding of several articles to be contained in their constitution was the result of the meeting of the Student Council Constitution Committee held last Thursday.

Presiding was Charles Kain, a senior in the School of Engineering and chairman of the Constitution Committee. Meeting necessitating the attendance of this particular group of individuals will be continued until a satisfactory and complete constitution will be had.

James Downs, chairman of the Student Council, announced a meeting for the entire enrollment of the Council. This assemblage is to be tonight, in the Amphitheatre of Mendel Hall at 5:30 P. M.

MICHAELS CALLED GREATEST FOOTBALL PLAYER BY COACH

Bill Hollenback, Former Penn All-American, Wants Villanova-Penn Game

LARGEST FOOTBALL DINNER

Leading a victorious Villanova football squad into action for the last time, Captain Eddie Michaels and his cohorts were lauded on all sides and by everyone at the Annual Football Dinner sponsored by the Alumni Club of Philadelphia last Tuesday at the Bellevue-Stratford.

The dinner was the fifteenth annual for the local organization and proved to be the most successful to date. A capacity crowd attended the affair to pay tribute to the fighting Wildcats.

Declaring Eddie Michaels "One of the greatest football players I have ever seen," Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher, amid vociferous applause concluded his praise of the outstanding athlete by describing him as "A great player, an inspiring leader and a fine boy."

In addition, Coach Stuhldreher praised each of the graduating members of the team in similarly strong words, explaining how each was an invaluable spoke in Villanova's wheel of victory during the past three years.

These men, in addition to Michaels, are Milan Vidnovic, Johnny Higgins, Nick Kolys, Walter Korchinski and George Wrona, each of them a vital spark in the Wildcat victories of the past season.

Bill Hollenback, former Penn All-American back, one of the guest speakers, reminisced of the days when Penn and Villanova vied on the gridiron and expressed the ardent desire that athletic relations between the two institutions be resumed again.

Others among the list of noted speakers at the Banquet were H.

MONTHLY MEETING HELD

Sanctuary Society Convenes and Adopts New Plan for Members

Although Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the Sancutary Society, was unable to attend, the monthly meeting of the society was held as usual last Monday with Joseph Arthur taking charge.

The main purpose of the meeting was to instill more interest in the members urging them to be prompt at masses. Other business was brought up and voted on.

On last Tuesday, the regular Communion day of the society, a new plan was tried — that of having the members awaken themselves and come to mass, instead of having certain members go around waking the others.

There was a good attendance at the mass, thus showing that most of the members have an interest in the society.

STUDENTS GIVEN ADDRESS THURSDAY BY LOUIS M'CABE

Noted Philadelphia Criminal Lawyer Appears Before Science, Art Groups

HAUPTMANN CASE CALLED ONE OF LEGAL LYNCHING

Says Fascism to Be Feared More Than Communism In America

Addressing a combined group of Arts and Science students Mr. Louis McCabe, one of the outstanding criminal lawyers in Philadelphia, discussed criminal law in general and used many cases familiar to his audience to illustrate his points.

Of the present conditions arising and facing the country he pointed out that the growth of Fascism was to be feared more in America than the predominance of communism because the theories of property sharing were in large contradictory to the existance of God. He stated that the other present economic principals were in accordance with the church.

The case holding the most public interest in 1934 was the Hauptmann-Lindbergh case. To this famous case, Mr. McCabe gave most of his time in his citing of trials. Although not giving his own opinion he quoted: "None of us can say that he is innocent; yet to lawyers and other members of the bar it is hard to see how Hauptmann can be declared guilty of kidnaping by a jury of twelve or nine men on the evidence presented."

"While one can admit the truth the state did not prove that he entered the room." He declared lawyers called this case one of "legal lynching."

In the evidence it was shown that the accused received ransom money through the tracing of his handwriting and the actual finding of the bills on his property but the rest of the proof was built on this by

FR. McGOWAN DIES

Former Editor of Good Council Magazine Stricken at Villanova College Monastery

Rev. James F. McGowan, O. S. A., former editor of the "Good Council" magazine, died yesterday morning at the Villanova Monastery. He had been retired for some time.

Fr. McGowan was an important factor in the construction of St. Rita's Church in Philadelphia. He was the publisher of a devotional book based on the writings of St. Augustine.

Spending most of his later years at Villanova, Fr. McGowan was much interested in music and aesthetics.

Eddie Michaels Leading in East For Guard Berth on Elgin Eleven

In a contest being sponsored by the Elgin Watch Company, Capt. Eddie Michaels is holding down the position of guard on the eastern All-American football team.

The timepiece makers are picking four All-American teams to represent the west, southwest, middlewest, and east respectively. Each member on the teams will receive as an award, a fifty dollar Elgin watch for Christmas.

The players' eligibility on the team is determined by the number of votes sent in to Hal Totten, sports announcer on the Elgin program, featured every Friday night with Art Kassel and the Mills Brothers.

Each student, in order to show their appreciation for the wonderful exhibition of football Eddie has given this season, is requested to send a post card to Hal Totten, Elgin Watch Company, Elgin, Ill. The card should contain the name of the player, the position played, the name of the school and the name and address of the sender.

Get busy and send your vote immediately. This contest has been going on for some time and will close shortly. The winners are to be announced during the Elgin program on December 27.

Let's get together and give Eddie this swell watch as a Christmas present from the entire student body.

Do it now.

Annual Christmas Dances Sponsored By 'Home Towners'

Wilkes-Barre and North Jersey Clubs To Climax Year's Activities With Gala Holiday Promenades

BOTH FEATURE PROMINENT BANDS

Two active home-town clubs, the Wilkes-Barre Club and the North Jersey Club, have completed final arrangements for their holiday dances in their respective localities.

The Wilkes-Barre Club of Villanova will hold its annual Christmas dance on Wednesday night, December 25, in the Hotel Mallow-Sterling in Wilkes-Barre. Dancing will be from 9 P. M. to 1 A. M. Music will be furnished by Will Kearney's Orchestra. A suitable favor has been selected by the committee and will be presented to the ladies along with the dance program.

* The North Jersey Club will hold its Christmas dance on Thursday, December 26, in the Winfield Scott Hotel in Elizabeth, N. J. Music will be furnished by Frank Richlan and his New Yorkers, featuring a feminine vocalist. This orchestra is known for playing on the Dance Parade from WNEW. A large group of the North Jersey Club Alumni are expecting to attend. Favors will be presented to the ladies.

The Wilkes-Barre Club committee is comprised of the following: Charles C. Betz, chairman; William B. Cleary, John Noll, Paul Milnamow, Edmund Virusky, Stanley Galazin, Witold Kryzwicki, Benald Hudson, and James Gallagher.

Committeemen for the North Jersey Club are as follows: Edwin Reilly, chairman; Joseph Higgins, Louis Dubino, Harold Harte, Edward Tirrell, Thomas O'Mahoney, Joseph Tanzola, Joseph McGonnell, Thomas O'Brien, and Anthony Zanin.

ITALIAN-ETHIOPIAN PROBLEMS IS TOPIC

Need of Colonial Possessions Given as Italy's Reason For "Undeclared War"

Italian-Ethiopian problems were discussed at the regular meeting of the International Relations Club last Thursday, by Rev. John Fitzmaurice, O. S. A., who is faculty moderator of the society.

In his address, Fr. Fitzmaurice expressed his views on the important question of Italy's aggressiveness toward her weaker neighbor. It was explained that Italy's main reason for her "undeclared" war on Ethiopia, stimulated by her overcrowded population, was the need of colonial possessions.

The discourse enumerated the economic needs of Italy in contrast to her diminishing economic resources. It also told of the advantages which were gained by England and France from their possessions, and of opportunities which were gained by England and France from their possessions, and of the opportunities which would be afforded Italy were she to establish a colony in Northern Africa.

This interesting discourse on the world-discussed affair dominated the attention of the assembly throughout the greater portion of the meeting and proved of benefit to the association.

An invitation has been extended to Fr. Fitzmaurice and to the members of the society to attend a lecture which will be given by Dr. Andre Siegfried, famed authority on international affairs, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia.

SPIRITED DEBATES MARK ARTS FORUM

Lively Discussion Heard In Inaugural Forensic Contest Last Tuesday

The regular scheduled forum of the School of Arts commenced with a debate, over which Joseph O'Laughlin, as chairman, presided. The question was soon turned into an open discussion.

The subject in the assembly was: Resolved, That Congress should be empowered to over-ride by a two-third majority vote, any five-four decision of the United States Supreme court declaring the laws of Congress unconstitutional.

The affirmative team was composed of Junior Artsmen. Victor Ash and Anthony Differ presented the arguments for the above side, and Joseph Carroll gave the rebuttal.

Sophomore Artsmen comprised the negative side. Edward Arnade and John Stahmann gave the arguments, while William Corkill presented the rebuttal.

Following the presentation of the debate, Mr. O'Laughlin made the announcement that an open discussion was to follow. Ralph Alvarez defended the affirmative team, and Richard Averall opposed him. The two aforementioned men gave very convincing arguments for their respective sides.

The debate proved to be very interesting and the speakers were very aggressive and determined in their arguments.

PETER'S PENCE TO SOLVE PROBLEM ABROAD

IT is undoubtedly safe to say that since the institution of Peter's Pence there never arose the question as to whether that annual collection for the benefit of the Vatican would ever be forced to be put to national use. However, that's just what is in the offing at the present time in Germany and Italy.

Both Benito Mussolini and Adolph Hitler are wrapped up in the tentacles of the deadly octopus, financial difficulties. But only last week a plan was submitted in Germany whereby the Catholic Church through the means of Peter's Pence could alleviate the strangling situation.

The Italian dictator would like to buy many commodities for his army and his foreign markets, but he his faced with the problem of lack of sufficient foreign exchange. Hitler would like to sell more German goods abroad but he can't find buyers. That is where the pennies from Peter's Pence come in.

Peter's Pence is the annual collection taken among Catholics in all countries for the support of the Pope. Originally called "Romfeoh" it was established in England and in Northern European countries in the eighth century. It became the principal support of the Pope once his temperal possessions and income were taken away by Italy.

At present in the Reich, because of the rigidity of the exchange control laws, which prevent the transfer of German currency abroad, Peter's Pence amounting to 16,000,000 or even 20,000,000 marks is lying idle in the banks. With this in mind the Italian government, it was reported last week, proposed that the Vatican accept an Italian credit in place of its claim to the Peter's Pence blocked in Germany. Then the procedure would be for Italy to take over the funds in the German banks and buy supplies in the Reich.

From the German angle the transaction would not improve the exchange situation, but it would decrease unemployment. Italy would obtain the goods she needs so badly and the Vatican would receive its funds.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FERA

IN HIS RECENT speech advocating a permanent work relief program, Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has offered the most feasible substitute for direct monetary relief that has been as yet forthcoming. For by now the fact is fairly obvious that both the taxpayer and the dependent are desirous of seeing some constructive change brought about in their respective relations. The taxpayer wishes to see some concrete example of the purposes to which his money is being spent, and the dependent is anxious to be released from the enforced idleness attendant upon Federal relief. In referring to this latter aspect of the change, Mr. Hopkins said "It will mean security without the sense of pauperization. It will change thousands of people over-night from public charges to self-respecting citizens."

The mechanical progress of industry has been such in the past few years that many of the individuals now on relief, have very little possibility of ever again attaining their former positions. Disagreeable as this thought is, the more rapidly that it is appreciated, the sooner can we expect definite provisions to be made for their maintenance, while there yet remains to them some vestige of their former self-respect and spirit. The State faced with the necessity of their support can more readily and more agreeably to them, engage their efforts in the operation and construction of public works, as it can continue to support them as public charges. Better housing, the reconstruction of roads, additional schools and playgrounds, are a few of the things that the State has both the facilities and need for. Although the program that will include such works will be necessarily more costly than the present system, it will be productive of more direct benefits to the community as a whole, than the uncertain continuation of the dole.

DEATH RIDES THE ROAD

ACCORDING to the latest Census Bureau reports it is disclosed that this is the month when more people try to beat the train to crossings, with fatal consequences, than any other month of the year. A number of other interesting facts brought to light by this survey of last year's accident field were: Enough people to populate a full sized city were killed by accidents last year. The total of deaths by accident for the year was 132,022, an average of 361 a day, almost 11,000 a month. In July, the high month, there were 14,509. February, the low month, had 9564. Definite trends for some of the types of accidents were noted by experts in comparing the figures with those of other years. For automobile accidents they found that, starting with February, the low month of the year, the number of deaths rose steadily through the spring, summer and autumn to a high in November.

There was a slight drop in December, another drop in January and a low in February. One explanation given—and none was fully satisfactory — was that fewer automobiles were on the streets in February, and more care was exercised because of icy street and roads. But as the weather became balmier and more vehicles took to the highways, there were more deaths through the summer and autumn, with fallen leaves adding to the hazard of the roads in the late summer. These appalling figures tell their own deadly story. Carelessness, drunkenness, the insatiable thirst for speed, all carry the Grim Reaper as a companion. Let each driver of an automobile keep these statistics in mind, for in this highly mechanized age Death Rides The Highway.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS

AT THIS time of the year, when our thoughts turn to things joyful in anticipation of the Yuletide, it would be appropriate to think of others who are less fortunate. If all of us would only take care of one poor family in our neighborhood and help them enjoy the season, then surely Christmas would mean more to us than just a time when we think only of ourselves.

ODDS and ENDS

Santa Claus, Esq.
North Pole

Dear Santa Claus:

Of course if there is nothing you can do about it I could still be happy with an electric train but to fill my hearth with columnar joy, to make this Yuletide season the happiest one in years, could you and would you, without straining the reindeer too much and without upsetting your sleigh, fill my gaping Xmas stocking with these?...

A night club where the tables are at least one size larger than two by two. A lovely set of ankles such as those Jack Feron displays beneath the scanty bottoms of his torrid blue, red and grey tweed slacks. A charming cap such as the one Bill Cleary wears these days to keep his dome heated. That man-about-town swagger that announces Ed "Powerhouse" Kelly as he strolls about the campus.

The abundance of hair that John Eck has despite his many, many years on this earth of ours. Some new wisecracks that won't be automatically credited to Dorothy Parker. A radio basso without "Wagon Wheels" in his repertoire. A ballroom couple that does not behave like a pair of lovers out on the dance floor and then proceed to battle to death in the dressing room.

Let me see...Oh, yes! A command concert by Harpo Marx on the harp as which he is a past master. A new coiffure for "Curly Locks" Vallee. A radio so that I can fix up that alarm-clock-radio awakening system that Charlie Bruno has perfected. The ability to repeat ideas, on national and international affairs, that I have heard my parents and other adults give forth and stun the classroom with my brilliance as does John Laurence McManus.

And then you might bring me a collection of pipes equal to that of Jack Hosey's. The argumentative ability to convince a number of my friends that "Peter Ibbetson" was a fine picture. The same goes for "Metropolitan." A little red hat like the one Jim Schell wears; I often wonder what it's like to feel as dumb as you look. A plaque to be placed on the playhouse to be built in honor of David Belasco, the theater's greatest showman.

Or is this asking too much, Mr. Claus? A show worthy of the efforts of Tallulah Bankhead. A definite answer, "yes" or "no" from my "next door neighbor," Katherine Hepburn, when asked even the very simplest question. A hillbilly who hails from a farther distance than the Grand Concourse, the Bronx. A startling red bow tie such as the one Jim Downs sports so that I, too, won't have to wear a muffler.

Hoping that you will see fit to fill my modest order, Mr. Santa Claus, I remain

Yours for a Merry Xmas
BEN MALONEY.

A YOUNG LADY started out her career of teaching English in the grades by laying down the law to the class. She told the youngsters just what was expected from them, and what was not. However, one of the tykes got impatient and inquired: "What are the words, teacher?"

As We See It . . . Reflections

By HARRY PARKIN

DESPITE the pother that is constantly being raised concerning the sanctity and inviolability of the Constitution it is well to bear in mind that there are laws which are superior and more demanding in our obligation to them — these are the moral laws, which are not only antecedent to the Constitution, but also the very principles upon which it has been founded. The laws of morality are the unwritten rules to the living of a perfect life. While the Constitution is but the codification of those parts which pertain to man's social behavior. So, it is only natural to conclude that the men most capable of interpreting the Declaration of Rights are those who by education, training, and experience are able to appreciate the principles that underlie it. In this latter respect, it is well to bear in mind, that the uniformity with which most men regard the principles of morality, is no deterrent to their various interpretations of it. So one infallible basis for judging the construction a man places upon the precepts of morality, is the consistency with which his own life is a reflection of their guidance.

When we cast our ballot it ceases to be a matter of party claims and personal affiliations, and becomes the disclosure of our individual concepts of morality. In failing to elect men of probity and rectitude, who are appreciative of these laws, we not only acknowledge our own sympathy with their ignorance or dishonesty, but likewise force upon other people the onus of having to tolerate them. The sincerity of a man's intentions are not enough to entitle him to our consideration in this respect, for ignorant sincerity can be as harmful to the body politic as outright dishonesty.

They, who are familiar with the distinction that Solon once made between the laws which, from his knowledge of the Athenian disposition and character, he formulated for their government and the ones he would have enacted if they had been of a different mold, will find no little astonishment from a comparison of the hesitancy of this man, who exercised so unusual an influence upon the people of his time, with the relative indifference to the public will, with which the law-maker of today abuses the confidence of his constituency by causing our statute books to be over-burdened with some of the most unjust and nonsensical pieces of legislation that is possible to a mind so contemptuously disposed. Similarly it is a matter for notation the consideration with which the respective peoples accorded the activities of their legislators. We remain comparatively indifferent to the activities of our public officials until we suddenly realize that the enforcement, of some recently enacted law, is not only irksome to the customary routine of our existence, but that it is also a curtailment of our personal liberties. With our early realization we may raise some little cry or two, which is usually ignored, and then expend ourselves in finding some furtive and secretive manner of breaking the law with the minimum of inconvenience to ourselves. What, however, we all fail to consider is the fact that any proximate satisfaction that may be derived from the violation of the law, is usually offset by the ultimate weakening of our regard for all authoritative promulgations, and its consequent break-down in our social standards.

Fame is to be distrusted for at best it is but the applause of the spectators, who are, too frequently, more occupied with the consequences of an action, than the principles that may have prompted it. Because it pays tribute to seeming and not being it is customarily more transient.

We have often wondered what mankind would do if he were suddenly deprived of the ability to exaggerate. Deny him the ability to exalt his favorites beyond their native worth, and to condemn his enemies lower than the real or fancied harm they have done him merits, and his life would cease to have meaning. He has become so accustomed to exaggerate his own abilities to himself, and his virtues to others, that in many cases, he has long since forgotten that exaggeration like many other vices will sooner or later find him out.

Adverse as we are to the addition of any more weeks to our already overladened calendar of dedications, we cannot, at the immediate writing, devise a more efficacious manner of impressing upon the minds of a number of otherwise agreeable the correct pronunciation of the word library. For contrary to their personal opinions in the matter they will fail to find a single "berry" in the library — although someone has intimated that there are a few "peaches."

Pass In Review

By R. L. G. DEVERALL

IT IS HELD by many scientists that religion and science are immiscible. These men say that once a man has attained the full use of his reason, he is, ipso facto, freed from the "superstitious practices and primitive beliefs" of such organizations as the Roman Catholic Church. Truth, the atheistic professor advises one, is the goal of the true scientist. Of course, no two scientists can agree as to the nature of truth — but why bring that up? Since Lucretius postulated his atomic theory, in "De Rerum Natura," men have attempted to deny the truism that God is Truth Itself. Today most of our large colleges and universities support professors and scientists who hold to the atheistic "explanation" of truth.

Many of us wonder whether religion is miscible with real science. We have not far to search for an answer. With all the noise made about Galileo, few know that Copernicus, the true astronomer of his time, was an humble Roman Catholic priest. But to come down to our own age, we have but to mention Louis Pasteur, one of the greatest scientists of modern times.

It is the mark of most scientific men that they hold themselves in high esteem. They may not realize it, but they cast God aside in order that they may exalt their own ego. They search for truth, they say, but we know that it is for a smug self-satisfaction and a sort of intellectual snobbery that they search.

A Catholic scientist is above this sort of thing. "Do you know why I desire so much to fight and conquer you?" wrote Dr. Louis Pasteur to Dr. Bastian, one of his great opponents; "It is because you are one of the principle adepts of a medical doctrine which I believe to be fatal to progress in the art of healing — the doctrine of the spontaneity of all disease. This is an error which, I repeat, is harmful to medical progress. From the prophylactic as well as from the therapeutic point of view, the fate of the physician and surgeon depends upon the adoption of the one or the other of these two doctrines."

Pasteur, the great scientist; Pasteur, the Catholic; Pasteur, who turned to ashes the words of Darwin, Huxley and H. G. Wells!

Pre-medical students — read the "Life of Louis Pasteur," by Rene Vallery-Radot. It is in the Villanova Library: Q - 143, P 2 V 36, 1923. Read this man's life. The memory of his faith in God, his objectivity, and his devotion to Holy Mother Church will stand behind you when you leave Villanova to work under atheistic scientists. Or should we not call them pseudo-scientists?

We hear that many fellows are interested in the problem of mercy-killing. What could be more appropriate than a new book: "Pain and the Providence of God." Martin D'Arcy, S. J., Master of Campion Hall, Oxford, is the distinguished author of this new book. Written is a most informal style, the book has great appeal. And, better yet, it contains a mere 132-page body.

Bruce Publishing Company, Milwaukee, Wis., has just published a Christian Life Calendar. The price is set at 50 cents each. Set up in handy pad form, every man in Villanova owes it to himself to procure a copy. Combined with use of the Roman Missal, this calendar helps one to appreciate the beautiful liturgy of the Mass.

Should this not appeal to you, perhaps mother or dad would like to receive a copy. Christmas is only a week hence!

Until next year, this department wishes you the best of good fortune, happiness, and God speed.

JANUARY 2 IS DATE FOR YOUTH CONCERT

Stokowski to Conduct; Miss Montgomery and Dancers On Program

The third Concert for Youth will be held on Thursday evening, January 2, in the Academy of Music at 7.45 P. M. Leopold Stokowski will conduct.

The soloists for this concert will be Mary Binney Montgomery and her dancers, who will give Strawinsky's "Sacre du Printemps." Miss Montgomery is already well known for her dancing with the Orchestra at Robin Hood Dell.

Over half of the dancers in her group are members of the Concerts for Youth Committees, including the entire Youth Drama Group. All vacancies in the group thia Fall were filled by Youth people. The "Sacre du Printemps" will be given approximately as it was last Summer at the Dell Concert.

The American premiere of the Diaghiloff ballet took place under the direction of Leopold Stokowski on April 11, 1930. In the presentation at the Youth Concert, the choreography will be Miss Montgomery's own creation.

The orchestral numbers on the program include: Tcheikovsky's Symphony No. 6, the selection which was chosen by the answers in the questionnaire at the last Youth Concert, Bizet's "Spanish Dance" and "Finlandia" by Sibelius.

Michaels Called Greatest Player

Jamison Swarts, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania; Earl Yeomans, graduate manager of athletics at Temple University; Alexander Severance, Villanova's graduate manager of athletics; Fred Ford, noted sports commentator; the Very Rev. Mortimer Sullivan, O. S. A., provincial of the Augustinian Order in the United States and Cuba; Phineas T. Vize, president of the National Alumni Association of Villanova; Thomas McCoy, president of the Philadelphia Alumni club, and Captain Edward Michaels.

Mr. Swartz claimed the city championship for his Alma Mater because as he says, Villanova beat Temple, Penn State walked over Villanova and the Quakers trampled the Lions.

Declaring that the one game Temple desires to win most is the Wildcat battle, Mr. Yeomans expressed the sentiment that if Temple had to lose a game then he would rather it be to Villanova.

Alumni president Phineas Vize, noting the large attendance, made it known to the graduates that he wishes to see an equally representative group at the Alumni Weekend in June. He congratulated the Philadelphia club for staging so successful and enjoyable affair.

Mr. Ford, praising Coach Stuhldreher, was of the opinion that if there was any truth to the rumors of Harry's leaving Villanova, it is up to the loyal alumni to keep him here.

Captain Michaels thanked the Philadelphia club in the name of the team for their loyal support during the football season and for the splendid banquet in their honor.

Thomas M. Dalton of Paoli, was the recipient of the Villanova Alumni Award, given annually to the alumnus of the college who is outstanding in his chosen field and has done loyal in his support of the college and its teams.

Joseph D. Freney Esq., was chairman of the banquet committee and Martin Gill, Jr., was toastmaster for the occasion.

Entertainment was supplied by Mickey Alpert and his Hotel Walton Penthouse Revue which included music by maestro Milton Kellem of the class of '32. Carmen Giordano, class of '36, rendered several popular and classical selections on the piano.

Joseph Hindsley and Billy McKee, two boys from Songland rounded out the entertainment.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

RED DAVIS in a series, "Forever Young," returns to the NBC networks in January... 'n while in this crimson mood, let's also tell you that Red Norvo, the torrid xylophonist, who led the Famous Door Band, will be the guest star of that other auburn-thatched individual, Red Nichols, on his weekly Friday night "Prom" broadcast over WJZ... Month after month Leo Reisman reports, the two favorite songs of social register listeners are "Star Dust" and "Song of the Island" . . .

Leith Stevens is conducting the tunicians on the Fred Allen show while Peter van Steeden's recovering from the loss of his appendix . . . Teddy Bergman portrayed his 800th different character role on his regular Thursday night broadcast over the CBS waves . . . Jack Benney's music may now be heard over the Canadian networks, on which he made his rep before coming to his native United States . . . According to his press agent, Don Bestor, ork leader, "credits dance music as being somewhat responsible for the rapid industrial progress of the United States" . . . If Don really believes this, he's durn more gullible than I am!

Ted Husing, sports announcer for the Columbia Broadcasting System, has announced his selections for the All-Radio football team of 935 and also outlined the high spots of the last season as he witnessed them from behind the microphone, while giving play-by-play descriptions of the thirteen outstanding games. The All-Radio team, which has been named for the last seven years as a means of giving recognition to the players who contributed thrills for the American radio audience, and a second team which Husing says is a very close runner up, is now presented as Ted picked it:

LE Hayes, Kansas.
LT Smith, Minnesota.
LG Glassford, Pitt.
C Jones, Ohio State.
RG Franco, Fordham.
RT Widseth, Minnesota.
RE Rees, Ohio State.
QB Sandbach, Princeton.
HB Simmons, Iowa.
HB Shakespeare, Notre Dame
FB Beise, Minnesota.

Ted says Simmons and Shakespeare on the first team and Meyer and La Noue on the second had to be included, although they are all halfbacks, because there was no possible choice between them. As substitutes for these players we have; Hayes, of Kansas; Millner, N. D.; Toll, Princ.; Pierce, Fordham; Rennebohm, Minn.; Dalle Tezze, Pitt.; De Herre, Iowa; Les, Princ.; Seidel, Minn.; Meyer, Army; La Noue, Nebraska; Patrick, Pitt. Husing and his assistants, Les Quailey, made the selection only from among the nineteen teams which they saw in action. The announcer listed the high spots of the year as follows:

Outstanding game: Notre Dame-Ohio State.

Outstanding team: Minnesota.

Outstanding band: Ohio State.

Best climax back: Andy Pilney, N. D.

Outstanding pass receiver: Larry Kelly, Yale.

Most surprising back: Whitey Grove, Army.

Greatest individual performance: Dutch Schmidt, Navy.

Best officiating: Red Friesall.

And so with the issuing of these very fine selections, Ted Husing closes the radio football broadcast after having demonstrated to be the most highly entertaining sports announcer ever to broadcast over the ether waves.

Accordion to Baker: Phil Baker still has the finest accordion he ever owned. He bought it on the instalment plan at a dollar a week, earning the money by selling patent can openers that wouldn't work and subscriptions to a German newspaper he couldn't read. The first tune he learned to play was "My Country 'Tis of Thee." He had to learn it or nothing. His sister kept singing it whenever he practiced.

Although Lennie Hayton has been on the air almost continuously for three and a half years, he has never played hotels and ballrooms. He contemplates doing so, however, when he embarks on a Southern barnstorming tour . . . Eleanor Powell, weary of being only a dancer, will add impersonations to her efforts on WABC's Tavern program . . . The Ford concert series, on this wave, during 1936 will bring to the mike such stars of the musical world as Jose Iturbi, Rose Bampton, Richard Binelli, Efrem Zimbalist and Nelson Eddy.

GLOBE TROTTING

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of interviews with foreign students attending Villanova College. In the past interviews with natives of Hawaii and Puerto Rico were written by Fred Waters.

CUBA

From an interview with Bernard LaRosa, native of Havana, Cuba, and Senior Engineer at Villanova.

REVOLUTIONS—"Do you have many revolts in Cuba?" Since the founding of our Republic we have had only two revolutions of any importance. These can be compared to your Revolution and Civil War.

In the recent case of President Macado, it might have seemed that since he was elected by a large majority in the elections held before his overthrow, that the greater number of Cubans desired him to stay in office when he was put out. However, it is the belief that Macado was elected on what you call "stuffed ballot boxes" many of the election officials being under his influence. Denied, in effect, the power of the vote, Cubans resorted to violence.

HAVANA—"Tell us about the "Traveler's Paradise." Havana is the Utopia of man's imagination. It is modern, it is beautiful beyond description. Its climate is as nearly perfect as can be found anywhere.

The visitor always marvels at our capitol, the second largest on the Continent, erected at the enormous cost of twenty four million dollars.

Our beaches also merit much praise. Their cleanliness, together with the powder-like softness of the sand, and the superb bathing, set them up as the enviable model of seashore resorts thruout the world. The traveler, in selecting Cuba for his vacation is choosing the best. In every respect Cuba is as you Americans say, "the tops."

SIMILAR TO U. S.—"Are Cubans educated?" Cubans in general are as educated as Americans; as a fact the percentage of illiterates in your country and mine is about equal. As here, compulsory education exists in Cuba. In these and in other matters Cubans are on an equal footing with your countrymen.

Betwen the life of a typical Cuban and an average American there is comparatively little difference.

I, as a native Cuban, feel almost as much at home (except that my family is not here) in this country as I do in my own. There is little difference outside of climate.

RHUMBA—"Tell us about the Rhumba." The Rhumba as played in America is often not a true reproduction of the Cuban music.

The Rhumba as portrayed by your orchestras is very bombastic and wild, usually being accompanied with many loud and noisy effects.

The Rhumba in Cuba is the exact opposite. It is low and charming—as soft as a summer's breeze.

Americans like to visit the Cabarets at night. Here they can dance out on the beautiful verandas, under the star-lit Southern skies, to the throbbing "El Panquelero" and other palpating Rhumbas, while the breaking waves, washing against the nearby beach, adds a refreshing background.

GRADS LEAD CLASSES

Walter Alessandroni and Joseph Clay Elected Class Presidents In Universities

Walter E. Alesandroni, who graduated from Villanova last June and was president of the senior group here, was recently elected to lead the freshman class at the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Mr. Alessandroni was also a member of the VILLANOVAN.

Joseph Clay was also elected to the same honor at Hahnemann Medical College by his classmates. Mr. Clay was actively engaged in extracurricular activities at Villanova and was a popular member about the campus.

L. K. D. to Hold First Reunion Dance Last Friday in February

Eve of Washington's Birthday Chosen To Enable Former Members Now in Medical Schools, to Attend Annual Affair

VILLANOVANS TO FURNISH RHYTHMS

Official permission for the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity to sponsor a dance on the last Friday of February was given to the organization by the Rev. B. M. Albers, O. S. A. vice-president of the college at its meeting last Thursday.

This event is to be featured as the first Annual Reunion Dance of the fraternity, and is to be held in the college gymnasium the night of February 21, 1936. The date of this dance was carefully decided; for it is the day before the national observance of the birth of George Washington. This will enable the former members of the organization, who are now attending medical school, to attend the function, because no school will be held for them on the following date. This fact coupled with that of many of the Alumni desiring to renew acquaintanceships with their former schoolmates is perhaps a strong insurance that the affair will be a success.

It is hoped that the event will also make history for the fraternity in that it is setting a precedent for the organization to hold a similar reunion annually.

Preparations and plans for the hop have not been acted upon as yet. It was, however, decided that the college band, namely the much-improved Villanovans, will supply the rhythm. The formal discussions of the affair indicate that the gymnasium will be decorated in a manner far superior to any attempt made this year.

It is important to note that this will be the last affair and of course the last chance for students to attend an affair of this sort on the campus until after Lent. It is expected that many of the students will take advantage of this fact and lend their support to the organization by attending.

At the last meeting a suggestion made by Fr. Albers was acted upon. Heretofore, a Board of Governors had been enforcing the laws of the Fraternity. Fr. Albers suggested that in its place a Board of Councillors be elected to confer with and present ideas to the members. The Board is to consist of two seniors, two juniors and one sophomore. The following are the members nominated as Councillors: Seniors — Kornfield, Welsh, and Keffer; Juniors — Mario Troncellitti, Joseph Tanzola, Tom Maye, Pio Goggi; Sophomores — David Gold, Edward Troncellitti, James Keegan, Louis Battafarano, Louis Centrella J. Gray, Edward Conti and Edward Weber.

Last Friday a special meeting of the board of Inductions was held, at which time all the upper classmen, who desired to be accepted into the fraternity, were present to be interviewed.

At a special meeting to be held today the Board of Councillors will be elected. At the same time if possible the results will be made public as how many of the upper classmen were accepted for induction into the organization. Plans for the dance will be discussed.

Editor's Note — Through a misunderstanding on a report from a member of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity it was stated in the last issue that the Rev. B. M. Albers, O. S. A., had rejected a revised constitution submitted to him for approval. It should be corrected that he did not reject the constitution but desired to make a suggestion to the effect the the Board of Governors of the organization should be substituted for by a Board of Councillors.

CLASS RINGS DUE TO ARRIVE TODAY

Few Changes Made in Design; Face and Position of Body Are More Pronounced

All members of the Junior Class of Villanova College who have paid their customary deposit to the ring committee will receive their class rings today.

The committee has selected the firm of Caldwell and Company, of Philadelphia, to do the work and from the samples shown, this year's ring is to be one of the finest in the history of the college. The general make-up of the ring is to be about the same with the exception of a few minor changes. The type of stones, shade and weight of gold to be used in the making of the rings are at the discretion of the students.

The face of the ring will be surrounded by the name of the college, while one side will have the Wildcat, degree, and name of the school attended; the other will contain the year of graduation, college seal, and a small Latin inscription which is found on all the seals of the college. The wildcat will be changed in a slight manner. The face and position of the body will be more pronounced than those on the rings in the past.

Felicitations are in order to Chairman John Donovan for the great work he has accomplished in this fine production. The members of the committee are also to be commended for their untiring efforts and cooperation in aiding the members of the class in making their choice of this year's ring.

Students who have not made their deposit for the early delivery of the rings may secure them at a later date when they have paid the necessary fees.

Library Donated Over 300 Volumes

erence books together with books that will aid students in the field of Commerce and Finance.

Rev. John Sparrow, O. S. A., Litt. D., has given many volumes on Philosophy, Biography, and Classical Literature, including reproductions of the Greek and Latin Codicles and manuscrips.

Rev. John O'Brien, O. S. A., Litt. D., has contributed over 60 volumes which are guides in the field of general survey of the English Language, and Literature.

Books on Mathematics and Literature have been given by Rev. John O'Leary O. S. A., M. S.

A set of 18 attractively bound volumes composed of Ciceros' complete works, translated into German, were donated by Rev. William Lunney, O. S. A., M. A.

"Through the generosity of the above benefactors the students are able to acquire a well grounded foundation of the principles applicable to the Business World, and a cultural background in the Philosophy of the Ancients, together with a sound knowledge of Literature both ancient Greek and Latin, along with modern French, Spanish, and German," said Fr. Falvey.

Seniors Who Ordered Graduation Photographs From Zamsky Co. May Get Them at Book Store

Seniors who have placed an order with the Zamsky Studios for photographs may obtain them at the college book store if they have not already received them.

Robert McGrory, editor of the Belle Air, also wishes, for the better progress of the yearbook, that all seniors who have not returned their proofs do so at once.

MONTHLY OF SOCIAL JUSTICE RELEASED

Villanova Student Is One Of Eastern College Group Editing Magazine

This week saw the publication of a new Catholic magazine, "The Christian Front." Featuring articles by Father La Farge, S. J., Dom Virgil Michael, O. S. B., and other noted Catholic authors, this new journal of social and historical opinion promises to be of interest to many men on the campus.

"The Christian Front" criticizes Marxist Communism, Fascism and Capitalism. It aims to popularize the teachings of Popes Leo XIII and Pius XI. A stirring editorial concludes with these words: "The Christian Front" is opposed to those teachings which would reduce man to the status of an irrational animal, a servant of the State, an economic unit, an anonymous individual or a Godless product of a bio-chemical process."

Edited in part by a Villanova student, this magazine is now on sale in the Pie Shop. It sells for 10 cents the copy, $1 per year. Copies have been placed in the library.

This new magazine is edited by a group of young students in Eastern colleges. It does not have any official connection whatever with any of the institutions at which the editors are students.

the signing of a contract with the selected orchestra. Whereas the total of the pledges was of fair size, it did not compare with the amount of underwriting contributed toward the Junior Prom of last year.

It is hoped that this does not mean a falling off of class interest, and it is believed that the difference will be made up in time to choose a band with as great a reputation and box-office attraction as that of last year.

No further plans were made public concerning the Senior Ball, but it is understood that the committee has not ceased work, and expects only to intensify their activity over the vacation period. The call for the fulfillment of the pledges within three days of the return to college is the most important feature of Senior Class news for the next three weeks.

Annual Christmas Dances Arranged

mas dance held by the Wilkes-Barre Club. All of the former dances have been very successful and because of their popularity with the club members. Will Kearney's Orchestra will furnish the music for the sixth consecutive year.

In the North Jersey Club Christmas dances have been held for six years. This year's dance is expected to be the most elaborate to date. The widely famous Frank Richian Orchestra will entertain.

The officers for the current year in the North Jersey Club are: Edward Carlin, president; Arthur Carleton, vice-president; John Cronin, secretary; Edwin Reilly, treasurer.

Wilkes-Barre Club officers are: John J. Dempsey, president; John Noll, vice-president; Charles C. Betz, treasurer; Edmund Virusky, secretary.

Both Mr. Dempsey and Mr. Carlin expressed the opinion that their clubs would have a banner year in social activities and they contend that the Christmas affair is only a beginning.

MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Student Ability Is the Constant—Academic Standards Variable, O. Course!

An obliging correspondent tells of a young student at a State university in the deep south who had a merry time making a "B" average. His family was voting right, says the correspondent. Then he transferred to a private college and his marks went steadily down until, in an effort to recoup, he plagiarized another's work and was expelled.

In this little problem, you must understand, the student's ability is the constant, and the academic standards are the variables.

Now to complete the problem, you have to name the State university involved.

Several Tie For First Places In Quarter Ratings

Freshmen Arts Students Vie In Triple Tie For Honors

In the ratings issued for this quarter, there is shown to be much competition in the School of Arts and Philosophy, particularly in the Freshman class.

In this class there are three ties for first place and four ties for the second highest rating. In the Sophomore class there are two men sharing first honors.

A. S. C. E. SOCIETY HEARS SPEAKERS

Charles Kain, Edward McHugh Present Interesting Lectures At Yesterday's Meeting

Charles Kain and Edward McHugh yesterday presented an exceptionally interesting lecture and demonstration on "Advantages of the Filter Aid" at the regular meeting of the student chapter of the A. S. C. E.

This lecture, presented in detailed fashion and accompanied by illustration slides, was one of the most successful given this semester before the tudent chapter. The advantages, as presented by Mr. Kain, proved rather conclusively that the filter aid is most desirable in most cases of filtration. Some of the many advantages that Mr. Kain cited were the increase in the ordinary life of the filter several times over, the effectiveness of its application, and the simplicity of application.

In a second discourse, Joseph Hooven talked on the "Delaware and Chesapeake Canal Project." This proved to be very interesting to the engineers because of the many practical aspects in the project as revealed by Mr. Hooven.

At the conclusion of Mr. Hooven's talk it was announced that a series of lectures on welding are being given at the Engineers' Club. Anyone interested in these lectures may obtain the scheduled dates from John Schlotterback.

Arthur Carleton, treasurer of the society, made a blanket request that the 1935-36 dues be paid by all members so that the application for the student charter may be made immediately.

STAFF MEETING

The next issue of the VILLANOVAN will appear January 14. As the student body returns to school on January 5, all staff members are expected to attend the regular meeting of the staff in Room 119, Mendel Hall, on Jan. 7, at 1 P. M.

COOPERATION URGED BY YEARBOOK HEAD

All Available Material of Belle Air Must Be in by Last Of Year

At a very important meeting of the Belle Air staff on last Wednesday afternoon the members of the publication were addressed by Mr. William Cook, of the Clark Printing House, in Philadelphia. Mr. Cook stressed the need of cooperation by every member of the yearbook staff if a successful annual is to be ready on time. He stated also that it would be advisable to have all assignments turned in and all available material in the hands of the printers no later than the last week of December.

In order to comply with this suggestion Robert McGrory, editor of the annual, ordered that all work must be in by Friday, December 13. The editor asked as many of the members of the staff as could possibly do so to put some of their free time on the publication.

"Up until the present time the co-operation of the staff has been fairly good, but now some of the fellows are beginning to lag. It seems to me that we are carrying a lot of dead wood, and something has got to be done about it," McGrory further stated.

Concerning the same subject, Rev. Daniel Falvey, O. S. A., moderator of the Belle Air, said, "After the mid-years there is going to be a list of active staff members posted. Some fellows are going to find themselves out in the cold, for we can't afford to carry along any laggers."

Because of the strength of the talks by Father Falvey, Mr. Cook, and editor McGrory, the staff has become very active, and the Belle Air is now progressing rapidly into form.

mere reasoning and deduction. The reopening of the kidnap question should prove of interest to the audience following the comments of Mr. McCabe.

A few opinions given on criminals as a whole were the cause and mental capacity of law breakers. Heredity, environment, economic troubles, and mental quirks were eliminated as a sure cause of criminal offense and up to the present time no other reasons have been aptly supplied. The popular phrase "Honor Among Thieves," was also ridiculed by the speaker.

Forsaking a case to appear at Villanova, Mr. McCabe further won the admiration of his student audience with small stories and humorous sidelights. Men of his caliber should, in the future, be encouraged by a more complete attendance than has been shown in the past.

WINTER SPORTS READY

The intramural sports' winter schedule will be announced after the Christmas vacation. This announcement was made by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., moderator of intramural sports.

As per usual, it is hoped that a keen interest will be shown, in order to make the program, which has been arranged, a success.

Beta Gamma Becomes Active Force; Students Aroused to Participate

Beta Gamma has finally become an active force in Villanova's competitive circles. For the past few years debating had been reserved to those students who found it possible to attend the weekly Tuesday night meetings.

Day students, and those who had evening classes, however interested they were in debating, found it impossible to take part in this cultural activity. As a result of this, few men joined Beta Gamma. These choice few gained places on the teams regardless of their abilities. Inexperience, unprepared they left an unenviable record.

When Prof. Anthony J. Frayne assumed his duties as moderator of the Literary Society this fall, he realized that this deplorable state of affairs could not continue very long. The authorities were justly becoming more unwilling to lend any financial support. Student interest was practically nil.

Beta Gamma was facing a crisis. Prof. Frayne immediately went into action. The legislative body of the organization was reorganized. Offices left vacant by graduation were filled. The constitution was sand-blasted. Necessary laws were passed. The society was rejuvenated.

The nucleus was formed. The foundation was laid, but, the student still had to be interested. From every public speaking class, the most promising speakers were selected. Not Tuesday night but every afternoon was designated as a meeting time. Not only intercollegiate, but inter-school, and even inter-class debates were planned.

At this early date the society can boast that every plan has been successful. Every school, every class has at least one representative team, and each team is an active organ. They are working, planning, preparing for the ultimate goal, i. e. to gain a berth on the team that will represent Villanova in intercollegiate debates.

Sportorial

By A. R. C. Sports Editor

In a recent meeting of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference held last Saturday, Professor P. O. Badger, chairman of New York University's board of athletic control stated that his opinion of the athletic status has been unchanged for three years. For it was at that time that he said: "The subsidizing and recruiting had not subsided, but was being conducted more intensely than ever: that if no improvement took place, intercollegiate football would expire in 10 years." Professional football would take its place.

Continuing with his discussion Professor Badger went on to point out the evils arising from the over-emphasis of the great American game, some of which were the tremendous spread of public interest, placing great responsibility on the shoulders of policy framers and administrators. Our answer to this so called evil is that the policy framers and administrators in the greatest number of instances want exactly what the learned speaker claims they would be pleased to avoid. Other evils he depicts are; the excessive drinking at the games, excessive gambling—"Which may cause havoc;" and disorderly conduct at the games "which in a measure may be attributed to a lowered respect for the games on the part of the spectators because of the general ballyhoo and commercialization so rampant today."

—V—

Again, our answer regarding these points is: The college officials cannot control and are not responsible for the actions of individuals at the Saturday classics. Its very true that every game has its drunkards and gamblers but the number in this group is very, very small as compared to the number that go to the tussles to watch twenty-two young men match wits with one another. Despite the fact that some institutions rely on these so-called scholarship men to put on the weekly spectacles, these same men rely on the institution for their education, so the balance is even.

—V—

Intramural activities have come into their own at Villanova, within the past two weeks fifteen contests have been staged and although some have been one-sided games, still the general run of them have proven to be "naturals." The best game was staged between Alumni and Austin with the latter eking out a victory in the waning seconds of play on Tom's follow-up shot.

Tim Mendel dayhop contingent proves to be the surprise outfit of the current campaign, heretofore the "commuters" have taken only a half-hearted interest in the intramural functions, but with a brilliant array of freshmen on the squad the dayhops are destined to go a long way.

—V—

Immediately, after the return from the Christmas holiday the winter sports calendar in Intramurals will be announced by the Intramural Athletic Council This announcement will be of interest to all.

—V—

The varsity football schedule, which has just been released, includes ten games. Boston University is the only new opponent, as the others have been met in recent years.

—V—

About this time, their appears the demand for the meeting of the All-Stars in Professional and Collegiate ranks, last Saturday a combination of college players, met and were defeated by the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National Grid Loop, by a 14-0 score. In the tabulation of scores arising from such encounters, it would seem that the "pro" players are still superior to the college athletes.

—V—

Thru this column the members of the VILLANOVAN sports staff wish to extend to the student body a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

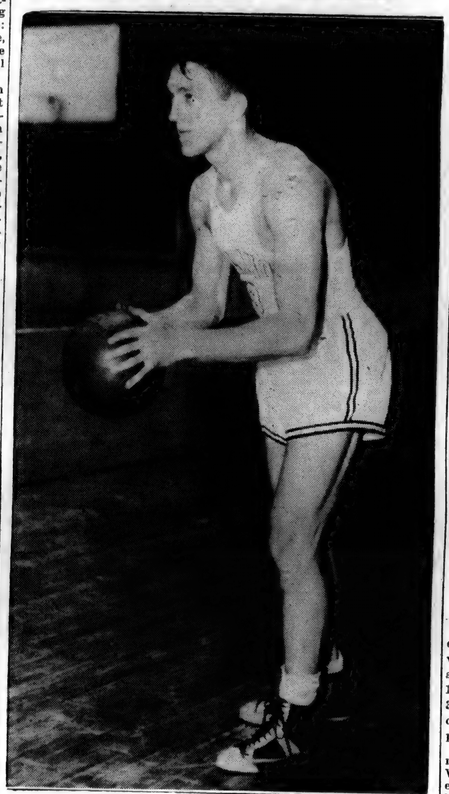
FOOTBALL SCHEDULE READY

BASKETBALL LEADER



Pictured above is Ben Geraghty, sensational leader of the Villanova quintet. Although he saw little action last year due to a back injury, the Wildcat leader is considered one of the best players to appear on the local court. He has started this season by playing the same fast game that made him dangerous in his two previous seasons.

Ten Games Listed For '36 Campaign of Gridders

Opening Game With Baltimore University Sept. 19; Penn State Detroit, Bucknell, P. M. C. and Temple Remain

MANHATTAN MET AT NEW YORK CITY

Football Schedule
For 1936

Sept. 19	U. of Balt.	Home
" 26	P. M. C.	Home
" 10	Penn S	Away
Oct. 3	Detroit	Home
" 17	West. Md.	Home
" 24	Boston U.	Home
" 31	Bucknell	Away
Nov. 7	S. Carolina	Away
" 14	Temple	Phila., Pa.
" 21	Manhattan	Away

Villanova's football schedule for 1936, as announced last Saturday by Rev. Charles A. Melchoir, O. S. A., Faculty Moderator of Athletics, will consist of ten games. Five of these are to be played at Villanova and five abroad.

Boston University is the only newcomer on the schedule, but next season will see the return to the schedule of Baltimore U., South Carolina and Manhattan, two teams which have engaged the Wildcats in recent years. Detroit, Penn State, Western Maryland, Bucknell, and Temple are important holdovers from the 1935 schedule.

With the addition of Manhattan and the retention of the five most difficult foes the past season Villanova is faced with its toughest schedule in several years. This is undoubtedly true for more than one reason.

First of all it is a ten-game schedule, beginning very early on September 19. To make a creditable start at this early date it will be necessary that the team swing immediately into the smooth, powerful offensive it displayed last year.

Detroit Plays Here

The first big test of the 'Cats will be when they entertain the Detroit Titans on the home grounds in the third game. The Titans were one of the two clubs which managed to defeat the Blue and Wite in 1935, and they will no doubt put another tricky, hard-charging team on the field in '36.

This is to be followed by the second revenge game, this one with the Nittany Lions of Penn State, and a fray with Western Maryland, a perennially strong outfit. Thus Villanova fights its two "grudge" battles early in the season and on successive Saturdays.

On the week after the Western Maryland game the Boston U. contest is scheduled. This Boston team shapes up as something of a "dark hore," and the game, which is to be played on the Main Line gridiron is the big question of the season.

The schedule next calls for the 'Cats to travel, first to Lewisburg to meet Bucknell's Thundering Herd and then to Columbia, S. C., to engage the South Carolina Gamecocks. The Bisons gave the Wildcats a good fight and can be counted on to put on a battle-royal, South Carolina after a rather poor season this year is due to be on the rebound.

Temple Date Fixed

Then on Saturday, November 14, is the traditional contest with Temple, the climax of the whole season. This game which usually is played on the Saturday immediately preceding Thanksgiving has been moved up because of a conflict in Temple's schedule. The Owls have a game with the University of Iowa which can be played only on November 21; thus

VILLANOVA HANDED FIRST DEFEAT BY WESTMINSTER FIVE

Wildcats Wage Courageous Battle Against Giant Foes; Bennett's Goals Fatal, 31-25

Villanova's Wildcats were handed their first basketball defeat when a smooth functioning, deadly shooting Westminster quintet from New Wilmington, Pa., registered a 31-25 victory in the opening game of a double header at the Philadelphia Arena last night.

The Blue and White was at a terrific disadvantage in height as Westminster's warriors all towered over the six-foot mark, but Villanova used its speed and alertness to good advantage and managed to give the visitors a stern battle all the way.

Inability to penetrate Westminster's zone defense and the all-around brilliancy of Wes Bennett, Titan star, caused Villanova's downfall. The Wildcats had difficulty working the ball past midcourt and had to rely upon long shots to stay in the game. Bennett, a lad with class written all over him, lived up to pre-game forecasts and in spite of Villanova's close guarding he managed to tally 13 points, caging five field goals and three fouls.

Captain Ben Geraghty featured Villanova's play with a personal rampage in the second half which netted four field goals. Charlie Noonan, sophomore forward, tallied a pair of twin pointers in the first half and Mike O'Meara scored twice during a late Villanova rally. Don Brennan, who attended at guard and center, played a good defensive game.

Pay College Athletes?

By EDWARD COLLINS

Much has been said concerning the subsidizing of college athletes; some comments have been justified while others have no place at all in the sports curriculum.

The word subsidize as defined in one of leading approved dictionaries is to furnish assistance—one who contributes aid or supplies. Some colleges approve of this means to promote the welfare and building of character of its football team.

First let me say that I am heartily in favor of the paying of athletes for performing on the athletic field, particularly the gridiron warriors.

Some boys have no financial means of securing a college education and if some wealthy member of the alumni or a friend of the college deems him a worth while specimen of manhood to mingle with other boys pursuing higher education—in addition to cavorting on the chalk-ribbed field—then he would be within his rights in putting the boy through college—and it should be no concern of some self-styled partisan football followers.

People who live in glass houses should never throw stones. Much truth is contained in the above passage. I am making reference to Professor Owen of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The professor, father of one of the best athletes to graduate from old John Harvard, claims Notre Dame, Ohio State and his own alma mater, Harvard, among others to be the leaders in the art (?) of proselytizing.

The boomerang is that the good prof. even lists the Crimson as paying the athletes, "but," he says that was about twelve years ago." There must be something to that for if Dick Harlow had a hand in selecting "play-for-pay" athletes then he did a very poor job as the Cambridge boys experienced a sorrowful campaign in '35.

In the case of Notre Dame many people would not even give it a second thought that the Irish would give any remuneration to its football players. The Professor when brought to task about the South Bend institution wired them and did a fine bit of hedging by inserting an "if" clause.

The university at Columbus has no kick coming at all. Openly, then making a public issue of Jesse Owens being placed on the payroll at

FROSH BASKETEERS RETURNED WINNERS IN PAIR OF GAMES

Felines Defeat Westminster In Opening Contest By 40-22 Score

TRINITY TOPPLED 43 - 15

With two decisive victories within four days, the Villanova freshman quintet opened its 1935 season. Westminster and Trinity fell before the Kitten onslaught by scores of 40 to 22, and 43 to 15, respectively. Wednesday night saw the Philadelphia aggregation fall victim to the yearling machine, while the Berwyn representatives went under in the preliminary to Saturday night's Villanova - Western Maryland encounter.

In their initial fray the yearlings started slowly but as the game progressed began to find the basket and roll up the score. At half time they had scored 21 points, more than half their total for the evening. The visitors opened the scoring with a field goal and a foul, only to be overtaken in short order by the Main Line stalwarts, who quickly tallied two field goals and a foul.

Coach Severance started his first team, composed of Montgomery, Hopkins, Vigilante, Krutulis, and Dubino, and these lads made it possible for the whole squad to see action. After ten minutes of action, the Westminster lads found themselves on the short end of a 10 to 3 tally. This lead was widened to 21-11 at half time.

With the beginning of the second half, Severance's men continued where they had started in the first canto, and the starting lineup, which had re-entered the fray, totaled nine points in quick succession. The regulars were replaced and the spree continued with the reserves increasing the count to a final score of 40-22.

Carrig Stands Out

Stars in this game were Carrig, with four field goals and a foul leading in the scoring, Montgomery, Hopkins and Vigilante. The tall boy from Ohio had seven points, while the latter two each counted on less. Vigilante was also outstanding in the guard position. Lawrence, of the Philadelphia institution, was the game's high scorer with a dozen points.

Saturday's game saw the second team open and ten minutes of play found the Villanovans with a goose egg to their credit and seven points for the Episcopalians from up the line. Hart then sank a two-pointer and that started the Kittens. They slowly ate away their opponent's lead, and with the entry of the first team, quickly ran the score up with 11 points in succession without the Churchmen touching the hoop. The score at half-time was 18-11.

The offensive power of the yearlings was shown in the second half. Allowing their foes only four points the Feline machine swished the nets for twenty-five counters, to end the evening's spree with an average of slightly over a point a minute.

Vigilante continued his stellar playing at guard, often stealing the ball away from the Berwynites, and Carig and Dubino led the offensive with ten and eleven points, respectively. Wolf, of the visitors scored practically half of his team's points, the State capitol as an honorary page. Owens justly deserves anything he receives, but the university authorities have no comeback at all.

To sum everything up, this business—and it is a business in some colleges—can be traced to the medium of the press. Statements are made about the hiring of athletes by people who mean nothing to the athletic world. Immediately the newspapers carry the torch and it spreads like a prairie fire. The person making the statement becomes a national figure overnight—then a lull in the criticism—all is peaceful once more—and the door is opened to other schools to follow the practice. No matter what comes or goes subsidizing will continue.

Mr. Norton C. Paden
The VILLANOVAN
Box 1,
Villanova, Pa.
Dear Norton:

Am very sorry to inform you that I will be unable to be your guest writer again this week. I am overjoyed to learn that you wish me to take over your column for the second consecutive issue; for it means that you were satisfied with the one I wrote last week.

Honestly speaking, Norton, I am all out of material. I gave everything I had last week. You know it is rather difficult for a staff writer to take a column over in such short time. However, knowing you probably have made other plans, and hating to disappoint you entirely, I am forwarding you all the information I have at hand concerning the young man to be honored this week.

Following is a brief summary of the life of Daniel H. Murphey, Jr.: Twenty-one years ago there lived in the City of Asheville, N. C., a family by the name of Murphey. On a particular day in 1914 Mr. Daniel Murphey was pacing back and forth the long corridor in a large N. C. hospital. Nervous as the dickens, he was. Finally the family physician beckoned to Mr. Murphey and announced it was a boy. Right then and there the overjoyed father determined that his son should be named Dan Jr. Believe it or not, Norton, this same Dan Jr. is the lad you know at Villanova.

When he became of age, Dan entered an Asheville grammar school. After finishing three years there, his family packed their bags and came up to the great metropolis of Philadelphia. Dan never did like North Carolina then; and he claims he would not like living there now. The climate is too dry, he says, but I wonder if it's the climate that is too dry?

After completing six years of grammar school, Dan enrolled at Shaw Junior High School. Besides being a member of the relay team that came in first in the 1928 track meet held at Franklin Field, he was an outfielder for the baseball team.

Murphey got by his three years of junior high school O. K., and thence became a student at West Philadelphia High School. At this institution he found time to play two years of both varsity football and baseball. Dan was rewarded for his excellent ability by receiving two leters in football and one in baseball. In his senior year he played guard on an undefeated team.

Upon graduating from W. P. H. S., Murphey decided to attend a prep school before entering college. The Mercersburg Academy, of Mercersburg, Pa., was his choice. Before he left he had stowed away a letter for both football and baseball. It was during this season that Mercersburg had one of their best gridiron records, losing only to the Villanova Frosh. On the Kittens' squad that year were such men as Harry Patzsch, Jojo Wiesenbaugh and Bernie Lee, who later became Wildcat stars.

Dan put in one year at prep school and then decided he was about ready for college. In the fall of 1932 he matriculated at Villanova College as an Arts student. By Arts I do not mean Fine Arts but the Classical Arts. As a frosh he played guard for the Kitten eleven.

Sophomore year found Dan a quarterback on the varsity football squad. He played in five games. At the close of the gridiron season Dan joined the Jayvee basketball squad, playing a guard position.

While out for fall practice with the Wildcat eleven in Junior year Murphey was hurt. His knee injury never healed completely; so he was forced to quit varsity football. However, he joined up with the 150-pound team and finished the season. He also participated in intramural basketball and wrestling besides coaching the day-hop basketeers.

Now Dan finds himself in his last year at Villanova. He has just finished playing 150 football and intends to go out for intramural basketball. At present he is also a member of the Penn A. C. Jayvee basketball team.

Although most of his time was taken up by participation in athletics, Dan did find time for social activities. He was a V. C., a member of the Epsilon Phi Theta, vice-president of the Spanish Club, and member of the Sophomore Cotillion Committee, all in his second year. In his junior year he was listed on the Junior Prom Committee.

Well, Norton, I believe I have included all information I have on Daniel H. Murphey, Jr. I hope it will be of some help to you. Again I should like you to know how next time.

Hoping to be of better assistance sorry I am to turn you down.

I remain,
P. M. V.

Seton Hall Bows to Villanova in Season's Opener, 37-28; Western Maryland Falls By 32-16 Score

PIRATES KEEP WILDCATS ON EDGE

By NORTON C. PADEN

Commencing their basketball season in a triumphant but far from impressive fashion the Wildcat quintet repulsed the attacks of an aggressive Seton Hall team last Wednesday in the Villanova gymnasium.

The 'Cats were slow in starting their campaign and held slim leads of 10 to 5 and 13 to 7 before the brief spurt just before the half which netted them the score of 20 to 11 as the gun went off.

A very determined Pirate five took the floor at the beginning of the third period and things began to happen. Seton Hall continually found the basket with the long shots that held the Main Liners on even terms during the last half.

The Wildcats led 26 to 11 when Ed Pietranski, Jack McNally, and Joe Markewicz started to find the rim and the visitors crept up to 26 to 17 before the home boys could get their breath. Immediately, however, the 'Cats moved the total to 31 to 19. The final score was checked up at 37-28.

Seton Hall again cut the margin of the score to within six points and the Jacobs' Men began to fight back desperately. Good shooting from the foul line helped the Villanovans in their win as they caged 11 of its 19 tries while the New Jersey boys could only sink 2 out of 15 tries.

Mike O'Mera a senior basketeer and former North Catholic High star and Harry McNally, sophomore ace from Fordham Prep, led the attack with nine points apiece. The former tallied field goals and a foul while McNally tallied two twin pointers and also made a perfect five out of five from the foul line.

Captain Geraghty Shines

Captain Ben Geraghty at forward played a splendid game contributing two big ones and two little ones for six points. Pietranski, and the Pirate McNally led the scoring for the visitors each making eight points and playing great defensive games to boot.

Fresh from their triumph over the boys from Seton Hall the Cats engaged the Green Terrors from Western Maryland, last Saturday night in the Villanova gymnasium and rapidly reduced them to pale, befuddled schoolboys.

Again as in the previous game ragged cracks showed in the Wildcat attack but they will be ironed out in the weeks of practice ahead in the opinion of this scribe.

The Jacobsmen were in a bad spot, barely able to match the pace of the Terrors when Coach Doc Jacobs made a lucky move. Yanking three veterans he replaced them with a trio of sophomore rookies.

Quickly seizing upon the opportunity of having fresh players on the floor the Villanova boys went to town. Chalking up five points in a row they broke the 7 to 7 deadlock and the 'Cats were leading at half-time, 12 to 7.

During the second half following their first half incentive they quickly outdistanced the Terrors and at the final gun the game was in the bag for Villanova with the final score standing 32 to 16 in favor of the 'Cats.

Brennan Shares Honors

Don Brennan, sophomore substitute for Tom Ryan at the pivot post, heaved four field goals in this second half barrage and thus shared high scoring honors with his classmate, McNally. The latter made three field goals and two fouls.

The other sophomores, Charles Noonan and Abe Collins, lent a helping hand in the point-making with seven and six apiece, and by their passing aggressiveness and general deportment played major roles in Villanova's second triumph of the season.

Joe Uvanni, who did the center jumping for Western Maryland, was the invaders' most accurate shot. He flipped two field goals and three

VILLANOVA'S GRID PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR '36 SEASON

Sophomore Stars Will Supply Bulk of Material For Starting Eleven

LINE LOSES MICHAELS

With the loss of but six seniors by graduation, the prospects for next year would point to an even more powerful football team than that with which the Blue and White machine took the field in the past season.

Harry Stuhldreher will have his first team almost complete, with the only serious losses occurring in the unreplaceable Captain Eddie Michaels, universal choice for All-American guard, and in the backfield.

The problem of filling Michaels position is a serious one. Eddie played superhuman football the entire three years of his varsity play and was a bulwark of strength on the line. No guard even approaching the caliber of Michaels has been seen at Villanova in the past 15 years, and indications seem to be that a successor to the stocky captain is not imminent. Head Coach Stuhldreher will obviously feel the need of another Mike next year when Temple hammers at our one-yard line.

The line situation is not a problem, excluding the headache of that big hole at left guard, formerly tenanted by a scowling Wildcat, continually without a headgear, whose stockings always came down.

Backfield Material Abundant

In the backfield, the situation seems well under control. Johnny Higgins' graduation will be keenly felt at the quarterback post. Higgins was a superb field general and punt handler. His blocking was his strong point, and in this, he held a slight edge over Bill Christopher, next year's signal caller.

Nick Kotys' shoes will be capably filled by the quartet of shifty halfbacks: Ray Stoviak, Frannie Nye, Jerry Sherlock and Andy "Popper" Stopper. These four boys are equally fast and shifty, besides carrying considerable heft. They are all heavier than the general run of halfbacks at Villanova for the past several years.

At fullback, the situation remains the same. The present line plungers, two of whom will be playing for two years more, are Artie Ralmo, Jack Earle and Dick Emmerling, a senior next year.

On the line, Captain-elect Tony Sala and George Fox, holdovers from last season's first team will continue to hold down the wing posts, ably assisted and abetted by Steve Dora, Mike Carback and Alex Bell.

All Tackles Remain

The tackles have lost no men via the diploma route, with Johnny Rogers, Jordan Olivar, Johnny Mellus, Val Rizzo, Pat Marquette and Oliver Volpe. These six average something over 225 pounds.

The guard situation is the only

Competition Runs High In Inter-Dorm Basketball

Mendel Dayhops Lose First Place in Race For League Supremacy to Austin Hall in Hectic Game

TOTIN IS BRILLIANT FOR LEADERS

By GENE LOORAM

Playing on the court in their own dormitory, the Alumni quintet defeated the C. and F. Day Hop team by a score of 34-30 in a free shooting contest. The marksmanship of both teams was outstanding and good offensive play predominated.

On Monday afternoon Fedigan Hall played the other Day Hop team that represents Mendel Hall. In contrast to the previous game there was very little scoring and the final tally stood at 12-10 in favor of the residents. This marked Fedigan's first victory while the C. and F. team has yet to garner a win.

The business men met their third setback in a row when Austin Hall defeated them by an overwhelming margin of 11 points; the final score being 31-20. The Austinians have a firm grip on first place but it is well to remember that only half of the first-half games have been played.

In the first game of a double-header on Tuesday night Austin downed the Mendel boarders 29-25 but only after a hard struggle. In the first 10 minutes of play Austin ran up an imposing lead of 14-4. However, Mendel rallied and at half-time were only four points behind with the score standing at 16-12. Play continued evenly for the final half and Austin maintained their four-point advantage to the very end. An outstanding feature of this game was the accurate foul shooting of Costello, who shone for Mendel Hall.

Alumni Trounces Fedigan

In the concluding game of the evening the Alumni five once more clicked and beat Fedigan handily, running up points at will to the tune of 41-30. Alumni is fortunate in having two of the best players who are engaged in intramurals in the persons of Pantaleo and O'Connell.

On the following afternoon the Mendel Day Hops surprised everyone by annihilating the Alumni forces. They shot basket after basket to run the score up to a 38-32 count. With 10 minutes left to play the score stood at 23-29 but the Day Hop five tallied 15 points in rapid order to display the most powerful offense yet seen in the tournament.

Three games were played on Thursday. The first one, an afternoon game, resulted in the C. and F. Day Hops emerging victorious over Fedigan Hall. The Fedigan team has displayed the most in and out play of the league. One moment they look like champions and the next moment they look as though the playing of basketball is the furthest thing from their minds. This triumph marked the first credit in the win column for the ComFort boys as compared with three debit entries.

In the first game of the evening the Frosh quintets met; in their second clash they played an exciting game. Alumni lost a one-point decision to Austin about two weeks ago but this time Dame Fortune smiled on the green-shirted boys and they finished up on the right end of a 25-24 score. Pantaleo was outstanding for the victors both offensively and defensively.

Fedigan Drops Another

To wind up the week's schedule the two upper class dorms clashed once again Austin was victorious. The game was rather slow and the outcome was never in doubt. Totin and Murphy played their usual fine game for the victors while Fedigan once more displayed their ability to be inconsistent.

Reflections on the first 15 games ...the closeness in the standing... the playing of Pantaleo, Agnes, Totin, and McCabe . . . Austin's "breaks"...Fedigan in the cellar?

This afternoon the C and F dayhops will meet the Alumni quintet and in the tussles slated for tonight finds the leading Austinite aggregation meeting Alumni Hall; note that the Old Fortress clan has two engagements on the same day. To wind up the schedule before the holidays Fedigan and Mendel will battle it out for the cellar position.

it was necessary to move the Villanova-Temple fray up to the 14th.

The Wildcats will wind up this strenuous campaign against the Manhattan Jaspers at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn. This final game, though anti-climactic looks to be the toughest of the season with the possible exception of the Temple fracas. The Jaspers were very strong this year, losing one game and tying another in a nine-game schedule. The loss was to the powerful Louisiana State eleven and the tie game was played with the undefeated Holy Cross Crusaders.

The schedule as a whole is difficult, but the 'Cats although missing keenly several men by graduation seem to have the stuff to come through in fine fashion.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

THE VILLANOVA football team will be back on South Carolina's schedule next year after a year's lapse...The Gamecocks and the Wildcats will come to grips on the 7th of November, at Columbia, S. C....The Jaspers of Manhattan have also been slated for a post on the Main Liners' 1936 layout...

A newcomer to Villanova gridiron foes will be the strong Boston University eleven...The Bay State team rated just a notch below Holy Cross and Boston College during the past campaign...

Very few games will be played on the home loam next season... Bucknell Bisons will be host to the Wildcats at Lewisburg, and Western Maryland, hitherto always played at home, will come to grips with the 'Cats at Baltimore, Md... The second game of the infant series with Penn State will see the Nittany Lions and the Wildcats squaring off at State College...

As usual the annual contest with Temple will see Villanova visiting the City Line stadium in the latter part of November...

With seven games definitely settled two open dates remain to be filled...Ursinus and LaSalle have been dropped from the list...In the former case we are sorry to see the Bears go but hope to have them back in the near future...Relations with the Collegeville institution have been conducted in a manner creditable to any collegiate institution...The Explorers from Olney Heights present a different story...The two teams started relations two years ago—with Marty Brill's eleven startling the football world by scoring a 13-6 win over a mediocre Wildcat team...This year the Explorers were trampled to the tune of 20-0 (one of the many trampings they received)...The exhibition of sportsmanship displayed by them was far from what is taught in other colleges...

Charley Loughlin, he of the raucous voice who holds forth at the football games at Villanova, has something to be proud of...Charley was the first basketball mentor at the Wildcat institution...The team, 1919-20, won quite a few games against formidable opposition...

The name Wildcats was given to the Villanova team when Harry Stuhldreher first took up the coaching reins...After Harry selected a first team he mustered together a bunch of scrubs to scrimmage the varsity...These lowly scrubs were given the monicker Wildcats and it has followed athletic teams up to the present day...

Big Bill Hollenback, All-American from the University of Pennsylvania, brought to light the fact that forward passing had its origin at the Main Line college... Frank Crowley, a Dartmouth star, tutored the Villanova squad during 1907-08-09-10 and innovated the aerial game...Some football fans will claim that the famed aerial circus of Gus Dorais, and the late Knute Rockne were the originators, but such was not the case...Dorais is at present coaching the University of Detroit.

From all indications the boxing team of Villanova will be no more ...At the present time little or nothing has been done about moulding a team together...There is not the semblance of a coach, as Joe Foley, last year's mentor has been forced to look elsewhere for employment, and schedule-making has not been given a thought...

Game Starts Slow

Five minutes had elapsed before either team could score. Then Sterling Fowble sank a two-pointer for the Terror quintet. Ryan, of Villanova, followed him a few minutes later to tally his team's first points. From this point things began to happen, Western Maryland got the range of the basket and proceeded to take advantage of the fact that the Wildcats could not get going.

However with the introduction of the sophomore substitutions things began to go the other way for Doc Jacobs. Immediately upon entering the game Collins pulled a shot, the new boys were made to feel at home, from this point on it was all Villanova.

setback. Joe Missar will take Vidnovio's place, and Villanova will have no trouble through the right side of the line. Missar is a steady and capable player, who displayed a fine brand of ball all season in relieving Max. To fill Michaels' shoes with Ed Sydnor and Mike Hanna is the question. Can Stuhlie bring out the playing ability sufficiently to take care of left guard.

At center Bunny Galazin will continue the pivot post, understudied by Johnny McKenna and Bill Thompson.

In reviewing the 1936 grid situation, the prospects seem fully favorable with this year. Villanova will face a schedule of a much sterner caliber, and will achieve a wider recognition by playing in three metropolitan centers.

Sophomores Lead Varsity Quintet To Wins

FROSH BASKETEERS RETURNED WINNERS IN PAIR OF GAMES

Felines Defeat Westminster In Opening Contest By 40-22 Score

TRINITY TOPPLED 43-15

With two decisive victories within four days, the Villanova freshman quintet opened its 1935 season. Westminster and Trinity fell before the Kitten onslaught by scores of 40 to 22, and 43 to 15, respectively. Wednesday night saw the Philadelphia aggregation fall victim to the yearling machine, while the Berwyn representatives went under in the preliminary to Saturday night's Villanova - Western Maryland encounter.

In their initial fray the yearlings started slowly but as the game progressed began to find the basket and roll up the score. At half time they had scored 21 points, more than half their total for the evening. The visitors opened the scoring with a field goal and a foul, only to be overtaken in short order by the Main Line stalwarts, who quickly tallied two field goals and a foul.

Coach Severance started his first team, composed of Montgomery, Hopkins, Vigilante, Krutulis, and Dubino, and these lads made it possible for the whole squad to see action. After ten minutes of action, the Westminster lads found themselves on the short end of a 10 to 3 tally. This lead was widened to 21-11 at half time.

With the beginning of the second half, Severance's men continued where they had started in the first canto, and the starting lineup, which had re-entered the fray, totaled nine points in quick succession. The regulars were replaced and the spree continued with the reserves increasing the count to a final score of 40-22.

Carrig Stands Out

Stars in this game were Carrig, with four field goals and a foul leading in the scoring, Montgomery, Hopkins and Vigilante. The tall boy from Ohio had seven points, while the latter two each counted on less. Vigilante was also outstanding in the guard position. Lawrence, of the Philadelphia institution, was the game's high scorer with a dozen points.

Saturday's game saw the second team open and ten minutes of play found the Villanovans with a goose egg to their credit and seven points for the Episcopalians from up the line. Hart then sank a two-pointer and that started the Kittens. They clinched the victory their opponents' lead, and with the end of the first team, quickly ran the score up with 11 points in succession without the Churchmen touching the hoop. The score at half time was 18-11.

The offensive power of the yearlings was shown in the second half. Although their tallies only four points, the Frame machine swished the nets for twenty-five counters, to end the evening's spree with an average of slightly over a point a minute.

Vigilante continued his stellar playing at guard, often stealing the ball away from the Berwynites, and Carrig and Dubino led the offensive with ten and eleven points, respectively. Wolf, of the visitors scored practically half of his team's points.

the State capitol as an honorary page. Owens justly deserves anything he receives, but the university authorities have no comeback at all.

To sum everything up, this business and it is a business in some colleges can be traced to the medium of the press. Statements are made about the hiring of athletes by people who mean nothing to the athletic world. Immediately the newspapers carry the torch and it spreads like a prairie fire. The person making the statement becomes a national figure overnight—then a lull in the criticism—all is peaceful once more—and the door is opened to other schools to follow the practice. No matter what comes or goes subsidizing will continue.

Mr. Norton C. Paden
The VILLANOVAN
Box I,
Villanova, Pa.
Dear Norton:

Am very sorry to inform you that I will be unable to be your guest writer again this week. I am overjoyed to learn that you wish me to take over your column for the second consecutive issue; for it means that you were satisfied with the one I wrote last week.

Honestly speaking, Norton, I am all out of material. I gave everything I had last week. You know it is rather difficult for a staff writer to take a column over in such short time. However, knowing you probably have made other plans, and hating to disappoint you entirely, I am forwarding you all the information I have at hand concerning the young man to be honored this week.

Following is a brief summary of the life of Daniel H. Murphey, Jr.: Twenty-one years ago there lived in the City of Asheville, N. C., a family by the name of Murphey. On a particular day in 1911 Mr. Daniel Murphey was pacing back and forth the long corridor in a large N. C. hospital. Nervous as the dickens, he was. Finally the family physician beckoned to Mr. Murphey and announced it was a boy. Right then and there the overjoyed father determined that his son should be named Dan Jr. Believe it or not, Norton, this same Dan Jr. is the lad you know at Villanova.

When he became of age, Dan entered an Asheville grammar school. After finishing three years there, his family packed their bags and came up to the great metropolis of Philadelphia. Dan never did like North Carolina then; and he claims he would not like living there now. The climate is too dry, he says, but I wonder if it's the climate that is too dry?

After completing six years of grammar school, Dan enrolled at Shaw Junior High School. Besides being a member of the relay team that came in first in the 1928 track meet held at Franklin Field, he was an outfielder for the baseball team.

Murphey got by his three years of junior high school O. K., and thence became a student at West Philadelphia High School. At this institution he found time to play two years of both varsity football and baseball. Dan was rewarded for his excellent ability by receiving two leters in football and one in baseball. In his senior year he played guard on an undefeated team.

Upon graduating from W. P. H. S., Murphey decided to attend a prep school before entering college. The Mercersburg Academy, of Mercersburg, Pa., was his choice. Before he left he had stowed away a letter for both football and baseball. It was during this season that Mercersburg had one of their best gridiron records, losing only to the Villanova Frosh. On the Kittens' squad that year were such men as Harry Patzsch, Jojo Wiesenbaugh and Bernie Lee, who later became Wildcat stars.

Dan put in one year at prep school and then decided he was about ready for college. In the fall of 1932 he matriculated at Villanova College as an Arts student. By Arts I do not mean Fine Arts but the Classical Arts. As a frosh he played guard for the Kitten eleven.

Sophomore year found Dan a quarterback on the varsity football squad. He played in five games. At the close of the gridiron season Dan joined the Jayvee basketball squad, playing a guard position.

While out for fall practice with the Wildcat eleven in Junior year Murphey was hurt. His knee injury never healed completely; so he was forced to quit varsity football. However, he joined up with the 150-pound team and finished the season. He also participated in intramural basketball and wrestling besides coaching the day-hop basketeers.

Now Dan finds himself in his last year at Villanova. He has just finished playing 150 football and intends to go out for intramural basketball. At present he is also a member of the Penn A. C. Jayvee basketball team.

Although most of his time was taken up by participation in athletics, Dan did find time for social activities. He was a V. C., a member of the Epsilon Phi Theta, vice-president of the Spanish Club, and member of the Sophomore Cotillion Committee, all in his second year. In his junior year he was listed on the Junior Prom Committee.

Well, Norton, I believe I have included all information I have on Daniel H. Murphey, Jr. I hope it will be of some help to you. Again I should like you to know how next time.

Hoping to be of better assistance sorry I am to turn you down.

I remain,
P. M. V.

Seton Hall Bows to Villanova in Season's Opener, 37-28; Western Maryland Falls By 32-16 Score

PIRATES KEEP WILDCATS ON EDGE

By NORTON C. PADEN

Commencing their basketball season in a triumphant but far from impressive fashion the Wildcat quintet repulsed the attacks of an aggressive Seton Hall team last Wednesday in the Villanova gymnasium.

The 'Cats were slow in starting their campaign and held slim leads of 10 to 5 and 13 to 7 before the brief spurt just before the half which netted them the score of 20 to 11 as the gun went off.

A very determined Pirate five took the floor at the beginning of the third period and things began to happen. Seton Hall continually found the basket with the long shots that held the Main Liners on even terms during the last half.

The Wildcats led 26 to 11 when Ed Pietranski, Jack McNally, and Joe Markewicz started to find the rim and the visitors crept up to 26 to 17 before the home boys could get their breath. Immediately, however, the 'Cats moved the total to 31 to 19. The final score was checked up at 37-28.

Seton Hall again cut the margin of the score to within six points and the Jacobs' Men began to fight back desperately. Good shooting from the foul line helped the Villanovans in their win as they caged 11 of its 19 tries while the New Jersey boys could only sink 2 out of 15 tries.

Mike O'Mera a senior basketeer and former North Catholic High star and Harry McNally, sophomore ace from Fordham Prep, led the attack with nine points apiece. The former tallied field goals and a foul while McNally tallied two twin pointers and also made a perfect five out of five from the foul line.

Captain Geraghty Shines

Captain Ben Geraghty at forward played a splendid game contributing two big ones and two little ones for six points. Pietranski, and the Pirate McNally led the scoring for the visitors each making eight points and playing great defensive games to boot.

Fresh from their triumph over the boys from Seton Hall the Cats engaged the Green Terrors from Western Maryland, last Saturday night in the Villanova gymnasium and rapidly reduced them to pale-befuddled schoolboys.

Again as in the previous game ragged streaks showed in the Wildcat attack but they will be ironed out in the weeks of practice ahead in the opinion of this scribe.

The Jacobsmen were in a bad spot, barely able to match the pace of the Terrors when Coach Doc Jacobs made a lucky move. Yanking three veterans he replaced them with a trio of sophomore rookies.

Quickly seizing upon the opportunity of having fresh players on the floor the Villanova boys went to town. Chalking up five points in a row they broke the 7 to 7 deadlock and the 'Cats were leading at half-time, 12 to 7.

During the second half following their first half incentive they quickly outdistanced the Terrors and at the final gun the game was in the bag for Villanova with the final score standing 32 to 16 in favor of the 'Cats.

Brennan Shares Honors

Don Brennan, sophomore substitute for Tom Ryan at the pivot post, heaved four field goals in this second half barrage and thus shared high scoring honors with his classmate, McNally. The latter made three field goals and two fouls.

The other sophomores, Charles Noonan and Abe Collins, lent a helping hand in the point-making with seven and six apiece, and by their passing aggressiveness and general deportment played major roles in Villanova's second triumph of the season.

Joe Uvanni, who did the center jumping for Western Maryland, was the invaders' most accurate shot. He flipped two field goals and three

VILLANOVA'S GRID PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR '36 SEASON

Sophomore Stars Will Supply Bulk of Material For Starting Eleven

LINE LOSES MICHAELS

With the loss of but six seniors by graduation, the prospects for next year would point to an even more powerful football team than that with which the Blue and White machine took the field in the past season.

Harry Stuhldreher will have his first team almost complete, with the only serious losses occurring in the unreplaceable Captain Eddie Michaels, universal choice for All-American guard, and in the backfield.

The problem of filling Michaels position is a serious one. Eddie played superhuman football the entire three years of his varsity play and was a bulwark of strength on the line. No guard even approaching the caliber of Michaels has been seen at Villanova in the past 15 years, and indications seem to be that a successor to the stocky captain is not imminent. Head Coach Stuhldreher will obviously feel the need of another Mike next year when Temple hammers at our one-yard line.

The backfield situation is not a problem, excluding the headache of that big hole at left guard, formerly tenanted by a scowling Wildcat, continually without a headgear, whose stockings always came down.

Backfield Material Abundant

In the backfield, the situation seems well under control. Johnny Higgins' graduation will be keenly felt at the quarterback post. Higgins was a superb field general and punt handler. His blocking was his strong point, and in this, he held a slight edge over Bill Christopher, next year's signal caller.

Nick Kotys' shoes will be capably filled by the quartet of shifty halfbacks: Ray Stoviak, Frannie Nye, Jerry Sherlock and Andy "Popper" Stopper. These four boys are equally fast and shifty, besides carrying considerable heft. They are all heavier than the general run of halfbacks at Villanova for the past several years.

At fullback, the situation remains the same. The present line plunging two of whom will be playing for two years more, are Artie Ralmo, Jack Earle and Dick Emmerling, a senior next year.

On the line, Captain-elect Tony Sala and George Fox, holdovers from last season's first team will continue to hold down the wing posts, ably assisted and abetted by Steve Dora, Mike Carback and Alex Bell.

All Tackles Remain

The tackles have lost no men via the diploma route, with Johnny Rogers, Jordan Olivar, Johnny Mellus, Val Rizzo, Pat Marquette and Oliver Volpe. These six average something over 225 pounds.

The guard situation is the only

Competition Runs High In Inter-Dorm Basketball

Mendel Dayhops Lose First Place in Race For League Supremacy to Austin Hall in Hectic Game

TOTIN IS BRILLIANT FOR LEADERS

By GENE LOORAM

Playing on the court in their own dormitory, the Alumni quintet defeated the C. and F. Day Hop team by a score of 34-30 in a free shooting contest. The marksmanship of both teams was outstanding and good offensive play predominated.

On Monday afternoon Fedigan Hall played the other Day Hop team that represents Mendel Hall. In contrast to the previous game there was very little scoring and the final tally stood at 12-10 in favor of the residents. This marked Fedigan's first victory while the C. and F. team has yet to garner a win.

The business men met their third setback in a row when Austin Hall defeated them by an overwhelming margin of 11 points; the final score being 31-20. The Austinians have a firm grip on first place but it is well to remember that only half of the first-half games have been played.

In the first game of a double-header on Tuesday night Austin downed the Mendel boarders 29-25 but only after a hard struggle. In the first 10 minutes of play Austin ran up an imposing lead of 14-4. However, Mendel rallied and at half-time were only four points behind with the score standing at 16-12. Play continued evenly for the final half and Austin maintained their four-point advantage to the very end. An outstanding feature of this game was the accurate foul shooting of Costello, who shone for Mendel Hall.

Alumni Trounces Fedigan

In the concluding game of the evening the Alumni five once more clicked and beat Fedigan handily, running up points at will to the tune of 41-30. Alumni is fortunate in having two of the beat players who are engaged in intramurals in the persons of Pantaleo and O'Connell.

On the following afternoon the Mendel Day Hops surprised everyone by annihilating the Alumni forces. They shot basket after basket to run the score up to a 38-32 count. With 10 minutes left to play the score stood at 23-29 but the Day Hop five tallied 15 points in rapid order to display the most powerful offense yet seen in the tournament.

Three games were played on Thursday. The first one, an afternoon game, resulted in the C. and F. Day Hops emerging victorious over Fedigan Hall. The Fedigan team has displayed the most in and out play of the league. One moment they look like champions and the next moment they look as though the playing of basketball is the furthest thing from their minds. This triumph marked the first credit in the win column for the ComFort boys as compared with three debit entries.

In the first game of the evening the Frosh quintets met; in their second tilt they played an exciting game. Alumni lost a one-point decision to Austin about two weeks ago but this time Dame Fortune smiled on the green-shirted boys and they finished up on the right end of a 25-24 score. Pantaleo was outstanding for the victors both offensively and defensively.

Fedigan Drops Another

To wind up the week's schedule the two upper class dorms clashed once again Austin was victorious. The game was rather slow and the outcome was never in doubt. Totin and Murphy played their usual fine game for the victors while Fedigan once more displayed their ability to be inconsistent.

Reflections on the first 15 games ...the closeness in the standing... the playing of Pantaleo, Agnes, Totin, and McCabe . . . Austin's "breaks"...Fedigan in the cellar? This afternoon the C and F dayhops will meet the Alumni quintet and in the tussles slated for tonight finds the leading Austinite aggregation meeting Alumni Hall; note that the Old Fortress clan has two engagements on the same day. To wind up the schedule before the holidays Fedigan and Mendel will battle it out for the cellar position.

it was necessary to move the Villanova-Temple fray up to the 14th.

The Wildcats will wind up this strenuous campaign against the Manhattan Jaspers at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn. This final game, though anti-climactic looks to be the toughest of the season with the possible exception of the Temple fracas. The Jaspers were very strong this year, losing one game and tying another in a nine-game schedule. The loss was to the powerful Louisiana State eleven and the tie game was played with the undefeated Holy Cross Crusaders.

The schedule as a whole is difficult, but the 'Cats although missing keenly several men by graduation seem to have the stuff to come through in fine fashion.

with seven. The entire squad again saw action, and gave promise of continuing the record set by last year's basketeers.

In Carrig and Krutulis, Coach Severance has a pair of fine running mates to Montgomery, Dubino and Vigilante. In the two games the thirty-niners showed themselves to be a fighting and able aggregation.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

THE VILLANOVA football team will be back on South Carolina's schedule next year after a year's lapse...The Gamecocks and the Wildcats will come to grips on the 7th of November, at Columbia, S. C....The Jaspers of Manhattan have also been slated for a post on the Main Liners' 1936 layout...

A newcomer to Villanova gridiron foes will be the strong Boston University eleven...The Bay State team rated just a notch below Holy Cross and Boston College during the past campaign...

Very few games will be played on the home loam next season... Bucknell Bisons will be host to the Wildcats at Lewisburg, and Western Maryland, hitherto always played at home, will come to grips with the 'Cats at Baltimore, Md.... The second game of the infant series with Penn State will see the Nittany Lions and the Wildcats squaring off at State College...

As usual the annual contest with Temple will see Villanova visiting the City Line stadium in the latter part of November...

With seven games definitely settled two open dates remain to be filled. Ursinus and LaSalle have been dropped from the list...In the former case we are sorry to see the Bears go but hope to have them back in the near future...Relations with the Collegeville institution have been conducted in a manner creditable to any collegiate institution...The Explorers from Olney Heights present a different story...The two teams started relations two years ago—with Marty Brill's eleven startling the football world by scoring a 13-6 win over a mediocre Wildcat team...This year the Explorers were trampled to the tune of 20-0 (one of the many trampilings they received)...The exhibition of sportsmanship displayed by them was far from what is taught in other colleges...

Charley Loughlin, he of the raucous voice who holds forth at the football games at Villanova, has something to be proud of...Charley was the first basketball mentor at the Wildcat institution...The team, 1919-20, won quite a few games against formidable opposition...

The name Wildcats was given to the Villanova team when Harry Stuhldreher first took up the coaching reins...After Harry selected a first team he mustered together a bunch of scrubs to scrimmage the varsity...These lowly scrubs were given the monicker Wildcats and it has followed athletic teams up to the present day...

Big Bill Hollenback, All-American from the University of Pennsylvania, brought to light the fact that forward passing had its origin at the Main Line college..., Frank Crowley, a Dartmouth star, tutored the Villanova squad during 1907-08-09-10 and innovated the aerial game...Some football fans will claim that the famed aerial circus of Gus Dorais, and the late Knute Rockne were the originators, but such was not the case...Dorais is at present coaching the University of Detroit.

From all indications the boxing team of Villanova will be no more ...At the present time little or nothing has been done about moulding a team together...There is not the semblance of a coach, as Joe Foley, last year's mentor has been forced to look elsewhere for employment, and schedule-making has not been given a thought...

fouls in four tries for a total of seven counters.

Game Starts Slow

Five minutes had elapsed before either team could score. Then Sterling Fowble sank a two-pointer for the Terror quintet. Ryan, of Villanova, followed him a few minutes later to tally his team's first points. From this point things began to happen. Western Maryland got the range of the basket and proceeded to take advantage of the fact that the Wildcats could not get going.

However with the introduction of the augmented substitutions things began to go the other way for Doc Jacobs. Immediately upon entering the game Collins pulled a shot, the new boys were made to feel at home, from this point on it was all Villanova.

setback. Joe Missar will take Vidnovic's place, and Villanova will have no trouble through the right side of the line. Missar is a steady and capable player, who displayed a fine brand of ball all season in relieving Max. To fill Michaels' shoes with Ed Sydnor and Mike Hanna in the question. Can Stahlie bring out the playing ability sufficiently to take care of left guard.

At center Bunny Galazin will continue the pivot post, understudied by Johnny McKenna and Bill Thompson.

In reviewing the 1936 grid situation, the prospects seem fully favorable with this year. Villanova will face a schedule of a much sterner caliber, and will achieve a wider recognition by playing in three metropolitan centers.

MEMBERS CONSENT TO DISBAND FRAT

Seen as Move Toward Breakdown of Honorary Organizations

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

GREENCASTLE, IND., Dec. 16—Beginning of a general movement for the abolition on the Indiana University campus here of honorary fraternities that fail to justify their existence, and perhaps of social fraternities also, was predicted by student leaders following the announcement recently that members of Phi Delta Gamma, honorary journalistic, debating, and dramatic fraternity, had decided to disband.

The action was commended by Dean C. E. Edmondson, who said, "If the members of Phi Delta Gamma felt that their organization was not doing any constructive work and was, therefore, not justified, they did the wise thing by disbanding. Undoubtedly there are other organizations on the campus that are not justified."

Members of the fraternity were influenced by general campus criticism of the organization, accused of performing no function not adequately handled by Theta Alpha Phi, Tau Kappa Alpha or Sigma Delta Chi, serving the same fields, dramatics, debating and journalism, respectively, that were purported to be served by Phi Delta Gamma.

The Daily Student, Indiana paper, has long advocated a clean-up of honorary organizations.

BROKER ENVIES BROTHER'S LIFE

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 — Charles R. Gay, recently chosen president of the New York Stock Exchange to succeed Richard Whitney, admits that occasionally, when he has time, he envies his brother, Robert Malcolm Gay, professor of English and dean of the graduate division of Simmons College, Boston.

"My brother leads a life exactly contrary to mine," Gay says plaintively. "He spends his time quietly, under no pressure. He visits his friends of the intellectual circles of Boston, goes to the Boston Symphony concerts, and studies."

Engineer Reveals Ideal Conditions For Road Mishap

Survey Leads to Formulation Of the Factors Involved In Smash-Ups

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 16 — If you're driving between 7 and 8 o'clock on a clear day, preferably Saturday or Sunday, during the month of December, in a passenger car, on a straight dry, well-paved road in the country AND have had a couple of drinks — watch it, because you're heading for a crash.

So says Prof. Harry Tucker, director of the North Carolina Engineering Experiment Station and head of the highway engineering department. He draws the picture from statistics gathered during his long experience as a highway authority.

In addition to the setting for the ideal fatality depicted above, the car is most likely to be in good condition, with four-wheel brakes and balloon tires, the driver between 25 and 54 years of age, and with one or more years of driving experience.

SCORES OVER-EMPHASIS IN COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Educational Leaders Denounce Useless Publicity Seeking

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Rochester, N. Y., December 16—"Loyalty oaths," and the "ballyhoo of college athletics" were denounced here by educational leaders gathered for the formal induction of 34-year-old Alan Valentine, former master of Pierson College at Yale, as fourth president of the University of Rochester.

Dr. Valentine, who was a star athlete at 5 -arithmore and a member of the Olympic team at Paris in 1928, spoke out against over-emphasis of inter-collegiate athletics. President Angell of Yale, speaking at a luncheon which followed the induction, denounced the compulsion of loyalty oaths as "transforming education into propaganda."

"There are those who would judge a university by the number and extent of its columns in the public press," Dr. Valentine charged. "They reflect too clearly the tempor of American life today.

We shan't say what college paper this item came from, but it goes like this: "We regret to state that we did not have the information about John — — — correct. He is not an instructor, but a fellow. MEDICAL SCHOOLS LOWER STANDARD

Financial Stringency Caused By Depression Seen As Prime Factor

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, Dec. 16—The standards of the medical schools, once among the highest, have been lowered in recent years, asserted The Journal of the American Medical Association in this year's review of educational conditions in the United States and Canada.

Undermanned faculties, overcrowded laboratories and the acceptance of students of below-par scholastic records have resulted in an imparment of efficiency, according to the publication.

Responsibility for the situation is largely attributed to financial stringency during the depression, which has compelled some schools to rely more largely on income from student fees. The Journal says that larger numbers of students have been accepted for the money they bring in, pointing out that in most cases the teaching staff has not been correspondingly strengthened or the physical plant commensu tely enlarged.

We read of a foreign prize-fighter who was expelled from the California boxing association for fighting set-ups. It is our opinion too that the home set-up industry should be protected regardless of the cost.

College Background Becoming More Essential to Government Positions

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16—In the third year of the New Deal most division chiefs in Washington are found to be of the opinion that the day of the old style government clerk and government official is over, that the college-trained man and woman will eventually replace them in all positions of any importance.

The emphasis is not so much on youth as it is on the possession of a broad background to supplement training or information in a particular field. And it is felt by bureau heads that such a background is most frequently found among college trained applicants for government jobs.

One reason for this may be that in Washington today bureaus often change overnight, take on new names and new functions in order to meet special emergencies. Entirely new staffs to do the new work are not advisable. What government officials usually think is preferable is to have people on their staffs whose equipment is equal to making lightning changes from one type of work to another, as their sections take on new duties.

Solves Problems

Another reason is that the wider the field of knowledge of an employee, the more likely he will be to get inspirations for the solution of difficult problems and tough assignments. It may sound a bit farfetched but there have been some hard nuts cracked, some seemingly hopeless tangles unraveled because someone remembered something Plato wrote or Johnson said that strangely enough contained in it the kernel of an idea from which the solution of an official problem or a departmental dilemma was evolved. And bits of college-taught psychology, sociology, and economics have raised their welcome heads in strange corners in many bureaus and saved the day time and time again.

Ideals Needed

For these and other reasons government chiefs, especially in the new bureaus, are showing an increasing preference for college people. However, they want college graduates with both feet on the ground. They're strong for burning enthusiasm and glowing idealism but not beyond the point where it becomes entirely divorced from realities and probabilities. There are mountains, they point out to new young college people they hire, that cannot be moved in a day, nor by the most direct method.

The WPA, the NRA, the AAA, the new Social Security Board and the National Labor Relations Board being formed, can be counted on to show a strong predilection for college people, whenever adding personnel. In the old line departments, the Children's Bureau and the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Department of Agriculture and the Department of the Interior are outstanding for the emphasis placed on college training in considering applicants for jobs.

Collegians Preferred

Of course, whenever out and out technicians and professional people are required, such as physicists and chemists for the Bureau of Standard, engineers for the PWA, etc., college trained people have almost complete preference, even where it is possible to pick up the required training in industry.

One type of college person that comes to grief here however is the young man or woman who projects classroom data into the office too obviously. Division officials prefer academic theory checked against day by day observation. They do not, by the way, have any objection to anyone making an academic theory out of experience gained through government work. It happens constantly. It is not an exaggeration to say that a whole series of new postulates about prices could be worked out as a result of the data accumulated by young people associated with AAA price maneuvering. And the contributions to sociological research of FERA field people, all of them college trained, is comparable to the best research being done in that field by academic bodies.

Change Unexpected

There may be a shift in the trend, a shift away from the growing emphasis toward employing college graduates. If there is the result will be a slowing down of governmental machinery

COLLEGE PRESIDENT GIVES RADIO TALK ON SCHOOL'S WORK

Describes How Nearby Residents Are Surprised At Villanova's Facilities

SHOWS RAPID STRIDES TOWARD SCHOOL'S IDEAL

Says Villanova Remains "Small College" Despite Increased Enrollments

Speaking to residents of the Philadelphia rea in a radio address given over Station WIP Saturday, January 4, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., S. D., president of Villanova College, gave a detailed account of the educational work of the college. Despite their residence in the ear vicinity many of Fr. Stanford's listeners do not fully understand and evaluate this educational program when they could e sily obtain first-hand information.

"From time to time," declared Fr. Stanford, "it has been our experience to welcome to our campus nearby residents who have expressed surprise at the exceptional facilities which they have found there for the higher education of young men. They have passed through the college grounds either on the Lincoln Highway or on the Main Line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, or on the Philadelphia & Western Railway, without ever having under-tood much about the institution whose grounds and buildings they have admired. For this reason, I welcome the opportunity to contribute a brief account of Villanova College in this series of talks on the work of the various charitable and educational institutions of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia."

Fr. Stanford then proceeded to trace the history of the school and show how it has made many and rapid strides towards the goal of ideal educational work which all such institutions desire to attain.

In conclusion Fr. Stanford stated, "Villanova has always prided itself

HONORED BY STATE

WILLIAM O. MUNROE, senior engineer, who together with Harry C. Podall, senior science student, has been appointed to serve on the Council for Adult Education and Youth Program by Dr. Lester K. Ade, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, on the recommendation of Very Rev. E. V. Stanford O. S. A., president of Villanova.

TWO SENIORS GIVEN COVETED POSITIONS

William Munroe, Harry Podall Selected to Serve On Educational Councils

Upon the recommendation of Very Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villano a, two members of the senior class, William O. Munroe and Harry C. Podall, were appointed to the Council for Adult Education and Youth Program, in Delaware and Montgomery counties.

The particular purpose of these appointments is to give young people a voice in the administration of the Youth Program. Mr. Munroe is the delegate for Delaware County while his classmate, Mr. Podall, is the representative for Montgomery County. Each council is composed of citizens of the county who are representatives of the various civic, educational and social interests. The recommendation which was requested of Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., was done by Dr. ester K. Ade, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The meeting of the councils will be held on the third Monday of every month in the County Superintendent's office. The Delaware Council will conduct its meetings at the county seat in Media, while the representative s for the Montgomery County council will meet at Norristo n, the county seat for that locality. The candidates selected from Villanova College were

HOLY NAME SOCIETY ANNOUNCES DRIVE

Plans Are Formulated To Enroll All Resident Students of College

The Holy Name Society, at its regular monthly Communion and breakfast on Sunday, formulated plans to commence a drive to enroll every student in the college in this religious organization. The breakfast was more or less of a rally for the society.

It was decided to appoint students in each of the residence halls to interview all inmates in order to ascertain whether they were members of the Holy Name Society, and to enroll all of the non-members.

Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the organization, is of the opinion that every college resident student should become enrolled in the society, in order to share in the many spiritual benefits which wer presented

William Vaughn, president of the society, is anxious to have every student enrolled before the termination of his period as head of the organization.

ARTS SCHOOL DEAN ADDRESSES COLLEGE MEN AT HAVERFORD

Paradoxical World Needs Definite and Uplifting Philosophy of Life

PEOPLE UNHAPPY TODAY

Emphasizing the necessity of having "a definite and uplifting philosophy of life," Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Ph. D., dean of the School of Arts and Philosophy at Villanova College, addressed the student body of Haverford College last Friday morning.

In commenting on present-day civilization, Fr. Burns said "We are living, strange though it may seem, in a paradoxical world. We have undoubtedly, the greatest wealth, the hig est culture, the finest comforts, the most advanced science that the world has ever seen. But side by side with this we have the most widespr d poverty, the most degrading immorality, more human suffering and misery than the world has ever known. Th o ically, people should be happier today than they have ever been. Actually, more people are more unhappy than they have ever been. Civilization, as we now have it, has played a grim, a tragic joke on human kind. For civilization has failed in its first, its fundamental, its essential purpose, which is to make the ordinary man and woman ordinarily happy."

Fr. Burns exhorted that college men, who through their education

Supreme Court Question Is Topic of Contest to Be Held in Near Future

In order to prepare itself for the current season's encounters, the Freshman Debating Society, under the direction of Mr. Joseph T. Houseman, a '33 graduate of Villanova, has been carrying on debates among the members of the group. To date, three verbal battles have been definitely settled upon; these are with Fordham, Temple, and Swarthmore. Other colleges have been contacted, but no permanent arrangements have been made.

The topic this year in debate circles is, "Resolved, That Congress should be permitted by a two-thirds vote to over-ride any decision of the Supreme Court affecting the legislation thereof." This topic should be well known to the students of the college; as Mr. Frayne, public speaking instructor, has held several inter-class debates on this subject.

The class has been divided into four teams, two affirmative and two negative. They have been working most diligently in collecting material on this subject which

Chairman Says Ticket Sale Will Be Limited; Bids at $4.50 per Couple

There have been dancing feet since the world began. From the jungle to Iceland, men have made music for other men to dance to, but today there is one name outstanding as the beacon to which all lovers of the dance turn when they wish the supreme in entertainment. This corporation, the Class of '36, of Villanova College, will present on February 7, from 10 P. M. until 2 A. M., at their Belle Air Ball in the Villanova College Gymnasium — Glen Gray and the Casa Loma Orchestra!

That nothing further need be said concerning the band is true fact. No introduction is necessary; no praises need be sung; no flattery would find notice. The absolute height of orchestral quality has been attained for the Senior Ball of 1936. A well known music critic once said of the Casa Loma Orchestra, "The music may be modern, but it is excellently interpreted, and superbly portrayed." Considerl.g the critic's favoritism toward the classics, his praise of the Casa Loma rendition is all the more complete.

Featured from coast to coast as the greatest attraction of the dance world, Glen Gray's ensemble has known phenomenal stardom and rose with rocket speed from the moment of its birth, until at the present time, this band rides on the crest of a wave of deserved popularity tha knows no equal. SKIN CONSIDERED SIGNIFICANT ORGAN

Dr. Benjamin Guskin, Pathologist, Discusses Disease Sources in Seminar

Appearing before a combined group of Arts and Science students in seminar Thursday, Dr. Benjamin Guskin, noted pathological research authority and Temple faculty member, presented a technical discussion on the "Desensitization of Proteins" as a source of disease protection.

Having spent the greater part of his life in the research of bacteriology and external symptoms of major diseases, Dr. Guskin explained how the skin was effectively becoming a reflecting mirror of toxins and infections. Previously the skin had been practically discarded in disease but with the present advance of pathology the skin is now considered a significant organ.

This fact, he further explained, is due to the fact that the whole body is composed of cells which are definitely related to each other and cause osmotic changes in substances, therefore, distributing the poison all over the body. In his

Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., chaplain, announced that letters and schedules for the retreat will be distributed to all students during the week for the mid-year examinations.

N. Y. CLUB DONATES SCHOLARSHIP FUND

Check Presented to College Presiden' at First Annual Dinner

Last Wednesday evenin, the Villanova Club of New York held its first annual dinner at the Centra Club, at 120 Central Park South, New York City.

The main feature of the evening was the presentation to Rev. Edwa V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, of a check for the foundation of a scholarship trust fund for the Villanova Club of New York. The money, presented by Mr. John J. McDevitt, Class of '38, a resident of Passaic, N. J., represents the proceeds of dances given for this purpose.

After the presentation the new officers for the coming year were formally inducted. The gentlemen receiving the honors were: President, Peter Eshman; vice-president, William O'Prey; secretary, Stephen DuHamel; treasurer, William Clinton.

This event has never taken place before and it is hoped it will set a precedent for future years.

Speakers for the occasion were Rev. James J. [illegible], O. S. A.; John

CONSTITUTIONAL THEORISTS

THE recent decision of the Supreme Court concerning the constitutionality of the AAA, make it increasingly apparent that the outcome of relief measures cannot be left to the decisions of constitutional theorists. If any practical benefits are to accrue to the individuals, for whom these measures are designed, they can only be judged upon their practical results, and not their hypothetical conformity or non-conformity to the Constitution. This being the case the last persons we should expect capable of rendering any comprehensive decision in the matter, are those who disregard the human elements that are involved, and concern themselves with an abstract discussion of relationships. The members of the Supreme Court in their treatment of the AAA, as well as the NRA, are reminiscent of nothing so much as a group of foolish philosophers who bicker over the reality or un-reality of matter, while their families are left to starve to death.

If our allegiance to tradition is such that we must have a body of men whose authority will transcend that of both executive branches of the Government, then it would be advisable to consult them upon a measure before the State is put to the expense and inconvenience that is involved in the establishment of such organizations as the NRA and the AAA By following such a procedure, the Administration can then make the necessary provisions for passing an act over the dissaproval of the Court.

Our acknowledgement or refusal, does not alter the fact that the needs of the people are above the theoretical limitations of the Constitution, and any legislative act that is satisfying these ends without conforming to the letter of the Constitution, bespeaks either a weakness in the latter or the interpretation that is being placed upon it.

If past decisions of the Supreme Court are to be taken as a criterion of their future judgments, then it would be well to re-establish their relations to lawmaking on an entirely different basis, as their present power and the way it is being exercised augurs ill for any piece of liberal legislation that may be suggested in the future.

THE TIME TO ADVANCE

WE find it safe to say that a great number of you heard the President's Jackson Memorial Day speech over the radio. And it is just as safe to comment that your opinions on the talk were just as varied as the denominations of those listening.

It is our opinion that the nation as a whole would have welcomed a message with more detail. Mr. Roosevelt perhaps claims too much and admits too little. He offers more cheer to social idealists than to his harrassed taxpayers. Some may go as far as to say that the anti-NRA decision had more to do with the progress of recovery than the NRA itself.

In spite of this, however, one can see for himself that the president's message is obviously the utterance of a man whose confidence is unshaken either by the buffeting of industrial stress or the bitterness of partisan strife. It is a warm-hearted declaration of purpose by one who, facing the crisis of a long career, concedes nothing to his foes; rededicates himself to "a rounded and permanent national life."

Such confidence in oneself begets confidence. Most Americans, hearing this address, will welcome its determination to advance boldly without thought of retreat; and what is a more profitable time to do so!

CONVENTIONS AND COOPERATION

IT appears likely that Philadelphia will launch upon a new era of prosperity with the coming of the Democratic convention on June, 23.

With the present administration striving with all its power to make the country Philadelphia conscious and political groups in the county in accord for the first time in many a year, perhaps the City of Brotherly Love will prove itself worthy of its position as the third largest city in the United States.

A noteworthy example of what can be accomplished by unanimous cooperation is evident by the securing of the consent of the Democratic National Committee by united Philadelphia groups to bring its conclave here.

It is estimated that the convention will mean approximately $4,000,000 to the merchants, hotel men and amusement operators in Philadelphia. Also the immense prestige concommitant with such an affair will tend in the future to make the city on the Delaware the mecca for national conventions.

The mammoth convention hall is well suited to accommodate gatherings of this type. Fourteen thousand persons are able to be seated within its vast confines. It is easily accessible from all parts of the city and adjoins the spacious grounds of the University of Pennsylvania.

It is to be hoped that in the future all partisan groups in the vicinity will display such praiseworthy spirit and cooperation for the good of the city and its government.

TRADE MARKS OF CRIME

USING the trade marks of the criminal, a new system of index cards has been put in play by the police of the nation.

Years ago, the Department of Census found that mechanical sorters could be used for classifying huge masses of facts and figures, simply by translating each fact into a number code, then punching that number into an index card. Through a similar method, the bits of information gained through examination of a crime are recorded.

It is known that a criminal acts according to his individual habits, and never varies from these tell-tale idiosyncrasies. Then using a mechanical sorting machine these respective cards are divided into personalities, both as to the crime and as to the criminal.

Thus can be built up a direct connection between each individual criminal and his own work, facilitating questioning of the suspect and consequent exposure.

ODDS and ENDS

By Ben Maloney

THOUGH the greeting is somewhat belated due to circumstances afforded by the release of this edition, the first of the year 1936, nevertheless it is our sincere wish that all our readers enjoy a very, very HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Those of you who are constant readers of this pillar will recall the fact that some time ago it was our great pleasure to pounce on a certain columnist who writes for the Penn State publication. You will of course remember the reason for our actions, Mr. Freunsch's remarks concerning Harry Stuhldreher. (Freunsch is Penn State's gift to the journalistic world). Also you will recall that we branded the loyal son of Nittany an idiot, indeed a first class idiot.

Well it seems that Walt, that's his first moniker, likewise realizes his true worth for he was found to reply some time afterward. In fact he devoted his entire column to yours truly. Now it isn't often that such a humble person as we are (does that grate on your delicate ears, Walt?) has the distinction of having an entire pillar devoted to them and so we take this opportunity to thank the loyal son of toothless Old Leo from the bottom of our ticker.

To make matters a bit more brief we shall offer to you our suggestions to Walt after perusing his garbled bit of literature.

(1) A person of your calibre and your unlimited experience in the journalistic field should make allowances for errors, that will occur through the fault of one person or another and not be so hasty and thoughtless in pinning them on this unfortunate columnist.

(2) Not deeming it necessary to go back further than just a few months back we offer this proof of our statement that Harry Stuhldreher is one of the country's leading mentors: Said Stuhldreher, it will gripe you to know and acknowledge, is vice president of the National Association of Football Coaches. Certainly you are in no position to declare that he is an overrated coach.

(3) Speaking of profanity, Freunschie old thing, we have it from reliable authority that the language that good old Bob Higgins used between halves at the U. of P. game was not exactly what could be called "fit to print."

(4) And in conclusion we would advise you not to speak of your donning a silk topper, even when speaking figuratively, for you know, as does everyone else, that hat manufacturers haven't as yet started making CONE SHAPED SILK TOPPERS.

As We See It . . . Reflections

By HARRY PARKIN

USUALLY our opinions are the more regarded for the circumspection with which we advance them; hence, the advisability of qualifying all our statements upon those subjects that are of a controversial nature. If, when delivering our views upon a topic under discussion, we precede it with some such words as, "I believe," or "It seems to me," we will not only assure ourselves of a more favorable reception, but also prove ourselves a person of intelligence and discretion; in the former instance because we have reduced our statement to the status of a purely personal conclusion, that carries the inference that we are not adverse to being proved incorrect; and in the latter because the manner of our delivery is less likely to appear disagreeable to those of a sensitive nature, and similarly will enable us to avoid many fruitless and unbecoming arguments. We may also avoid the embarrassment and chagrin that invariably attend the refutation of an opinion that is more positively expressed.

The tendency of a man to express his sentiments with a brusque certainty of their accurateness is usually regarded as a sign of little learning; for it, more often than not, appears to the listener that he is seeking to impress more by the belligerent manner of expression, than by the conformity of his argument to truth.

The degree of a man's intelligence may be said to be proportional to the esteem with which men of culture and learning regard him—and we know of no persona lability that is more likely to hasten such a feeling than prudence in the delivery of our opinions.

No matter how noble the theme we select for our writing, its effects upon the reader are always limited to the skill with which we treat it. In some men's hands the most momentous and interesting occasions in the development of a nation are converted into little more than tedious reading, while with others the history of a single town can be turned into a warm and intimate revelation of humanity.

Truth does not seem to consist only in those things or virtues that have reality, but also in the kindliness with which we are accustomed to consider them. We should hesitate to speak a truth that we do not feel some affection for. There has always been something unnatural and repulsive about the intellect that defends its subject under the cause of truth, as there is about the scandal-monger who hastens to inform us of the disreputable occasions in a man's life, simply because they have actually happened—we have often thought what a hatred such a person must have for the man, when he can regard the truth of his evil actions so fondly.

As the warmth and emotion that the orator feels for his subject will heighten its effects upon the listeners, so also the affection with which we regard and speak the truth is a criterion of the degree to which we will be heeded—for from the lips of love only sincerity issues.

Procrastination's most serious competitor for the treasure of time is the fruitless argument — which usually begins from the mere expression of different opinions and ends in sworn enmity. The very manner in which such arguments are entered into and conducted precludes the possibility of an amicable settlement.

If you have an acquaintance, whose excellent qualities commend themselves to your friendship, avoid with him, as you would the plague, all fruitless arguments.

Life is material of a poem, which we may write be titfully or sordidly according to our own inclinations. To write it well a man needs neither wit nor learning—the laborer can, if he wishes, far outshine the poet—for its metre is self discipline, and its language love.

Pass In Review

By R. I. G. DEVERALL

A Symphony in prose: that is Helen C. White's "Not Built With Hands" may be called. The library classification is PZ—3 —.W58363 No. Three copies are available.

There are few novels written these days that can be called monumental marks in the history of prose. In my humble opinion, this book is one of these. The theme, of course, has much to do with its grandeur. Written around the 11th century Hildebrandine struggle to free the Church from the evil of lay investiture, it is a thrilling tale. The student of mediaeval history glories in meeting Gregory VII, Henry of Germany, Hugh of Cluny, Bernard of St. Victor and the Countess Matilda of Tuscany.

The Countess Matilda of Tuscany, in the first section of the book, meets a young priest called Hildebrand. She is impressed by his dynamic intellect and his flashing spirituality. The Church was in the hands of ruffians. The Cluniac reform movement had been underway for some time, but advance was slow. It was whispered about that if this Hildebrand ever reached the Papacy, the Bride of Christ, Holy Mother Church, would be liberated from the tyranny of secular control.

Hildebrand is elected Pope by the people of Rome. Grave issues at once confront the new Pope. But he is dauntless. A true follower of the Fisherman, Hildebrand decides to demand the abolition of lay investiture of prelates. Kings had been in the habit of appointing priests and bishops, and their choices, frequently, aided the Empire more than the Church. Hildebrand ordered a stop to such practices.

Events move swiftly. The King of Germany, Henry, denounces the Pope and sends Gregory VII a most insulting letter. Gregory turns to his advisers and finds few friends, the strongest of them being the Countess Matilda, his old friend. Risking everything, this brave and fearless woman rushes to the defense of Church and Papacy. "There are two powers, the one is of this world, and one—is not," Gregory had often told her. "It is tragic that the law of God should not rule all things in the world He made and His will be fulfilled in priest and prince alike. But if, in fear of violence or through sloth, we suffer the power of the kingdom of God to pass into the hands of the princes of this world, then is the light of this world gone out, and chaos come again."

Gregory makes his decision. Gregory is adamant. Henry is finally forced to capitulate, for the Pope excommunicates him. The King journeys to Canossa, the ancestral castle of Matilda's family, to plead with the Pope. For three days, he stands outside the Pope's door, barefoot and in penitent's gray, seeking pardon for his terrible deeds. The world looks on with bated breath. The Mighty Henry waiting on the little Hildebrand. The King of this world come to weep at the knees of the representative of the King of another world. What a soul-stirring scene!

Henry, forgiven, returns to Germany—where he promptly forgets his promises to the Pope. Poor Gregory, consoled to the last by the faithful Matilda, dies of a broken heart.

But Gregory did not die in vain. The Church was freed from secular control. For all times, it was clearly indicated that the Church of God is never to be placed under the control of the secular authority. Since that time, men have tried to stamp out the superior authority of this divine Church, but they have wasted their efforts. Henry VIII tried to kill ome, and he failed. Bismarck fought Rome for decades, and finally had to come to Canossa. And today, how long must we wait before Hitler, Calles and other anti-Christian leaders make their journey to Canassa?

Gregory VIII, one of the greatest of the Popes. Matilda of Tuscany, one of the greatest women ever to serve the Church. There you have your practical Catholic Action at its best, for laywoman and Pope cooperated in preserving, stainless, the seamless Robe of Christ. "Not Built With Hands" is certainly an appropriate title.

Such a grand book is this that we earnestly recommend every man in the college read it as soon as possible. It is magnificent!

GLEN GRAY SIGNED FOR BELLE AIR BALL

Famous Radio Orchestra to Furnish Rhythms at February 7th Formal rings I blow . ." is recognized over thousands of miles as the theme melody of the caravan that brings Casa Loma rhythms to the millions who dance and listen to the smooth interpretations presented every Tuesday and Thursday, over the Columbia network at 9 P. M. Nearly every orchestra of repute on several continents has in its repertoire the "Casa Loma Stomp," only one of the myriads of original compositions of the famed arrangers and composers in the Glen Grey corporation.

It has been announced through these channels that the subscription for the dance is to be set at $4.50 per couple, and it was further stressed that the affair, since the purpose is to please its guests, will be limited in attendance, the limit of tickets being set at 500. It has been emphasized that above this number, no admissions will be granted, so the advice is being given that those who wish to be assured of attendance, will find it to their advantage to purchase admission passes early and not be disappointed when the sale is stopped.

But the orchestra is not the only feature of the Senior Weekend of the Class of 1936 of Villanova College. The specially designed ceiling purchased for th eJunior Prom of this class will again be placed over the gymiasium, redesigned to fit the new occasion.

Featured among the pleasing surprises of the evening will be novel programs and favors. Specialized lighting effects are being studied for the evening of the ball, and an entirely newly created stage is to be erected to deservingly contain th feature and, and to make the event even moer perfect, the smooth syncopations will be truly "floated" through the hall by means of a system of sound and acoustic treatment that has followed as a direct result of the experience gained through the previous dances of the class.

To Arthur Noble, chairman of the Belle Air Ball, and his entire committee are directed the praises they deserve for obtaining the finest entertainment available, and to William Vaughn, class president, are being handed congratulations for his own work in this matter.

GRADUATE APPOINTED

Joseph Tofani, '35, Secures Position As Government Engineer

B. Joseph Tofani, who was graduated from Villanova College last June, was appointed junior engineer by the United States Government to Denver, Colo., where he will work on the Boulder Dam.

Mr. Tofani was a member of the School of Technology and received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering. He was as active member of Phi Kappa Phi, the engineering fraternity of the college, and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. In addition, Mr. Tofani was also a staff member of the Villanova Engineer.

DEBATERS MEET TONIGHT

Beta Gamma will take up its intercollegiate debate series immediately following the mid-year examinations. An important meeting to select teams is to be held tonight, Room No. 204, Mendel, at 7 o'clock.

The Villanovan Seven Years Ago

The Pi Omega Phi has won the contest inaugurated amongst the fraternities to see which one would be the first to give the VILLANOVAN 100 per cent support. As yet the Pi Omega Phi has not given a dance. Their activity has thus far been limited to the Football Smoker, the Red Cross Drive, and athletics. It is hoped that the other fraternities leave their social activities to the last and first show their loyalty to Villanova by supporting its publications.

Editor's Note — The Pi Omega Phi Fraternity was organized by a group of Sophomore Artsmen during the year 1929. Due to the revival of the present Arts Fraternity it was disbanded.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO GOGGI

WHEN so gifted a musical leader as Leopold Stokowski resigns as director of one of the world's great symphony orchestras to study sound recording, that's news in the broadcasting world. Stokowski, who ends his long connections with the Philadelphia orchestra at the end of the season, believes he can better serve the cause of music by working with scientists. The "plastic modeling" of sound, in connection with weird radio, disc and film recording, he believes, will recreate beauties in music which have never before been dreamed of...And Lupe Velez, less interested in plastic modeling from the scientific standpoint will nevertheless do her bit for radio Thursday night, as guest of Rudy Vallee, along with Frank Fay and Bert Lehr (WEAF-8).

Casa Loma is coming to town! Yes fellows, the dream of many a Villanova student has come true. On February 7, none other than Glen Gray and the boys will bang out those snappy arrangements for youse guys and you gals who'll be there, and man oh man, will they be there or won't they? . . . It's a rumour, fellows, that only a limited amount of tickets will be put on sale, so step up ladies and gentlemen and get yours early. Glen just finished a record-breaking three weeks' performance on the Paramount Theatre stage in New York and is now barn-storming for two months. That explains how the senior class signed him up. Editor's Note: "Does it?"

Folks like you and me, who don't get around much, can at least dance to the same tunes as the upper crust which attends the opening of Joe Candullo's Hollywood Country Club in Coral Gables, Fla., next Wednesday, thanks to NBC . . . And can hear the songs from the music 'alls in dear ol' Lunnon, as sung by Peggy Cochrane, the same evening, over the same chain, at 10 P. M. . . . Phil Baker, Columbia's comic accordian man, advances a new cause for crocodile tears. It's the only animal left out of Billy Rose's Hippodrome production, "Jumbo" . . . The height of how d'ya do has been accomplished by Andre Kostelanetz's sax player, Charles Hazlett. Glimpsing a friend he hadn't seen in years, Hazlett stopped his car so suddenly that he put his head through the windshield . . . Frank Parker, tenor star of that CBS gasoline show, did a 220-yard dash in top hat and tails through Broadway throngs the other night when, almost at air time, his car stalled for lack of gas.

I can't give you the latest figures on the sheet sale of "The Music Goes 'Round and Around" (last Monday's sale alone was 152,000) but Guy Lombardo says only six tunes have passed the 2,000,000 mark and he played them last night—"Silver Threads Among the Gold," best seller of all time (6,000,000), "Roses of Picardy," "The Prisoner's Song," "Beautiful Ohio," "Three O'Clock In the Morning" and "Yes, We Have no Bananas" . . . Ted Powell, banjoist in Abe Lyman's "Melodiana" orchestra and composer of "Boots and Saddle," has never been astride a horse, nor has he been in Texas.

PERU

Part I—THE COUNTRY

(Part I, of an interview with Mr. Antonio Franco, native of Peru.)

"CONSCIENTIOUS." A bit of interesting biography, concerned with two members of the Peruvian family, father and son:—

In Peru Mr. Franco's family has long been connected with the Government service. His father, an eminent statesman, was a Senator in the Congress of that nation for 17 years. As long a term as that bespeaks of worth and excellence in any man's government. Indeed, Senator Franco was only finally deprived of his office when his party was overthrown by Sanchez-Cerro. The insurrectionist then became President only to die seven months later at the hands of an assassin.

The younger Franco from 1921 to 1923 took a pre-medical course at the U of P., after which he returned to Peru and was appointed by the Government contractor for the highway between Lima and Caramponia. Later having obtained a highly coveted start in the diplomatic service, he became Chancellor of the Peruvian Consulate in New Orleans. He was instantly discharged when Sanchez-Cerro became president.

Mr. Franco is now numbered among our most conscientious and respected professors.

500 YEARS RAINLESS. "Will you give a few interesting details about a typical Peruvian city?"

"Our cities are as a rule similar to yours. Most of them are very up-to-date. There are not however, due to infrequent earthquakes, any skyscrapers, and, for that matter, very few buildings over four stories.

"The streets are usually very narrow, for several reasons. Peru is near the Equator and is hence very hot. The streets being like tunnels, a natural draft is created. Furthermore, the buildings, which are set close together, almost on the pavement, overshadow the passageway, furnishing a welcome relief from the scorching tropical sun.

"Incidentally, it has never rained in Lima for 500 years. Irrigation having made possible a modern city with many flourishing gardens and beautiful parks out of what normally is an arid desert."

SCIENCE FRATERNITY CONTINUES PLANS ON REUNION DANCE

Letters From Graduate Members Indicate Alumni Will Support Affair

L.K.D. MEMBERS MUST PAY DUES OR BE DROPPED

At the first meeting since the Christmas h liay of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, held last Thursday, ans were discussed for the pendi.g first annual reunion dance to be sponsored by this organization for its graduates, on Friday, February 21.

During the holidays, letters were sent to the graduate members of the organization announcing to them the particulars for the above function and requesting them to answer as to whether or not they would attend. The details of the returns were announced to the organization at this meeting and judging from them it appears that the affair will be a success.

Letters were also mailed to the fraternity members during the vacation, informing them of their financial status in the matter of payment of organizatio dues. At the meeting to be held this Thursday a formal notice will be submitted to those members who are in arrears. This is in direct accordance with a provision in the fraternity constitution which stipulates that notice must be given to those members back in payment of dues at least two weeks bef re the final date for payments falls due.

A notice will also be posted on the Science Bulletin Board showing those pre-meds who have completed their payments and are thus in good standing.

Discussion of the planned dance brought up the matter of decoration of the gymnasium, where the social is to be held. It was voted that the senior class should be contacted and efforts made to purchase from them the goods that will be used for a false ceiling at the Senior Ball. The results of these efforts will be presented to the pre-medics at their next meeting.

A committ e was also appointed to conduct all the arrangements for the affair. The following members constitute the committee: Chairman, Albert E. Welsh; Frank Schaffer, Robert Fitzgerald, Harry Kornfield, Louis Santamaria, John McLaughlin, Walter Krupa, Pio Gorgi, John Geraghty, Thomas Maye, James Keegan, David Gold, Edward Troncelliti, and John Gray.

It is expected that before the meeting this Thursday, applications will be disseminated to the freshmen for admission to the fraternity. The freshman science group will, however, be addressed by some members of the faculty some time before the examinations are held; the purpose of this address is to inform the prospective members of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity as regards to its traditions, benefits, and details of government.

Next week's meeting will be the last for three weeks because of the mid-year ex minations and the annual retreat. Accordingly, regular meetings will be resumed on February 6. All members who were previously informed of their arrears will necessarily have to complete their payments at that time or, in accordance with a previously decided issue, will be automatically dropped from the fraternity.

During the Christmas holidays the Scholarship Fun of Villanova College was enriched by a generous donation made by William Simpson for $5053. The fund is to be known as the Joseph Simpson Trust Fund.

MAGAZINE ARTICLE OF COMMONWEAL DISCUSSED

Periodical Excerpt Is Topic Of Weekly Meeting of International Relations Club

The International Relations Club in its weekly meeting last Thursday had a very timely and interesting discussion on a topic of international interest. The principal topic of this meeting was an article appearing in the current issue of the Commonwealth entitled "French News From France."

Rev. John J. Fitzmaurice, O. S. A., moderator of the club, presented the highlights of this article; after which all members entered into a general discussion of this subject. This proved to be very interesting in view of the part that France plays in European and world politics and especially so at the present time when she is so involved in the Italo-Ethiopian affair. It shows how news we receive from France is made to suit our tastes and ideas of France.

MONTHLY ENGINEER APPEARS THIS WEEK

Features Description of Operation, Design, Specifications Of 1936 Cord Motor Car

The January issue of the Villanova Engineer is scheduled to make its appearance Thursday of this week.

As usual the engineers have prepared something very interesting in the way of educational articles for this month's issue.

The feature story is a description of the operation, design, and new specifications of the 1936 Cord motor car, written by John W. Hallahan, Jr. Along with this interesting information there is an article describing the latest uses of the camera in microphotography. This article tells of the many new developments that have been brought to the notice of the world recently, through the use of the camera in experimental work.

The book will carry, as usual, the cross section column, with its colorful description of the doings of the well-known engineers of the campus, and the column "Collegiate World."

on being known as a "small college. A greatly increased student body of recent years has not destroyed this feature due to the organization of distinct schools within the college. This fact makes it possible to have almost ideal conditions for the full development of the student intellectually and morally. It brings about a more personal and intimate relation between students and professors. This intimacy is carried beyond the classroom, and is a most effective instrument in the development of character."

Fr. Stanford also said that "for those wishing it, a tour of the campus and buildings is readily arranged. Visitors to the campus are always welcome and assured of a courteous reception at the administrative offices in Mendel Hall."

is, at present, in the national limelight. Each member will have an opportunity to defend both sides in order to acquaint himself more fully with the subject. GLEE CLUB DRILLS POORLY ATTENDED

Semi-Weekly Rehearsals Not Receiving Proper Response By Choristers

Progress in the Villanova Glee Club has been slight after the Christmas holidays because of the failure of its members to be consistent in their attendance at the meetings. If the club is to reach the high standard it has attained in former years, more spirit must be shown by the members in their attendance at the rehearsals.

Fifty members have signed for the club, but the average attendance at the rehearsal has been approximately 25.

Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the organization, sincerely hopes that more interest will be prevalent than has been shown in the last two rehearsals of the club.

Rehearsals are held every Monday night after chapel, and every Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. It is essential for everyone who has signed for the club to attend the rehearsals if the organization is to be a success.

PAPERS ARE READ TO A. I. E. E. GROUP

Messrs. Gallagher, Rodgers And McBrearty Deliver Engineering Talks

Resuming their first semester schedule of activities and lectures, the student chapter of the A. I. E. E., yesterday was given three talks on topics of present-day interest in the electrical world.

The first talk of the meeting was presented by Frank Gallagher whose topic was "Current Events in the Electronic Field." Joseph Doherty, who followed Mr. Gallagher, gave a talk on "Current Events in the Power Field." Professor Harry S. Bueche concluded the meeting with an exceptionally interesting discussion on "New Metal Tubes," which he supplemented with a comprehensive display of the tubes.

Previous to the holiday vacation the society made a visit to the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia. The trip was made under the guidance of Mr. Bueche who also gave miniature lectures and sidelights on the various exhibitions of electricity and electrical phenonema.

During the meeting immediately preceding the vacation, two discussions were given by Frank Rodgers and James McBrearty. Mr. Rodgers delivered his talk on "The Comet," a lightweight, stream-lined Diesel electric train now being operated by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. Among the many features cited by Mr. Rodgers were torque control, auxillary equipment, economy of operation and speed. He went into detail on these and gave several reasons for the Comet's becoming the train of the future. Two of the reasons were its economy and great saving of time. There is a great saving of time particularly at the end of the route where the reversability of the engine avoids the necessity of turning around.

The second paper was presented by James McBrearty on "Relay Protection." Mr. McBrearty discussed the theory and operation of the several types, including high voltage, low voltage, overload, underload, reverse phase and time phase types, and also discussed the advantages of these several types.

ANNUAL BULLETIN IS RELEASED BY GUILD HERE

Augustinian Seminary Society Publishes Annual Christmas Number With Featured Articles

In keeping with the spirit of the Yuletide season the Augustinian Seminary Guild recently published its annual Christmas periodical late in December. This latest bulletin was exceptionally novel in arrangement and was full of interesting articles depicting a typical Christmas in the Villanova Seminary.

Being thoroughly Christmas in atmosphere the magazine asked God's blessing on all the benefactors of the order and presented a well written "Word of Appreciation" from the Augustinian Fathers.

In conjunction with these Christmas features a short summary of all past events of the Seminary Guild was given and an earnest plea for new members was made.

GRADUATE COUNCIL FORMED LAST WEEK

Will Coordinate Work of Graduate School and Create Higher Standards

In order to coordinate the work of the Graduate School and to create higher standards in the functioning of that School, a Graduate Council has been formed. Last Friday evening in the president's office a meeting was held which resulted in the formation of this Council. Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., addressed the Council members.

Present members of the Graduate Council are Rev. John A. Sparrow, O. S. A.; Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A.; Rev. Howard A. Grella, O. S. A.; Rev. Thomas Gilligan, O. S. A.; Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A.; Dr. Jeremiah O'Sullivan; Prof. Edward H. O'Neil; Dr. William H. McHugh; and Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, Dean of the Graduate School.

Graduate courses have been offered in the Summer and Extension Schools for the past ten years. For the past several year the enrollment has increased steadily and now there are 175 students taking graduate work in the Summer and Extension Schools. These courses lead to the Master's degree in Arts and Science.

tests many disease.. were detected by inter-dermal injections of synthesized proteins. These ideas were prevalent throughout his discourse.

Laboratory tests for common afflictions, such as cancer, tumor, syphillis and tuberculosis were stated to be giving almost infallible results.

One of the tests described by Dr. Guskin was that for the detection of tuberculosis, which consists of coagulating haemoglobin in the blood of tubercular-injected rabbits and the squeezing out of tubercular bacilli, which is in turn used in human tests. The speaker also referred to the fact that chemistry is playing a large part in modern pathology.

This was illustrated by the explanation that infections are the results of chemical reactions and can thus be treated by counter-chemical reactions.

In conclusion, Dr. Guskin stated that the future doctor should not wholly accept the theories of present pathology but prove these theories to their own satisfaction and also to venture into new fields of research.

CHRISTMAS DANCES PROVE SUCCESSFUL

North Jersey and Wilkes-Barre Club Committees Report Satisfactory Results

Annual Christmas dances were held by two prominent Villanova organizations during the holidays. The North Jersey and the Wilkes-Barre clubs gave their respective Yuletide socials in the grand style that is characteristic of these two active societies.

The North Jersey Club frolic was given in the ballroom of the Winfield-Scott Hotel, Elizabeth, N. J. It was another of a series of annual dances given during the Christmas holidays and proved to be one of the most successful enterprises attempted by the society.

The hotel ballroom was artistically decorated in the fashion of the Christmas season. Scintillating music was furnished by Frankie Richian and His New Yorkers. The dance was attended by a well-proportioned group of dance couples.

According to the reports given by Edward Riley, chairman of the dance committee, this affair was a social and a financial success. This dance drew the club out of a debt which had been acquired during the past season.

Wilkes-Barre Dance

A Christmas dance was also given by the Wilkes-Barre Club of Villanova in the Mallow-Sterling Hotel, Wilkes-Barre. The dance is also an annual affair and witnessed a turnout of approximately 125 couples.

The ballroom was arrayed in smilax and boxwood boughs and was decorated to reflect the merry season. Dance music was supplied by Will Kearney and His Orchestra.

John J. Dempsey, president of the club, along with his associates expressed a feeling of satisfaction in the cooperation given them in this affair. The committee expressed their thanks to the club members and requests the same backing in all future undertakings of the Wilkes-Barre club.

SOPHOMORES LEAD PHI KAPPA PI RACE

Second Year Men Climb To Leadership in Basketball Tournament

—V—

With the middle of the basketball season practically here the Sophomore Engineers retain undisputed possession of first place in the annual Phi Kappa Pi basketball tournament. Presenting a bang-up combination, the sophomores are experiencing little or no trouble in their struggle for supremacy.

On Saturday last the freshmen were easily defeated by the sophomores in their scheduled game. There seems to be a shade of reluctance to play the second-year men displayed by the Juniors in not appearing for their scheduled game. However the game will be played on a date to be announced later.

In addition to the hub-bub of the basketball struggles, great excitement is being created by the annual plans for the induction of of Freshmen into the society. James Allan, the society's president, has intimated that in all probability this year's initiation ceremonies will far surpass all previous rites. The date for the initiation has as yet not been decided on, but a meeting will be held for this purpose in the near future.

Sportorial

By A. R. C. Sports Editor

DURING the past season, through this column there was much talk concerning Villanova College in an Intercollegiate Catholic Football League.

Recently the lightweights were admitted to the one hundred and fifty pound Intercollegiate Football League, which includes: Princeton, Pennsylvania, Yale, Lafayette and Rutgers. The last mentioned being the defending champion. By this move we cannot help but be optimistic with regards to the future of athletics here.

In the first place, this move is—"just what the doctor ordered"—to verify the above statement we need only to look back to the past season's record. Coaches Charley Cox and Frank Foster had a limited number of men available for practice sessions, the beginning was a disorganized eleven, which went through the season with four losses and a tie.

This is no fault of the coaches, who incidentally did as fine a job of tutoring with their material as anyone could have done.

With something to strive for, we feel that the number of candidates for the team will be increased. The interest of the student body, as a whole, would even be aroused.

With this step taken by the lightweights, it is our contention that it will not be long before the varsity teams will follow suit. A wise move indeed, for league competition is that incentive which fills the seats at the stadium and grandstand.

—V—

RETURNING from the past vacation the varsity basketeers began on the right foot by decisively trouncing the P. M. C. quintet. Last Saturday night, however, in the second half of a double-header, played at the Arena, Duquesne's "Dukes" proved a little too strong in the final minutes and took home a 46-40 victory.

Speaking of double-headers—we take this opportunity to express the student opinion, which is vehemently opposed to paying a fee for the games played at Philadelphia. They base their argument on the fact that there are only six home games scheduled. They feel that our gym is spacious enough and compares with the best in the east, yet the team plays four of its games originally scheduled here at the Arena.

—V—

The double-header scheme conducted by Messrs. Claire Hare and Ned Irish, has its good points. The turn-out for their cards has been large, although there have been rumors to the effect that the financial end has been a failure.

If nothing else, at least their efforts have given to the people of Philadelphia and its surroundings, the "cream" of collegiate basketball players.

—V—

Temple promises to be one of the toughest foes on the season's schedule. Judging from the performance of Meyer Bloom, Al Dubin and Don Shields, sensational first year men, Villanova will have quite an assignment on the night of March 2.

Those witnessing last Saturday's exhibition will gather what we mean. In Meyer the Owls have the most promising player in the Philadelphia area.

—V—

The swimmers were all prepared for a meet with the Philadelphia Turnegemiende mermen last Saturday afternoon, but found no Turner representatives available. Just a slight misunderstanding with no one hurt.

According to reports the Blue and White tankmen have quite a few promising swimmers, and Coach Gill expects a banner year.

—V—

Austin Hall by virtue of its nine straight victories has copped the first half title in the inter-collegiate dorm loop. We take this opportunity to congratulate them for their cooperation and interest in the league. To the other teams in the league we extend our wishes for a better second-half.

Speaking of the second half, we have been asked to announce that this afternoon's games will be the last until after the boxing tournament, which will be conducted in order to determine the best material for the varsity squad.

DUQUESNE TOPS 'CATS, 46-40

Villanova Splits Pair After Holiday Return

P. M. C. Trounced Decisively Last Wednesday By 36-12 Score; Dukes Have Too Much Power

DON BRENNAN PLAYS BRILLIANTLY

After swamping a weak Pennsylvania Military College quintet 36 to 12 at the Villanova gym Wednesday, January 8, Villanova dropped the second game of a double-header at the Arena Saturday night January 11 before a capacity crowd. The other teams who competed that night were Temple University and Western Maryland two of Villanova's arch rivals.

During the P. M. C. game the Wildcats had things pretty much their own way, piling up a halftime lead of 18 to 5. Both teams showed the effects of the Christmas holiday layoff the visitors to only two field goals.

The full squad saw action in the game with the soldiers without hurting the effectiveness of the 'Cats' attack. Captain Ben Geraghty tallied ten points by the way of four field goals and two from the foul line while O'Mera accounted for four twin pointers.

Don Brennan, Abe Collins, and Tom Ryan each scored twice while Harry McNally accounted for the other goal.

From all appearances Villanova was out to outdo theirselves after winning three games out of four starts, but at the arena the following Saturday a little tougher competition was forthcoming and the 'Cats had a fight on their hands. The "Dukes" who came out of the West were found to be a flashy aggregation with all the qualifications that goes to make up a winning team.

With the score standing 37 all in the closing minutes of the game the boys from Duquesne rallied to pull the game out of the fire ending the game with the score standing 46 to 40 in their favor. In contrast to the P. M. C. game plenty of action was shown by both sides.

From the beginning of the game to the final whistle a fast flashy game was forthcoming. The visitors had the slightest of an edge on the home boys especially in their passing attack but the Cats made up for this delinquency by showing plenty of fight. Kweller, stellar center for the Dukes, practically controlled the tap although the fighting Cats did get the leather through sheer spirit alone.

According to Duquesne tradition the subs started the game, but they were well able to hold the Cat varsity, being on a par with the varsity team of the Westerners. With the reserves on the floor the score was tied at 5-all and 9-all, when at this point the varsity got into the game.

Brennan Leads Attack

This seemed almost too much to the spectators, but the Main Liners took it as a matter of course and merely put on a little more steam and forged into the lead under the pacing of the Cat center, Don Brennan.

It wasn't long before the score was stalmated again as the Dukes quickly fought back and then forg-

Preliminary Training Will Be Required So That All May Be in Good Condition

ENTRIES ARE REQUIRED

Headlining the mid-winter intramural sports parade is the annual boxing tournament to be held on Friday evening, January 31. The plans for the tournament are completed, new training equipment has been purchased, and all that is necessary to make the tournament a success is the support of the student body in the shape of a large entry list.

Several entries have already been received, and these boys are working out daily. During this week the remainder of the intramural basketball first half will be finished so that the intramural gym can be given over to the boxers. SWIMMERS PREPARE STRONG SCHEDULE

Encounter With Turngemiende Natators Postponed To Later Date

Last Saturday's swimming meet with the Philadelphia Turnegemeinde was postponed to a later date due to a misunderstanding as to the time the meet was to take place. Coach Marty Gill and Manager John McManus called off the contest when it was learned that the Philly splashers were unable to appear in the afternoon.

Awaiting the approval of Rev. Charles J. Melchior, O. S. A., is a tentative schedule which contains as future foes for the Catfish, West Chester State Teachers' College, Lafayette, Philadelphia School of Osteopathy, the above-mentioned Turners, St. Joseph's, and the traditional rival, Temple.

Should the list be approved in its entirety, the natators will have a strenuous season, which will be faced without the services of Captain Jack Hosey, injured in an auto accident. A new free-style representative will have to be developed to repair the loss.

Wilmer Booth, backstroke star, is one of the outstanding members of the squad, and he is closely followed for honors by Toby Greco, Jimmy Cousart, and Donald "Ed-

STUHLDREHER LIKES HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Villanova Football Coach Guest Speaker at Lancaster Catholic High

Harry Stuhldreher, football coach at Villanova College, said in an address recently at a banquet for the Lancaster Catholic High School football team that modern educational institutions should include athletics as a prime factor in the development of the mind.

Coach Stuhldreher said that athletics have their biggest influence in later life, and the will to win and sportsmanship dominated the American public today.

VARSITY QUINTET READY FOR THREE GAMES THIS WEEK

First Tussle Listed Tonight With George Washington At the Capitol

BISONS WILL BE HOST IN SATURDAY NIGHT'S FRAY

Wildcats Aim to Avenge Last Season's Loss at The Dickinson Lair

With two games already played since the Christmas sojourn, the Villanova College varsity swings into action tonight in the first of a three-game schedule for the week. All contests will be played away from home.

At an early hour this morning, Head Coach George Jacobs directed the Wildcat basketball team to the Capital City of Washington, where they will play the strong George Washington University five tonight, at Tech High School.

The game promises to be an interesting one, as the Blue and White are revengeful for last year's game. At that time the 'Cats were gliding along smoothly, until the Colonials upset our hopefuls, 33-29, and erased an unblemished home record. The Nats displayed a brand of basketball that completely bewildered our varsity. Throughout the game, they presented a show that was possibly never witnessed on our court. They passed smartly and broke fast.

Impressive Record

The Villanova team was on the receiving end the entire first half; however, the latter team had an assuming lead, which was hard to overcome. Bill Noonan, flashy forward, and Hal Kiesal, the 6 foot 4 inch pivot man, were the stars of the game. Kiesal is back, and is again expected to be a thorn in the side of our boys.

The team is enjoying a successful season, so far, this year. It is coached by Bill Rienhart, former Oregon star, and is captained by Alphonse "Tuffy" Leemans, who will be remembered as one of the leading football players in the East, the past season.

Dickinson, will be met at Carlisle Friday night and Bucknell at Lewisburg on Saturday. Last sea-

FROSH DOWN BANKS BUSINESS COLLEGE

Continue Streak at Expense Of Phila. Five With 31-14 Victory

Last Wednesday saw Villanova's Frosh quintet score their third straight win of the season with an overwhelming but unimpressive victory over a weak Banks Business School aggregation.

Coach Al Severance's boys had no trouble in scoring at will, running up 21 points before Koshland opened the scoring with a point from the free-toss line. Two more double-deckers by the Kittens concluded the scoring for the first canto.

The second half opened with a determined rally by the Philadelphians, who scored a half a dozen or more points before the victors split the meshes.

Banks continued its aggressive tactics with Orr, the pivot man, leading the attack by throwing in a circus shot here and there. Villanova's high-powered machine bogged down on the offensive, tallying only six counters the entire half. The losers outscored the winners in this period by seven points, racking up 13 to the Thirty-Niner's three field goals.

Orr, of the Philadelphia courtsters, led the scoring with five double-deckers. Krutilis and Dubino led the little Wildcats with six and five points respectively, while Carrig and Wanamaker each tallied four.

Montgomery's handling of the ball brought praise from the younger element above the Villanova bench.

In the Library

By PAT M. VASSALLUZZO

RATHER hard getting back to work again after the Christmas holidays. Twice as difficult getting started. No sense wasting our time thinking how hard a task is. May as well (ho-hum!) get down to business...

The day-hops have scored again. For the third consecutive issue of the VILLANOVAN a day-hop has made the "limelight." Following on the heels of Rodgers and Murphey comes Charles F. Kain, of the often unappreciated City of Brotherly Love, Philadelphia. (We got a pretty fair start that time; let's see if we can keep going.)...

One of the youngest lads to enter Villanova, Charley was born in the city of his birth (strange as it may seem), Philadelphia. Exactly a year from the date of his birth, Charles observed his first birthday (another paradox), and has to date, seen 19 more. He is eagerly awaiting November 7, 1936, when he will become 21 and no longer be a minor.

Like many others at Villanova College, all Charley's learning was acquired at parochial schools. He began his quest for knowledge at the St. Francis Xavier Grammar School. Being an exceptionally bright lad, he finished the usual eight years in only six.

His choice of an institution for further learning was Roman Catholic High School. His high school doings may all be summed up in the following tract from the "Purple and Gold," yearbook of his Alma Mater: "Charley is one of those few students who have gone through school excelling in every branch. He carried off prizes in his freshman, sophomore and junior years with the ease which one associates with great scholars. By putting studies aside after school, Charley found time to fill the position of football manager. Some day we are aure a great industrial plant will benefit by Charley's ingenuity as a mechanical engineer."

One thing lacking in Charley's high school write-up is the fact that he was the manager of the football team when Vince McNally of Notre Dame fame was coach at that institution. McNally left Roman Catholic High to accept a better position with St. Mary's, on the Pacific coast. His vacancy was filled by Johnny Gillespie, of Villanova. It was Charley's great knowledge of the Knute Rockne system of football that made him an outstanding performer on the 150-pound team at Villanova, for he had no other previous playing experience.

In September of '32, Charley came to Villanova. He got in line with the rest of the frosh and was forced to do everything a frosh must do. He was exempt in one thing, however. Whereas all the other frosh had to pay their tuition, Charley didn't. He had won a scholastic scholarship.

Charley's freshman year was occupied mainly with his studies. However he did find time to go out for track. In his sophomore year Kain won a medal for excellency in mathematics. He went in for extra-curricular activities, becoming a member of both Phi Kappa Pi and the student chapter of the A. S. C. E. He was elected to the Student Council. In his senior year Charley was elected vice-president of the Student Council.

Kain has been a member of the Villanova track team for four years, running in the one- and two-mile events. He was also a member of the 150 football team, playing in the backfield.

Charley always spends his summers vacationing at the Jersey resorts, as all hard working college boys should spend their summers.

die" Canter, all members of last year's water babies. Johnny Duffy, upperclassman, has also offered his abilities to the cause.

From the above veterans as a nucleus a team will be formed. There is no dearth of material, due to the large turnout of Freshmen, who are eligible to represent Villanova among the waves. Among the Thirty-Niners to report to Coach Gill are Bill Leahey, from the world's playground, Tommy Carbine, who lives just around the corner, Court Kitchel, of Philly, Jimmy Gallagher, Bill Bailey, and

Daily Workouts Conducted

Strenuous practices are being held daily in the pool in preparation for the coming campaign. This year's team is determined to erase the mark of last season, in which they were unable to bring home the bacon once. With the wealth of material on hand, there is no reason why the squad should not give a good account of themselves during the '36 meets. With some support from the student body to cheer them on, the mermen will prove themselves worthy of the name.

Ward Scanlon, 150-pound football luminary, will strive to make the swimming enthusiasts forget the brilliant Hosey in the free-style events. Scanlon's specialty is the 440 distance.

Ninth Straight Victory Gives Austinites Title

Monahan's Late Field Goal In Extra Period Against Mendel Day Hops Is Deciding Factor in Close Race

FEDIGAN - MENDEL SHARE CELLAR

By GENE LOORAM

Austin Hall gained the championship of the first half of the intra-mural basketball league when they defeated the Mendel Hall Day Hops in a thrill-packed game, last Thursday night, by a score of 12-10. The game went into an overtime period after the regular game had ended in a 10-10 deadlock.

Monahan, of Austin, won the game and the title for his team when he sank a two-pointer in the extra session. At the conclusion of the first half Austin held a 6-4 lead. The Mendel quintet was unable to score from the floor in this half and over and the play was ragged and very unimpressive. A flashy defensive game by the Wildcats held the fans attention at times as they limited their four points resulted from four well-directed foul shots.

With about eight minutes of the game left to play O'Connor, of Mendel Hall, sank the only field goal which his team scored. This basket knotted the count and so it remained until Monahan silenced the cheers of the Day Hops' adherents with his winning basket.

Maywell, of Austin, and O'Connor, of Mendel, took high scoring honors in the game with four points apiece.

Austin has only to keep up their pace to win the second half and take the championship without a play-off. Coach Robinson of Austin expresses confidence in his team and expects them to repeat, but he said that Alumni was the team to watch during the second half.

Mendel Day Hops Impressive

The other games played previous to this deciding one were all well-played and especially so was the victory of Mendel's Day Hop quintet over Alumni. Play was close throughout and the game resulted in a 16-15 victory for the Day Hops. Vincent McHugh of Alumni carried off high scoring honors in the tilt with 6 points and O'Connor of Mendel followed him with 4 markers. The deciding factor in this game was the fouls with Mendel tally 4 one-pointers to 1 for alumni.

The day before the beginning of the Christmas holidays three games were played with the Mendel Hall residents engaging in two of them and meeting defeat in both. They lost to the C. and F. aggregation and the Fedigan five beat them by the large margin of 12 points, emerging victorious by the count of 29-17.

The final game before the departure for home saw Austin defeat Alumni, 19-1. This decisive defeat put the freshman five definite-soon get underway in order to determine which of the following will be members of the team: John Jurosic, a 165-pounder; Carroll, a member of the same division; Joe Badamo, who is a 135-pounder, Buzz Davis, a freshman football man who will vie for a position in the 155-pound division. In the heavier weights there is Mulvahill, 190 pounds, and also in the same class is Knyswicki.

Veterans in Abundance

Several of last year's men are expected to return to the squad. One is Pat Pascucci, 145 pounds, who is expecting to come back to his former form, after undergoing a serious operation. Art Raimo, the flashy sophomore fullback of football fame is another of the more promising candidates. He will resume his practice soon in order to make a bid for the Penn-State intercollegiate tournament.

In listing our candidates we must not forget our star, Tony Sala, who will again seek his intercollegiate crown and who will endeavor to bring further glory to his Alma Mater in other championship meets.

Manager Tom Kennedy is looking forward to a successful season even though the following teams will be met, pending the approval of Fr. C. J. Meichior, O. S. A.

150's Admitted To Intercollegiate League

LEAGUE ACHIEVED BY LIGHTWEIGHTS AFTER FOUR YEARS

150's Only Villanova Team To Compete in Any League

PENN AND YALE INCLUDED

A terse statement issued a few days ago by the Associated Press brings to Villanova an honor for which they have been striving since 1931.

Villanova has been admitted to the Intercollegiate 150 pound League.

In this league are the representatives of the two oldest seats of learning in America; Yale and Princeton Universities, a great local university, Pennsylvania, and two colleges, renowned for their age and traditions, Lafayette and Rutgers. May not Villanova feel a wave of pride at being associated with such a group?

Only College Team in League

The 150 pound team is the only athletic organization in the college affiliated in a league. Numberless times, the VILLANOVAN has campaigned for the inclusion of its football and basketball teams in leagues. The obvious good of Villanova in a league may easily be recognized; it would increase competition, give the teams a definite goal to fight for, and would increase the prestige of the college. And league.

But will it stay there?

Due to the disasterous record of its four 150 pound teams, with the record of nineteen defeats and one victory, and the lack of interest which is really their team, the Athletic authorities have been considering the abolishment of the lightweight squad next year, as the Junior Varsity was discontinued this past season. Don't do it!

One More Chance, A. A.!

Give the team and the student body another chance; let them show you what they can do in a league. Let them have something to fight for. Even the publicity of the team in such a group as Yale, Penn and Princeton would seem to warrant its continuance for at least another year, and the new attitude which will surely result as an aftermath of the League announcement will most certainly give the team a new impetus.

Formerly, the regretful attitude was—"What's the difference? I'll stick out here, go on a couple trips and drag down a letter, why should I run my head off?" The team had an idea where they finished, but they didn't know, except that it was somewhere around the cellar. They had no position to fight for, no honors to win, so why try to win any?

Cats to Play 3 Home Games

The league will put new life in Villanova 150 pound ball. Formerly, the Kittens played the most of their games on foreign soil; the students had no chance to see and appreciate the game.

With the new schedule, Villanova will play Rutgers, Princeton and Lafayette at Villanova, and the school will have a chance to see what the "buck anna half" team can do.

The team will travel to Yale, see the game of the weekend, and meet Penn in Franklin Field.

All of these factors will see a new and greater lightweight team take the field. A team with the will to win; a team with a definite goal to fight for.

Let's have a league leader in 1936!

THE SCHEDULE FOR 1936

Oct. 16, Penn at Lafayette; 17, Rutgers at Villanova; 23, Princeton at Villanova and Rutgers at Penn; 24, Yale at Lafayette; 31, Penn at Princeton, Villanova at Yale and Rutgers at Lafayette.

Nov. 6, Lafayette at Princeton and Penn at Yale; 11, Yale at Rutgers; 13, Villanova at Penn; 20, Princeton at Yale and Lafayette at Villanova; 26, Rutgers at Princeton.

ly out of the running. This game was marked by the close guarding of the entire Austin team and the exceptional floor play of Totin for the victors.

The day after the reopening of school Mendel residents and Austin played the first game of the new year, and Austin defeated the cellar team in a slow game that settled in the first five minutes of play, but a rally by Mendel in the last few minutes of play brought their score up.

Austin won its 8th game, which preceded the momentous battle with the Mendel Day Hops, when it defeated the business man quintet on last Tuesday. Although the C. and F. team towered over the Austinians, their superior height could not offset the remarkable teamwork of their smaller and faster opponents, so the Business School Day Hops once more went down to defeat.

C. & F. Five Trips Fedigan

On Wednesday afternoon the two commuters' teams met and the team from Mendel came out on top by the score of 23-18. Mendel did not play its usual fine game but the ComFort five could not capitalize on the breaks.

Thursday afternoon the Fedigan and the C. and F. team engaged in a battle for fourth place and Fedigan played their best basketball of the tournament but it wasn't good enough for the C. and F. team which won by a margin of one point, 27-26.

That evening Alumni and Fedigan met in a preliminary game to the Austin-Mendel Day Hop classic. Alumni won 31-25 but only after a hard struggle. With five minutes to play Fedigan led 23-21 but Alumni started to click and rolled up five successive baskets to one for Fedigan. Sheftic was the individual star of the game, tallying 18 points for Fedigan.

ing bag, and another light bag has been put up in the new gym. Thus there will be plenty of opportunity for the entrants to get into condition for the fights.

The VILLANOVAN has been requested by the intramural committee to announce that positively no one will be allowed to take part in the tournament unless he is in good physical condition. This makes it necessary for all who wish to participate to engage in preliminary training.

Hayes to Referee

The committee has secured the services of Bryan Hayes, one of the most prominent fight referees in Philadelphia, to officiate the contests. In addition to the boxing tournament bouts there will in all probability be several wrestling bouts to add to the interest of the evening's program.

Last year's tournament was a rousing success. There were seven tournament bouts and one exhibition wrestling bout, which was put on by Eddie Michaels and John Stiles. All the bouts were lively, the highlights being two T. K. O.'s, Ed Sullivan stopping Ed Sydnor in the heavyweight class, and Ed Kirshner finishing Johnny Eck in the 135-pound division.

Alumni Defending Champs

Alumni Hall's large squad easily won the team championship with 31 points to 19 for their nearest competitors, the Dayhops. Many of the boys who took part in last year's affair are still in school, and if the interest which has made other intramural activities this year successful continues, the tournament will achieve even more success than in previous years.

ed into the lead by three points at halftime.

The second half was merely a repetition of the first, with both teams fighting hard for possession of the ball. Plenty of action was seen by the fans in this frame, as the score see-sawed back and forth, with the Dukes out in front until four minutes before the gun.

A flashy comeback, with Geraghty and Brennan furnishing the spark soon knotted the score at 37-all. It seemed that an extra period would be necessary until eagle-eyed Herb Bonn found the hoop with his notorious long ones. Five of his six field goals were made from the center of the floor, with apparent ease, and the fans howled. He was high scorer with 13 points.

Next on the list came Don Brennan, flashy center for the Villanova aggregation. During the 40 minutes that he was in play he accounted for five baskets and one from the foul line.

Although plenty of fouls, 22 in number, were called on both sides, none of them were intentional, as the fast brand of play was responsible.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

AFTER a very enjoyable holiday season your correspondent will make a feeble attempt to "bat" out some news that will be fit to print—and read...

One thing that I would suggest to college authorities—or for that matter to any school of learning—would be to give a vacation on top of a vacation...Just to recuperate, y kno'...

While in the suggesting mood let me say that it would be great if the Council on Intercollegiate Athletics suddenly decided to sponsor an inter-scholastic basketball tournament in the spacious gymnasium ...Since the Penn tourney has been thrown into the discard the past few years—and with little hope of its being resumed—there has not been the semblance of any post-season tournaments...

Brown Preparatory School, of Philadelphia, decided to run one two years ago and met with only a fair amount of success...The seating capacity of the Brown gym is approximately 500 and the class of teams that participated was anything but first grade...

Villanova could add to the interscholastic swimming meet that it put over last year by putting the basketball tourney on...

With facilities to accommodate quite a few out of the city teams and augmented by the nearby Philadelphia district fives the Main Line institution could revive an interest that is on the wane in high schools and prep schools...

The Wildcat basketball squad got off on the right foot and started the New Year with a smashing triumph over the Cadets from P. M. C...

The first time the basketball team visited the Arena to battle Westminster the court was quite small...Since that time the basketball impresarios—due to some pressure by participating coaches—have made the court some five feet wider...And five additional feet—when you have to play against a zone defense—comes in mighty handy...

The idea of students paying to see the basketball double-headers has been meeting with a great deal of disapproval...This is due to the fact that the Wildcats play only close to six games at home and so far three hav already gone by the boards.

The P. M. C. basketball team started singing "We throw it up there—it rolls round and round and STAYS OUTSIDE"...The lid just could not be lifted for the Chester collegians...In the double-headers staged at the Arena in Philadelphia the Temple team has taken part in every one and have come out on the short end only once...the giant California team holds a victory over the Owls...

The officials from out of the city surpass the Philadelphia arbiters by the proverbial mile...With Pat Kennedy—an Eastern Intercollegiate official—the "tops."

son these same teams were met on consecutive days and the result was one victory and one defeat. The Bisons proved easy for Captain Johnny Shevlin and the 'Cats, but the Carlisle team gave them something to remember via a decisive trouncing route.

Four of the present array of varsity men here were participants in that contest and they will be striving for revenge.

CAMPUS SPORTS WIN FAVOR OF STUDENTS

Intramural Program Increases In Popularity Among Undergraduates

AMHERST, Mass, Jan. 13—With almost 100 per cent of the students participating in one or more organized sports, the intra-mural program at Amherst College, designed to provide athletic training for all, has reached a new high.

Although intercollegiate athletics is considered as merely one branch of the general scheme of physical education, last year about 100 students participated in this group.

Intramural contests are held between the 13 fraternities and the non-fraternity group in 11 sports. Schedules, worked out under the direction of the department of physical education, are operated by an undergraduate manager and assistant manager.

About 300 games are played and the tangible goal is the winning of a silver cup offered to the fraternity or non-fraternity group attaining the highest score in each sport and a trophy or trophies for the highest total score. The activities include the following:

Fall—Touch football, cross-country, golf.

Winter — Basketball, squash, handball, swimming, indoor relay.

Spring—Baseball, track, tennis.

Of an enrollment of 780 last year, 146 students won places on the major intramural teams and 245 others participated in the varied campus program, including boxing, fencing, skiing, wrestling and gymnastics.

Subsidization Of College Athletes Seen As Necessary

Continued Popularity of Collegiate Sports Said To Depend on Problem

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 13—Football is Big Business in over 70 per cent of American colleges, according to President James Rowland Angell, of Yale, who charges that in these schools it is the crowd—the winners—the receipts—that count above everything else connected with the game.

Should college football, with its sub-rosa subsidization of players, lose out in the competition for popularity with the professional teams, and follow college baseball into obscurity, there are three possible solutions for schools that refuse to countenance any but strictly amateur procedure, Dr. Angell says.

The three ways out cited by the Yale president are: Endowments rendering the athletic program independent of gate receipts; discontinuing some or all sports as financial responsibilities of the colleges and leaving them up to the students; or the abandoning of the whole program of "college sports as public spectacles" with a return to the informal games of the pre-Victorian era.

Collegiate World

By COLLEGIATE DIGEST and Associated Collegiate Press

Recently we gave you what we thought was the ultimate in apple polishing.

Now we see that the art has jumped its regular traces and breaks out among professors themselves, as well as students. We note with a chuckle the public statement of the history professor at the University of Wisconsin to the effect that Dr. Glenn Frank would make a fine Republican candidate for the Presidency. Glenn Frank, you will remember, is president of the University of Wisconsin.

Before closing, let us make note of the fact that the sports editor of the University of Minnesota Daily picked his All Big Ten Team the other day and 11 out of 11 were Minnesota players. That's loyalty!

Editors of College Newspapers Condemn Faculty Intervention

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—American college editors want no control by faculty members, no matter how far it may be from actual censorship.

That was the opinion vigorously expressed at a conference of more than 50 editors held recently in New York under the auspices of the National Student Federation of America.

"Faculty advisers," said one editor, "usually wind up by being autocrats instead of advisers," and the subsequent discussion brought out a smouldering resentment against existing forms of faculty control and a wide demand for more freedom of the undergraduate press in many directions.

Other sore points were the matter of remuneration of editorial and business staffs and varying methods of choosing workers for top staff positions.

The editors were told they ought to be increasingly aware of their opportunities for moulding intelligent opinion along social, political and economic lines.

The so-called "Vassar point system" for remuneration of business staff members, which calls for distribution of a certain number of points for each advertisement sold, and division of the profits at the end of the year in proportion to points amassed received general approval.

General and outspoken disapproval was registered with the common methods of appointing students to fill ranking staff positions. Not the student body at large, nor the English department, nor the dean should have the right to name editors and business managers, the delegate editors maintained, holding that they should be elected by either the staff or the outgoing board of control.

Francis G. Smith, Jr., editor last year of The Daily Princetonian and president of the Association of College Editors, urged the delegates to pay more attention to what liberals and radicals on their campuses say, than to the conservatives.

"Coincident with a healthy change in the undergraduate outlook in the last few years," he said, "certain college newspapers have exerted a vital force on campus opinion through intelligent comment on American politics and economics."

Freedom of speech and the press in colleges must be carefully guarded, he asserted, because "university administrations today are more apt to suppress freedom of the press than formerly."

James A. Wechsler, editor last year of The Columbia Spectator, told the editors that attacks by certain newspapers and patriotic societies on communism in the colleges was the "first indication of approaching fascism."

"The attack by so-called college patriotic societies on liberal students at peace meetings is often similar to the activities in Nazi Germany," he asserted.

THREE DAY RETREAT COMMENCES MONDAY AFTERNOON AT FOUR

Two Former Members of College Faculty Will Conduct Exercises

STUDENTS' APPRECIATION AND INTEREST IS SOUGHT

Chaplain Urges All to Be Faithful and Prompt In Attendance

The 93d Annual Three-Day Retreat of Villanova College will get underway next Monday afternoon, January 27, at 4 o'clock, for the day students, and on Monday evening for the residence students. The exercises will be concluded with Mass on Friday morning, January 31, at which time communion will be given for the whole student body.

Rev. John R. Brennan, O. S. A., formerly of Lawrence, Mass., and Rev. Charles J. McCarron, O. S. A., formerly of Philadelphia, Pa., of the Augustinian Mission Band, will conduct the retreat, as has been previously announced.

Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., chaplain, is making an earnest appeal that every student manifest his appreciation for what is being done for him, by being punctual at all scheduled exercises. All the exercises are obligatory, and it is essential that every student attend each of them.

Fr. Brown said, that in retrospect, many changes are observed. In this retreat an opportunity is presented to rectify the mistakes which have been committed. He also asks the whole-hearted co-operation of the entire student body, and this co-operation is earnestly solicited.

Fr. Brown announced that various religious articles will be on sale during the retreat and they will be blessed at the conclusion of the exercises. These articles may be purchased on the book room account.

TENTATIVE DEBATE SCHEDULE LISTED

Thirteen Matches Are Named By Beta Gamma Members For Season

Beta Gamma, the debating chapter of the Villanova Literary Society, has announced a tentative schedule of intercollegiate and exhibition debates for the year 1936. This program is nearly complete, but it is expected that there may be some few additions, as well as some revision of dates.

As published the schedule includes 15 forensic encounters. The teams to debate have not as yet been selected, but the names will be available at an early date. Much progress has been accomplished to date in the afternoon debate practices as conducted by Prof. Anthony Frayne, in the forum which is being sponsored by the Beta Gamma.

There are to date approximately 20 members of Beta Gamma as enrolled by Mr. Frayne, and it is expected that the teams to represent Villanova College will be chosen from this number. The Literary Society is in the process of reorganization under the moderator's guidance. Peter Kerr and John Hallahan are undertaking to prepare a new and more suitable constitution for the organization.

"Resolved, That the Congress should be given the power to over ride any five to four decision of the Supreme Court of the United States" is the selected topic for intercollegiate debate this season.

"PEE WEE" HUNT "KENNY" SARGENT

Glen Gray Vocalists Have Opposite Likes

"Pee Wee" Likes Science, Athletics, Steaks And Classics

Walter G. Hunt lives in Jackson Heights, L. I., and was born 1907, in Mt. Healthy, Ohio.

His mother was a concert pianist, tried to teach him and gave it up, for as a boy, "Pee Wee" wanted to be a scientist and electrical engineer. His childhood hero in fiction was Tom Swift, and in real life, Thomas A. Edison.

He went to grade and high schools in Columbus, Ohio, and followed with one year at Ohio State. Walt was considered a good student until he took up music in his last year at high school to the despair of his teachers. Being very fond of math, electricity and physics, he naturally disliked languages.

In high school, he found himself suspended four times for cutting classes, but his mother was president of the Parent-Teachers' Association and arranged for his return each instance. He has worked as newsboy, butcher, in a machine shop, has sold vacuum cleaners, had a bicycle repair shop, built and sold radios, and played banjo in an orchestra.

Athletically inclined, his interests centered on playing guard on football teams, and putting the shot on the track team. The Ohio State

"Kenny" Likes Reading, Opera, Dancing, Travel And Children

Kenneth Sargent, who now resides in New York City, first graced this old world of ours on March 3, 1906, in Centralia, Ill.

With a railroad man for father, and neither parent talented in the way of music, Kenny began life with a surprising amount of ambition to be a musician, and so with no parental objections standing in his way, he made his first appearance before an audience in an employee's orchestra of Montgomery Ward Co. in Kansas City, Mo., for picnics, noon-hour dances, etc., at which time Kenny played the saxophone.

Fond of school, reading, and English (but nursing a distaste for mathematics), he was forced at the age of 14, to drop school after the eighth grade and go to work, when the death of his father left him an orphan. His first job was with the American Express in Sacramento, Cal., at $20 a week.

He never studied music or singing, being self-taught, and made his radio debut over KTHS, Hot Springs, Ark., on Mothers' Day, 1925, with a band. He had made his first professional appearance a year previously, having played saxophone in the Centralia orchestra.

Dumbness Key to Admittance, Says Fr. Farley, Prison Chaplain

"Dumbness is the badge of admission to prison," using this statement as his topic, Rev. Bernard C. Farley, chaplain of the Eastern State Penitentiary and Graterford Prison, presented an instructive and humorous talk before a combined Arts and Science Seminar.

Fr. Farley's talk was principally confined to short sketches and description of some of the inmates with whom he dealt. He emphasized the lack of knowledge among the prisoners and cited humorous incidents to bring out this fact. He is the second seminar speaker to contradict and ridicule "Honor among thieves." Throughout his talk he employed much of the prison slang and gangster lingo to hilarious student reaction.

He brought up the subject of religion and crime and remarked that of the 3200 prisoners 1200 claimed to be Catholics; Catholics that had not the slightest idea of what religion was. At this point he brought out the fact that the least knowledge would have been sufficient to keep them out of the penal homes.

In respect to ignorance he quoted

James Allan Appointed Head of Dinner-Dance; Ball Tickets Sell Fast

Here's Where and How To Get Belle-Air Ball Tickets

Tickets for the Senior Ball may be bought from the following people: William Vaughn and Arthur Noble, 106 Austin Hall; Joseph Malcolm, 111 Austin Hall; Frank Bellarmino, of the Science School; F. Troncelliti, of the Business School; Miss Anne Conway, at the Book Store; John DiJoseph, the VILLANOVAN office, or 307 Fedigan Hall.

Whole Committee, Orchestra, Place Not Yet Decided

Seniors Obtain Corsage, Refreshment Concessions For Senior Ball

James T. Allan, senior in the School of Technology, was appointed chairman of the dinner-dance of the Class of '36, which is to be held on February 8, the night following the Belle Air Ball. Although no other committeemen were announced, Mr. Allan reports that it is very probable that the affair will be held at the Green Hill Farms, on Lancaster Pike, scene of the 1935 Junior Dinner-Dance.

Tentatively set as starting at 7 P. M. and lasting until midnight, as last year, the particulars will be fashioned along the lines of the former successful affair. Several orchestras are being considered among whom, Las Vegas and Don Pike are the favorites. The menu has not been selected, and depends upon the situation finally selected for the dinner.

Further reports indicate that there will be programs for the social, at which seniors only will be invited. Mr. Allan has said that definite details of the event are dependent upon the outcome of an interview to be held with Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., class moderator, within the week.

Ticket sale for the Belle Air Ball, at which Casa Loma will play on February 7, has been progressing even more rapidly than was anticipated. The announcement that the sale will be strictly limited, has been again emphasized, and reports are that a large number of avail-

A. A. C. ELECTS NEW MEMBERS TO SERVE ON COUNCIL BOARD

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of Villanova, Named to Body

488 DELEGATES PRESENT

Closing with a series of discussions of specialized fields of education and appointing officers for the ensuing term of office the Association of American Colleges concluded its regular annual conference at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City on Friday last. Some 488 delegates from colleges and universities all over the country were present at the gathering, at which time Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, was elected to serve on the executive committee.

At the closing session of the two-day gathering the group voted down the resolution to appoint a commission to make, "a comprehensive survey of the athletic situation." In presenting the resolution, Walter L. Lingle, president of Davidson College, Davidson, N. C., explained the term, "comprehensive" as meaning not only a survey of the subsidizing of athletes, but also drinking at football games and other "deplorable" phases of college athletics."

It was pointed out by opponents of the resolution that the association had already declared in general terms against any special privileges for athletes, and that the

Meetings Held In N. Y. By Numerous College Groups

Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., Sits in Session at Educational Conferences

Rev. E. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, represented Villanova at a series of Educational Meetings held at the Roosevelt Hotel, in New York. These meetings were attended by a group of members of the Administrative Boards of the leading Colleges and Universities throughout the country.

The conferences were conducted from Wednesday until Friday. As chairman of the College Department of the National Catholic Education Association on the Committee of By-Laws, Fr. Stanford submitted a report by the committee on by-laws.

Other meetings held were: The National Committee of Chufch Related Colleges, annual meeting of the National Conference of Church Related Colleges, Legislative Committee of College Presidents Association of Pennsylvania, and the 22d annual meeting of Association of American Colleges.

BRYN MAWR TRUST TO HANDLE FUNDS

Senior Class to Place Proceeds of Ball in Hands Of Local Bank

It was voted in a mass meeting of the Class of '36 last week, that the profits of the annual Belle Air Ball, of February 7, would be placed in trust in the Bryn Mawr Trust Co., Bryn Mawr, Pa., to provide funds for a Class of '36 scholarship to be definite in its terms at a later meeting on the assembly.

This move followed directly on the heels of an announcement that in any other event it would be virtually impossible to obtain both State and Federal tax exemptions for the Senior Ball. The price of tickets for the affair thus will be set at $4.50, with the tax exempt, according to this distribution of the proceeds.

It was made known, however, that this move will not affect the balance in the Class of '36 treasury, which at present is approximately $330.00. Nor will it include any capital, invested in the false ceiling which the class owns, nor its rental to any organizations or dances, nor its selling price, in the event that it be sold at the conclusion of its usefulness to the Class of '36.

FATHER BROWN ILL

The student body will regret to hear of the confinement of Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., chaplain of the college, due to a nervous condition. Father Brown has been confined to bed for the period of one week, but it is expected that he will soon be about once more.

THE POWER OF REPRIEVE HAS A PURPOSE

THE question quite naturally arises, now that Governor Hoffman, has seen fit to grant a reprieve to Bruno Hauptmann, concerning the reasons that prompted the executive action. The assumption is unfeasible that the stay of execution was merely issued for the purpose of keeping the defendant alive for another 60 days. Likewise if it is the Governor's intention to commute the sentence, it would be far more considerate to do so at once, without forcing the condemned man to live another two months in the shadow of the electric chair. The only other plausible conclusion is, that Governor Hoffman is aware of the existence of evidence which will throw new light on the case. In any event some definite statement can be expected from the Executive offices concerning his action.

Since the arrest of Hauptmann this case has been replete with publicity seekers, discredited witnesses, baseless innuendos, and factitious declarations of guilt and innocence. While behind the whole sickening business was the shadow of a man going to his doom. The sorry spectacle of this human tragedy has been prolonged enough, Governor Hoffman is obliged to justify his reason for continuing it.

The very nature of the institutions upon which the structure of our social organization is built, demands that society take drastic measures to curtail the desire or tendency of any one individual, or group to endanger that structure. But in the execution of her justice it can be done with the minimum of heartlessness. The state is above the petty viciousness of the individual. And the men who occupy her positions should be mindful of the dignity that comes with their assumption of office. Their official actions are the actions of the State and not the expression of their personal inclinations. So that the Governor of New Jersey can be expected to have more definite convictions in this matter, than those he expressed when signing the reprieve, otherwise his gesture of clemency is a pitiable travesty of the authority that reposes in his position.

SOMEBODY IS WRONG

IF WE are not greatly mistaken (and we are of firm convictions that we are not), the goal or end for which Socialism is put into practice is a form of co-operative commonwealth. However, there seems to be a little dissension in the ranks somewhere as you will note in the following report which emanates from the Associated Press:

"Addressing an Eastern conference of the Socialist Party, Samuel Friedman referred to Louis Waldman, leader of the Old Guard group in New York, as a 'legal expert who may be able to guide you through technical matters of law although he may not be able to do anything else for the party.'

"Waldman jumped to his feet and shouted:

"'You louse!'

"Then he started to remove his coat, but was restrained by City Chairman Algernon Lee.

"Friedman, representative of the COMMITTEE ON UNITY between the Waldman group and the left wing faction led by Norman Thomas, retired without finishing his address."

It is a fact, it is not, that the contention has been voiced that "the trouble with capitalism is that the capitalists won't get together"?

JAPAN ON THE OUTSIDE LOOKING IN...LAUGHING

UPON THE withdrawal of Japan and her forces from the naval conference the situation arises whereby an unlimited race for naval supremacy seems to be the sole outcome. True if such a thing should come to pass it will prove costly to both Japan and the United States.

But what is more deplorable is the fact that such naval races are, for the most part, a forerunner to war as was the case in that memorable struggle for supremacy of the waters between England and Germany previous to 1914. So it is our belief that it would have been a far wiser move to offer Japan parity and thus keep her within the conference and not allow her to drift outside where she will build up to that parity anyway and still not be bound in any way by world-wide naval bonds.

Certainly it takes no diplomatic genius, a thing that none of the three great Powers has produced in recent years, to see the favorable position that Japan now occupies due to the ignorant tactics of the financial errand boys who hold down the diplomatic seats of the respective Powers.

DILEMMA

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT will be faced shortly with one of the most trying problems of his entire career as head of the nation. The question that is soon to confront him is, should he veto the bonus bill which is certain to be approved of by Congress?

Should he chance to make this move, it is a foregone conclusion that the Congress will override his measure. But what is more important is the fact that the President will further antagonize the powerful veterans' groups that are organized in the country. So he is faced with the bitter task of choosing which side of the world wide controversy is his.

If he does proceed to veto the measure he will be unquestionably showing political courage of a very rare type. Of course such action would be coincidental with his former stand on the question but at the same time it will be a mild form of political suicide.

On the other hand, if he signs the bill he will be following the logical political course. He will add to his fast failing list of friends, and he will avoid an apparently unpopular and even hopeless stand on the eve of his re-election campaign.

However, such tactics will involve a complete reversal of his policy of former years. He will be exposed to criticism on the basis that he yielded ground as a result of the pressure brought to bear by certain groups, which policy he branded unsound, for the sole purpose of gaining votes.

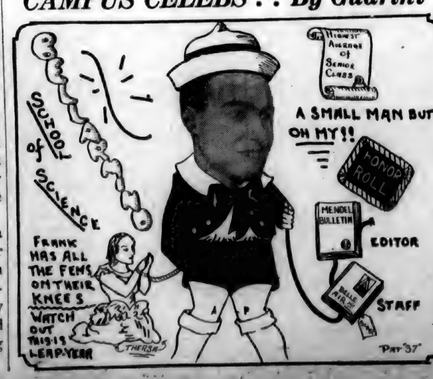
CAMPUS CELEBS . . By Guarini



As We See It . . . Reflections

By HARRY PARKIN

WE are justified in feeling some suspicion for the discontent that a man exhibits toward the cause to which he has no devotion. The past has too often proven that the things that provoke a man's antaganism are those which restrain his emotions rather than his principles. So that we are warranted in demanding of the malcontent an explanation of his motives, or more directly his principles, before we can accord his objections any consideration. The one failing, above all others, that makes the discontented man a difficult associate, is his constant desire to change the existing standards of behaviour to ones that are more commensurate with his inclinations—which are usually made up of a vague conglomeration of ethical hypotheses, that are little designed to aid any one but themselves. We can, by following an old philosophical maxim, avoid many disagreements with such people, by demanding that they first define their principles.

Self discipline is founded as firmly upon contentment with our lack of possessions as it is upon our ability to refuse those things that are before us. In fact, we are inclined toward the opinion, that a man's soul must be tempered in the fire of deprivation before it can attain the strength and rigidity of purposefulness. These recommendations in particular, should be carried by the philosopher, who would have us consider his works. For it is by no means difficult to conjecture upon the eternal truths when one is well fed and seated by the fireside, but the man who can find satisfaction in these things before a cold hearth and a repast of bread, is more prompted by a fondness for truth itself, than he is by universal kindliness that may be stimulated by his own feeling of well-being. Show me a philosopher who knows the sweetness and virtue that can be found in trifling things, and I'll show you a man whose works are worth the perusal.

Roughly we may say that there are two forms of education, that of words and that of things. The former includes the theoretical and classical form of learning which are only derived through mental exertions; and the latter, which is of more practical and purposeful moment, is acquired from the direct association with the realities of life. The man of intelligence is aware of the necessity, and limitations of each, so that he is constantly exerting himself to achieve a happy combination of the two. For he who can equitably associate with the upper as well as the lower strata of society—comparing the two, only upon the basis of their possessions, and the opportunities that have been afforded them—will find that he has been educated in a manner that is now-a-days, all too seldomly found.

If it were possible for men to make friends of their youthful ideals, and accord them the same consideration that they do the former, life as a whole would be far happier. The finite and temporal are far too ephemeral to permit happiness any lengthy abiding place, so that ultimately our only real source of happiness is founded in the ideal. And what a "deal" of bother we could save ourselves if we could but earlier appreciate this.

Genius is an infinite capacity for interpretation—or the complete absence of the hand of the writer from his works. We read of humanity in Shakespeare, but not a single word, exempting the perfection of development, reveals the nature of the author. His pages reek of men and their passions, but are as silent as the desert upon the man who wrote them. In his works we behold the masterpiece but never the master.

Human failings belong to humanity—vicious ones to the beasts of the jungle. Hence it is so unfortunate that rationality in some men is but an added faculty by which they contrive greater evil.

Globe Trotting

PERU

(Part I continued, and Part II complete of an interview with Mr. Antonio Franco, native of Peru, whose biographical sketch was published in this column last week.)

MONEY CANNOT BUY. "What is of interest to travelers in Peru?"

"The ruins of the ancient Incas are always quite enthralling to foreigners. The remains of the old Inca-Spanish Church is Cuzco was, as expressed by Prescott, renowned historian, 'the most magnificent structure in the New World, and unsurpassed probably, in the costliness of its decorations, by any in both the Old and the New Worlds.'

"For the elaborate hand-carved pupit alone, millions of dollars have been offered. But happily for tourists and Peruvians alike, all such efforts have been unsuccessful.

"Also worthy of visiting is San Marcos University, older by 100 years than any in the United States."

EIGHTH WONDER. "There is also the great Oroya Railroad, sometimes called the eighth wonder of the world. It runs through Lima and then straight up the magnificent Andes, until it finally reaches Cerro de Pasco, the highest town in the world.

"The road travels up some of the steepest mountains of the Globe, and much of its bed has been blasted out of solid rock.

"All who once see it, writers, tourists, engineers, railroad men, agree that it is one of the most remarkable feats ever, in any age, accomplished by the hand of man."

PART II, THE INHABITANTS REVOLUTIONS. How and why do you have revolts?" Here in this country you make your revolutions against the Government by votes. But in South America, if a bad President is elected the Latin temperament is too eager to wait until elections in order to oust him. We demand instant action, hence the revolts. The procedure is to first enlist the aid of the army, then quietly perform a coup d'etat and demand that the ruler resign, or, this failing, he is jailed. There is no bloodshed or disastrous civil war. You can be walking in the most crowded streets of Peru while a revolution is going on and not know it.

SUITS EVERYONE. If an Eskimo visits Peru he can be right at home in the southern mountains, where it is very cold. An African, accustomed to torrid climates, can live comfortably in the north of the country, near the Equator. Likewise those from practically every section of the globe can go to Peru and find there whatever particular climate they are accustomed to. In central Peru, for instance, spring exists all year around. Vegetation and flowers are always in bloom. This, combined with the perfect weather, and the fact that there is never any snow, and in Lima, never any rain, makes the place a perfect paradise.

QUEER LITTLE TYKES. Small animals called llamas are very common among the mountains of Peru. These shaggy creatures are almost indispensable and they seem to realize this. Their wool is made into clothing, their skin into leather, their flesh into food, and they are the beasts of burden where no other animals could live on Peru's bare, breathless heights.

"If harmed or annoyed they return their vengeance in a way no man will ever forget. They do not kick; they do not bite; they merely spit, and this spit has the most penetrating stench one could imagine. Another characteristic of these peculiar little creatures, is that they will carry just 100 pounds, and if loaded with more, will simply lie down and not budge an inch until their burden is lessened.

PLANS FOR REUNION DANCE UNDECIDED

Pre-Medicals Await Action of Senior Class in False Ceiling

Potential plans for the Lambda Kappa Delta Reunion Rance were discussed at the last meeting of the fraternity. At that time was brough up the matter of the purchase from the senior class of its covering for the gymnasium ceiling. As yet, however, nothing definite was determined, in that the senior class has not dicided definitely as to what action will be taken on that subject.

Discussion also centered about the, matter of the state tax imposed on the price of all such affairs. This tax will increase tht price of admission quite considerably, and so perhaps influence the sale of the tickets and attendance at the function.

Treasurer Piserschia, at this time, gave his report on the financial standing of all the members. This fact, as reported last week, is in direct accordance with an article in the organization constitution which stipulates that those members in arrears must be notified at least two weeks before the final date of payment. Thus all members who are now in arrears will have to complete their payments by the first week after retreat or be dropped from the body.

Chairman Welsh, of the dance committee, announced to the fraternity that judging from the progress already made in formulating plans for the affair, it will be a success. A meeting of the committee will be held during the first week after retreat.

The Villanovan Seven Years Ago

COLLEGE officials recently announced their intention to have an official dedication ceremony of the two new buildings in the near future. All necessary arrangements have not yet been completed, nor has a final date been fixed for the ceremony, but it is expected that it will take place immediately after the return of His Eminence D. Cardinal Dougherty to the city.

"College Hall, which was destroyed by fire almost a year ago, is fast nearing completion, and it is expected to be ready for occupancy immediately after the mid-term retreat. This building together with the newly completed Fedigan Hall, will be blessed and dedicated on the same day.

"It will be of interest to the student body to know that College Hall will probably be open for inspection during the coming retreat. It is the intention of the officials of the college in so doing to give the students a fair idea of the different class rooms, lecture halls, and laboratories in the building, so that there will be as little confusion as possible among the students when the building becomes occupied."

(Editor's Note — College Hall here referred to is better known today as Mendel Hall. This article was taken verbatim from THE VILLANOVAN of January 21, 1929).

YEARLING ORATORS WILL HOLD PRACTICE DEBATE

Wednesday Following Retreat Week Chosen as Date for Inter-Society Debate

At its regular weekly meeting last Wednesday night, the Freshman Debating Society made plans to hold a debate among themselves at their next gathering. Each member is to have a ten-minute speech prepared on the subject: "Resolved, That Congress should be permitted by a two-thirds vote to override any five to four decision of the Supreme Court.

This will be the topic of most of their debates of this season as it has widespread interest in the intercollegiate debating circles. The team will defend the negative side of the argument in the forthcoming tilt with Tempie.

Although the attendance has dropped somewhat in the past few meetings, Mrs. Houseman hopes to have four teams present at the practice debate which will take place on the Wednesday following retreat. The society cordially invites anyone who cares to come.

Pass In Review

By R. L. G. DEVERALL,

IT IS THE OPINION of many persons that one has but to send a boy to college, expose him to the lectures of erudite professors, and, presto! An educated, cultured gentlemen is the product. Could any idea be more false?

John Henry Cardinal Newman, one of the great Catholic intellectuals of the modern age, has written, in his "Liberal Education," "How much more profitable for the independent mind, after the mere rudiments of education, to range through a library at random, taking down books as they meet them, and pursuing the trains of thought which his mother wit suggests!"

True education does not consist in digesting facts memorizing formulae or taking copious lecture notes. There are but the stimulil that are given us to arouse our intellectual curiosity. If no response is elicited, the educational institution is not a fault. NO! It is to the student to whom we must refer the guilt. Professors give us ideas; they give to us freely out of the store of their vast learning. They spend their lives searching for the ideas they give to us in a few weeks or months. Think of it. In a four-year period, if we are attentive, we receive the learning of hundreds of men. The wisdom of the ages is given us...though we seldom view it in that light.

It would be interesting to investigate this problem and find, if possible, what advantage the student body makes of the books offered for their use. Books are strange things. They are usually dull, drab, heavy things that are handy for the oppressed roomie's use. How convenient it is to throw a book—let us say a good, solid lexicon—at the person who is convinced that his proper station in life is that of an opera artist, or perhaps a crooner of some sort. But seriously, we derive much of our knowledge from these very books. Do we appreciate their tremendous value? Do we use our books properly?

This season of the year is one in which we are taking stock of ourselves spiritually. Let us investigate our minds. How many have ever had the curiosity to read the writings of St. Augustine, one of the Fathers of our Holy Mother, the Church? How many have ever, of their own free will, investigated Keats' "Ode to a Grecian Urn?" How many have thrilled to read Dante's Divine Comedy. How many have ever read Manzoni's magnificent Catholic novel: "The Betrothed"? And — let us not embarrass anyone — how many have read the Four Gospels?

During the next week, questionnaires are going to be passed amongst the resident students. You are going to be asked to list your favorite authors, your favorite poet, and so forth. You are going to be asked if you read extensively outside of class, whether you know how to use books, what magazines interest you, etc.

Answer the questions honestly, and without malice or facetiousness. This is a serious undertaking. The results, we promise, are going to be most interesting. Can we depend upon you to make the 1936 Villanova Literary Poll a success?

Villanova Graduate Is Official Cartoonist for Republican Party

Alfred Panepinto, Class of '27, was offered a position recently by Harvard University to teach Architecture in New England. He declined the offer, however, in view of his present position as political cartoonist for the National Republican Committee.

During his four years at Harvard, in addition to winning many architectural competitions, he was holder of several scholarships, one of which paid him a regular stipend in the nature of a fellowship. Many of his original drawings and designs have been kept by the university for their permanent exhibit. The Boston Museum of Fine Arts has an example of his sculpture. It is a bas relief of his mother, and is considered one of the finest ever done by a Harvard man.

Last week, the National Economy League appointed him to regularly draw their cartoons, apart from his full-time position with the National Republican Committee.

During a stay in Washington, Panepinto made many portraits and caricatures of Congressmen, including an action drawing of Senator Huey Long, which is believed to be the last one made of the late Senator. Among recent portraits is one still in the making of J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Department of Justice.

On week-ends Mr. Panepinto is busy drawing commercial allustrations for New York advertising firms, and working on architectural plans, the work he did regularly before the National Committee obtained his services.

One of his recent works was an architects plan of a proposed library for Villanova College. A picture of it was printed in the VILLANOVAN last spring.

THE POWER OF REPRIEVE HAS A PURPOSE

THE question quite naturally arises, now that Governor Hoffman, has seen fit to grant a reprieve to Bruno Hauptmann, concerning the reasons that prompted the executive action. The assumption is unfeasible that the stay of execution was merely issued for the purpose of keeping the defendant alive for another 60 days. Likewise if it is the Governor's intention to commute the sentence, it would be far more considerate to do so at once, without forcing the condemned man to live another two months in the shadow of the electric chair. The only other plausible conclusion is, that Governor Hoffman is aware of the existence of evidence which will throw new light on the case. In any event some definite statement can be expected from the Executive offices concerning his action.

Since the arrest of Hauptmann this case has been replete with publicity seekers, discredited witnesses, baseless innuendos, and factitious declarations of guilt and innocence. While behind the whole sickening business was the shadow of a man going to his doom. The sorry spectacle of this human tragedy has been prolonged enough, Governor Hoffman is obliged to justify his reason for continuing it.

The very nature of the institutions upon which the structure of our social organization is built, demands that society take drastic measures to curtail the desire or tendency of any one individual, or group to endanger that structure. But in the execution of her justice it can be done with the minimum of heartlessness. The state is above the petty viciousness of the individual. And the men who occupy her positions should be mindful of the dignity that comes with their assumption of office. Their official actions are the actions of the State and not the expression of their personal inclinations. So that the Governor of New Jersey can be expected to have more definite convictions in this matter, than those he expressed when signing the reprieve, otherwise his gesture of clemency is a pitiable travesty of the authority that reposes in his position.

SOMEBODY IS WRONG

IF WE are not greatly mistaken (and we are of firm convictions that we are not), the goal or end for which Socialism is put into practice is a form of co-operative commonwealth. However, there seems to be a little dissension in the ranks somewhere as you will note in the following report which emanates from the Associated Press:

"Addressing an Eastern conference of the Socialist Party, Samuel Friedman referred to Louis Waldman, leader of the Old Guard group in New York, as a 'legal expert who may be able to guide you through technical matters of law although he may not be able to do anything else for the party.'

"Waldman jumped to his feet and shouted:

"'You louse!'

"Then he started to remove his coat, but was restrained by City Chairman Algernon Lee.

"Friedman, representative of the COMMITTEE ON UNITY between the Waldman group and the left wing faction led by Norman Thomas, retired without finishing his address."

It is a fact, it is not, that the contention has been voiced that "the trouble with capitalism is that the capitalists won't get together"?

JAPAN ON THE OUTSIDE LOOKING IN . . . LAUGHING

UPON THE withdrawal of Japan and her forces from the naval conference the situation arises whereby an unlimited race for naval supremacy seems to be the sole outcome. True if such a thing should come to pass it will prove costly to both Japan and the United States.

But what is more deplorable is the fact that such naval races are, for the most part, a forerunner to war as was the case in that memorable struggle for supremacy of the waters between England and Germany previous to 1914. So it is our belief that it would have been a far wiser move to offer Japan parity and thus keep her within the conference and not allow her to drift outside where she will build up to that parity anyway and still not be bound in any way by world-wide naval bonds.

Certainly it takes no diplomatic genius, a thing that none of the three great Powers has produced in recent years, to see the favorable position that Japan now occupies due to the ignorant tactics of the financial errand boys who hold down the diplomatic seats of the respective Powers.

DILEMMA

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT will be faced shortly with one of the most trying problems of his entire career as head of the nation. The question that is soon to confront him is, should he veto the bonus bill which is certain to be approved of by Congress?

Should he chance to make this move, it is a foregone conclusion that the Congress will override his measure. But what is more important is the fact that the President will further antagonize the powerful veterans' groups that are organized in the country. So he is faced with the bitter task of choosing which side of the world wide controversy is his.

If he does proceed to veto the measure he will be unquestionably showing political courage of a very rare type. Of course such action would be coincidental with his former stand on the question but at the same time it will be a mild form of political suicide.

On the other hand, if he signs the bill he will be following the logical political course. He will add to his fast failing list of friends, and he will avoid an apparently unpopular and even hopeless stand on the eve of his re-election campaign.

However, such tactics will involve a complete reversal of his policy of former years. He will be exposed to criticism on the basis that he yielded ground as a result of the pressure brought to bear by certain groups, which policy he branded unsound, for the sole purpose of gaining votes.

ODDS and ENDS

WANTED! One grudge fight to be held January 31 at the college gymnasium as a part of the regular intramural boxing show to be presented at that time. Contestants must have suitable grounds for extermination of opponent and no "dives" will be allowed. So all you tough ducks out there (we don't mean those of the canvas-back variety) get together and produce a prize-winning setto. (Ed. Note—If John Lawrence McManus is listening, what do you say we go at it?)

Did you know that: "Men or women shouldn't dress so that everyone stares at them. That is not the secret of the well-dressed person." (Taken from an article written by one of the foremost designers in Paris.) No reason why this shouldn't hold for the two Austinites who resemble a hashed reproduction of Esquire. Bob Brown and Jim Douglas bowled over Philadelphians only recently by nonchalantly strolling down Chestnut St. and thence into the Fox with hands full of raw carrots and emitting loud crunching noises from their respective oral cavities. . . Bob Egan and Ed Sydnor are thinking seriously of entering the hotel business. Of course they expect to work from the ground up; for instance, as elevator boys. That's not quite the same story as the other night is it, fellows, when you worked from the top floor down in a runaway dumb-waiter? . . . Emil Mathias rivals Primo Carnera in regards to footwear. As We See It . . . Reflections

WE are justified in feeling some suspicion for the discontent that a man exhibits toward the cause to which he has no devotion. The past has too often proven that the things that provoke a man's antagonism are those which restrain his emotions rather than his principles. So that we are warranted in demanding of the malcontent an explanation of his motives, or more directly his principles, before we can accord his objections any consideration. The one failing, above all others, that makes the discontented man a difficult associate, is his constant desire to change the existing standards of behaviour to ones that are more commensurate with his inclinations which are usually made up of a vague conglomeration of ethical hypotheses, that are little designed to aid any one but themselves. We can, by following an old philosophical maxim, avoid many disagreements with such people, by demanding that they first define their principles.

Self discipline is founded as firmly upon contentment with our lack of possessions as it is upon our ability to refuse those things that are before us. In fact, we are inclined toward the opinion, that a man's soul must be tempered in the fire of deprivation before it can attain the strength and rigidity of purposefulness. These recommendations in particular, should be carried by the philosopher, who would have us consider his works. For it is by no means difficult to conjecture upon the eternal truths when one is well fed and seated by the fireside, but the man who can find satisfaction in these things before a cold hearth and a repast of bread, is more prompted by a fondness for truth itself, than he is by universal kindliness that may be stimulated by his own feeling of well-being. Show me a philosopher who knows the sweetness and virtue that can be found in trifling things, and I'll show you a man whose works are worth the perusal.

Roughly we may say that there are two forms of education, that of words and that of things. The former includes the theoretical and classical form of learning which are only derived through mental exertions; and the latter, which is of more practical and purposeful moment, is acquired from the direct association with the realities of life. The man of intelligence is aware of the necessity, and limitations of each, so that he is constantly exerting himself to achieve a happy combination of the two. For he who can equitably associate with the upper as well as the lower strata of society—comparing the two, only upon the basis of their possessions, and the opportunities that have been afforded them—will find that he has been educated in a manner that is, now-a-days, all too seldomly found.

If it were possible for men to make friends of their youthful ideals, and accord them the same consideration that they do the former, life as a whole would be far happier. The finite and temporal are far too ephemeral to permit happiness any lengthy abiding place, so that ultimately our only real source of happiness is founded in the ideal. And what a "deal" of bother we could save ourselves if we could but earlier appreciate this.

Genius is an infinite capacity for interpretation—or the complete absence of the hand of the writer from his works. We read of humanity in Shakespeare, but not a single word, exempting the perfection of development, reveals the nature of the author. His pages reek of men and their passions, but are as silent as the desert upon the man who wrote them. In his works we behold the masterpiece but never the master.

Human failings belong to humanity—vicious ones to the beasts of the jungle. Hence it is so unfortunate that rationality in some men is but an added faculty by which they contrive greater evil.

Globe Trotting

PERU

(Part I continued, and Part II complete of an interview with Mr. Antonio Franco, native of Peru, whose biographical sketch was published in this column last week.)

MONEY CANNOT BUY. "What is of interest to travelers in Peru?"

"The ruins of the ancient Incas are always quite enthralling to foreigners. The remains of the old Inca-Spanish Church is Cuzco was, as expressed by Prescott, renowned historian, 'the most magnificent structure in the New World, and unsurpassed probably, in the costliness of its decorations, by any in both the Old and the New Worlds.'

"For the elaborate hand-carved pupit alone, millions of dollars have been offered. But happily for tourists and Peruvians alike, all such efforts have been unsuccessful.

"Also worthy of visiting is San Marcos University, older by 100 years than any in the United States."

EIGHTH WONDER. "There is also the great Oroya Railroad, sometimes called the eighth wonder of the world. It runs through Lima and then straight up the magnificent Andes, until it finally reaches Cerro de Pasco, the highest town in the world.

"The road travels up some of the steepest mountains of the Globe, and much of its bed has been blasted out of solid rock.

"All who once see it, writers, tourists, engineers, railroad men, agree that it is one of the most remarkable feats ever, in any age, accomplished by the hand of man."

PART II, THE INHABITANTS

REVOLUTIONS. How and why do you have revolutions?" Here in this country you make your revolutions against the Government by votes. But in South America, if a bad President is elected the Latin temperament is too eager to wait until elections in order to oust him. We demand instant action, hence the revolts. The procedure is to first enlist the aid of the army, then quietly perform a coup d'etat and demand that the ruler resign, or, this failing, he is jailed. There is no bloodshed or disastrous civil war. You can be walking in the most crowded streets of Peru while a revolution is going on and not know it.

SUITS EVERYONE. If an Eskimo visits Peru he can be right at home in the southern mountains, where it is very cold. An African, accustomed to torrid climates, can live comfortably in the north of the country, near the Equator. Likewise those from practically every section of the globe can go to Peru and find there whatever particular climate they are accustomed to. In central Peru, for instance, spring exists all year around. Vegetation and flowers are always in bloom. This, combined with the perfect weather, and the fact that there is never any snow, and in Lima, never any rain, makes the place a perfect paradise.

QUEER LITTLE TYKES. Small animals called llamas are very common among the mountains of Peru. These shaggy creatures are almost indispensable and they seem to realize this. Their wool is made into clothing, their skin into leather, their flesh into food, and they are the beasts of burden where no other animals could live on Peru's bare, breathless heights.

If harmed or annoyed they return their vengeance in a way no man will ever forget. They do not kick; they do not bite; they merely spit, and this spit has the most penetrating stench one could imagine. Another characteristic of these peculiar little creatures, is that they will carry just 100 pounds, and if loaded with more, will simply lie down and not budge an inch until their burden is lessened.

PLANS FOR REUNION DANCE UNDECIDED

Pre-Medicals Await Action of Senior Class in False Ceiling

Potential plans for the Lambda Kappa Delta Reunion Rance were discussed at the last meeting of the fraternity. At that time was brough up the matter of the purchase from the senior class of its covering for the gymnasium ceiling. As yet, however, nothing definite was determined, in that the senior class has not decided definitely as to what action will be taken on that subject.

Discussion also centered about the matter of the state tax imposed on the price of all such affairs. This tax will increase the price of admission quite considerably, and so perhaps influence the sale of the tickets and attendance at the function.

Treasurer Piserschia, at this time, gave his report on the financial standing of all the members. This fact, as reported last week, is in direct accordance with an article in the organization constitution which stipulates that those members in arrears must be notified at least two weeks before the final date of payment. Thus all members who are now in arrears will have to complete their payments by the first week after retreat or be dropped from the body.

Chairman Welsh, of the dance committee, announced to the fraternity that judging from the progress already made in formulating plans for the affair, it will be a success. A meeting of the committee will be held during the first week after retreat.

The Villanovan Seven Years Ago

COLLEGE officials recently announced their intention to have an official dedication ceremony of the two new buildings in the near future. All necessary arrangements have not yet been completed, nor has a final date been fixed for the ceremony, but it is expected that it will take place immediately after the return of His Eminence D. Cardinal Dougherty to the city.

"College Hall, which was destroyed by fire almost a year ago, is fast nearing completion, and it is expected to be ready for occupancy immediately after the mid-term retreat. This building together with the newly completed Fedigan Hall will be blessed and dedicated on the same day.

"It will be of interest to the student body to know that College Hall will probably be open for inspection during the coming retreat. It is the intention of the officials of the college in so doing to give the students a fair idea of the different class rooms, lecture halls, and laboratories in the building, so that there will be as little confusion as possible among the students when the building becomes occupied."

(Editor's Note — College Hall here referred to is better known today as Mendel Hall. This article was taken verbatim from THE VILLANOVAN of January 21, 1929).

YEARLING ORATORS WILL HOLD PRACTICE DEBATE

Wednesday Following Retreat Week Chosen as Date for Inter-Society Debate

At its regular weekly meeting last Wednesday night, the Freshman Debating Society made plans to hold a debate among themselves at their next gathering. Each member is to have a ten-minute speech prepared on the subject: "Resolved, That Congress should be permitted by a two-thirds vote to override any five to four decision of the Supreme Court.

This will be the topic of most of their debates of this season as it has widespread interest in the intercollegiate debating circles. The team will defend the negative side of the argument in the forthcoming tilt with Temple.

Although the attendance has dropped somewhat in the past few meetings, Mrs. Houseman hopes to have four teams present at the practice debate which will take place on the Wednesday following retreat. The society cordially invites anyone who cares to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Benny and company, by the way, are shaking the golden dust of Hollywood from their feet, shortly and beginning in February will do their broadcasting from our own Radio City.

Schnozzle can't take it. Meaning that Jimmy Durante finds two shows a day in "Jumbo" and the Tuesday broadcast too strenuous even for his prodigious energy. Hence he's dropping out of the "Jumbo" radio show, which hereafter will be predominately musical, with Gloria Grafton, Donald Novis and the others, carrying on the torch . . . Gladys Swarthout is another artist whose activities in the radio, concert, opera and movie fields find her badly in need of a rest. So Miss Swarthout, immediately after last Sunday night's broadcast, packed up and left for the quietude of the Bahamas, where she says she's going to sleep until February 8.

Lionel Barrymore will come East for the first time to play a role, appearing with the Radio Theatre on Monday, January 27 (WABC-9) in a play to be announced . . . Jackie Coogan, famous kid actor of the silent days, will appear with the Crosley Follies, which emanate from studios of WLW in Cincinnati Tuesday (WOR 10:30) . . . Virginia Rea has accepted Henry L. Pass In Review

By R. L. G. DEVERALL

IT IS THE OPINION of many persons that one has but to send a boy to college, expose him to the lectures of erudite professors, and, presto! An educated, cultured gentlemen is the product. Could any idea be more false?

John Henry Cardinal Newman, one of the great Catholic intellectuals of the modern age, has written, in his "Liberal Education," "How much more profitable for the independent mind, after the mere rudiments of education, to range through a library at random, taking down books as they meet them, and pursuing the trains of thought which his mother wit suggests!"

True education does not consist in digesting facts memorizing formulae or taking copious lecture notes. There are but the stimulii that are given us to arouse our intellectual curiosity. If no response is elicited, the educational institution is not a fault. NO! It is to the student to whom we must refer the guilt. Professors give us ideas; they give to us freely out of the store of their vast learning. They spend their lives searching for the ideas they give to us in a few weeks or months. Think of it. In a four-year period, if we are attentive, we receive the learning of hundreds of men. The wisdom of the ages is given us... though we seldom view it in that light.

It would be interesting to investigate this problem and find, if possible, what advantage the student body makes of the books offered for their use. Books are strange things. They are usually dull, drab, heavy things that are handy for the oppressed roomie's use. How convenient it is to throw a book—let us say a good, solid lexicon—at the person who is convinced that his proper station in life is that of an opera artist, or perhaps a crooner of some sort. But seriously, we derive much of our knowledge from these very books. Do we appreciate their tremendous value? Do we use our books properly?

This season of the year is one in which we are taking stock of ourselves spiritually. Let us investigate our minds. How many have ever had the curiosity to read the writings of St. Augustine, one of the Fathers of our Holy Mother, the Church? How many have ever, of their own free will, investigated Keats' "Ode to a Grecian Urn?" How many have thrilled to read Dante's Divine Comedy. How many have ever read Manzoni's magnificent Catholic novel: "The Betrothed"? And — let us not embarrass anyone — how many have read the Four Gospels?

During the next week, questionnaires are going to be passed amongst the resident students. You are going to be asked to list your favorite authors, your favorite poet, and so forth. You are going to be asked if you read extensively outside of class, whether you know how to use books, what magazines interest you, etc.

Answer the questions honestly, and without malice or facetiousness. This is a serious undertaking. The results, we promise, are going to be most interesting. Can we depend upon you to make the 1936 Villanova Literary Poll a success?

CHURCH RELATED COLLEGES ELECT REV. E. V. STANFORD

Conference Unites All Liberal Arts Colleges Related to Christian Churches

At the third annual convention of the National Conference of Church Related Colleges held at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College was elected vice-chairman and member of the executive board of that group.

This National Conference of Church Related Colleges unites all Liberal Arts Colleges in the United States that are either directly or indirectly related by Christian Churches. Various sections of the country are the scenes of the annual and regional conventions sponsored by this gathering. The organization is likewise responsible for the publication of a monthly bulletin called "Christian Education."

In addition to Fr. Stanford other members chosen were: Dr. E. E. Rall president of North Central College, chairman; Dr. Guy Everitt, president of Birmingham Southern College; Dr. J. E. Bradford, treasurer of Board of Education of the United Presbyterian Churches; and Dr. H. M. Gage, president of Coe College.

Rev. Edward George Dohan, O. S. A., Was Head of Villanova For 5 Years and Founded Academy

Very Rev. Edward George Dohan, O. S. A., pastor of the Church of St. Augustine, died at the pastorate Thursday at Troy, N. Y., last week.

One of the four Definitors of the Order of St. Augustine, Father Dohan was president of Villanova College from 1910 until 1915.

Born in 1870 in Troy, the deceased attend Villanova until he was ordained in 1899 at the Cathedral in Philadelphia by the late Archbishop Ryan.

Upon his ordination, Father Dohan was sent to the Church of the Good Counsel and the Augustinian Academy in Staten Island, New York.

In 1926 he founded the Academy of St. Rita on Staten Island. He received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Duquesne University in 1915.

A specific example of dumbness was given of a "veteran boarder" who believed that a piece of ingrafted ivory in his nose would grow into full sized elephant tusks. Led on to believe this by Fr. Farley, as a joke, to illustrate the mental capacity of the victim, the tale caused quite a laugh among the Seminar audience.

The last part of his discourse comprised mostly of describing the interior and conditions existing in the present penal institutions. The construction of the prison consisted of thirteen cell blocks forming hubs of a huge wheel, the center of which presented a view of all the cells.

If "Kenny" Sargent Had a Million, He'd Buy Parts and Build Radios

Aided by Glen Gray more than anyone else in radio work, Kenneth joined Casa Loma in Boston, May 4, 1931, never realizing "mike fright." He is, however, self-conscious when singing and does not like to have audiences.

Mr. Sargent married Dorothy Morelock in Memphis, Tenn., February 23, 1928, also writing "Though You Went Away" the same year. He doesn't like travel, since he has barnstormed far too much with bands, and would like to live in California, spending the summers in Maine. If he could be someone else, he would like to be Bing Crosby. His early hobbies were dancing, music and radio, enjoying building radio sets.

Kenny Sargent believes in breaks, and has no superstitions in connections with radio; his only taboos being walking under ladders, and black cats, adding knocks on wood for luck. If he were not a musician, he would turn to work as a radio service man. He likes grand opera, but has no chance to hear it; he enjoys dancing and is indisposed toward crowds; is even-tempered; envies people who aren't self-conscious; has more confidence in advice of friends than in his own judgment, and relies on their encouragement.

Bing Crosby is also a source of admiration to Kenneth as to Glen. His favorite popular songs are "When Day Is Done," and "Old Man River." Although he now enjoys classical music, he admits that there was a day when he did not; Grace Moore and Lawrence Tibbett being his favorites. He does not enjoy poetry, and his favorite flower is the rose; favorite jewel, the ruby.

The favorite color of Mr. Sargent is brown; has aversion to yellow and lavender. He is fond of, and never had enough, ocean travel, new saxophones, money, children and friends. Weighs 160, 5 feet 11 1-2 inches tall, black hair, brown eyes.

Kenny wouldn't retire, if he could, but, if he had a million dollars, he would move to his wife's home in Tennessee, where she would be happy; buy a home, car, clothes, etc., for his family; build a radio laboratory; get a thousand dollars worth of radio parts; and build a dozen radios.

STUDENTS TO JOIN FRANKLIN LIBRARY

Philadelphia Institute Offers Exceptional Facilities For Scientific Learning

Taking advantage of the exceptional opportunities offered at this time by the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, many Villanova students have announced their intention of joining the institute library. This library, the only one of its kind in the eastern section of the country, offers exceptional educational research facilities not found in the usual library.

Among other features the Franklin library card admits its bearer to the unlimited store of scientific periodicals that are produced from time to time. In no other eastern library is there such a vast store of scientific learning as is to be found here, and it is advisable for all students interested in science and technology to make use of it.

Villanova students interested in joining will submit their names to Rev. John Hammond, O. S. A., professor of Chemistry, and Dean Carl Humphries of the School of Technology. Subscription will be two dollars.

correction of any specific abuses must depend on the integrity of the individual colleges, the activity of regional educational conferences, and the disciplinary action of athletic organizations.

Another survey of interest presented at the meetings made the point that it was time for a resumption of intensive money-raising activities among the alumni of American colleges. The routine contributions to alumni funds showed the turning point of the college fund depression was reached in 1935, according to Charles J. Miel, general manager of the University of Pennsylvania Fund, who presented the survey.

As an authority on college fund raising, Mr. Miel advistd the gathering of college presidents and chancellors that a strong national alumni association and an alumni fund in constant operation are the necessary bases for the intermittent intensive campaigns which are highly productive and cost only 3.4 per cent of the funds. "The only drawback to having a strong alumni body and interested wealthy alumni," according to Mr. Miel, "was in some instances alumni interference in college administration and college affairs."

Officers elected were, James R. McCain, Agnes Scott College, president; J. L. McConaughty, Wesleyan University, vice-president; Leroy E. Kimball, controller of New York University, treasurer; and Robert L. Kelley, executive committee. Executive committee: Henry M. Wriston, Lawrence College; Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. STUDENT ENGINEERS IN SENIOR CONVENTION

Annual Engineering Conclave to Be Held March 9 at Moore School in Philadelphia

It has been announced that the A. I. E. E. Student Branch Convention will be held in conjunction with the Senior Society on March 9 at the Moore School of Engineering in Philadelphia.

This year's convention will be one of outstanding importance in the history of the society, as a special program will be held celebrating the 50th anniversary of the use of the alternating current. Many notables in the field of electrical engineering, besides the members of the senior and student chapters, will be present.

Professor H. S. Bueche, moderator of the Villanova Student Chapter, has announced that the Villanova Chapter will take part in this celebration.

Glee Club saw another of his many activities, which also included playing the trombone in the college orchestra. Never having studied voice, he just sang naturally, and taught himself music. Mr. Hunt's air debut was made over WCAH in Columbus, Ohio, with the school band.

In his history with Casa Loma, he left the orchestra three times before finally joining it permanently in 1929.

Ruth McCarty became his bride in Bournehurst, Mass., on June 16, 1931, and there have been no additions to the happy household since. He likes to fly, swim, and watch football; drives a Pierce-Arrow; and wants to take pilot lessons. Would like to live in Westchester County, and spend summers in Maine fishing and swimming.

He thoroughly believes in "breaks," since that is how he obtained his start, as the result of one when playing with Goldkette's Orchestra in Columbus. He went on jam session with Bix Biederbecke and some of the others in the band, and they asked him to join them.

"Pee Wee" believes in hunches; eats between meals occasionally, and spends his days off around the house, or at a show. His retiring time is somewhere between 3:30 and 4 A. M., and is up again at noon by an alarm clock, napping if he got less than five hours sleep the night before. Not minding visitors in the studio, he would like to broadcast (like Kenny and Glen) three times weekly.

Bing Crosby and Willard Robison are his two favorites in the show world. The Casa Loma broadcast from the Lawrenceville Prom has given him the most pleasant memory of his career. Among the popular melodies, "Body and Soul" maintains first choice, with him, as does "Caprice Viennois" in the classics. He does enjoy classical music today but recalls a time when he didn't.

Favorite opera is Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde"; favorite opera singer being Galli-Curci. Favorite authors are Sax Rohmer and Edgar Rice Burroughs, liking "Alice in Wonderland" primarily. In the field of poetry he prefers Ogden Nash and Dorothy Parker; likes planked steaks, and has never had enough fishing or travel.

"Pee Wee," as his name implies, weighs 210, and is 6 feet 1 inch tall; has brown hair, blue eyes, and never has weighed over 255 pounds, (put on 80 pounds in two years after breaking football training). Weighed 12 pounds at birth. Mr. Hunt would retire to Westchester, but not without something to keep him busy. He owns two homes, one in Ohio and one in Massachusetts. If Walter ever did retire, he promises to put his trombone in a glass case.

Joseph Bigley Explains Purpose and Function of Fraternity to Yearlings

A special meeting of the freshman science group was held last Friday by the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity in an effort to explain the traditions, functions and purposes of the organization to the potential members.

Joseph Bigley, president of the fraternity, was in charge of this session and through his efforts made clear to the freshmen that the organization's membership was composed solely of science men and that its purpose was to establish a firmer bond within that school. It conducted social affairs, aids its members who have any difficulty in a subject, has discussion and visits of not only scientific nature, but also of academic strain, and adds to one's distinction and perhaps prestige in that the body does not accept any one into membership but restricts its membership to men worthy of belonging to the group.

At the same time prepared questionaires were distributed and those who wished to apply for membership were to fill them out and submit the paper to any member of the Lambda Kappa Delta.

These questionnaires will be reviewed by the Board of Admissions and those men whom they select as members will be notified during the first week of the new semster.

Sportorial

By A. R. C. Sports Editor

At a recent meeting of the Eastern Association of Football Officials, suggestions regarding scoring were put forth by William R. Crowley, president of the association. Mr. Crowley urged that the point after touchdown should be abolished, and one point given for each first down. He furthermore wished that the goal posts be replaced on the goal line and overtime periods in event of a tie be played. If the first two of Mr. Crowley's plans were adopted, the game would revert to the "push and shove," smash-thru-the-line style of play that characterized football in the Gay Nineties. The Notre Dame style of play would inevitably lose to the powerhouse, three-yards-at-a-time system, and football would result in a boring battle between the twenty yard lines.

Since the inception of football, the touchdown has always been the great incentive, with teams shooting the works inside the twenty. Offense has been more spirited, defense more determined, to prevent the goal line being crossed. With points being given for first downs, the offense would have but ten yards to go to make one sixth of a touchdown. The essence of the game would be defeated, the feverish sixty yard forward with one minute to play would be foolish, and the game would revert to a mere humdrum shoving contest.

The abolition of the point after touchdown would take the thrill factor out of the game, with eighty thousand people holding their breath, hoping the bareheaded kicker makes it. The determining point, while not showing the superiority of the winning team, does give the game an essential element of chance, which allows even an underdog to upset a powerful team. If this break of luck were omitted from the game, there would remain no possibility of the better team losing, and results of games could be accurately foretold as soon as schedules were announced.

The game would suffer if such changes were made rules. Much of the fascination of football lies in the breaks, and this year's crop of rule suggestions seems to make breaks unlikely. Let the game remain as it is. It's good enough not to keep the athletic programs of every college going throughout the year from the profits of the football season.

Foul Shots In Closing Minutes Prove Costly

George Washington U. Displays a Brilliant Attack to Take Measure Of Villanova, 31-23

INDIANS AND BISONS EKE OUT WINS

By NORTON C. PADEN

Hard luck dogged the footsteps of the Wildcat basketeers in their away games this past week. Their percentage was a goose-egg dropping three contests out of as many starts. Two foul shots in the closing minutes in as many games turned victory into defeat for the quintet from Villanova.

Last Tuesday at the home of the lawmakers the Wildcats succumed to the brilliant attack of George Washington University, by the score of 31 to 23. Continuing their winning streak to seven straight by their victory over the Main Liners the Colonials put on a brilliant display of basketball technique for the benefit of the fans.

The Villanovan's put the Washington boys to their first real test of the season and pushed them every minute of the way to the final gun. It took the 'Cats a few minutes to get their attack functioning at the start and as a result of their sluggishness found themselves at the short end of a 14 to 5. count.

Charley Noonan, Harry McNally, and Jack Robinson, a brilliant trio began to find the range of the basket and placed shots from all over the floor. This display soon put a

INTER-DORM RACE AROUSES INTEREST OF ALUMNI BOXERS

Austin Hall Fighters Appear as Only Obstacle in Way of Victory

OLD GUARDS DEFEND TITLE

Alumni Hall with a larger entry list than any of the other halls is out to retain the Intramural boxing championship, which was captured in such easy fashion last year by Alumni Hall's representatives.

But the Frosh will not have that same smooth sailing in the coming tournament. Austin Hall, with several of last year's point-getters its squad, is figured to give the defending champs a battle royal for team honors.

The response to the call for entries have been received from Fedigan and Mendel. This is the last chance for these halls to save their faces by getting some of their men out as no entries will be taken later than this week.

The committee planned to put on a program consisting of 12 bouts, but from present indications the program will be shorter. Still, if the teams stir up a little more interest this week, perhaps this goal will be realized.

The exact point system to be used in determining the team victor has not been fixed. However, it is known that points won by scholarship men will not count toward the team total.

This ruling will not cause any appreciable change in the battle for the championship. Both Alumni and Austin have scholarship men on their squads and will be affected equally.

Austin Among Favorites

Judging from the preliminary training, Alumni's representatives will predominate the lighter weights and Austin will rule the heavier men.

Manna, of Alumni Hall, shapes up as the best of the 118-pounders. A North Jersey lad, he has had experience in amateur tournaments in his home town.

Carl Pantaleo, also of Alumni, has flashed the smoothest form among the featherweight candidates. Very short but also very stocky, he has the sturdiness that should carry him through the tournament with flying colors.

Joe Badamo is Austin's hope to

WILDCAT MERMEN TOPPLE TEACHERS IN MEETING, 42-24

Bill Leahy's Double Victory in Sprints Gathers Many Points

TOBY GRECO ALSO SHINES

WEST CHESTER, Jan. 17.—Villanova's Mermen registered a 42-24 victory over the West Chester State Teachers College in the Y. M. C. A. pool at West Chester on Friday, January 17.

Lead by Bill Leahy, C & F Freshman, the natators captured all but one of the seven scheduled events. Coach Marty Gill appointed Bill Booth as captain for this meet.

The relay team, composed of Booth, Cousart, Duffy and Leahy, won a close race in the fast time of 1:19.

Lack of competitive experience caused the downfall of Villanova's divers. Kitchell registered a third for the Wildcats in this event.

Greco Wins Breast-Stroke

Greco won a very decisive race, doing the 100 yard breast-stroke in 1:10-2-5. Leahy garnered first in the 40 yard free-style, with his team mate, Duffy, coming in third. The above performance repeated in the 100 yard free-style, Leahy again coming in first with Duffy garnering a third. Tommy Carbine, former St. Joseph Prep luminary, won the 220 yard free-style in 2:31.

Bill Booth, acting captain, placed first in the back-stroke. Bailey acquired three more points for Villanova by placing second in the same event.

Villanova's victory can be attributed to the outstanding performances of Bill Leahy, and Tony Greco. Their efforts, combined with the other mermen's efforts, was the

Squad Under Watchful Eye Of Tony Sala Rounds Into Shape

In spite of the coming mid-year exams, the Villanova boxing squad is indulging in strenuous practice under the watchful eye of Tony Sala, intercollegiate 175-pound champ and captain-elect of the Villanova footballers. The leather-pushing squad is rapidly being completed with all eight divisions having candidates.

Among the embryonic stars are Dominick Manna, Carl Pantaleo, Joe Badamo, Bob Tanzola, Ed Farwell, Joe Carroll, Johnny Jarosik, Dick Mulvihill, and Gerswicki.

Manna is a scrappy bantam of whom much is expected in the way of good, lively fighting. The 125-pound class is taken care of by Pantaleo, while Badamo and Tanzola are contesting hotly for the honor of representing the college in the lightweight division. Farwell is the lone candidate for the 145-pound section. In the next two classes Joey Carroll and Johnny Jarosik are giving good accounts of themselves. Tony Sala will take care of any 175-pounder so unfortunate as to cross gloves with him, while Mulvihill and Gerswicki are battling for heavyweight honors.

POOL TOURNAMENT AND BOWLING SET

All Students Are Eligible For Matches, Starting January 28th

Lay aside all work and roll up your sleeves, for Managers Leo Schoppmeyer and Ray Murphy have completed plans for the pool and bowling tournament to be conducted in the gymnasium. The opening matches are slated for Tuesday, January 28, at 1:30 P. M. sharp; and will be held every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the specified time.

The tournament is open to all students who are interested in these fields of sport; and it will be every man for himself, as there will be no team entries. Any student who wishes to compete may do so, by entering his name in the events, in which he is interested; whether it be pool, ten-pins or duck-pins. There will be a small entrance fee of 10 cents; and it is proposed that the loser of each match will pay for his opponent's, as well as his own game.

Schedules and important information will be found posted, on the bulletin boards in the Pie Shop and the Dining Hall. All contestants are asked to watch these boards closely.

The prize, a sport jacket, will probably tempt a great number to enter. Frank Foster, Don Brennan, Joe Badamo and Walt Fal-

1936 Shows Team as Possible League Leader; Few Players Lost

Following last week's announcement of the entrance of the 150-pound team into the Intercollegiate League, the Athletic Office has made no statement concerning the future of lightweight football at Villanova.

Next year's squad shows more promise than any previous team. Sophomores composed the majority of players, with a number of Juniors. The squad will feel keenly the loss of such men as Captain Frank Rodgers, three letter man; Dan H. Murphy, former varsity candidate, and Charlie Kain, halfback and distance man on the track team.

Among the underclassmen who starred during last season were: Larry Stead, elected captain for next year; Mario Menocal, who held the center position successfully against all comers for two years, Bill Corkill and Art Carleton, who played at tackle all year.

Last Week's story on the lightweight team was the subject of contention by a number of students, who claimed that the writer was biased, showing the team in an entirely false light. They claimed he pictured them as quitters, who played merely to make the trips. The writer, a member of the squad, wishes to apologize for any offense given by last week's story, in which he meant to convey that several team members were lax in spirit, but by no means did he mean to condemn the whole squad.

This National Conference of Church Related Colleges unites all Liberal Arts Colleges in the United States that are either directly or indirectly related by Christian Churches. Various sections of the country are the scenes of the annual and regional conventions sponsored by this gathering. The organization is likewise responsible for the publication of a monthly bulletin called "Christian Education."

In addition to Fr. Stanford other members chosen were: Dr. E. E. Rall president of North Central College, chairman; Dr. Guy Everitt, president of Birmingham Southern College; Dr. J. E. If he could be someone else, he would like to be Bing Crosby. His early hobbies were dancing, music and radio, enjoying building radio sets.

Kenny Sargent believes in breaks, and has no superstitions in connections with radio; his only taboos being walking under ladders, and black cats, adding knocks on wood for luck. If he were not a musician, he would turn to work as a radio service man. He likes grand opera, but has no chance to hear it; he enjoys dancing and is indisposed toward crowds; is even-tempered; envies people who aren't self-conscious; has more confidence in advice of friends than in his own judgment, and relies on their encouragement.

Bing Crosby is also a source of admiration to Kenneth as to Glen. His favorite popular songs are "When Day Is Done," and "Old Man River." Although he now enjoys classical music, he admits that there was a day when he did not; Grace Moore and Lawrence Tibbett being his favorites. He does not enjoy poetry, and his favorite flower is the rose; favorite jewel, the ruby.

The favorite color of Mr. Sargent is brown; has aversion to yellow and lavender. He is fond of, and never had enough, ocean travel, new saxophones, money, children and friends. Weighs 160, 5 feet 11 1-2 inches tall, black hair, brown eyes.

Kenny wouldn't retire, if he could, but, if he had a million dollars, he would move to his wife's home in Tennessee, where she would be happy; buy a home, car, clothes, etc., for his family; build a radio laboratory; get a thousand dollars worth of radio parts; and build a dozen radios.

By A. R. C. Sports Editor

AT a recent meeting of the Eastern Association of Football Officials, suggestions regarding scoring were put forth by William R. Crowley, president of the association. Mr. Crowley urged that the point after touchdown should be abolished, and one point given for each first down. He furthermore wished that the goal posts be replaced on the goal line and overtime periods in event of a tie be played. If the first two of Mr. Crowley's plans were adopted, the game would revert to the "push and shove," smash-thru-the-line style of play that characterized football in the Gay Nineties. The Notre Dame style of play would inevitably lose to the powerhouse, three-yards-at-a-time system, and football would result in a boring battle between the twenty yard lines.

Since the inception of football, the touchdown has always been the great incentive, with teams shooting the works inside the twenty. Offense has been more spirited, defense more determined, to prevent the goal line being crossed. With points being given for first downs, the offense would have but ten yards to go to make one sixth of a touchdown. The essence of the game would be defeated, the feverish sixty yard forward with one minute to play would be foolish, and the game would revert to a mere humdrum shoving contest.

The abolition of the point after touchdown would take the thrill factor out of the game, with eighty thousand people holding their breath, hoping the barcheaded kicker makes it. The determining point, while not showing the superiority of the winning team, does give the game an essential element of chance, which allows even an underdog to upset a powerful team. If this break of luck were omitted from the game, there would remain no possibility of the better team losing, and results of games could be accurately foretold as soon as schedules were announced.

The game would suffer if such changes were made rules. Much of the fascination of football lies in the breaks, and this year's crop of rule suggestions seems to make breaks unlikely. Let the game remain as it is. It's good enough not to keep the athletic programs of every college going throughout the year from the profits of the football season.

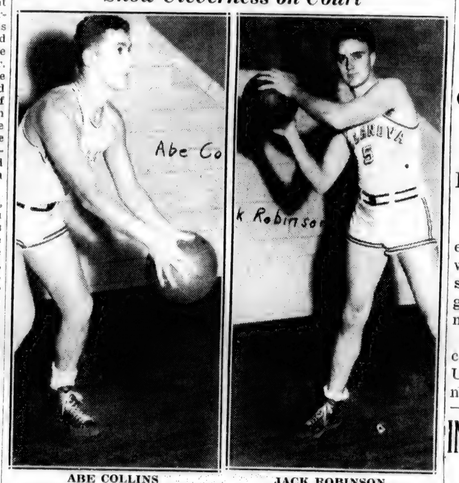
Show Cleverness on Court



ABE COLLINS JACK ROBINSON

Pictured above are two of the cleverest members of the Wildcat quintet. Robinson is a senior in the School of Arts and Letters, while Collins is a sophomore in the School of Commerce. Although the varsity quintet has dropped many contests to date, these men have stood out with their exceptional play, both offensively and defensively.

Foul Shots In Closing Minutes Prove Costly

George Washington U. Displays a Brilliant Attack to Take Measure Of Villanova, 31-23

INDIANS AND BISONS EKE OUT WINS

By NORTON C. PADEN

Hard luck dogged the footsteps of the Wildcat basketeers in their away games this past week. Their percentage was a goose-egg dropping three contests out of as many starts. Two foul shots in the closing minutes in as many games turned victory into defeat for the quintet from Villanova.

Last Tuesday at the home of the lawmakers the Wildcats succumed to the brilliant attack of George Washington University, by the score of 31 to 23. Continuing their winning streak to seven straight by their victory over the Main Liners the Colonials put on a brilliant display of basketball technique for the benefit of the fans.

The Villanovan's put the Washington boys to their first real test of the season and pushed them every minute of the way to the final gun. It took the 'Cats a few minutes to get their attack functioning at the start and as a result of their sluggishness found themselves at the short end of a 14 to 5. count.

Charley Noonan, Harry McNally, and Jack Robinson, a brilliant trio began to find the range of the basket and placed shots from all over the floor. This display soon put a

WILDCAT MERMEN TOPPLE TEACHERS IN MEETING, 42-24

Bill Leahy's Double Victory in Sprints Gathers Many Points

TOBY GRECO ALSO SHINES

WEST CHESTER, Jan. 17.—Villanova's Mermen registered a 42-24 victory over the West Chester State Teachers College in the Y. M. C. A. pool at West Chester on Friday, January 17.

Lead by Bill Leahy, C & F Freshman, the natators captured all but one of the seven scheduled events. Coach Marty Gill appointed Bill Booth as captain for this meet.

The relay team, composed of Booth, Cousart, Duffy and Leahy, won a close race in the fast time of 1:19.

Lack of competitive experience caused the downfall of Villanova's divers, Kitchell registered a third for the Wildcats in this event.

Greco Wins Breast-Stroke

Greco won a very decisive race, doing the 100 yard breast-stroke in 1:10:2-5. Leahy garnered first in the 40 yard free-style, with his team mate, Duffy, coming in third. The above performance repeated in the 100 yard free-style, Leahy again coming in first with Duffy garnering a third. Tommy Carbine, former St. Joseph Prep luminary, won the 220 yard free-style in 2:31.

Bill Booth, acting captain, placed first in the back-stroke. Bailey acquired three more points for Villanova by placing second in the same event.

Villanova's victory can be attributed to the outstanding performances of Bill Leahy, and Tony Greco. Their efforts, combined with the other mermen's efforts, was the

BOXERS CONTINUE DAILY WORKOUTS

Squad Under Watchful Eye Of Tony Sala Rounds Into Shape

In spite of the coming mid-year exams, the Villanova boxing squad is indulging in strenuous practice under the watchful eye of Tony Sala, intercollegiate 175-pound champ and captain-elect of the Villanova footballers. The leather-pushing squad is rapidly being completed with all eight divisions having candidates.

Among the embryonic stars are Dominick Manna, Carl Pantaleo, Joe Badamo, Bob Tanzola, Ed Farwell, Joe Carroll, Johnny Jarosik, Dick Mulvihill, and Gerswicki.

Manna is a scrappy bantam of whom much is expected in the way of good, lively fighting. The 125-pound class is taken care of by Panteleo, while Badamo and Tanzola are contesting hotly for the honor of representing the college in the lightweight division. Farwell is the lone candidate for the 145-pound section. In the next two classes Joey Carroll and Johnny Jarosik are giving good accounts of themselves. Tony Sala will take care of any 175-pounder so unfortunate as to cross gloves with him, while Mulvihill and Gerswicki are battling for heavyweight honors.

NO GAMES DURING EXAM

With the exception of the meet scheduled with Swarthmore College this afternoon at the Villanova Pool, all athletic activities will be suspended until Tuesday, February 4, at which time the varsity basketeers travel to Pittsburgh to engage the Duquesne five in a return tussle. Their first home contest will be on the 12th of February with St. John's College.

POOL TOURNAMENT AND BOWLING SET

All Students Are Eligible For Matches, Starting January 28th

Lay aside all work and roll up your sleeves, for Managers Leo Schoppmeyer and Ray Murphy have completed plans for the pool and bowling tournament to be conducted in the gymnasium. The opening matches are slated for Tuesday, January 28, at 1:30 P. M. sharp; and will be held every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the specified time.

The tournament is open to all students who are interested in these fields of sport; and it will be every man for himself, as there will be no team entries. Any student who wishes to compete may do so, by entering his name in the events, in which he is interested; whether it be pool, ten-pins or duck-pins. There will be a small entrance fee of 10 cents; and it is proposed that the loser of each match will pay for his opponent's, as well as his own game.

Schedules and important information will be found posted, on the bulletin boards in the Pie Shop and the Dining Hall. All contestants are asked to watch these boards closely.

The prize, a sport jacket, will probably tempt a great number to enter. Frank Foster, Don Brennan, Joe Badamo and Walt Fal-

INTER-DORM RACE AROUSES INTEREST OF ALUMNI BOXERS

Austin Hall Fighters Appear as Only Obstacle in Way of Victory

OLD GUARDS DEFEND TITLE

Alumni Hall with a larger entry list than any of the other halls is out to retain the Intramural boxing championship, which was captured in such easy fashion last year by Alumni Hall's representatives.

But the Frosh will not have that same smooth sailing in the coming tournament. Austin Hall, with several of last year's point-getters its squad, is figured to give the defending champs a battle royal for team honors.

The response to the call for entries have been received from Fedigan and Mendel. This is the last chance for these halls to save their faces by getting some of their men out as no entries will be taken later than this week.

The committee planned to put on a program consisting of 12 bouts, but from present indications the program will be shorter. Still if the teams stir up a little more interest this week, perhaps this goal will be realized.

The exact point system to be used in determining the team victor has not been fixed. However, it is known that points won by scholarship men will not count toward the team total.

This ruling will not cause any appreciable change in the battle for the championship. Both Alumni and Austin have scholarship men on their squads and will be affected equally.

Austin Among Favorites

Judging from the preliminary training, Alumni's representatives will predominate the lighter weights and Austin will rule the heavier men.

Manna, of Alumni Hall, shapes up as the best of the 118-pounders. A North Jersey lad, he has had experience in amateur tournaments in his home town.

Carl Pantaleo, also of Alumni, has flashed the smoothest form among the featherweight candidates. Very short but also very stocky, he has the sturdiness that should carry him through the tournament with flying colors.

Joe Badamo is Austin's hope to

A. A. OFFICE MAKES NO 150 STATEMENT

1936 Shows Team as Possible League Leader; Few Players Lost

Following last week's announcement of the entrance of the 150-pound team into the Intercollegiate League, the Athletic Office has made no statement concerning the future of lightweight football at Villanova.

Next year's squad shows more promise than any previous team. Sophomores composed the majority of players, with a number of Juniors. The squad will feel keenly the loss of such men as Captain Frank Rodgers, three letter man; Dan H. Murphy, former varsity candidate, and Charlie Kain, halfback and distance man on the track team.

Among the underclassmen who starred during last season were: Larry Stead, elected captain for next year; Mario Menocal, who held the center position successfully against all comers for two years, Bill Corkill and Art Carleton, who played at tackle all year.

Last Week's story on the lightweight team was the subject of contention by a number of students, who claimed that the writer was biased, showing the team in an entirely false light. They claimed he pictured them as quitters, who played merely to make the trips. The writer, a member of the squad, wishes to apologize for any offense given by last week's story, in which he meant to convey that several team members were lax in spirit, but by no means did he mean to condemn the whole squad.

First Half Mural Basketball Race Ended

In the Limelight

By PAT M. VASSALLUZZO

A FEW weeks ago we mentioned the name of Al (Blimp) Ryan in connection with another of our articles. Since the only mention made of Blondy was not exactly complimentary we felt we had been rather unfair to the same; so we decided to let our dear readers learn his good side. We made an appointment with Blondy for an interview.

As everyone knows, the VILLANOVAN was picked as one of the best college papers in the country. Therefore its staff must be at least fairly good. So can you blame us for being surprised when, instead of finding our friend Ryan, we found the following note in the office:

To Whom It May Concern:

I see you want to write me up in your limelight. Well, if you have to, O. K., but no punch-drunk reporter is going to do it. If anyone should know anything about myself, it's yours truly, therefore I'll write it myself. Here goes...

My full name is Albert W. Ryan. My friends either call me Blondy or Blimp. Although I can tolerate Blondy, I don't like either of them. I would rather they call me Albert. I was born October 19, 1912, in Manchester, N. Y. For the benefit of you guys that can't figure, I am 23 years old.

Before I had time to get acquainted with the place, my parents moved to Shortsville, N. Y. I was only a year old at the time. As soon as I attained the age of reason (?), I was sent to Shortsville Grammar School. Except for the fact that I was a model student, I did nothing to bring pride to Ma and Pa Ryan.

At Shortsville High School, however, it was different. I did things in a big way. I played football for two years, and was rated a good guard. I played basketball for three seasons, and was captain of same in my senior year. To top it off, I played baseball for four years, and was captain in my junior year.

I could mention other achievements; such as being president of my class in my third year, treasurer in fourth year, and a member of the Athletic Board; but I suppose that wouldn't interest you, so I won't. (Note: Please do, Blimp.) After graduating from high school I went to St. John's Prep, of Danvers, Mass. I stayed there one year.

In 1931, I matriculated at Villanova College. In my sophomore year at Villanova, I was chairman of the V. C., and assistant stadium manager. The following year, I went in for Jayvee football and kept my stadium job. In my fourth year, I became stadium manager, and played at tackle on the Jayvee football squad.

For the benefit of you guys that are wondering why I'm taking five years to complete a four-year course; let me explain that a slight illness caused me to overcut my subjects in my freshman year.

I didn't go in for varsity athletics at Villanova because I thought I would be of more value to the school by taking care of the stadium. (Note: You can't make us believe you're that bad, Blondy.)

I usually work in N. Y. for the WPA, building roads. That is, in the summer time. Last summer, however, I worked for the Papec Machine Co., hoisting machines around.

I hope to get my degree in June, and as soon as I leave school I will get a job as salesman for the Rowe Audit Co. That about covers everything concerning yours truly.

Sincerely,
ALBERT RYAN.

WILDCATS START SLOW

Close Decisions Dropped Upstate Prove Fact Puzzling Mentor

As a result of its fatal trip upState the conclusion has been reached that the Villanova court squad is suffering from what might be termed a first-half complex. Failure to get going in the early stages of the game has proved disastrous as well as puzzling to "Doc" Jacobs, coach of the Wildcat quintet.

This point was clearly emphasized this past week-end when the Main Liners dropped two close decisions by a one-point margin to Dickinson and Bucknell. In both contests it was not the lack of ability and proper initiative to come back but it was the puzzling slow starting that caused the downfall of the Wildcats.

Mike Totin Austinite Star Forward Leads High Scorers

Makes 78 Points, Topping G. Shelley, C. & F. Star

Together with capturing the first half title, Austin had one of its star forwards, Mike Totin, capture high-scoring honors with 78 points. Totin led the league in baskets with 35 and averaged one foul for each of his eight games.

Following on his heels came George Shelley of the C. and F. quintet with 69 points. Shelley was one of the very few players to engage in 10 games and scored consistently in all of them.

The battle for third place honors was waged right up to the very end with Sheftic, of Fedigan, capturing the coveted position with 56 markers. Jack Costello, of the Mendel Boarders, was only one point behind with 55 tallies. Costello was the leader in successful foul shots, netting 17 one-pointers. Pantaleo, of Alumni, had held possession of third place until his final game when he scored but one basket to four for Costello, and four baskets and two fouls for Sheftic.

Sixth place was captured by the other Shelley brother, Jack, who tallied 25 baskets and one foul to total 51 points. The Shelley family thus garnered 120 points between them.

The first five positions went to members of five different teams, while the Mendel Day Hops were able to place a man no better than ninth. Amongst the first 35 scorers Alumni placed seven men, while Austin, C. and F., and the Mendel Day Hops brought up the rear with only five men.

One of the outstanding scorers was O'Connor, of the Mendel Commuters, who rang up 42 points although he engaged in only six contests. Of those players who tallied 10 points or more, Higgins, of Alumni, who played in only three games had the least number of contests to his credit.

During the first half Totin, of Austin, and Jack Shelley were the most consistent performers at the forward positions, while George Shelley and Carroll, of the Mendel Residents, were on a par for outstanding play at the pivot position. Alumni had the most brilliant performers at the guard posts in the persons of McHugh and Pantaleo. One of the most consistent performers who hardly ever broke into the scoring columns was Conte, of Fedigan.

Those who came close to breaking into the double figures and were only prevented from doing so by the dearth of games they played are out to win regular berths, so even the high scorers must watch out.

FROSH BASKETEERS GAIN FOURTH WIN

Kittens Down Haverford Aces In Exhibition Tussle By 29-22 Score

Haverford High gym was the scene of the fourth consecutive victory for the Villanova Frosh. Herbie Good's Haverford Aces furnished the opposition and were conquered by a score of 29-22 last Thursday night.

Scoring was started early in the game by the Aces, who racked up a two-pointer on a lay-up shot by Knerr, forward. The Kittens knotted the count with a brace of fouls by Dubino, first-string center. After this the score see-sawed between the two teams until the half, which ended with the yearlings one point to the good with 14 counters to their opponents' 13.

With the advent of the second half the Frosh went on a scoring spree until the score was 27 to 14. The spurt was led by Montgomery, with Dubino, Carrig and Krutilis assisting in the good work. Coach the coach then sent in the second team and the Haverfordians gained possession of the ball and a few points to bring up the tally to 22 points for the evening. Wanamaker scored the lone Villanova basket while the home boys were having their innings.

Montgomery Tallies Eight

Everyone on the Thirty-Niners first team participated in the scoring. Montgomery led with eight counters, and was followed by Carrig and Dubino, who each tallied six points. Krutulis with five markers, and Vigilante and Wanamaker with a field goal each completed the 29 points chalked up by the victors. All members of the losing side counted, Knerr leading with two double-deckers and a foul for five tallies.

Penn Wynne will furnish the opposition for the Kitten courtsters in their next contest, shortly after the retreat. The Penn Wynners, former college luminaries, should give the Frosh some stiff opposition. An exciting game is in store for Severance's boys if they encounter the ex-collegians.

Mendel Day - Hops Take Surprise Win From Austin Hall

Although the first three positions in the standings of the first-half inter-dormitory tournament were definitely fixed, the remainder of the schedule was played out in order to settle the battle for the cellar.

Last Monday afternoon Alumni met defeat at the hands of the C. and F. quintet. The Shelley brothers once more kept the scoring honors in their family when their markers totalled 21. Alessandroni was also outstanding for the victors, netting 8 points in all. Horn, of Alumni, captured high-scoring honors for the losers with 8 points. This game was marked by the failure of the Frosh five to click in its usual brilliant manner.

That same afternoon the Austinites and the Mendel Day Hops met once again and the five from Austin showed a let-down after their strenuous campaign, and after a bitter battle they succumbed 17-16. To put the necessary five men on the floor Austin had to press into service Fedigan's ace floorman, Conte. This was allowed due to the agreement of both the Day Hop team and Fr. McKee. The Day Hops preferred to play the game rather than win by forfeit. Conte's contribution to the losing cause was three points.

Mendel Downs C. and F.

On Tuesday afternoon the Business men met the other Frosh quintet. This time the Frosh, in the person of the Mendel Resident five, emerged victorious by the count of 22-20. This time the Shelleys netted only 10 points and as the Shelleys go so goes the C. and F. five; so this time they were vanquished but not without a struggle marked by fine floor play on the part of both teams.

That evening the Mendel Day Hops once more took the floor in a night game and this time they were not to be denied and defeated the Fedigan five. This defeat cast the Fedigan team into the cellar and raised the Mendel Residents to fifth place. Fedigan played a lack-lustre game while the Commuters clicked well together to gain their seventh victory.

The final game of the first half was played last Wednesday evening when the two Mendel Hall fives clashed. Strange to say, the resident five was victorious by the overwhelming count of 32-16. The sudden collapse of the Day Hops is inexplainable. However, the credit for the victory really belongs to the smooth floor play of the resident five. They have won their last two games and if they hold their present form, they should be a powerful factor in the second-half race. Costello, of the Residents,

FOUL SHOTS COSTLY IN PAIR OF GAMES

Dickinson and Bucknell Win Close Contests, 'Cats Easy for Senators different light on the matter and the score soon stood 14 to 9. Noonan again found the basket for a brace of twinpointers and the Wildcats were within two points of knotting up the score. Goldfaddens shot from the foul line again putting the Colonials out of danger.

The second half was merely a repetition of the display put on in the first frame. Villanova was pressing the Washington boys all the way never more than one point behind. As the time for the gun drew near George Washington began converting their foul shots and a sophomore substitute finally put the skids under the home boys.

After tasting defeat in Washington and finding it unpleasant to the palate the team journeyed to Carlisle, Pa. to redeem themselves.

A foul by William Kersetter in the last three seconds gave Dickinson its third Victory of the season as the Wildcats contrary to expectations went down to defeat with the final tabulation being 32 to 31.

Trailing 21 to 13 at the end of the first half Villanova put on a spirt with Don Brennan as the spark plug. Brennan sank two long shots in the closing minutes to tie the score 31 all. It seemed that an extra period was forthcoming but on the next play an unintentional foul by Collins donated Kersetter his charity shot. While the crowd held their breath the "Red Devil" converted. In this match Brennan was high scorer with five goals while Kersetter paced the winners with three twin pointers and three from the charity line.

The win by Dickinson marks their second victory over the Wildcats while on the other side of the ledger the final check up reveals that the Wildcats have won over the Red Devils five times in all.

January the 18th, which was last Saturday, rolled around and the 'Cats moved to Lewisburg to be handed the same dose by a fighting Bucknell five in the last minute of play a well placed foul spelled the doom of the Main Liners by the score of 35 to 34.

The Bisons another undefeated team retained their position when the 'Cats took this body blow which seemed almost too much to bear. Bill Foltz was the boy from Lewisburg who added to the sorrow of the Villanovans.

Tustin Gym crammed to the doors witnessed the fastest and one of the most exciting games ever played there.

Trailing the Bisons by what seemed to be an almost insurmountable score at the half the Wildcats made a spectacular attempt to overcome the Bucknellites in the later frame. After knotting the count, by a spectacular play Foltz's charity shot broke the Cats back and sent them home bemoaning their fate.

Pool and Bowling Tournaments Start

cetto will be leading aspirants for the pool crown; however, they will find stiff opposition in the Freshmen contenders, Bobby Bond and Chuck Kratchovil. On the alleys, Walter Burlington, Jordan Olivari, Paul Peluso, Tony Pyrz and Eddie Farwell will strive to finish on top; the latter was a finalist in the Metropolitan Youth's matches.

The winner of the pool crown may play the Masked Marvel of pool fame, if present plans hold water; however, it has been definitely stated, that the bowling champ will meet suitable opponents from the Philadelphia City League in a series of elimination frays.

A set of rules and by-laws has been compiled, and will be strictly carried out in the tournament play. Some of the important restrictions are: Any bowler who goes over the foul line shall lose one ball for every offense. All matches must start at 1:30, promptly; if a player is to play and cannot participate that day, he must notify the managers before match time.

was the outstanding man on the floor while O'Connor, of the Day Hops, was a close second as he tallied eight points or just one-half his team's total.

These last five games decided the second division standings with C and F., Mendel Residents, and Fedigan finishing in fourth, fifth and sixth places, respectively.

ALUMNI AND AUSTIN FAVORED IN BOXING

Krutilis and Krzywicki Will Figure Prominently in Program

break Alumni's monopoly on the lighter weights. Joe is a 135-pounder and has shown considerable promise.

Johnny Krutulis, a welterweight from the Pittsburgh district, Chick Davis, a middleweight, who hails from California, and John Jarosik, another middleweight, are other competent battlers fighting for Alumni Hall.

Tony Sala, Eastern Intercollegiate light-heavyweight champ, and Art Raimo, another consistent winner on the Wildcat ring squad last season, come from Austin.

Krzywicki Favored

Austin's representative in the heavyweight division, and favored to win, is Krzywicki. He is a transfer from Penn State, where he starred on the freshman boxing team. His principal opposition will be afforded by Mulvihill, a burly 200-ponder of Alumni.

In addition to the candidates mentioned, there are a few more training, but only a few.

It is highly significant that Austin and Alumni are the two teams in the running for the boxing championship, as these two are the leaders in the Intramural Championship Race which embraces all intramural sports.

Alumni stepped out to a lead with the ten points it got when Jim Dwyer won the fall tennis tournament; Ben Maloney's second gave Austin seven points. Austin then broke out in the first half of the basketball race to garner the ten points, while Alumni had to be content with third place and five. Thus the boxing tournamen will decide whether Austin will hang on to its slim lead or Alumni will regain its lost leadership.

cause of such a decisive victory.

The only first place for the Teachers was achieved by Kent in the fancy diving event.

To date the natators have defeated Haverford and West Chester State Teachers College. They have Swarthmore College listed as their next opponent.

Coach Martin Gill will appoint a captain for each meet to act in the capacity of Jack Hosey, who was injured at the beginning of the school term.

Most of the matches, as far as is known, will be held on foreign fields, and the season will be brought to a climax with the National Intercollegiates at Penn State, late in March.

Among last year's leather-pushers who are not able to participate in the squared circle are Jimmy Lyons, 135-pound puncher, Art Raimo, 155-pound slugger, Ed Kirschner, who did not return to Villanova this year, and Mike Delmonico, the heavyweight, now disporting himself on alien greens.

Increase in Gifts to Colleges Seen as Sign of Returning Prosperity

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—If the increased number of gifts falling into the laps of colleges and universities is any indication, America feels the surge of returning prosperity. Heavy money has flown into school coffers during the past few weeks.

Harvard tops the list with gifts totalling over two and a half million, two million given by Lucius Nathan Littauer, retired manufacturer and former Representative in Congress, for the establishment of a graduate school of public administration. The new school, its objective the scientific training of men for governmental careers, may be opened in September, 1937. A commission of leading educators and students of governmental administration is now considering plans.

Another gift, of $500,000 was offered by Thomas W. Lamont, New York banker, for the endowment of a chair in political economy, and the Automobile Manufacturers Association gave $54,250 to further the work of the Harvard bureau for street traffic research.

Johns Hopkins University Hospital received $900,000 from the estate of Albert Marburg, retired manufacturer, who also left $50,000 to Princeton. Princeton's gifts during the last fiscal year totalled $569,104. Yale reported a total of $6,719,846.

The University of Chicago has received $170,500 in recent weeks.

SUDDEN WEALTH CHANGES CAREER

Uncle's Unexpected Bequest Enables Youth to Continue Education

DETROIT—Two weeks ago he was supporting himself on the meager profits of a news stand in downtown Detroit, but today William Dix, 27, is ready to finish his medical education at Harvard. He has $71,000 for the purpose.

Dix was totally unprepared for the good news that came to him with a notice than an uncle has left him the fortune. He said he didn't know what to do with the money except to repay his landlady for some of her kindness and finish his medical education.

Several years ago he completed four years of pre-medical work at the Cincinnati School of Medicine, but there were no immediate means to finance his further education.

Two years ago Dix's father died, and his mother died two months later. His uncle, the late Dr. Robert C. Miller, offered to help him then, but he decided to make his own way.

He'll be "careful" of the $71,000.

Collegiate World

By COLLEGIATE DIGEST and Associated Collegiate Press

In better circles it is known as being a sychophant, although upon many college campi, the phrase "apple polishing" neatly covers the same ground.

We think we have discovered the ultimate in refined apple polishing.

In one of our State universities, which the Rockefeller Foundation would no doubt list among the 10 best, a young man labored long and hard upon a thesis for his M. A. One of these things: "The Influence of Sixteenth Century Philosophy Upon So and So." The examining committee turned down the poor boy because one member dissented with the majority report. Feeling certain he had covered the ground very well, the cagey boy made quiet inquiries as to the dissenter's reasons. He found:

That the professor had objected to the paper because, in the bibliography, the writer had not included mention of a five-page paper on the subject written by the professor some 20 years ago.

The boy re-wrote the thesis, cited and quoted from the paper, and passed the examination nicely, thank you.

STUDENT UNION IS BRANDED AS RADICAL

Charge Results From the Association's Endorsement Of The Oxford Pledge

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 20—Despite heated opposition from within its own ranks, and in the face of "Communistic" and "revolutionary" charges from the American Legion, the American Student Union endorsed the "Oxford Pledge," refusing to support the United States in any war it might conduct, at its convention here.

The union, recently formed by a merger of the National Student League and the Student League for Industrial Democracy, adopted the endorsement resolution by a 244 to 49 vote. Meanwhile, meeting at Kansas City, the National Student Federation voted, by 49 to 13, not to bear arms outside the United States.

Ed Kinney, member of the Officers Club of the R. O. T. C., C. C. N. Y., and a member of the resolutions committee of the student union, asserted that "passage of this resolution definitely labels the student union as a 'radical' organization.

Kinney and others fought the resolution on the grounds that the "Oxford Pledge" should be optional with the individual members, and that its endorsement would keep prospective members from enrolling.

American Legion heads, asking that the union delegates be requested to leave their convention headquarters in the Y. W. C. A. building here, charged that they were "known Communists" and part of "a revolutionary movement against the government."

Collegian Leaves School to Become War Correspondent

Novel Way Chosen By Youth To Attain His Ambition

GREENVILLE, Tex.,—J. C. Arnold, 19, University of Texas journalism sophomore, decided he wanted to be a war correspondent, in spite of having little experience, money or connections. So he got aboard the first freighter offering him a chance to work his way to Dijbouti, French Somaliland, and several Texas papers are now using his feature stories, air-mailed from Addis Ababa.

According to the last word received by his agent, Boyd Sinclair, editor of the Wesley College Pilot, Arnold is staying in Addis Ababa with Count Hilliare due Berrier, French adventurer, an English airplane pilot, and a newspaperman from Lahore, India.

Arnold sailed from Marseilles, France, to Djibouti with Takio Hawariate, Ethiopian delegate to the League of Nations, interviewing him on the journey.

E. CASEY SUCCEEDS CHARLES F. KAIN AS "ENGINEER" EDITOR

Business Manager's Post Goes To Joseph Shea; Follows Marcotte

PUBLICATION WON AWARDS UNDER PRESENT EDITORS

Eugene Barr to Act as Associate Editor of Technology Magazine

Adopting a new policy as regards the time of appointment of its new staff, the Villanova "Engineer" has recently announced its new editorial board.

Edward Casey, prominent junior electrical engineer, has been appointed as chief executive of the publication. The new editor succeeds Charles Kain, who has successfully edited the "Engineer" during the last year.

In the capacity of business manager, Joseph Shea succeeds Louis J. Marcotte, of the present Senior class. As associate editor Eugene Barr takes the reins of responsibility from his prominent predecessor, John Schlotterback.

Both Mr. Barr and Mr. Shea are aspirants for a degree in chemical engineering.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the magazine, and Charles Kain, retiring editor, have both expressed utmost confidence in the ability and responsibility of the newly appointed staff.

The passing of the old staff must not be allowed to go unnoticed by the student body. In the past year the "Engineer," under the capable direction of Charles Kain and Fr. Vrana, competed in many contests and came out on or near the top on each occasion. Possibly the

RETREAT ENDS WITH SOLEMN EXERCISES

Papal Blessing Concludes Successful Three Day Ceremony at Holy Mass

The 93d Annual Three-Day Retreat of Villanova College was concluded on Friday morning at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass at which the students received Holy Communion. The exercises were concluded with the giving of the Papal blessing.

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, celebrated the Mass for the resident students, and Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president of the college, was celebrant of the Mass for the non-resident students.

Rev. John R. Brennan, O. S. A., and Rev. Charles J. McCarron, O. S. A., who conducted the exercises, expressed gratitude and appreciation for the whole-hearted cooperation of the entire student body.

The retreat masters were enthusiastic in exhorting the students to live good Catholic lives.

The primary purpose of the retreat, according to Fr. Brennan, was to relieve the spiritual life of the college student, and he stipulated that every conference was as important as the other, and hence all were stressed on an equal basis.

Fr. Brennan commenced the exercises on Monday afternoon and explained the necessity of instilling in the students the spirit of the

Nationally Famous Band Plays Here Friday Night

Acclaimed as the nation's best known exponents of rhythm, the Casa Loma Orchestra, pictured above, will be seen and heard and danced to at the 1936 Belle Air Ball, which will be held in the college gymnasium this Friday night from 10 P. M. to 2 A. M. Glen Gray, president of the versatile musical corporation, is shown below.

Glen "Spike" Gray Enjoys Classical Music; Has a Yen for Theatricals

Glen Gray, the president of Casa Loma, was born June 7, 1903, in the town of Metamora, Ill. Glen comes of a stock well versed in music, for his father was a professional violinist.

On July 2, 1931, Miss Marion Douglass, of Plymouth, Mass., became the present Mrs. Gray. There are, at date of writing, no further additions to the household. Glen's home is at 150 W. 58th St., in New York City.

Playing golf, swimming, watching baseball and football, and dancing are Glen's greatest pleasures, although he has expressed his fondness for visitors in the studio during broadcasts, which, by the way, he would like to do thrice weekly. As would be expected, "Spike," as his nickname terms him, has always enjoyed classical music.

Most annoying situation of Glen's popularity is the incessant attempts of many fan correspondents to identify him as long-lost relatives. Weighs 220, 6 feet 3 1-2 inches tall; has brown hair and likewise brown eyes, has never weighed over 225; has good memory, especially with names, faces, telephone numbers, and appointments; is quite punctual; rather sums up the remainder of Mr. Gray's personality.

Casa Loma's president has had a yen for theatricals almost since his birth. The first show Glen ever attended was the inimitable Fred Stone in "Tip Top," in Chicago. His next was to see the Six Brown Brothers, sax sextet, when he sat in the last row of the balcony; due to thinness of his purse. He first appeared professionally, in a small town concert band, playing once a week, wherein he tooted the piccolo for a salary of $1.50 per concert. His fondest memory was getting into his first band uniform with braided collar, at the age of 13.

After attending primary and high schools in Roanoke, Ill., he followed with one year at Illinois Wesleyan, S. A. T. C., in 1918. Glen

Dean of Arts Pleased With Exam Results

Freshman Class Worthy Of Special Notice Says Fr. Burns

According to an announcement made by Rev. Dr. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Arts and Philosophy, the results of the Mid-year Examinations in that department have been most gratifying.

"The encouraging thing about them," said Fr. Burns, "is the fact that the students seem to be striving for more than a merely passing grade. There is a pride of accomplishment in the work done by most students, which indicates that and progress in culture is considered to be no less important than the attainment of a degree."

The latter without the former, according to Fr. Burns, is academic bluff. For those students who

BETA GAMMA GIVES DEBATE IN PHILA.

Initial Exhibition Contest Of Season Is at Hallahan High School

Opening their season of intercollegiate and exhibition debates, the Beta Gamma Chapter of the Villanova Literary Society presented their first exhibition last evening at the John W. Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School at 19th St. and the Parkway, in Philadelphia.

Victor Ashe, Joseph Carroll and Anthony Differ defended the affirmative, opposing Richard Deverall, William Corkhill, and Edward Arnade of the negative side of the question, "Resolved, That Congress should be empowered to override, by a two-thirds vote, any five-to-four decision of the Supreme Court."

Witnessed by a large audience, the teams made a creditable showing, providing grounds for greater successes as their schedule proceeds. Although the men had been doing individual work on the question, it was not until late Friday afternoon that the teams were formed for the debate, and with this taken into consideration the advantages of Professor Anthony Frayne's new system of preparation were emphasized greatly.

February 18 is listed as the next event on the announced schedule when Beta Gamma will meet Haverford College on the same topic. The team for that date has not been published as yet, nor has the choice of affirmative or negative been made.

MRS. LONG . . . SENATOR

IT seems that something akin to the rights of survivors has been introduced where there is a vancancy in either of the branches of Congress. Therefore, Governor Noe's appointment of Mrs. Long to fill the place left vacant by the death of her husband was merely the technical fulfillment of what is now fast becoming a custom. But can there be any doubt that Mrs. Long would have been elected if there had been any legal procedure of that sort, or better still, the old custom of choice by the legislature? Louisiana is still ruled by the hand of Huey Long despite the fact that he is no longer actually present to stir up his forces with his oratorical brilliance. And it is a well-known fact that Mrs. Long has always put forth a good word for everybody save the antagonists of the Long regime.

As a rule, however, the time of a female successor is brief unless, as has been notably done in some instances, she is able to retain her position by demonstrating her ability to act in that capacity. For it is quite evident that once the sentimental motive behind the appointment has become chilled, to do just that requires intelligence, skill in political matters, persuasiveness, tact, and personal charm equal to that of the male representatives.

It is true that the widows of other Senators have succeeded their husbands and even been re-elected but what are a few of them in such a vast mob? Yet it is only natural that to the Senate some improvement of present "parliamentary" manners should be directed. For is it not logical that should a large feminine bloc be established in that temple of wisdom these inspirers of politeness might chasten a little, if not a great deal, the vociferous outbursts of statesmen as they are busily engaged in excavating dirt piles?

It is our duty to be patient for it may so happen that "a little leaven leaveneth the entire lump."

TURNABOUT

THE recent address of former Governor Alfred E. Smith at the Liberty League banquet, is the natural outcome of his past activities and associations. Mr. Smith found a great many faults with the present Administration, but not in one case did he offer a practical substitute. In fact, his address was a perfect duplicate of the vague uncertainties that characterized the speeches of his Republican opponent in 1928, but it is doubtful if it will be as efficacious for the people are now not so gullible, and indifferent to their own well-being as they were then, for they want constructive criticism, and not Constitutional cant.

Mr. Smith's pronouncements to the contrary, the fact cannot be disguised, that no man, who was accustomed to interpret the constitution in so pertinent and lucid manner, as well as express himself with a clarity and reasonableness that could not be gain-said, can change, so diametrically, his opinions, without appearing to be actuated by motives other than he has as yet expressed.

The continued activities of the League make it increasingly apparent that the sole purpose of its existence is the economic preference of its originators. Since its inception it has functioned as obstructionist movement, without the excuse of a superior policy. Which makes it increasingly difficult to reconcile Mr. Smith's association with this group.

It is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Smith was at one time among the foremost constructive thinkers of the country. He advocated social legislation long before the law makers could be brought to realize its necessity. He thought in terms of humanity while others thought of the written word. Hence the ridiculous figure he makes in his new capacity.

When a man who should be in the vanguard of the liberal thinkers of the day, can be enticed into the ranks of the obstructionists it is time for the people to appreciate the power for evil that is exercised by wealth and position.

CRIME PREVENTIVES

IN A DRASTIC MOVE to curb crime within the confines of Philadelphia, the Public Safety Committee of City Council recently approved an ordinance providing for registration of convicted felons.

The measure requires that all residents convicted of crimes within the last three years must register within 10 days with the Police Bureau. Visitors with criminal records must register within 24 hours after their entry into the city, and changes of residence must also be listed with the police within 24 hours.

A similar ordinance passed in a neighboring city has reduced crime and resulted in the registration of 551 known criminals in that area. Of 26 who failed to register, 25 were convicted and given jail terms.

The proposal has the twofold purpose of keeping the police constantly in touch with hardened criminals of ill repute, and of freeing the city of undesirables who might migrate to Philadelphia to make it a base for their illegal operations.

Judge McDevitt, a noted jurist, in addressing the committee urged that universal fingerprinting as proposed by the United States Bureau of Investigation be adopted.

His comment was, "No honest citizen need fear fingerprinting. It is the only way to keep track on floating population. If the modern trend in crime prevention continues, it is likely that the Judge's recommendation soon will become a Federal law. It is the one definite means by which the Government can identify a person suspected of a crime in which fingerprint evidence had been produced, and also clear an innocent person suspected of complicity.

Despite the above effort to attain the heights of something or other, we think that Al Mayell still holds the topmost rung of the ladder of outstanding remarks. The aforementioned Junior rocketed to the heights last week when informed of the injury suffered by a particular friend. The injury being a broken nose, it was conveyed to Al that it would call for corrective, commonly known as splints. But Al knew that of course, for when the statement was made that the nose was broken he intoned in a very sagacious manner, "Guess that means he'll have to have stilts put in his nose, doesn't it?"

Everywhere you go these days it seems that almost everyone is talking about Joe Duggan, of Trenton, N. J., who made the headlines last week when he called Jean Harlow on the phone way out in Hollywood. Joe, it seems, is a janitor in several apartments and the bright idea occurred to him to phone Jean, his flicker heroine. Joe did and consequently when the owner of the apartment was presented with a bill of some $20 the uproar began. Of course it is good publicity for the platinum cinema attraction, but in our opinion it was just Much Ado About Nothing.

It happens to the best of us (?), we suppose, but it is not very often that you find such occurrences here at Villanova where everybody knows everybody else, or so it sems and some a little better than others. At any rate the point of this discourse is just this: Imagine our surprise when we strolled into the Bursar's office Thursday last to register and when our turn came to sign on the dotted line, etc., the question was fired at us, "Your name, please?"

Great disappointment has been evidenced about the campus now that Louie has discontinued his branch of the Pie Shoppe in the basement of the Commerce and Finance Building. It seems to us that the closing of this food stand was a foolish move but then again maybe we are entirely wrong. However, the fact still remains that those students who are late risers, etc., and consequently have had to go without their breakfast always welcomed the opportunity to dash down to the first floor for a bite to eat. And in between classes refreshments are also welcome; a bottle of soda to remove the parched feeling is never amiss. So it might do well for Louie to open up once more in the Commerce and Finance Building, for he is sure to be received with open pockets.

ELYSIUM
Or a spiritual aberration.
Spirit of Dictator
Spirit of Death
Spirit of Destiny
Spirit of Countrymen.

Spirit of Dictator
This can't be death—tho my decrepit limbs
Have longed to find some rest in that eternal
Sleep, which binds the troubled wounds of spirit
In all healing oblivion. My eyes have nodded
From their nightly vigil. Now I look
Within, upon these phantoms of my past,
Which stalk unhampered through my dreams,
So that I dread the coming night.

But still I hold the power of living men, to chosen
My unruly thoughts. And bid consciousness
Dispel these maddening visions.
(Enter Spirit of Death)
What! Are the phantoms of my dreams
About to be personified. And from
Their writhing indistinction grow into
The sharper outlines of my victims.
To plague me
With each crime, I ever caused humanity.

Spirit of Death
Old man, thy earthly sojourn is ended.
All that the earth now knows of thee, is a memory,
That's darkened o'er by thy grim deeds.

Spirit of Dictator
Fool! This cannot be death. For I
Still feel the thoughts I knew on earth. Which peopled
All my sleep, and made me prayerfully seek
The dawn, to curse my foolish frights. I hoped
To lose my mind but it was denied me. Death too,
I could not e'er affront. Though it alone
Could bring relief to my sore troubled spirit.
The dread that does afflict my mind is fastened
There with repetition's chains which only
Death can sever. And now thou say—I dare
Not hope for future peace.

Spirit of Death
Thou left all hope behind when entering here.
For it lies hid within the ravelled scroll
Of Time. And eases trouble's burden with
Its expectations. But here—the future and
The past are one—the present is enduring
As you are today, so shall you be
Throughout eternity.

Spirit of Dictator
Has destiny but marked me out for this?
The victim of my own ambitious efforts.
To let me crush a thousand weaklinks. And then
To subject me to their eternal plaints
It cannot be — that strength at which
The world has marvelled, was but given me
To turn my days and nights to dreads.

Spirit of Destiny
Aye. I gave thee power and a courage
That would stand firm, while those about thee melted
In Adversity's fierce light. But did not
Destine thee to this. The grandeur that
Once decked thy breast was of thy own design.
Mine, the spirit to give, but thine the will
To use it.

Spirit of Dictator
Are valour and ambition—those twin stars
Of thy renown—planted in a fallow breast,
Or one that will tend them with the deeds,
That will bring forth the fame of their author?
My deeds have not been little things. To be
Absorbed within the arid land of life—
As rain upon the desert—But raging torrents
Of my vigour, which have swept aside,
The trifling plans of others. And yet I come
To this.

Spirit of Destiny
Deeds! Poor fool. What are thy deeds?
What fame has flowered from them. Be it
The flames from burnnig villages, that were
A mid-night sun to the surrounding land.
The ravaged fields that have been sprinkled with,
The blood of violated hearths. These
Thy deeds. Thy fame the execration of
All lawful men.

Spirit of Dictator
Begone fiend, and plague me not. With thy Fool reasons for my plight. Enough that
I shall never know the calm repose Of solitude. Nor can escape the wrack
That conscience has become. Will I ne'er find
Surcease. Or ever be dragged by the ebb

Pass In Review

By RICHARD L. G. DEVERALL

IN THE last issue of THE VILLANOVAN it was announced that a literary poll would be taken during the retreat. The poll was postponed, and, at the end of this column, you'll find the necessary blanks for voting. Please fill in. Answer all questions. See that your friends cast their votes. Hand blanks in as soon as possible at the VILLANOVAN office or at Room 202, Fedigan Hall.

It is one of the postulates of modern science that religion is no longer necessary. Many pseudo-scientists proclaim that the priest is merely a purveyor of mumbo-jumbo, ritualistic nonsense. But, peculiarly enough, the past few months has seen the publication of a number of books, by scientists, which burden themselves with searching out Almighty God. Dr. Alexis Carrel, Dr. Arthur Compton, and other prominent men have done this very thing. It is strange that scientists are suddenly finding out that Theology is the Queen of Sciences!

Many years ago, St. Thomas Aquinas remarked that the business of the scientist was to find possible solutions for his problems. He was to do that — and nothing more. Nineteenth Century scientists, in their cocky intellectual priggishness, endeavored to overstep the bounds of their province. They tried to prove universals by the use of particulars, a logical error that even Freshmen dare not commit.

In "The Foundations of Physical Law," by Hilary Lawton, we find an excellent summary of these developments. Ask the Villanovan librarian for Vol. X, No. III, of "Thought." On Page 453, you'll find this admirable discussion. I believe that it is the duty of every science and engineering student to study this article, for it ought to supply him with enough ammunition, if he does not have it already, to demolish the arguments of the most crafty opponent. True science and true religion are miscible, for they are identical. It is only this Pickwickian science of modern times that attempts to deny its contingcy and lack of certitude.

For those students whose interest is in physical chemistry, we recommend "Membrane Permeability to Solutes in Its Relations to Cellular Physiology," by Rudolf Hoeber. See "Physiological Reviews," Vol. 16, No. 1, Page 52, for this illuminating discussion of membrane permeability.

The book racks seem overburdened with good scientific articles. In "Chemical Reviews," Vol. 17, No. 3, Page 327, we find a monumental discussion of the little-understood Friedal-Crafts Syntheses. The student may find this article difficult reading, but it is well to recall the dictum of our own Fr. Hammond: "Never read anything you can easily understand. Read things that you must fight to know, for it is by doing this that your knowledge is increased and your intelligence sharpened."

Fr. Falvey, Villanova's bibliophile, has interesting news for scientific research students. The great collection of scientific and engineering journals in the library, reaching back through 20 or 30 years, are now open to the student body. One can hardly magnify the advantages flowing from this marvelous opportunity, for a host of important journals are now at your disposal. Students! Do not fail to avail yourselves of this great opportunity!

FRESHMAN DEBATING TEAM MEETS GRADS

First Year Forensic Group Will Engage the Alumni On Wednesday Evening

At its last meeting, the Freshman Debating Society made preparations for a debate with the alumni on next Wednesday night at 8:15 P. M. in the amphitheatre. Mr. Houseman went over the speeches which were prepared on the subject that the members have been working for some time.

The three members who will defend the negative side are Pershing Calbro, Fred Waters, and Hugh Ferguson. The alumni team will be composed of William Burt, '34; Joseph Callaghan, '34, and John S. Lyons, '34.

By this debate, the Freshmen will be in prime condition to meet Temple on February 11. They also have scheduled encounters with Swarthmore, New York University, University of Pennsylvania, St. John's University and Fordham.

Interest has grown lax in the past and so a strong attendance is urged, not only of the delinquent members, but also of the student body who would care to come. The chairman is to be one well known to the students, and this, the first verbal battle of the season, promises to be one worth while attending.

P. K. P. CONDUCTS TOURNEY

P. K. P. will hold a bowling tournament next week. Any member who desires to enter should enter through Frank Rodgers.

SEVEN dramatic writers simultaneously produce scripts for the "March of Time" which currently is broadcast nightly over the WABC-Columbia network. Back of each line from their seven typewriters in the "March of Time" office in the columbia Broadcasting System's Building is an army of workers "smoking out 'news in all parts of the world.

First of the back-of-the-line reinforcements is Time Magazine's staff of research writers with their inexhaustible fund of facts. Behind them the world-wide services of the United Press stands ready to dig deeper at any source to develop the full and intimate drama in the news. Finally, there is the special reportorial staff of Time Magazine, a squadron of "news detectives" strategically spotted throughtout the world news centers.

On the Carpet: Producers of Columbia's Monday night radio theatre literally put the actors, stars and extras alike on the carpet. A specially designed ordinary 9x10 rug is rolled out before the microphone bearing concentric circles marked A, B and C, denoting areas best suited for the pick-up of "close-up" tete-a-tetes, drawing room conversations and entrances or exit....Phil Baker says radio comedians winter at the Florida beaches because they like to watch their drawing power bring in the tides. ...When Lawrence Tibbett rehearses his CBS programs, he concentrates on the music and improvises the lyrics. Recently in perfect voice for a difficult aria, he bellowed: "Good morning, men, have you seen what the stock market's doing?" The cymbal player took the cue for a tremendous crash!

Sigmund Romberg planned to have several chime notes in the program the other night to help out the illusion of changing scene. The sound effect man was slated to do the chime ringing. The Musicians' Union, however, got wind of the plan and said that no mere sound effects man could take the place of a union musician. If such a thing were to be done, a standby chime-ringer must be hired for both rehearsal and broadcast, ruled the union. The program was carried safely through the crises by pressing Bill Redick, coach of the chorus, into service. He was a union member and could ring chimes with impunity.

In four more days, the Camel Caravan will be trucking up the super highway and on through to the Villanova gymnasium, where their snappy rhythms and dance arrangements will be enjoyed by an estimated number of 500 couples. A thousand dancing feet and Glen Gray with his boys doing the rest...what a night!

UNITED STATES: IMPRESSIONS

(PART III, from an interview with Mr. Antonio Franco, native of Peru and professor of Spanish at Villanova.)

TOO MUCH SOUP

"What were some of your impressions on first entering this country?"

"On seeing New York for the first time, I was impressed by how mechanical everything seemed. The pedestrians rushing madly here and there, the never-ending stream of automobiles going on and on greatly amazed me; the crowded subways dumped a wild throng, and then took on a wilder one, at every station, again and again, over and over, never a rest.

"Soon after entering the city, and not knowing much English, I entered a restaurant. Taking up the menu, I pointed to the first item, and ordered it. I received soup. Fine! Now I would order my next course. I pointed to an item several lines below the soup. The waiter was very annoyed, but I insisted. After a while he returned, and set before me—a bowl of soup. The next day I noticed something on the menu that would assure me of not having to live o a soup diet. Knowing some Italian I recognized the word spaghetti. Until I learned more English, I subsisted on spaghetti for a month.

"Later I left New York for Kingston, a city in the same state, sending my trunks on by express. After arriving at that city, I waited several days for my baggage, and finally went to the station. My trunk, through some misunderstanding had taken an ocean voyage—to Kingston, Jamaica."

EXTRAVAGANCE

"How did our school system strike you?"

"Very favorably. However, the expensive layout of many schools, was, I thought, very unnecessary. The money used in gaudy embellishments on many buildings, could be used to far greater advantage in other directions, such as in erecting more schools, relieving crowded conditions and the like."

WHO PAYS AND PAYS

"The United States is the country of the woman and the child. Children have their particular rights and privileges. Women have their personal liberties and prerogatives. Even dumb brutes have their societies for prevention of cruelty to animals.

"Poor man, where does he come in? He just naturally doesn't. He just pays — and pays —."

MRS. LONG . . . SENATOR

IT seems that something akin to the rights of survivors has been introduced where there is a vancancy in either of the branches of Congress. Therefore, Governor Noe's appointment of Mrs. Long to fill the place left vacant by the death of her husband was merely the technical fulfillment of what is now fast becoming a custom. But can there be any doubt that Mrs. Long would have been elected if there had been any legal procedure of that sort, or better still, the old custom of choice by the legislature? Louisiana is still ruled by the hand of Huey Long despite the fact that he is no longer actually present to stir up his forces with his oratorical brilliance. And it is a well-known fact that Mrs. Long has always put forth a good word for everybody save the antagonists of the Long regime.

As a rule, however, the time of a female successor is brief unless, as has been notably done in some instances, she is able to retain her position by demonstrating her ability to act in that capacity. For it is quite evident that once the sentimental motive behind the appointment has become chilled, to do just that requires intelligence, skill in political matters, persuasiveness, tact, and personal charm equal to that of the male representatives.

It is true that the widows of other Senators have succeeded their husbands and even been re-elected but what are a few of them in such a vast mob? Yet it is only natural that to the Senate some improvement of present "parliamentary" manners should be directed. For is it not logical that should a large feminine bloc be established in that temple of wisdom these inspirers of politeness might chasten a little, if not a great deal, the vociferous outbursts of statesmen as they are busily engaged in excavating dirt piles?

It is our duty to be patient for it may so happen that "a little leaven leaveneth the entire lump."

TURNABOUT

THE recent address of former Governor Alfred E. Smith at the Liberty League banquet, is the natural outcome of his past activities and associations. Mr. Smith found a great many faults with the present Administration, but not in one case did he offer a practical substitute. In fact, his address was a perfect duplicate of the vague uncertainties that characterized the speeches of his Republican opponent in 1928, but it is doubtful if it will be as efficacious for the people are now not so gullible, and indifferent to their own well-being as they were then, for they want constructive criticism, and not Constitutional cant.

Mr. Smith's pronouncements to the contrary, the fact cannot be disguised, that no man, who was accustomed to interpret the constitution in so pertinent and lucid manner, as well as express himself with a clarity and reasonableness that could not be gain-said, can change, so diametrically, his opinions, without appearing to be actuated by motives other than he has as yet expressed.

The continued activities of the League make it increasingly apparent that the sole purpose of its existence is the economic preference of its originators. Since its inception it has functioned as obstructionist movement, without the excuse of a superior policy. Which makes it increasingly difficult to reconcile Mr. Smith's association with this group.

It is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Smith was at one time among the foremost constructive thinkers of the country. He advocated social legislation long before the law makers could be brought to realize its necessity. He thought in terms of humanity while others thought of the written word. Hence the ridiculous figure he makes in his new capacity.

When a man who should be in the vanguard of the liberal thinkers of the day, can be enticed into the ranks of the obstructionists it is time for the people to appreciate the power for evil that is exercised by wealth and position.

CRIME PREVENTIVES

IN A DRASTIC MOVE to curb crime within the confines of Philadelphia, the Public Safety Committee of City Council recently approved an ordinance providing for registration of convicted felons.

The measure requires that all residents convicted of crimes within the last three years must register within 10 days with the Police Bureau. Visitors with criminal records must register within 24 hours after their entry into the city, and changes of residence must also be listed with the police within 24 hours.

A similar ordinance passed in a neighboring city has reduced crime and resulted in the registration of 551 known criminals in that area. Of 26 who failed to register, 25 were convicted and given jail terms.

The proposal has the twofold purpose of keeping the police constantly in touch with hardened criminals of ill repute, and of freeing the city of undesirables who might migrate to Philadelphia to make it a base for their illegal operations.

Judge McDevitt, a noted jurist, in addressing the committee urged that universal fingerprinting as proposed by the United States Bureau of Investigation be adopted.

His comment was, "No honest citizen need fear fingerprinting. It is the only way to keep track on floating population.

If the modern trend in crime prevention continues, it is likely that the Judge's recommendation soon will become a Federal law. Sleep, which binds the troubled wounds of spirit
In all healing oblivion. My eyes have nodded
From their nightly vigil. Now I look
Within, upon these phantoms of my past,
Which stalk unhampered through my dreams,
So that I dread the coming night.

But still I hold the power of living men, to chosen
My unruly thoughts. And bid consciousness
Dispel these maddening visions.
(Enter Spirit of Death)
What! Are the phantoms of my dreams
About to be personified. And from
Their writhing indistinction grow into
The sharper outlines of my victims. To plague me
With each crime. I ever caused humanity.

Spirit of Death

Old man, thy earthly sojourn is ended.
All that the earth now knows of thee, is a memory,
That's darkened o'er by thy grim deeds.

Spirit of Dictator

Fool! This cannot be death. For I Still feel the thoughts I knew on earth. Which peopled
All my sleep, and made me prayerfully seek
The dawn, to curse my foolish frights. I hoped
To lose my mind but it was denied me. Death too.
I could not e'er affront. Though it alone
Could bring relief to my sore troubled spirit.
The dread that does afflict my mind is fastened
There with repetition's chains which only
Death can sever. And now thou say—I dare
Not hope for future peace.

Spirit of Death

Thou left all hope behind when entering here.
For it lies hid within the ravelled scroll
Of Time. And eases trouble's burden with
Its expectations. But here—the future and
The past are one—the present is enduring
As you are today, so shall you be Throughout eternity.

Spirit of Dictator

Has destiny but marked me out for this?
The victim of my own ambitious efforts.
To let me crush a thousand weaklinks. And then
To subject me to their eternal plaints
It cannot be — that strength at which
The world has marvelled, was but given me
To turn my days and nights to dreads.

Spirit of Destiny

Aye. I gave thee power and a courage
That would stand firm, while those about thee melted
In Adversity's fierce light. But did not
Destine thee to this. The grandeur that
Once decked thy breast was of thy own design.
Mine, the spirit to give, but thine the will
To use it.

Spirit of Dictator

Are valour and ambition—those twin stars
Of thy renown—planted in a fallow breast.
Or one that will tend them with the deeds,
That will bring forth the fame of their author?
My deeds have not been little things. To be
Absorbed within the arid land of life—
As rain upon the desert—But raging torrents
Of my vigour, which have swept aside,
The trifling plans of others. And yet I come
To this.

Spirit of Destiny

Deeds! Poor fool. What are thy deeds?
What fame has flowered from them. Be it
The flames from burnnig villages, that were
A mid-night sun to the surrounding land.
The ravaged fields that have been sprinkled with,
The blood of violated hearths. These
Thy deeds. Thy fame the execration of
All lawful men.

Spirit of Dictator

Begone fiend, and plague me not. With thy Fool reasons for my plight. Enough that
I shall never know the calm repose Of solitude. Nor can escape the wrack
That conscience has become. Will I ne'er find
Surcease. Or ever be dragged by the ebb

Pass In Review

By RICHARD L. G. DEVEBALL

IN THE last issue of THE VILLANOVAN it was announced that a literary poll would be taken during the retreat. The poll was postponed, and, at the end of this column, you'll find the necessary blanks for voting. Please fill in. Answer all questions. See that your friends cast their votes. Hand blanks in as soon as possible at the VILLANOVAN office or at Room 202, Fedigan Hall.

It is one of the postulates of modern science that religion is no longer necessary. Many pseudo-scientists proclaim that the priest is merely a purveyor of mumbo-jumbo, ritualistic nonsense. But, peculiarly enough, the past few months has seen the publication of a number of books, by scientists, which burden themselves with searching out Almighty God. Dr. Alexis Carrel, Dr. Arthur Compton, and other prominent men have done this very thing. It is strange that scientists are suddenly finding out that Theology is the Queen of Sciences!

Many years ago, St. Thomas Aquinas remarked that the business of the scientist was to find possible solutions for his problems. He was to do that — and nothing more. Nineteenth Century scientists, in their cocky intellectust priggishness, endeavored to overstep the bounds of their province. They tried to prove universals by the use of particulars, a logical error that even Freshmen dare not commit.

In "The Foundations of Physical Law," by Hilary Lawton, we find an excellent summary of these developments. Ask the Villanovan librarian for Vol. X, No. III, of "Thought." On Page 453, you'll find this admirable discussion. I believe that it is the duty of every science and engineering student to study this article, for it ought to supply him with enough ammunition, if he does not have it already, to demolish the arguments of the most crafty opponent. True science and true religion are miscible, for they are identical. It is only this Pickwickian acience of modern times that attempts to deny its contingcy and lack of certitude.

For those students whose interest is in physical chemistry, we recommend "Membrane Permeability to Solutes in its Relations to Cellular Physiology," by Rudolf Hoeber. See "Physiological Reviews," Vol. 16, No. 1, Page 52, for this illuminating discussion of membrane permeability.

The book racks seem overburdened with good scientific articles. In "Chemical Reviews," Vol. 17, No. 3, Page 327, we find a monumental discussion of the little-understood Friedal-Crafts Syntheses. The student may find this article difficult reading, but it is well to recall the dictum of our own Fr. Hammond: "Never read anything you can easily understand. Read things that you must fight to know, for it is by doing this that your knowledge is increased and your intelligence sharpened."

Fr. Falvey, Villanova's bibliophile, has interesting news for scientific research students. The great collection of scientific and engineering journals in the library, reaching back through 20 or 30 years, are now open to the student body. One can hardly magnify the advantages flowing from this marvelous opportunity, for a host of important journals are now at your disposal. Students! Do not fail to avail yourselves of this great opportunity!

FRESHMAN DEBATING TEAM MEETS GRADS

First Year Forensic Group Will Engage the Alumni On Wednesday Evening

At its last meeting, the Freshman Debating Society made preparations for a debate with the alumni on next Wednesday night at 8:15 P. M. in the amphitheatre. Mr. Houseman went over the speeches which were prepared on the subject that the members have been working for some time.

The three members who will defend the negative side are Pershing Calbro, Fred Waters, and Hugh Ferguson. The alumni team will be composed of William Burt, '34; Joseph Callaghan, '34, and John S. Lyons, '34.

By this debate, the Freshmen will be in prime condition to meet Temple on February 11. They also have scheduled encounters with Swarthmore, New York University, University of Pennsylvania, St. John's University and Fordham.

Interest has grown lax in the past and so a strong attendance is urged, not only of the delinquent members, but also of the student body who would care to come. The chairman is to be one well known to the students, and this, the first verbal battle of the season, promises to be one worth while attending.

P. K. P. CONDUCTS TOURNEY

P. K. P. will hold a bowling tournament next week. Any member who desires to enter should enter through Frank Rodgers.

SEVEN dramatic writers simultaneously produce scripts for the "March of Time" which currently is broadcast nightly over the WABC-Columbia network. Back of each line from their seven typewriters in the "March of Time" office in the columbia Broadcasting System's Building is an army of workers "smoking out "news in all parts of the world.

First of the back-of-the-line reinforcements is Time Magazine's staff of research writers with their inexhaustible fund of facts. Behind them the world-wide services of the United Press stands ready to dig deeper at any source to develop the full and intimate drama in the news. Finally, there is the special reportorial staff of Time Magazine, a squadron of "news detectives" strategically spotted throughtout the world news centers.

On the Carpet: Producers of Columbia's Monday night radio theatre literally put the actors, stars and extras alike on the carpet. A specially designed ordinary 9x10 rug is rolled out before the microphone bearing concentric circles marked A, B and C, denoting areas best suited for the pick-up of "close-up" tete-a-tetes, drawing room conversations and entrances or exit . . Phil Baker says radio comedians winter at the Florida beaches because they like to watch their drawing power bring in the tides. . . . When Lawrence Tibbett rehearses his CBS programs, he concentrates on the music and improvises the lyrics. Recently in a perfect voice for a difficult aria, he bellowed: "Good morning, men, have you seen what the stock market's doing?" The cymbal player took the cue for a tremendous crash!

Sigmund Romberg planned to have several chime notes in the program the other night to help out in illusion of changing scene. The sound effect man was slated to do the chime ringing. The Musicians' Union, however, got wind of the plan and said that no mere sound effects man could take the place of a union musician. If such a thing were to be done, a ding-dong chime-ringer must be hired for both rehearsal and broadcast, ruled the union. The program was carried safely through the crises by pressing Bill Redick, coach of the chorus, into service. He was a union member and could ring chimes with impunity.

In four more days, the Camel Caravan will be trucking up the super highway and on through to the Villanova gymnasium, where their snappy rhythms and dance arrangements will be enjoyed by an estimated number of 500 couples. A thousand dancing feet and Glen Gray with his boys doing the rest . . . what a night!

UNITED STATES: IMPRESSIONS

(PART III, from an interview with Mr. Antonio Franco, native of Peru and professor of Spanish at Villanova.)

TOO MUCH SOUP

"What were some of your impressions on first entering this country?"

"On seeing New York for the first time, I was impressed by how mechanical everything seemed. The pedestrians rushing madly here and there, the never-ending stream of automobiles going o.. and on greatly amazed me; the crowded subways dumped a wild throng, and then took on a wilder one, at every station, again and again, over and over, never a rest.

"Soon after entering the city, and not knowing much English, I entered a restaurant. Taking up the menu, I pointed to the first item, and ordered it. I received soup. Fine! Now I would order my next course. I pointed to an item several lines below the soup. The waiter was very annoyed, but I insisted. After a while he returned, and set before me—a bowl of soup. The next day I noticed something on the menu that would assure me of not having to live o a soup diet. Knowing some Italian I recognized the word spaghetti. Until I learned more English, I subsisted on spaghetti for a month.

"Later I left New York for Kingston, a city in the same state, sending my trunks on by express. After arriving at that city, I waited several days for my baggage, and finally went to the station. My trunk, through some misunderstanding had taken an ocean voyage—to Kingston, Jamaica."

EXTRAVAGANCE

"How did our school system strike you?"

"Very favorably. However, the expensive layout of many schools was, I thought, very unnecessary. The money used in gaudy embellishments on many buildings, could be used to far greater advantage in other directions, such as in erecting more schools, relieving crowded conditions and the like."

WHO PAYS AND PAYS

"The United States is the country of the woman and the child. Children have their particular rights and privileges. Women have their personal liberties and prerogatives. Even dumb brutes have their societies for prevention of cruelty to animals.

NEW MEMBERS TO BE RECEIVED BY PKP

Initiation Exercises to Be Followed by Banquet For Technology Group

New members will be accepted into the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity on February 25 accompanied by initiation exercises and a banquet. This announcement was made by James Allen, president of the organization.

The committee appointed by the officers of the fraternity to initiate the incoming members is presided over by Francis Rodgers. Other members of the committee are: Paul Donahue, Joseph Doherty, Ramson Dethloff, Louis Marcott, Gerald Kunz, Eugene Barr, Robert Guinee, Paul Williams, Thomas J. O'Brien, Michael J. O'Brien, Joseph O'Shea, Joseph Duffy, Mario Menocal, Joseph Denny, Robert Strong, Daniel O'Connor, Emil Mathias, Joseph Beittenmiller, Alfred Hoffman, John Courtin, Harold F. Murphy, Edward Corliss, Edward Gornowski, Joseph Sanborn, William Thorn and William Burns.

Joseph Braheney has been appointed chairman of the membership committee which will receive new candidates for the engineering fraternity. With Mr. Braheney on the committee are Joseph A. Hooven, Camillo D'Annunzio, Joseph F. Malcom, and Walter Weis.

After the initiation ceremonies have been completed a banquet will be given in the college dining hall. All faculty, alumni, and present fraternity members are invited. The committee in charge of this affair consists of James McBrearty, chairman; Charles Kain, John Schlottenback, John Cronin, Theodore Osbahr, and Miller Sullivan.

Plans have been formulated for a dinner-dance to be held sometime in the spring months and will be discussed further at the next meeting of the fraternity.

Glen Gray Enjoys Classical Music was a good student, and liked math but disliked history. He supported himself in school in whole (his father having died when he was only one year old) by working in a brickyard in the summers, and also by playing in bands.

As an athlete, "Spike" played basketball, baseball and football in high school and college. Playing center in basketball he didn't even have to jump at toss-off. Having pitched in high school, he turned to semi-pro baseball in the Central Illinois League. He enjoyed playing soccer as a diversion.

Self-taught in music so far as the rudiments and many of the finer features were concerned, Glen later studied clarinet with Albert Luaconi. Joined Casa Loma when it was being made up, and was conferred the title of "Glen Gray, the President of Casa Loma" at the first elections, of which a song has since been composed.

were unfortunate in the examinations, and who have been conditioned in any subject, re-examiation schedules will be posted in the very near future.

"The work of the Freshmen class in the School of Arts is worthy of special notice. Most of the Freshmen have done admirable work during the first semester. They are wise, in thus laying a solid foundation, not only for the years to come in college life, but also for their entire future career. Consistent industry and conscientiousness in academic endeavor have never yet failed to pay handsome dividends," concluded Fr. Burns' report.

retreat and the necessity of the exercises.

During the conferences the evil of sin, the necessity of preparing for the last judgment, the avoidance of scandal, love for Our Blessed Mother, devotion to the Most Blessed Sacrament, and the great necessity of following one's vocation were greatly stressed.

The students realized more than ever that the retreat was conducted for their benefits. They seemed inspired to obtain from this retreat all the spiritual benefits that were presented and to take advantage of all the opportunities that were possible. This was evidenced at the large number that received Holy Communion each morning. On the morning of the close of the exercises, it was inspiring to see the whole student body approach the Communion Rail.

The students' reaction was very favorable, and in their minds, the retreat proved spiritually beneficial. This was noticeable by their attentive mood throughout the entire exercises.

Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., chaplain, was very pleased by the co-operation of the students. Frs. Brown, McCarron and Brennan are to be commended for their untiring and unceaseless efforts in an endeavor to make this retreat the best in the history of the college.

Orchestra should leave nothing undone for the complete enjoyment of the evening. Don Pike has made his fame widespread throughout this city and the New Jersey seashore resorts for his style, which is coincidentally patterned after that of Glen Gray.

At "Ryan's," Ocean City, N. J., the most popular meeting place for those who enjoy dancing in Ocean City, Don Pike shattered all the records for attendance, during last summer, where his engagement was held over for the entire season. Again, in Philadelphia and surrounding suburbs, this fall and winter, the band continued its rapid rise to fame, until at present it enjoys the position of being among the first two or three most popular orchestras in Philadelphia.

In securing Glen Grey, to play at the Senior Ball, Arthur Noble and his committee have chosen a band recognized from the Americas to Europe as one of the finest aggregations available. Tthroughout Europe, to-day, one of the few American dance numbers that has attained universal acclaim and is being imost continuously played is the one and only "Casa Loma Stomp."

It is rumored that the Casa Loma Orchestra first chose its name from the place of their first engagement somewhere in Canada at a dancing mart, named "Casa Loma." However true this may be, the name became one of the few that boasts of instantaneous recognition and undiminished glamour since their sky-rocket rise to fame, beginning with an engagement at the Glen Island Casino, a few miles from New York City in the summer of 1933.

Over the ether waves, Casa Loma made their rhythms, emanating from the Casino carry from coast to coast. This, the band's radio debut sealed their contract for the year, and next we find them playing in the Colonades of the Essex House, choicest location in the "Big City." At the same time the band was making its first commercial radio presentation, a contract originally made for 13 weeks, but almost immediately increased another 13, to run until the next summer season at the Glen Island Casino.

Again in the following winter, through to the Spring of 1935, the band returned to the Colonades while once again the radio was the source of a newer and longer 26-week commercial contract. Proving its spectacular popularity the Casa Loma Orchestra was acclaimed fifth best orchestra in the United States, in the 1934 poll of the New York World-Telegram, and this after only eight months of broadcasts. Then, in 1935, the aggregation had risen to fourth place in the same vote machine.

Glen Gray just two weeks ago finished his third week at the Paramount Theatre, one of New York's finest. One of his most successful appearances, Glen, with a special arrangement of "The Music Goes Down and Around," as his feature the first week, made even standing room scarce, until at the end of the seventh day, over 200,000 people had heard the Casa Loma band.

As announced early yesterday by William Vaughn, class president, the following Seniors are appointed to the committee for the Senior Dinner-Dance: James T. Allan, chairman, and Paul Donahue, of the School of Technology; Harry Kornfield, and Albert Welsh, of the Science School; Louis Cuyar, and Daniel Murphy, of the School of Arts; and George Schelle, and Thomas Finan, of the Commerce and Finance School.

DECORATIVE BOOTHS ARE SENIOR BALL FEATURE

Campus Organizations Give Wholehearted Support to Ornamental Scheme

Continuing its policy of wholeheartedly sponsoring campus functions, the VILLANOVAN, through its moderator, Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., has contracted for the initial decorative booth which will grace the senior promenade.

Other campus organizations which have secured like booths are the Junior Class, Sophomore Class and Phi Kappa Pi. Booths representing the Senior Class, Faculty and the Alumni will also be in evidence.

These booths will be something new in the way of such decorative schemes and plans for their construction are in the hands of a prominent Philadelphia interior decorator. They will embrace a modernistic motif replacing the old streamer form.

The name of each organization renting them will appear in emblazened letters above the enclosure. Concealed lighting effects will enhance the beauty of the space. Diversified and myriad coloring effects will carry out the decorative scheme.

Joseph Rafter Is Named Custodian Of State Library

Villanova Alumnus Receives Coveted Appointment From Governor Earle

Word has been received that Joseph L. Rafter, Esq., of Scranton, Penna., has been approved by Gov. George H. Earle to serve in the capacity of director of the state library and museum succeeding Dr. Charles F. Hoban.

Mr. Rafter, who has for some time maintained law offices in New York City and Scanton, is a graduate of Villanova College and later served as a professor here. In addition to his degree from Villanova, Mr. Rafter has received like awards from Notre Dame University, Brooklyn College and St. John's University, Brooklyn, N. Y. He was admitted to the Pennsylvania bar in 1922 and the bar of New York State in 1931.

During the Great War he served two years abroad and attained the rank of captain. He was decorated for meritorious work by King Alexander of Greece and the Greek War Department.

A. S. C. E. MEMBERS MEET IN ASSEMBLY AT PENN

Four New Members of Engineering Fraternity Present Interesting Paper on Sewage Disposal

The most important activity of the month for the Villanova student chapter of the A. S. C. E. took place on Friday afternoon, January 24, when the members attended a combined meeting of the local student chapters at the University of Pennsylvania's Engineering Building.

Mr. Daniel W. Mead, president of the society, was introduced to the assembly. Following the introduction, Mr. Mead gave an exceptionally interesting autobiographical sketch of his life. This presentation afforded a great deal of useful information to the upperclassmen of the chapters.

A paper on "Sewage and Sewage Disposal" was presented by the four neophytes recently admitted to the society. John Donnegan and James Carroll discussed the various phases of deliverance of sewage to the plant, while Ramage Sheik and James P. Skelly discussed its disposal.

PROBATION PERIOD ENDS FOR WRITERS

Freshman Members of VILLANOVAN Are Inducted As Regular Staff Aides

Members of the student body who have answered the call to assist the VILLANOVAN Staff are now being given recognition of their worth.

Following the usual custom of keeping students on a probation period, these men now have become regular staff writers. This probation period constitutes that time interval wherein the prospective writer proves his capability of being a staff member.

The call at the beginning of the present school year, emphatic at first, was followed by a lull in activity which, in turn, was followed by a period of much activity. It is while these members are so tensed and interested in their work that the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., moderator of the VILLANOVAN, and the present editors, wish to express their appreciation for their continued work.

The college staff has been increased in number by the addition of the following Freshman students: Rene Caillet, Eugene Di Canzalcanti, Leonard Flinkman, Leo Golden, Robert Howe, Paul Juergens, Martin Kassell, James Kutz, Daniel Smith, James Tofani, and Louis J. Santamaria, an upperclassman.

Freshman students admitted to the sporting staff of the VILLANOVAN are: John Dimon, Eugene Looram, James Meller and Richard Mulvihill. In addition to these Freshman members, the following upperclassmen have been admitted: William Bowker and Frank Bonetti.

Students received in the two remaining departments of the VILLANOVAN, Circulation and Art and Photography, have not been reported by manager and editor, respectively, and consequently the publication of their names will be postponed until a later date.

ALUMNUS IS GUEST AT DINNER PARTY

Martin McLaughlin Attends Formal Affair in Mendel Hall

Martin J. McLaughlin was the honored guest at a small formal dinner party held in the presidential suite in Mendel Hall on Thursday evening, January 23.

Mr. McLaughlin, the new Director of Public Works, who was a member of the class of 1914, responded to many glowing tributes with an expression of his gratitude and a pledge of his continued interest in all the affairs of the college and the alumni association.

The dinner was attended by the officials of the Augustinian Order, the Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O. S. A., the Very Rev. Paul F. Healy, O. S. A., the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., and Rev. Charles J. Meichior, O. S. A.

Other guests who attended the dinner were: J. Stanley Smith, Esq., Harry U. Strong, Walter Drueding, John A. Freney, Thomas M. Dalton, Matthew A. Lynch, Thomas J. McCoy, James J. O'Brien, John J. McDevitt, and Phineas T. Vize.

STRIVING for greater uniformity in football, the rules committee of the American Football Coaches' Association recommended six sweeping changes:

1.—Abolition of the "slow whistle."

2.—Abolition of the first down penalty for interference with a kicker.

3.—Placing of numbers on both sides of the player's jersey.

4.—Clarification of the rule on ineligible players going down under passes.

5.—Firing of pistol at the end of the game to be observed universally.

6.—Allow the smaller institutions who find the expense of four officials a burden to designate a person acceptable to both teams to keep time and tabulate substitutions.

These recommendations will be submitted to the National Collegiate A. A. rules committee, fooball's lawmakers, at a meeting in Palm Springs, Calif., February 14 to 16.

We are happy to note that the rules committee has decided against returning the goal posts to the goal line, and against changing the regulation on interference with a pass receiver.

"Gloomy" Gil Dobie has resigned his post as head football coach at Cornell! This bit of news did not come as surprise at all. It has been expected for several months now. Somehow it sort of reminds us of the story of the waiter who cried, "I quit," when told his services were no longer needed.

The 57-year old Scot, long rated among the ablest gridiron tutors in the country, yielded to pressure from undergraduate as well as alumni ranks, following the decline of Big Red football fortunes to a point where the varsity team of 1935 failed to win a game.

This column is sorry to hear of the sad plight of Dan Hogan. Dan was a freshman at Villanova last year but left with a scholarship for Yale. Hogan holds several records for backstroke swimming.

Yale swimming officials pondered official notice that Hogan was ineligible ever to compete for the Blue. The Eli's athletic association announced that Hogan competed in several intercollegiate meets as a freshman at Villanova last year.

In a close meet which was held in the gymnasium pool at Villanova College on Tuesday, January 21, the Wildcat Mermen defeated the Swarthmore team, 39-36.

The meet was very close throughout and was decided by Leahy's brilliant victory in the 220-yard freestyle. Swarthmore, behind during most of the meet, pulled up to a 32-34 lead on the victories of Jim McCormick and Keith Simmers.

The 200-yard relay was won by Villanova in 1:24. The team was composed of Wilmer Booth, Jim Cousart, Thomas Carbine, and Bill Leahy. Leahy, swimming anchor

RAY GADSBY

Ray Gadsby, Ex-Amateur Champ and Trainer, Is Appointed Boxing Coach

Ray Gadsby, prominent in amateur boxing circles and a member of the 1928 United States Olympic team, is the new coach of Villanova's boxing team.

Ray's ring career, for five years between 1926 and 1931, was an interesting and successful one. His first tournament was the Knights of Columbus city championship, held February 26, 1926. Representing the Shanahan Catholic Club, he was the king of his own weight.

That was the beginning of a series of ring successes. Ray won the Middle Atlantic featherweight title in 1927 and 1928. By reason of his excellent showing in the '28 season he was selected as Uncle Sam's featherweight representative at the Olympic games in Amsterdam.

Reached Finals in Olympics

He did well in Olympic competition, advancing to the final round. When he returned from abroad, he received numerous scholarship offers. However, he was unable to accept any of these offers because he couldn't afford to go to college and was needed at home.

Then Ray turned professional in order to keep the ever-persistent wolf from the door. From the beginning he was successful, winning his first 22 bouts. After this streak his luck failed, and he was unable to get suitable matches. He took Villanova's annual intramural boxing tournament has been postponed from Friday, January 31, to Monday evening, February 10. The reasons given for the change were several. The big reasons were the inability of the candidates to find time for a suitable training campaign and the lack of a real coach.

However, both of these difficulties are now out of the way. Now that the exams are over, there will be plenty of time for practice. In addition a new coach, Ray Gadsby, has arrived and is taking the squad in tow.

Quite a few new entries have been received in the past two weeks, mostly from Fedigan and the Dayhops. Two of Fedigan's new representatives, Emilio Tamburri and Pat Marquette, are expected to meet in one of the feature bouts of the program. Johnny Eck, who fought in the intramurals last year, Joe Tanzola and John Noll are others from Fedigan Hall.

Among the Dayhop scrappers, Jimmy Lyons and Tom Kennedy will probably meet in the 126-pound class. Joe Carroll, lightheavyweight, Charley Kain, light-

Tonight Villanova's basketeers play their ninth game of the season when they clash with the Duquesne sharpshooters in Pittsburgh.

This is the Wildcats' second game with the "Dukes" this year; the first game, played at the Arena, ended in a 46-40 decision for the Western team. The Blue and White team has played in and out basketball so far, and this is a good chance for them to redeem themselves for the five defeats they have suffered in their first eight starts.

Villanova played their best ball of the year in the last Duquesne game and would have won if it had not been for Herb Bonn's deadly eye. With the score knotted at 37 all it looked as though an extra session would be required but Duquesne put on a sparkling offensive that Don Brennan was unable to match.

Herb Bonn carried off high-scoring honors in the tilt with 13

FROSH GAIN FIFTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

Dubino MakesEleven Points As Collegiate Prep Falls, 29-23

By vanquishing a strong Collegiate Prep team Saturday, the Villanova Frosh chalked up their fifth consecutive victory. At the final whistle, twenty-nine points were on the yearling's slate, and the visitors from New Haven had twenty-three.

Scoring started early in the contest with Montgomery sinking a double-decker after about a minute of play. Three more two-pointers were racked up by the Kittens before the foreigners were able to counter with a nice basket by Semekovitch, stellar forward of the Connecticut aggregation. This goal inspired his teammates with the result that it was only a matter of moments until the Preppsters had knotted the count at eight all.

The losers did not stop here but continued in the same vein and put the score at sixteen for the half, while the Villanovans could only add four points to their tally, and the teams left the floor at half-time with hte score sixeen-twelve against them.

Dubino led the second-half assault by snaring two goals and in short order the Frosh pulled up from behind to lead by one point at nineteen-eighteen. From this point on the lead was shifted from one side to the other, until, with approxi-

1935 - '36 Intra-Mural Champions

Playing a superior brand of ball, the Austin Hall basketball quintet won the first-half crown in the intra-mural loop. The Austinites won nine consecutive games to finish ahead of the Mendel Dayhop five, who finished two full games behind the leaders in taking the runner-up post. The winning combination is pictured above: Reading from left to right they are: Rev. Ed. B. McKee, O. S. A., manager; Bill Dinges, Al Fracchia, Ray Murphy, Joe McCabe, Al Mayell, Mike Totin, leading scorer of the league; Bob McGrory, Fritz Monahan, and Jack Robinson, varsity player and coach of the Austinites.

BOWLERS POSTPONE MEET TEMPORARILY

Retreat Exercises Delayed Tournament Opening Last Tuesday

Manager Ray Murphy has temporarily postponed the opening of the bowling tournament until after the second school semester has started, It was originally slated to open last Tuesday, but the Retreat made it impossible for the contestants to play.

The first call for bowlers was very successful. A large number have already signed and are willing to start the games. Many bowlers are polishing their games in their idle hours, and consistent practice has inured them to the gymnasium alleys. The runways are at their best. Credit is due Manager Murphy and his assistants for their incredible work in preparing the alleys for the participants.

There is still plenty of time to register for the games; but try to see the manager as soon as possible so that schedules may be arranged and play started. There has

Throughout the contest play was close and the Connecticut boys gave a good account of themselves, often forcing the play, and at all times furnishing the Thirty-Niners with plenty of opposition. Scoring among the visitors was fairly evenly divided, all participants having at least one point to their credit.

Semekovitch starred for the victims, playing a stellar floor game as well as leading his team in the scoring column with two field goals and a like number of charity throws for six points. Austin Hall also has more out. Charley Bruno, another intramural veteran, is expected to come out. Manager Tommy Ryan has entered his champion, Jack Robinson, the "White Bomber," but a suitable opponent has not as yet been found.

Mendel Lacks Boxers

Mendel to date has the smallest team, being represented by only two men, Dick Mulvihill and Tommy Delate.

The wrestling part of the program is not coming along as well as was hoped. Vince LoCasale of the dayhops is working out daily, but no opponent has been found. Ed Virusky, of Fedigan, is being sought as his opponent.

Even with the new candidates the program will not be as full as the committee anticipated. Anyone who still feels that he would like to take part can enter if he comes out immediately. All the entrants will be evenly matched by the coach, so nobody will be slaughtered.

And participants in the tournament are not obligated to go out for the varsity boxing team. If this has kept anyone from coming out before, we hope that they will come out and enter now.

The tournament was to have been an open affair, open to the general public, but the authorities thought it best to keep the attendance limited to the student body.

Hello Pat:

According to the assignment you were supposed to write this limelight, so I am enclosing all the information you might need, and in your spare time will you please make believe you are devoting a little time to its writing, just as a personal favor.

I went to interview this fellow they call Ben Geraghty so that you would not have to disturb the foursome. Boy, was I sorry, getting information from his was like trying to get my staff to work. Finally, after boring him to exasperation, I came away with all the material necessary.

Here goes; his full name is Benjamin Raymond Geraghty, a native son of Jersey City, that's the place where New Jersey's democratic elections are won and lost. Oh, par don me, we are talking of Ben. He came into the world on the 19th of July, 1914. I don't know about the weather conditions at the time, this fellow would not tell me.

He spent eight of his early years at St. Peter's Grammar School in Jersey City. Of course, activities at this early age were confined to sandlot baseball and football games and trying to throw a rubber ball through a farmer basket attached to a pole.

Then, Benjamin entered St. Peter's Prep, and things began to happen. In his three years at that institution, he played football for two years; baseball and basketball for three. He was captain of the quintet for two seasons. Here, he held the distinction of leading the St. Paul's basketeers to the Hudson County championship and to further aid his own cause, Ben walked off with the high scoring honors for the season in the county loop.

In a game between St. Peter's Prep and St. Benedict's Prep, our hero was the outstanding figure on the floor—I mention this because it had a lot to do with his schooling the following year. It seems that prior to the above-mentioned encounter St. Benedict's held a winning streak of thirty-three games which was shattered mainly through his efforts, as a result the authorities at the Newark school made plans to have Ben on their side of the fence, and accordingly he registered at St. Benedict's, where he was to become the high scorer of the State in his first year.

This same team entered the final round of the Eastern States tournament. More honors were bestowed upon Ben, when he was named an All Eastern States forward.

The Villanova Frosh team of 1931 played against St. Benedict's and Ben, and were humbled, although our bashful hero was not the high scorer of the game, his twelve points and floor play were the outstanding features of the tussle.

He entered Villanova College in the fall of '32. While in his infant days here Ben played basketball and baseball. By the way . . . the Frosh team that year under the tutilage of Bill Tracy, had quite an impressive record, bowling over the Temple Frosh and several other classy aggregations. The "baseballers" also phyed a strong schedule and brought home quite a few victories.

In his second year here Ben became a regular forward on the Varsity five and had the distinction of being the only sophomore to hold down a regular berth. He also played on the baseball nine, although he saw very little action, for in the spring days of '33 Skaff, Wronski and Cavanaugh were playing in the inner cordon, and Ben who was only a rookie had to be content to get into the line-up, whenever he could.

In the following year, both in basketball and baseball he was a standout. During the latter part of the '33-'34 basketball campaign an injury to his spine caused Ben to lay aside his uniform.

He came back strong for the baseball practice sessions and as a result landed the regular short-stop position. He was one of the leading hitters of the club, and also held a high percentage in the field.

For his outstanding performances on the court, his teammates elected him to lead the Wildcat five for the present campaign . . .

He spends his vacations playing ball in the North Jersey and New York City area, so I guess you know why he is such a swell ball player.

I hope that I have given you all the material which you could not get and again I repeat please make believe you are writing the Limelight, just as a personal favor.

Respectfully,
A. R. C.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

. . . The recent trip taken by the basketball team up-State resulted in two defeats, but brought some mighty fine comments from the partisan Dickinsonians and non-partisan Bucknellians. . . Said one up-State mentor:

"The best coached team I have seen this year. Cannot understand how they lost to Dickinson and Bucknell." . . I cannot understand either, but those things do occur. . . The Wildcats will have to step to finish with a good record as the season is fast waning and the opposition is becoming keener. . .

When a team competes away from home they have to contend with officials who just are not of ociciating calibre. . . Against Dickinson, a gentleman named Dayhoff performed the rankest job of refereeing that I have seen in quite a while. . . The following evening against the Bisons of Bucknell the gentlemen in gray (referees to you) handled forty minutes of hard basketball without a flaw. The best I have hd take pleasure of witnessing all year.

The student body of Bucknell welcomed the visiting Villanova team in a fine manner and I must say that the Bison players are the best—from a hospitable standpoint—that the Wildcats have ever contacted.

And if you know any friends who intend matriculating at the Lewisburg institution tell them the fraternity to join is Sigma Alfa Epsilon. Eddie McKee, the president of theh house, Johnny Sitarsky, Bill Foltz among others are swell fellows. . .

It was with a feeling of regret that I learned of the ineligibility of Danny Hogan, Yale's swimming star. Danny was a member of the supposedly official swimming team here at Villanova last year. . . and performed very well.

Maicom Farmer, Director of Athletics at the New Haven institution stated that Hogan was ineligible for further competition as an Eli natator for participating in OFFICIAL meets at the Wildcat institution.

Defending himself, Hogan said, "The meets in which I took part last year at Vilalnova, were—to my knowledge—unofficial?

Everything appeared rosy for the former Overbrook High ace, but Farmer contacted Mr. A. C. Severance, Graduate Manager of Athletics of Villanova who informed the Eli officials that ONE meet was official.

To Hogan this was a severe blow. He will be unable to compete as a collegian and all on account of ONE meet. The report just as well may have said that ALL and not only ONE of the meets were official. With that I will let the matter drop as I believe you can see the point.

Danny has a host of friends here at Villanova and has their best wishes that a reconciliation may be brought about.

With all this cold weather hovering about some of the students accustomed to a warmer climate banded together—and what do you think they did- Just this. Secured a few beach chairs—some lamps (yes, with bulbs)—sugar (to be used as sand)—magazines and then went down to theh swimming pool and imagined they were in Florida California or what have you. . . Right now I have a headache. Good bye—will pick you up next week. . .

points and was closely followed by Brennan with 11.

The "Cats" still have a chance to make something of their schedule and they may start to click tonight. Their three victories have been scored over "pushovers" that have lost by overwhelming scores in practically every game they have played, except when they opposed Villanova.

The varsity has a habit of starting slow and playing their best ball in the second half and are about due to play good ba'l throughout an entire game.

When the team comes back tomorrow let's hope they have a victory tucked away and will be all set to carry off the games that still remain on the schedule.

been no decisive change in the rules, and the entrance fee of 10 cents still holds.

During the past week, a number of sensational bowlers have been unearthed from the ranks of the student body. Tony Pyrz and Frank Capellaro flashed plenty of form in rolling large scores in their tune-up games last week. Tony seems to have an eye for all sports, as he is not only a good shot in billiards, but also a flash on the basketball court, besides being a fine passer on the gridiron and a star on the baseball field.

All bowlers, as well as those interested in the game, are requested to watch the VILLANOVAN and the bulletin boards in the Pie Shoppe and Dining Hall for further news concerning the matches.

GLENN CUNNINGHAM BEATEN

Joe Mangan, former Cornell track captain, astonished the sport world when he defeated Gene Venzke and Glenn Cunningham Saturday night in the Millrose games at Madison Square Garden. Only four feet separated the trio at the finish. Glenn Cunningham was won three previous "Wanamakers."

SUCCESSOR NOT YET NAMED

Cornell authorities have just announced that they are on the market for a new football coach to replace Gill Dobie who has just resigned. Charley Caldwell, Princeton star, and Don Peden, Ohio University coach, have been mentioned as possibilities.

for the Main Liners decided the outcome of the race. Toby Greco won the 200-yard breaststroke by defeating Zinner and Love who placed second and third respectively for Swarthmore.

Although losing first place in the 50-yard freestyle, Villanova garnered second and third, Jim Cousart placing second and Joe Duffy placing third.

Bill Leahy garnered five more points when he placed first in the 440-yard freestyle in 5:34. Jim Cousart placed third in the 100-yard freestyle.

Villanova's divers showed promise when Jim Gallager, Freshman representative, placed second with a total of 68 points.

The Wildcats gained first and second with a total of 68 points.

The Wildcats gained first and second places in the 150-yard backstroke; Bill Britt and Wilmer Booth placed first and second respectively. The winner's time was 1:56.

Then came the deciding event, the 220-yard freestyle. Leahy was off with the gun, and soon secured a safe lead over Benditt, of Swarthmore, to win the race in 2:29 7-10. This was Leahy's third victory of the meet.

The Swarthmore winners were Jim McCormick in the 50-yard freestyle, and Keith Simmers in the fancy diving.

Summaries:

200-yard relay—Won by Villanova (Wilmer Booth, Jim Cousart, Thomas Carbine, William Leahy); second, Swarthmore (Keith Summers, Hoffman Stone, James Thomas, Earl Benditt). Time 1.24.

200-yard breast stroke—Won by Toby Greco, Villanova; second, Jim Zinner, Swarthmore; third, Jack Love, Swarthmore. No time taken.

150-yard back stroke—Won by William Britt, Villanova; second, Wilmer Booth, Vilanova; third, Dave Brown, Swarthmore. Time, 1.56.

50-yard free style—Won by James McCormick, Swarthmore; second, Jim Cousart, Villanova; third, Joseph Duffy, Villanova. Time, 26.6.

440-yard free style — Won by William Leahy, Villanova; second, Sherman Garrison, Swarthmore; third, William Carroll, Swarthmore. Time 5.34.

100-yard free style—Won by Keith Summers, Swarthmore; second, Stone, Swarthmore; third, Cousart, Villanova. Time, 1.03.

Low board fancy diving — Won by James McCormick, Swarthmore, 81.8 points; second, James Gallagher, Villanova, 68; third, Frank Parker, Swarthmore, 55.7.

220-yard free style—Won by William Leahy, Villanova; second, Benditt, Swarthmore; third, Garrison, Swarthmore.

Hogan in his own defense, said the meets he participated in while at Villanova last year were unofficial; but a letter from Graduate Director of Athletics Severance, of Villanova, assured Yale officials that "at least one of the meets had been official."

FROM Durham, N. C. comes the news that Connie Mack has signed Lovill "Chubby" Dean for the Philadelphia Athletics. Dean is a Duke University sophomore and has signed a contract with the Athletics and will report at Fort Myers, Fla., on March 1.

Dean was an alternate regular on the Duke basketball quintet and a promising prospect for the Blue Devil nine. His loss will be a hard blow to both teams. Last spring Dean was leading hitter for the Duke freshman nine and also put himself in Duke's Hall of Fame by hurling a no-hit, no-run game against the N. C. State Freshmen. He hits and throws left-handed, and is a pitcher, outfielder or first baseman.

What I am driving at, is the fact that I think, that, as in football, pro teams should not be allowed to sign collegiate stars until their four years are up. Even in instances where the college player is permitted to finish his course, there is bound to be a certain amount of let-down by the athlete in question. This let-down may be caused by the realization that a goal has already been obtained; or it may be caused by a fear that an injury sustained before leaving college will ruin all.

We see by the results of the Millrose Meet, held in New York that our own "Jumbo" Jim Elliott, '35, finished third in the Millrose 600. Elliott, representing Penn A. C., found the company a little too fast; but he was never far behind the leaders. The winner was Edward O'Brien of Syracuse, closely followed by Charles Hornbostel, who was the winner of the trophy last year.

Jim Elliott was captain of the Villanova track team last season.

the only alternative and retired.

After his retirement Ray became interested in coaching and training. He landed a job as sports director in a C. C. C. camp for the spring and summer of 1932. That fall he caught on with the German-American soccer club as assistant trainer.

Trained Soccer Champs

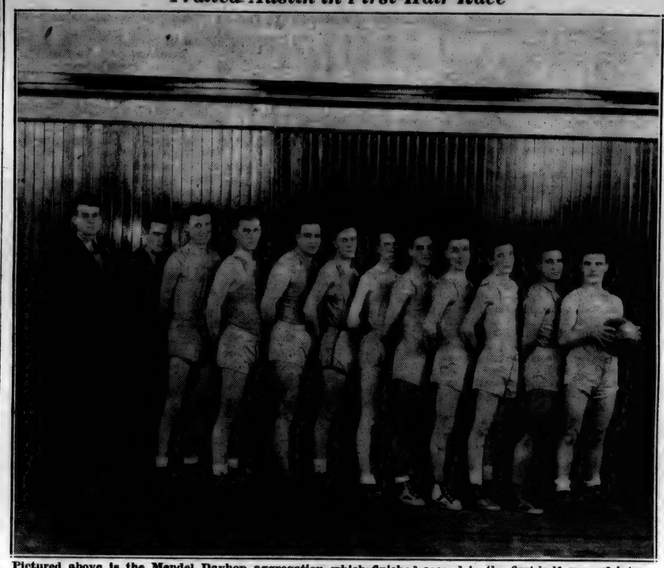
In the summer of '34 Davy Gould, coach of the German-Americans, suggested to Ray that he complete his education. As a consequence he accepted a scholarship which Temple offered.

Ray spent two years at Temple High, besides being on the training staff of the German-Americans. He also held a position as an instructor of physical education at the East Germantown Recreation Center. Crime prevention work on the waterfront was another of his varied activities.

Finally, Ray got the kind of position he has been looking for when he became Villanova's boxing coach during the past week. He is continuing his education in the School of Commerce and Finance, and he is still connected with his old love, boxing, in his capacity as boxing mentor. Ray, when interviewed, said he was proud to be at Villanova and was glad of the opportunity to finish his college education.

Ray's great experience both as a boxer and as a trainer will undoubtedly improve the caliber of Villanova's boxing very much. Although the material on hand is not the best a new coach ever had, Ray expects to put out a team that will far surpass last year's showing.

Trailed Austin in First-Half Race



Pictured above is the Mendel Dayhop aggregation which finished second in the first-half race of intramural basketball. In so doing, the "train and trolley" quintet won seven and lost three. They finished two games behind the league-winning Austin team and two full games ahead of the third-place Alumni squad. They were the only intra-mural team to hand the Austinites a defeat in the first half, and appear as the only real threat to the winners of the first half during the second half drive. Reading from left to right they are: Coach Joe Duffy, Manager John McManus, Ed Hoffman, Dan O'Connor, Bill Thorn, Ed Murphy, Ed Carliss, "Wiffy" Burns, Joe Rospert, Gene Barr, Jerry Agnes, Joe Bittemiller.

Boxers Scheduled To Meet Four Foes

ton & Jefferson will be met away from home within a period of one week, while Penn and Temple's mittmen will supply the Wildcats' supporters with exhibitions.

The outlook for the season is none too rosy. Tony Sala is the only member of last year's team to return to the ring warfare. Art Reimo, another member of the '35 team, has given up the squared circle.

Coach Gadsby will have to depend largely on Freshman material to form the bulk of the squad. According to the coach, who has taken charge during the past week, there is a shortage of men trying for the lower weights.

While nothing definite is known about the makeup of the team, there are standout candidates for many of the positions. The heavyweight member will be in all probability be the winner of the intramural bout between Dick Mulvihill and Witold Krysiwicki. Tony Sala will of course be the 175-pounder.

John Jarosik appears to be the leading middleweight and Chick Davis is the standout in the 155-pound class. Johnny Krutilis, Joe Badamo, Carl Pantaleo, and Dom Manna have displayed the best form among the lighter men.

He also played on the baseball nine, although he saw very little action, for in the spring days of '33 Skaff, Wronski and Cavanaugh were playing in the inner cordon, and Ben who was only a rookie had to be content to get into the line-up, whenever he could.

In the following year, both in basketball and baseball he was a standout. During the latter part of the '33-'34 basketball campaign an injury to his spine caused Ben to lay aside his uniform.

He came back strong for the baseball practice sessions and as a result landed the regular short-stop position. He was one of the leading hitters of the club, and also held a high percentage in the field.

For his outstanding performances on the court, his teammates elected him to lead the Wildcat five for the present campaign . . .

He spends his vacations playing ball in the North Jersey and New York City area, so I guess you know why he is such a swell ball player.

I hope that I have given you all the material which you could not get and again I repeat please make believe you are writing the Limelight, just as a personal favor.

Respectfully,
A. R. C.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

. . . The recent trip taken by the basketball team up-State resulted in two defeats, but brought some mighty fine comments from the partisan Dickinsonians and nonpartisa Bucknellians. . . Said one up-State mentor:

"The best coached team I have seen this year. Cannot understand how they lost to Dickinson and Bucknell." . . I cannot understand either, but those things do occur. . . The Wildcats will have to step to finish with a good record as the season is fast waning and the opposition is becoming keener. . .

When a team competes away from home they have to contend with officials who just are not of ocicially calibre. . . Against Dickinson, a gentleman named Dayhoff performed the rankest job of refereeing that I have seen in quite a while. . . The following evening against the Bisons of Bucknell the gentlemen in gray (referees to you) handled forty minutes of hard basketball without a flaw. The best I have hd tahe pleasure of witnessing all year.

The student body of Bucknell welcomed the visiting Villanova team in a fine manner and I must say that the Bison players are the best—from a hospitable standpoint—that the Wildcats have ever contacted.

And if you know any friends who intend matriculating at the Lewisburg institution tell them the fraternity to join is Sigma Alfa Epsilon. Eddie McKee, the president of theh house, Johnny Sitarsky, Bill Foltz among others are swell fellows. . .

It was with a feeling of regret that I learned of the ineligibility of Danny Hogan, Yale's swimming star. Danny was a member of the supposedly official swimming team here at Villanova last year. . , and performed very well.

Malcom Farmer, Director of Athletics at the New Haven institution stated that Hogan was ineligible for further competition as an Eli natator for participating in OFFICIAL meets at the Wildcat institution.

Defending himself, Hogan said, "The meets in which I took part last year at Vilalnova, were—to my knowledge—unofficial?

Everything appeared rosy for the former Overbrook High ace, but Farmer contacted Mr. A. C. Severance, Graduate Manager of Athletics of Villanova who informed the Eli officials that ONE meet was official.

To Hogan this was a severe blow. He will be unable to compete as a collegian and all on account of ONE meet. The report just as well may have said that ALL and not only ONE of the meets were official. With that I will let the matter drop as I believe you can see the point.

Danny has a host of friends here at Villanova and has their best wishes that a reconciliation may be brought about.

With all this cold weather hovering about some of the students accustomed to a warmer climate banded together—and what do you think they did- Just this. Secured a few beach chairs—some lamps (yes, with bulbs)—sugar (to be used as sand)—magazines and then went down to theh swimming pool and imagined they were in Florida —California or what have you. . . Right now I have a headache. Good bye—will pick you up next week. . .

points and was closely followed by Brennan with 11.

The "Cats" still have a chance to make something of their schedule and they may start to click tonight. Their three victories have been scored over "pushovers" that have lost by overwhelming scores in practically every game they have played, except when they opposed Villanova.

The varsity has a habit of starting slow and playing their best ball in the second half and are about due to play good ba" throughout an entire game.

When the team comes back tomorrow let's hope they have a victory tucked away and will be all set to carry off the games that still remain on the schedule.

been no decisive change in the rules, and the entrance fee of 10 cents still holds.

During the past week, a number of sensational bowlers have been unearthed from the ranks of the student body. Tony Pyrz and Frank Capellaro flashed plenty of form in rolling large scores in their tune-up games last week. Tony seems to have an eye for all sports, as he is not only a good shot in billiards, but also a flash on the basketball court, besides being a fine passer on the gridiron and a star on the baseball field.

All bowlers, as well as those interested in the game, are requested to watch the VILLANOVAN and the bulletin boards in the Pie Shoppe and Dining Hall for further news concerning the matches.

GLENN CUNNINGHAM BEATEN

Joe Mangan, former Cornell track captain, astonished the sport world when he defeated Gene Venzke and Glenn Cunningham Saturday night in the Millrose games at Madison Square Garden. Only four feet separated the trio at the finish. Glenn Cunningham was won three previous "Wanamakers."

SUCCESSOR NOT YET NAMED

Cornell authorities have just announced that they are on the market for a new football coach to replace Gill Dobie who has just resigned. Charley Caldwell, Princeton star, and Don Peden, Ohio University coach, have been mentioned as possibilities.

for the Main Liners decided the outcome of the race. Toby Greco won the 200-yard breaststroke by defeating Zinner and Love who placed second and third respectively for Swarthmore.

Although losing first place in the 50-yard freestyle, Villanova garnered second and third, Jim Cousart placing second and Joe Duffy placing third.

Bill Leahy garnered five more points when he placed first in the 440-yard freestyle in 5:34. Jim Cousart placed third in the 100-yard freestyle.

Villanova's divers showed promise when Jim Gallager, Freshman representative, placed second with a total of 68 points.

The Wildcats gained first and second with a total of 68 points.

The Wildcats gained first and seccond places in the 150-yard backstroke; Bill Britt and Wilmer Booth placed first and second respectively. The winner's time was 1:56.

Then came the deciding event, the 220-yard freestyle. Leahy was off with the gun, and soon secured a safe lead over Benditt, of Swarthmore, to win the race in 2:29 7-10. This was Leahy's third victory of the meet.

The Swarthmore winners were Jim McCormick in the 50-yard freestyle, and Keith Simmers in the fancy diving.

Summaries:

200-yard relay—Won by Villanova (Wilmer Booth, Jim Cousart, Thomas Carbine, William Leahy); second, Swarthmore (Keith Summers, Hoffman Stone, James Thomas, Earl Benditt). Time 1.24.

200-yard breast stroke—Won by Toby Greco, Villanova; second, Jim Zinner, Swarthmore; third, Jack Love, Swarthmore. No time taken.

150-yard back stroke—Won by William Britt, Villanova; second, Wilmer Booth, Vilanova; third, Dave Brown, Swarthmore. Time, 1.56.

50-yard free style—Won by James McCormick, Swarthmore; second, Jim Cousart, Villanova; third, Joseph Duffy, Villanova. Time, 26.6.

440-yard free style— Won by William Leahy, Villanova; second, Sherman Garrison, Swarthmore; third, William Carroll, Swarthmore. Time 5.34.

100-yard free style—Won by Keith Summers, Swarthmore; second, Stone, Swarthmore; third, Cousart, Villanova. Time, 1.03.

Low board fancy diving — Won by James McCormick, Swarthmore, 81.9 points; second, James Gallagher, Villanova, 68; third, Frank Parker, Swarthmore, 55.7.

220-yard free style—Won by William Leahy, Villanova; second, Benditt, Swarthmore; third, Garrison, Swarthmore.

Hogan in his own defense, said the meets he participated in while at Villanova last year were unofficial; but a letter from Graduate Director of Athletics Severance, of Villanova, assured Yale officials that "at least one of the meets had been official."

FROM Durham, N. C. comes the news that Connie Mack has signed Lovill "Chubby" Dean for the Philadelphia Athletics. Dean is a Duke University sophomore and has signed a contract with the Athletics and will report at Fort Myers, Fla., on March 1.

Dean was an alternate regular on the Duke basketball quintet and a promising prospect for the Blue Devil nine. His loss will be a hard blow to both teams. Last spring Dean was leading hitter for the Duke freshman nine and also put himself in Duke's Hall of Fame by hurling a no-hit, no-run game against the N. C. State Freshmen. He hits and throws left-handed, and is a pitcher, outfielder or first baseman.

What I am driving at, is the fact that I think, that, as in football, pro teams should not be allowed to sign collegiate stars until their four years are up. Even in instances where the college player is permitted to finish his course, there is bound to be a certain amount of let-down by the athlete in question. This let-down may be caused by the realization that a goal has already been obtained; or it may be caused by a fear that an injury sustained before leaving college will ruin all.

We see by the results of the Millrose Meet, held in New York that our own "Jumbo" Jim Elliott, '35, finished third in the Millrose 600. Elliott, representing Penn A. C., found the company a little too fast; but he was never far behind the leaders. The winner was Edward O'Brien of Syracuse, closely followed by Charles Hornbostel, who was the winner of the trophy last year.

Jim Elliott was captain of the Villanova track team last season.

Ray Gadsby Takes Over Coach's Duties

the only alternative and retired.

After his retirement Ray became interested in coaching and training. He landed a job as sports director in a C. C. C. camp for the spring and summer of 1932. That fall he caught on with the German-American soccer club as assistant trainer.

Trained Soccer Champs

In the summer of '34 Davy Gould, coach of the German-Americans, suggested to Ray that he complete his education. As a consequence he accepted a scholarship which Temple offered.

Ray spent two years at Temple High, besides being on the training staff of the German-Americans. He also held a position as an instructor of physical education at the East Germantown Recreation Center. Crime prevention work on the waterfront was another of his varied activities.

Finally, Ray got the kind of position he has been looking for when he became Villanova's boxing coach during the past week. He is continuing his education in the School of Commerce and Finance, and he is still connected with his old love, boxing, in his capacity as boxing mentor. Ray, when interviewed, said he was proud to be at Villanova and was glad of the opportunity to finish his college education.

Ray's great experience both as a boxer and as a trainer will undoubtedly improve the caliber of Villanova's boxing very much. Although the material on hand is not the best a new coach ever had, Ray expects to put out a team that will far surpass last year's showing.

Trailed Austin in First-Half Race

Pictured above is the Mendel Dayhop aggregation which finished second in the first-half race of intramural basketball. In so doing, the "train and trolley" quintet won seven and lost three. They finished two games behind the league-winning Austin team and two full games ahead of the third-place Alumni squad. They were the only intra-mural team to hand the Austinites a defeat in the first half, and appear as the only real threat to the winners of the first half during the second half drive. Reading from left to right they are: Coach Joe Duffy, Manager John McManus, Ed Hoffman, Dan O'Connor, Bill Thorn, Ed Murphy, Ed Carliss, "Wiffy" Burns, Joe Rospert, Gene Barr, Jerry Agnes, Joe Bittemiller.

Boxers Scheduled To Meet Four Foes

ton & Jefferson will be met away from home within a period of one week, while Penn and Temple's mittmen will supply the Wildcats' supporters with exhibitions.

The outlook for the season is none too rosy. Tony Sala is the only member of last year's team to return to the ring warfare. Art Raimo, another member of the '35 team, has given up the squared circle.

Coach Gadsby will have to depend largely on Freshman material to form the bulk of the squad. According to the coach, who has taken charge during the past week, there is a shortage of men trying for the lower weights.

While nothing definite is known about the makeup of the team, there are standout candidates for many of the positions. The heavyweight member will be in all probability be the winner of the intramural bout between Dick Mulvihill and Witold Kryswicki. Tony Sala will of course be the 175-pounder.

John Jarosik appears to be the leading middleweight ,and Chick Davis is the standout in the 155-pound class. Johnny Krutilis, Joe Badamo, Carl Pantaleo, and Dom Manna have displayed the best form among the lighter men.

Of introspection, to the thoughts that lie Within.

Spirit of Death

Hell is of thy own creation.
Firm seated in thy thoughts. 'Tis the Evil fruits of thy past action which Must be burned within thyself. It is
The everlasting fire of thy regrets.

Spirit of Countrymen

Now is revealed the specious cant, with which
You did beguile the trusting hearts. Thy deeds
Were made Herculean by the united strength of Thy countrymen. What what of their desires and Seedling ambitions, that were wilted by
The shadow of thy own? You have come
As we, who have preceded thee, to your Last settlement. Make of it what you can.

Spirit of Dictator

From early youth upwards, I did distain
The paths of other men. Alone my spirit
Sought the lonely heights, where few have dared
To tread. My griefs—my passions no
Kinship with the rest of men. Thus in this too
I feel myself alone. Alone I must suffer,
As formerly I conquered, the President app ints the Governors of each state. This has certain disadvantages. Each appointee, if not a resident of the state of his gvoernorship can hardly have the same interest and understanding in that state, which he should have, to properly look after the good of the people.

"The second disadvantage is that, under the central system, most of the revenues tend to be spent in the capital city."

TROPICAL BLOOD

"Coming from a tropical country, aren't your winters here very uncomfortable?"

"On the contrary! I found my first few winters quite invigorating. You see, coming from a country near the Equator, I was naturally warm blooded. This condition made my first few winters quite bearable. However, after several years, I began to feel them more severely, as my constitution became accustomed to your climate."

BOARD OF GOVERNORS OUTLINES ALUMNI WEEK

Phineas T. Vize, Jr., '23, Presides At Convention of Alumni Association

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Alumni Association was held in Mendel Hall on Sunday, January 26.

The meeting was called to order by President Phineas T. Vize, Jr., '23. Arrangements for the Annual June Weekend, Homecoming Day, Membership Dues, an organized bureau of employ ment and other pertinent matters dealing with the functioning of the National Association were discussed. Important motions which will vitally afftct the method of governing the organization and vitalize its activities were adopted.

In addition to Mr. Vize the following members were present: Harry S. Bueche, '22; Frank M. Powers, '25; James P. Leaming, '14; Martin L. Gill, Jr., '32; Charles B. Laughlin, '23; Owen L. Murray, '29; Edward V. Duffy, '26, and Paetrus F. Banmiller, '35.

ALUMNI GET VILLANOVANS

Beginning with this issue of the VILLANOVAN, all alumni who have paid their dues will receive this paper weekly. Paetrus F. Banmiller, Alumni secretary, has made this arrangement with Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., moderator of the VILLANOVAN as a special privilege for active alumni members.

FR. DOUGHERTY TALKS

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Ph. D., dean of the School of Science, last week gave a talk and showed motion pictures of Villanova College at St. Margeret's Parish Hall in Narberth.

ALUMNUS IS ACTIVE IN GRADUATE GROUP

John J. Gallen, 27, Chosen Representative of Local Chapter of N. C. A. F.

In a recent bulletin released by the National Catholic Alumni Federation the name of John J. Gallen, B. S. in C. E., 1927, was listed as the representative of the Philadelphia Chapter. This appointment will result in the establishment of an active local branch of the Federation.

Three representatives from each of the following schools will be appointed to carry out the routine of organization: La Salle, St. Joseph's, University of Pennsylvania, Temple and Villanova. Matthew Lynch, '23, and Paetrus F. Banmiller, '35, will assist Jahn Gallen as representatives of the Villanova College Alumni Association.

A definite schedule of meetings will be arranged, designed to lay the foundation for the educational work and Catholic activity of the N. S. A. F. It is hoped that these meetings will stimulate interest among the Catholic Alumni in the Philadelphia district alonp the lines of Catholic thought and life in the order of government, the economic and the spiritual orders, and to qualify members as representative leaders in their respective communities and parishes.

Here's one cigarette that writes its own advertising..

It's like this—

You see I'm reading a Chesterfield advertisement and I'm smoking a Chesterfield cigarette, and all of you are smoking Chesterfields.

Now listen—Chesterfields are mild (not strong, not harsh). That's true isn't it?

Then you read "and yet they satisfy, please your taste, give you what you want in a cigarette." That says it, doesn't it?

Wait a minute—

It says now that Chesterfields have plenty of aroma and flavor. One of you go out of the room and come back. That will tell you how pleasing the aroma is.

HONOR ROLL RATINGS ISSUED BY DEANS OF TWO SCHOOLS

Fr. Burns and Fr. Dougherty Pleased With Outcome of Mid-Term Exams

DELATE, JUERGENS. AND CALABRO LEAD ARTS FROSH

Cailliet, Kassell, Giordano, Pissanante, Lucente Head Science Freshmen

The honor roll ratings for the first semester in both the School of Arts and Philosophy and the School of Science have been released only recently with statements of appreciation from the deans of the respective schools. Honor rolls were not able to be compiled in either the Engineering School or the Commerce and Finance School due to a delay in the reception of marks from some of the professors.

In the two schools that released their honor roll it was noticeable that the Freshman Class was the most outstanding. This fact was recognized and commented on by both Fr. Burns and Fr. Dougherty. Thomas E. Delate, Paul A. Juergens, and Pershing Calabro were of equal merit in the running for first place in the Arts School while Rene Caillet led the Science members.

The following s the honor roll as released in the respective schools:

STUDENT ENGINEERS LISTEN TO LECTURE

Prof. Harry S. Bueche, E. E., Delivers Talk on Cathode-Ray Tube at Meeting

Prof. Harry S. Bueche, E. E., moderator of the Villanova Student Chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, presented a lecture and discussion on the Cathode-Ray Tube, at the meeting yesterday, in the Mendel Hall Amphitheatre.

Following this discussion, it was announced that the entire chapter will journey to the University of Pennsylvania, on March 9, to attend a convention, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the development of the Alternating Current Transformer.

The order of the day includes luncheon at the University, and dinner at the Engineers' Club, on Locust Street, in Philadelphia, with a theatre entertainment immediately following.

Senior Class Officers Express Appreciation

In behalf of the Senior Class, William Vaughn, class president; James Allen, chairman of the dinner-dance; and Arthur Noble, chairman of the Belle Air Ball, wish to thank sincerely Fr. Brown, class moderator; Fr. Stanford, Fr. Albers, and Fr. Melchior for their earnest cooperation in making the Senior Week-end such a huge success. It was only through their cooperation that such success was realized.

In addition the Senior Class wishes to thank everyone else who contributed either financially or in any other way to the success of the affair. The class is especially grateful to the Misses Ann Conway, Mary Clark, Betty Bunn, Marie Delaney and Genevieve Quinn, of the college office staff, who aided in no small measure.

COMMITTEE ON KEYS ANNOUNCED BY P.K.P.

Joseph Hooven Is Appointed Chairman to Select Insignias for Seniors

Joseph Hooven was announced today as the chairman of the Key Committee of the Phi Kappa Phi, with Lawrence Sheviand and Walter Weis assisting on his committee. It is not known just what form the key will assume, as the money to be expended must be determined at the next meeting of the fraternity, next Monday.

There will be presented in the very near future an instructive and entertaining moving picture, entitled, "Nickel." Either February 17, or March 3rd is to be the date of this presentation.

Membership blanks for the "Neophytes" who desire membership in the fraternity will be ready this week and the membership committee, as announced last week, will distribute them late this week and up until several days previous to the initiation ceremony.

At present there is a drive for back dues in the Phi Kappa Pi, as it is necessary that the members be in good standing to be admitted to the initiation and the banquet, as well as to be eligible to receive keys.

Applications For Graduate Study Must Be Filed

Seniors Should Apply to The Registrar's Office Before March 1

Seniors interested in applying for graduate scholarships, fellowships, assistantships, etc., should apply to the office of the Registrar, 108 Mendel Hall, as soon as possible.

On file in the Registrar's office the above information is available on the following institutions: The Universities of Brown, Boston, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Harvard, New York, Northwestern, Temple

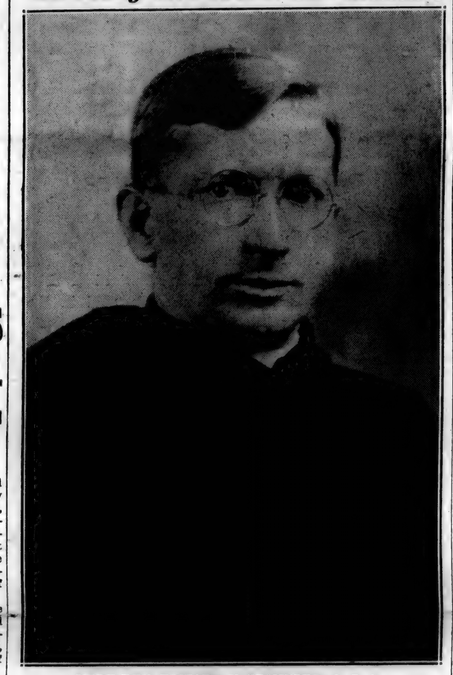
Villanova President To Celebrate Birthday On Feast of St. Valentine



VERY REV. EDWARD V. STANFORD, O. S. A.

By BEN MALONEY

VERY REV. EDWARD V. STANFORD, O. S. A., LL. D., president of Villanova College, will celebrate the 39th anniversary of his birthday on St. Valentine's Day, February 14.

Since his ordination, June 10, 1922, Fr. Stanford has made an enviable record in both the clerical and educational world. He holds office or membership in a large number of the educational associations in the United States besides such groups as the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Catholic Historical Society, Catholic Association for International Peace and others.

Edward Valentine Stanford, the son of Gorham Edward Stanford and Catherine E. (Fitzpatrick) Stanford, was born at Boston, Mass., February 14, 1897. He attended Boston College, 1914 to 1917, then came to Villanova where he was granted his A. B. degree in 1918 In 1922 he received his M. S. and in 1932 he was presented with the honorary degree of LL. D. from Boston College.

Fr. Stanford taught descriptive geometry here at Villanova College from 1920 to 1932. In 1925 he was appointed chaplain of the college, which office he held until July 1, 1932, when he was elected president. Since that time he has been re-elected and at present is serving his second term as president.

Dr. Stanford's political views are

DELEGATES APPOINTED

Villanova to Be Represented At Convention of Academy of Science

Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Ph. D. Dean of School of Commerce and Finance and Prof. Leo Schaefer, M. B. A. have been appointed delegates, representing Villanova College, to the 40th annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science which will be held April 24-25 at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia.

JUNIOR CLASS TO MEET

Junior Week Plans Will Be Discussed; Cleary to Preside

An important meeting of the entire Junior Class will be held today at 1 o'clock in the amphitheatre in Mendel Hall. It is urgent that all the members of the Junior Class be on hand for a discussion of the plans for Junior Week which will be held some time in May.

President William Cleary will conduct the meeting and Rev. Francis Ludwig, O. S. A., class moderator, will attend as adviser.

Senior Weekend Proves Successful

Belle Air Ball and Dinner Dance Declared Best Ever

JOHN W. HALLAHAN, JR.

"After the Ball was over," or something to that effect seems to pervade the atmosphere at the college this week, specially among the class of '36, whose Senior Ball was such a tremendous success last Friday night. Glen Gray and the Casa Loma Orchestra certainly did themselves proud, with their inimitable arrangements, and all was well, when the doors were closed upon the darkened hall in the wee hours of daturday morning.

Decked out in all its splendor, the Gymnasium presented a colorful background for the thousand, or so, dancers present in their "best." Gorgeous ladies and well-groomed gentleman; there seemed to be no end of them storming the box-office, from ten until well after mid-night, and, from the looks of things in general, Art Noble, chairman of the affair, believes that success, as was never before known, was the prize.

And a good time was had by all, as the numerous floodlights played vari-colored shadows across many

L. K. D. FRATERNITY TO HOLD REUNION DANCE FEBRUARY 21

Large Sale of Tickets Is Expected As Final Plans Are Made

FOUR FRESHMEN ELIGIBLE FOR GROUP MEMBERSHIP

Additions to Organization Will Be Made in Near Future, Committee States

Plans for the proposed L. K. D. Reunion Dance to be held Friday, February 21, are progressing rapidly due to intensive work of the dance committee in charge of the affair.

It is expected that the dance will be successful in that many favorable returns have been received from the graduated members of the fraternity.

Details of the dance will be discussed at the next meeting of the fraternity this Thursday, at which time will also be announced to the present members of the organization the newly appointed freshmen members.

This will be the last social affair of the campus before the Lenten season.

Freshmen science students were interviewed last week by the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity Board of admissions for their eligibility to membership in the organization.

Because of the negligence of some applicant to appear for interview at the appointed time the committee was unable to discuss

DEBATERS ARRANGE FORMAL CONTESTS

Five Intercollegiate Meets Listed; Initial Encounter Is February 28

Villanova's debating team has to date arranged five formal intercollegiate debates.

After getting off to a start with a home-and-home debate with the University of Pennsylvania Evening School on February 18, the debaters have a debate a week for the next month.

Following the debate with the Quaker Evening debaters, the college haranguers will meet Georgetown here at Villanova on the evening of February 28. Dayton University of Ohio is the next competitor and will be met on March 10 when they stop here during their tour of eastern colleges.

Temple University will be met on

ENGINEERS MAKE TOUR OF FRANKLIN INSTITUTE

Several Exhibitions on Wonders Of Science Witnessed by Combined Groups of Engineering Students

An inspection tour of the Franklin Institute was made on Wednesday last by a combined group of Mechanical, Electrical, and Chemical Engineering students under the supervision of Professors Buecha, Morehouse, and Barber.

Several exhibitions were witnessed by the students in the different departments of the Institute. An exhibition of especial interest to the chemical students was given on "The Making of Perfume."

Of great interest to the Engineering group was a special lecture and demonstration held under the auspices of the Power Transmission Club showing what actually takes place when a group of machines is operated by either individual motors or by one motor.

GOVERNMENT POLITICAL ACTIVITY

IN AN ENDEAVOR to rid the government of politics in its functioning Senator Norris, militant member of Congress urged President Roosevelt to ban all political activity from every postoffice in the country. Failure to do this, he asserted, would cost the President "millions of votes" in the next election.

Quoting from the Nebraskan's speech, "I intend to support him again, and will do the best I can to have him re-elected. Yet he can be justly criticized. This will make his road much more thorny and my job much more difficult."

Senator Norris is to be congratulated for the firm stand he has taken to abolish completely the pernicious habit of men high in the government service using the postoffice department as a screen for their own party betterment. Postmasters, whatever their political leanings may be, should be re-appointed as long as their work is satisfactory.

Under the present system postmasters are appointed on the recommendations of Senators and Representatives who know nothing about their qualifications but are just rewarding political service. Members of Congress have more important duties than the dispensation of patronage. Coming good behavior, regardless of their popetent postmasters should hold office durlitical affiliations.

Only by ridding our government of these shortcomings may our system be said to have advanced and to have given something to future generations to equal.

A BERLIN RECEPTION

THOSE Americans who were in favor of the United States not participating in the Olympic games at Berlin, Germany may assume an authoritative air now and viciously declare, "I told you so," for if you should read the account of the opening of the winter games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen you will immediately discover that to which we are referring. In the traditional opening ceremony the American entrants paraded past the Olympic officials and were met with complete silence from the thronged stands. Now this was in marked contrast to the reception given the appearance of all the European and Oriental athletes.

So is it any wonder that the average American who has any pride whatsoever in his country and its athletic representation should grind his teeth in rage? There was no reason that warranted such a welcome as that. It certainly wasn't typical of the American receptions given in this country four years ago. Still the fact remains that athletic superiority of the United States has ever produced the same effect. But if such is a demonstration of Old World education and courtesy give us the New World any day.

BADGERING THE CITIZEN

THE tendency of certain public office holders to abuse the privileges of their positions seems to be proportionate with their insignificance. Many spend their entire period of service under the delusion that their position confers a kind of omnipotency. This fact is unpleasantly forced upon any one who is so unfortunate as to have dealings with them. Their neglect of, and in many cases incompetency in filling the ordinary duties of their offices, is burdensome enough for the tax payer to bear, without also being subjected to their petty insolences.

This presumptuous behavior is troublesome enough when encountered in the petty politician, but as we ascend the scale of importance, we are justified in expecting the dignity of the position itself, if nothing else, to make a man conscious of his actions. Political "pull" to the contrary, only those who are capable of exercising a modicum of intelligence in the administration of their duties are entitled to positions of responsibility. Hence our inability to reconcile the actions of Chief of Police Davis of Los Angeles with his position.

If Mr. Davis feels that certain steps should be taken to keep every one out of California who is unable to maintain himself in a manner commensurate with his economic opinions, he should direct his efforts through the proper channels. In summarily arresting, finger-printing, and photographing every person who demands the right to exercise his prerogative of a lawful citizen and enter the State of California, without giving a satisfactory answer to the questions of Mr. Davis' subordinates, the Chief is not only exceeding his authority but also leaving himself open to criminal prosecution.

Providing his intentions are sincere, Mr. Davis, can certainly find enough occasions to exercise his authority upon the lawless elements of his State, and thereby merit criticism that is less reprehensible.

A PENAL TRAGEDY

IF THERE ever were justification for an investigation in American penal practices, the Scottsboro, Ala., prison truck fire that claimed the lives of 20 Negro convicts last week-end, surely provides it.

It is not enough for prison wardens to explain that one of the score of men imprisoned in the moving cage aboard the truck ignited a barrel of gasoline carried in the vehicle when he lighted a paper to keep warm. The public has a right to know why gasoline, in open containers, war carried in a portable cell in which were crowded 20 convicts with matches.

Of all the tragedies that occur to prisoners, nothing touches the public sensibility more keenly than the ghastly spectacle of men burning to death like rats in man-made cages without a chance for escape. Every modern prison has elaborate precautions against the menace of fire. Every intelligent prison warden leaves nothing undone to avoid this kind of tragedy.

Who was to blame for the criminal carelessness that brought on the Scottsboro disaster? The State of Alabama, by every reasoning, ought to find out.

While on the topic of birthdays we ought to bring to the knowledge of all of you that John Eck, former Wildcat pugilist, has now completed the three decade mark. Yes, sir, Johnnie put three sets of 10 years behind him last Friday and just to show the boys he still had the old kick left in his only slightly rheumatic limbs "Father" John led the field in the number of consecutive dances without a rest period.

Congratulations, "Pappy" and many happy returns of the day.

We were sorry to hear of the sudden illness that prevented Dave Cragg's attendance at the Senior Ball. Dave as you know was in charge of the decorations and a finer piece of work we haven't seen. But an attack of what doctors said was scarlet fever on the eve of the dance kept Dave from the scene. He didn't have the opportunity to see his handiwork fully completed but we assure him that it was a sight to behold.

CAMPUS CELEBS - - - By Bruno

As We See It - - - Writing

By HARRY PARKIN

IN a world that is noted for the disparity that exists between our intentions and their ultimate realization, we can recall no field of endeavor that so excellently verifies this precept as that of writing. Between the concept and the finished article extends a long and tedious road, whose obstacles conspire, in no little fashion to diminish the ardor of our earlier vision. The thought that has sprung full blown into the mind usually looses its pristine beauty and completeness in the attempt to define it. For the words that should be the allies of the mind are more often than not its greatest deterrent. The mind races on and the pen stumbling follows it — hopelessly outdistanced and frequently quagmired in indecision. So we are faced with the necessity of altering the pace of the former, even though it be at the expense of its continuity, if we are to obtain, the most cursory outline of its procedure.

Opposed to the faulty task of restraining the activity of the imagination to our facility for finding words to externalize it, is the inclination to make it word perfect before transcribing it to paper. Unfortunately, this disposition if too frequently indulged, will so obscure the clarity of the original impression that our time will have been wasted. The mind best operates when permitted to pursue the evolution of its image to coherent completion, and will seldomly retrace its path without a number of digressions, which for the most part alter in a greater or less degrees the course of its earlier passage.

Having withstood the initial disappointment, and tendency to discard the first draft of the imagination's activity as a trite and unnatural characterization of the beauty and symetry of the diea the author begins the painful task of making it recognizable. From six or seven words which for the most part are conversationally interchangeable it is necessary to select the one which accords most precisely with the character of the thought. Hence we are constantly being forced back to the original image in order to determine upon the word that is most happily expressive of it. In the pursuance of this procedure the original thought is apt, from the very monotony of repetition, to become identified with the written word; so that each change in the article can degenerate into the mere alteration of its individual make-up, rather than an effort to objectify a concept. In this latter regard, we are inclined to believe, that a painstaking author can produce finer works, than one who is more gifted, but less attentive to details.

In the selection of words there is the ever present danger, to be avoided, of using those that will over-burden rather than enliven the article. Words, which send the reader to the dictionary, providing of nature, are occasonally defended course that he is of an inquisitive under the guise of educational stimuul, but it is too often that they are more profound than the thoughts or naure of the article warrants. The unjustified usage of such words creates the impression of monstrous edifice of steel and stone that has never been furnished. This fault more than any other has left many authors go unread. In fact one of the principle objections to Johnson was his tendency to select only those words from the "first line of the ruble." Although we doubt if there is any likelihood of a modern writer following his habit of altering the endings of Latin words with English terminations when we consider the foolish contemporary belief that Latin should be permitted to fall into disuse.

The finished product, which is the outcome of the author's reconciliation to the fact that in spite of his revisions the article will never appear as first conceived, is revealed to the public with no little trepidation. Though the writer, through the course of his paper, has exercised candidly and completely all the wit and learning at his disposal, in the service of the reader, he can be certain that there will always be some people who will be so dissatisfied with his paper that they will never again give him a favorable hearing. This may be due as much to a want of discernment in the reader, as to the lack of delicacy in the address of the author. In any case he must be prepared for the future contempt and neglect of some of his readers.

There are few writers in the world like Chatterton or Keats, who will allow adverse criticism to seriously effect their efforts. In truth we often find them going to the opposite extreme. They find solace in the thought that what their reputation lacks in extension is made up for in appreciation. Or that ignorance and inattention are the common lot of men. Indeed, it sometimes seems, that the world may forsake an author, but rarely his vanity.

Vexed as the author may be by the inattention of the world—even though he resolve like Raleigh to spite it by burning his manuscript—it is well to remember that if his works reflect his most able efforts to portray the infinite perfection of nature that they will not long continue unheeded.

From a consideration of the above we could not have the reader conclude that writing is an almost impossible task, but of this he may be certain, that no work that is enshrined in the annals of a nation's cultural development has been easily written.

Swimming may be classified as our president's favorite hobby, but he has a strong inclination towards tennis, engrossing, pen drawing, and lettering. Another one of the more salient features credited to him is his very apparent interest in the student body as individuals. He is more than just an official of the college administration, he is a close friend of every student.

Fr. Stanford also has some publications to his credit, the foremost among them being: "Descriptive Geometry," "The Best That Villanova Can Offer You," and "Spiritual Sidelights."

The following organizations are those of which Fr. Pass In Review

By RICHARD L. G. DEVERALL

"Original! move onward in your pride,—
Oh! how the spirit would sink mortified,
Could you but know that long ago,
All thoughts whatever dull or clever,
That across the twilight of your brain
Have been o'er and o'er again
Occupying other men.—"
—Gothe-Faust.

Strange it is that such modern so-called intellectuals as H. G. Wells and Julian Huxley are prone to call the medieval ages "ages of darkness." Strange it is, I say, because those ages were ages of light, not of darkness.

My friends, there is nothing new under the sun. We have but to read history to discover this great truism. In "Catholic Churchmen in Science," by Dr. James J. Walsh, Villanova Library Number Z-141-W22, we find a stunning refutation of the accusations of such dullards as Huxley and Wells.

For instance, let us consider Albertus Magnus, now Saint Albert the Great. Not only was Albertus the tutor of St. Thomas Aquinas—enough glory for any man—but he was the great scientist of the 13th century. Come, let us read a passage from his "De Coelo et Mundo." "In studying nature, we have not to inquire how God the Creator may as He freely wills, use His creatures to work miracles and thereby show forth His power; we have rather to inquire what nature with its imminent causes can naturally bring to pass."

The cynic scoffs, and questions: "Well, what does that prove? Albertus did not have the scientific attitude." Really? Just listen to this: "The aim of natural science is not simply to accept the statements of others, but to investigate the causes that are at work in nature." We find that in Albert's "De Mineralibus." If our Mr. Wells and our Mr. Huxley would apply Albert's dictum to their study of history, they would not make the silly statements that they do.

Pope John XXI was another of the great medieval scientists. His works dealing with the nature of light are a revelation. He not only investigated, experimentally, the mechanism of the eye, but he wrote treatise after treatise on this subject that fairly astound the modern ophthalmologist! And then they say that the medieval Church discouraged scientific investigation and was to busy with another world.

Turning to another field of scientific research, we find upon the shelves another excellent work by Christopher Dawson: "The Age of the Gods." Vilanova Library Number CE-301-D3. Mr. Dawson, in a truly magnificent archaeological synthesis, traces the evolution of mankind from the early glacial ages down to the beginning of the Iron Age in Europe. A proper understanding of history cannot be attained unless you have felt the pulse of the history of the world. Dawson, in his interesting style, describes the evolution of cultures and races in a fashion that is calculated to fascinate anyone who reads his book.

Turning to another matter, we must note that the Villanova Poll of 1936 was a distinct fiasco. The entire student body could only muster 17 votes. Those votes that were submitted carried such favorite authors as S. S. Van Dine, Rabelais, Dumas, Edward Gibbon, H. G. Wells, and other prominent men. Many of those chosen are to be found on the Index. Chesterton, Belloc and Dudley seemed to be the favorite Catholic authors. One young man declared that he read one-half a book each month, and another said he read 30. Only three professed to have read the Four Gospels.

It would appear that that glorious old tradition of Catholic cooperation has been temporarily placed upon ice.

The Villanovan Seven Years Ago

Hockey Team to Be Organized

NOW THAT winter has set in and has captured the surrounding lakes much enthusiasm is being manifested over the good tidings that a hockey team will soon represent Villanova College.

While negotiations are underway with different colleges in the promoting of a presentable array of games with such teams as Yalu, Dartmouth, Princeton, Penn and McGill, etc., the aspirants for positions on the hockey team are daily rounding into condition, and lively competition is expected for the berths on the team. A coach of recognized ability will be assigned to the task of assembling the team and selecting the most likely candidates for the various positions.

Notice for candidates to report will soon be posted, together with the final schedule.

THE VILLANOVAN has promised its utmost support and we earnestly request that the student body support this new undertaking. With your help a successful season can be expected and suitable matches arranged.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This excerpt was taken from THE VILLANOVAN of February 12, 1929. Villanova's hockey team was discontinued in 1932 due to lack of funds and the unfortunate accident of two of its members.)

DIAL-LOG

By PIO GOGGI

I HERE have been two times in Mary Pickford's life when she was badly frightened. Once on the stage and the first time she went before a microphone. But there's not a chance of mike fright when she begins her nation-wide CBS series, "Parties at Pickfair," tonight at 10 P. M., E. S. T.

First of all, she has become good friends with the microphone since her debut and its accompanying fright. Again she's going to appear as Mary Pickford herself—in person—not as any other character. She will broadcast from her own living room at "Pickfair' 'and this will be the first time an entire radio show and series has gone on the air regularly from a home. The new program is sponsored by members of the Ice Industries throughout the country. Al Lyons and His Cocoanut Grove Orchestra and a vocal chorus will furnish the music.

"The trouble with me the first time I ever went before a microphone," Miss Pickford explained, "was that I had to make a speech, along with a number of other persons, and I never even saw the speech until I was on the air! At the last moment, somebody thrust the manuscript into my hands and piloted me before the microphone. I hadn't the slightest idea of how to modulate my voice, for that was my first experience at the business end of a microphone. Well—it's a wonder the listeners didn't hear my knees knocking together!"

Well, Glen Gray and the boys steamed out of the gaily decorated gym last Friday night leaving behind them many students and friends who are still groggy now from the music. Kenny's inimitable renditions of those melodic and romantic songs caused a lot of soft heartbeats amongst the many couples, and "Pee Wee" Hunt's hot songs just about topped off a great night. Let's hope the Junior Class can come through with as fine entertainment as that which has been provided by the Senior Class.

The attitude may be old-fashioned and the statement bromidic; it remains however, that the popularity of Richard Wagner increases with the New York public year by year. This was proved by the immense audience which listened to Wagner's "Meistersinger" recently given at the Metropolitan Opera House. To lovers of good music, tune in your radio on any Saturday afternoon on the NBC networks and get an earful of some good music.

To supplement the hearing of operas, read the column which Olin Downes edits in The New York Times. Here is a fine connoisseur of music and the sevreat critic that our operatic stars must face. T ohim they look for honest judgment and appraisal of a performance at the "Met." Mr. Downes, after many years in the service of The Times as music editor, has noted the slow but certain revival of Wagnerian operas insofar as public turnout is concerned which indicates that the love for real good music is still present if not creeping into the hearts of many.

Globe Trotting

By FRED WATERS

(This is the fourth and final of a series of interesting and instructive interviews with Mr. Antonio Franco, a native of Peru, and professor of Spanish at Villanova.)

GUITARS AND MOONLIGHT

Mr. Franco spoke at great length on promoting better understanding between the two Americas. He regretted the lack of knowledge in this country concerning practicely every phase of South American life. "North Americans understand little," he said, "concerning the activities, the wonderful opportunities and the modern status of South American nations.

"Most people in the United States visualize the Latin-American as a dark individual who spends his days at bull-fights, and plays guitars to beautiful senoritas by moonlight.

"Unfortunately, only the unusual features of my country are published here, while the true state of affairs is pushed into the background. People are not interested in hearing the ordinary things of every-day life; they like the exceptional, the out of the ordinary happenings. And this is exactly what they hear about South America. The old saying, 'believe only half of what you read, and don't be too sure that that's right,' applies very well to this situation.

HANDS ACROSS THE BORDER

"Do you have any suggestions for remedying this condition?"

"The only way is to know each other better. This can be brought about by many methods. Students can be exchanged more widely between the universities of the two continents. Teachers and professors can be traded in somewhat the same manner. Histories and geographies that do not represent the true state of South America, ought to be replaced by those that are more authoritative in our schools. All of this can tend to wipe out many of the ridiculous impressions we receive about each other."

INDIANS DRIVEN OUT

"Your country was settled by foreigners who brought along their own civilization and drove away the original inhabitants of the land (the Indians), finally placing them in reservations.

"South America was conquered by foreigners, as was the United States, but the conquerors were in the small minority, and what they lacked in numbers was made up for by gradually instilling their civilization into the native inhabitants, so that these natives might eventually become their friends and allies. This task of changing an entire civilization was of neces-

DEBATING TOURNEY SPONSORED BY BETA GAMMA SOCIETY

Extensive Inter-Class Contests Program Arranged by Prof. Anthony Frayne

ALL DEBATES TO BEGIN AT 1 P. M. IN 215 MENDEL

Argue Power of Congress to Over-Ride Decisions of Supreme Court

Information concerning the Inter-Class Debate Tournament has been forwarded by Anthony J. Frayne, moderator of Beta Gamma, debating society. The tournament has already begun and will continue practically every school day until Friday, March 13.

The debates are held in Room 215, Mendel Hall, beginning promptly at 1 o'clock. It is to be specifically noted that the tournament is being sponsored by the Beta Gamma Debating Fraternity.

The subject for the debates is: Resolved, That Congress should be permitted to over-ride by a two-third majority vote any decision of the Supreme Court declaring acts of Congress unconstitutional.

Rules by which the tournament is to operate are as follows:

1. The first-named team will defend the AFFIRMATIVE proposition.

2. A team will consist of three speakers: two constructive, and one rebuttal. Speakers are to be selected by the team captain.

3. All speeches will be restricted to four minutes.

4. No canned speeches are recognized; no notes permitted.

5. The chairman will cast the deciding vote in case of disagreement by the appointed two judges.

6. The committee-in-charge will consist of the chairman, the two judges, and the two time-keepers appointed.

7. The debates will be open to all spirited Villanovans.

Inter-Class Debate Tournament committees will be individually responsible for the proper conduct of the debate scheduled on the date to which the committee is assigned. This information, including date, committees, and teams, will be posted on the Bulletin Board following this publication. Mr. Frayne advises the appointing of a sergeant-at-arms by the chairman in order to preserve order and promote the general interest of the tournament.

The following is the calendar only until Tuesday, February 25. The numbers indicate the team, the members of which are to become known by referring to the Bulletin Board.

a smiling countenance, and twice as many joyous eyes. From the blue and white ceiling, characteristic of class of '36 socials, were strung even more soft lights, as the sweet music flooded from the special stage set up at one end of the transformed gym. Kenny Sargent and "Pee Wee" Hunt aided in their own way in making the stage an even more noteworthy center of focus for all eyes.

Then again on Saturday night at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Philadelphia, the class of '36, this time with no public to take part, made merry to the tunes of Meyer Davis' Orchestra in the private dining room, just adjoining the quaint Jungle Bar.

Unusual favors were presented to each Senior and his "chosen one," as they entered, by James T. Allan, the chairman of the evening. A miniature light-house, while the men were presented with a key to remember the occasion. The key consisted of the college seal, affixed upon a background, embossed with a large letter "V," while the class year, 1936, was placed across the bottom.

Turkey dinners, with all the fixin's, were enjoyed by all, while dancing continued between courses, and then on until midnight, when the Senior Week-end was officially declared complete and finished. And so ended another of the social precedents established by the class of '3 .

FR. COAN CONDUCTS MONTHLY DEVOTION

"Love of Neighbor" Is Theme of Sermon at Holy Hour Observance

Rev. Francis X Coan, O. S. A., professor of biology, in the School of Science, conducted the Holy Hour which was observed last Thursday evening from 5:30 to 6:30 o'clock.

Fr. Coan began the services by reminding the student body of the indifference shown toward the Holy Hour. The attendance was very poor as compared to that of previous occasions.

"Love of God and for His Sake Love of Neighbor" was the theme of Fr. Coan's sermon. He related how much love is in the heart of every mother for her son, and then told the students that God's love for man is even greater than this; so much so that God died on the cross in order to save man. For this reason everyone should love God and his neighbor. Fr. Coan stressed the point that if a man does not love his neighbor it is impossible for him to love God.

He then told the Gospel story of St. John and of his undying love for Christ and how he had been rewarded. Again the point of "love of neighbor" was stressed.

sity a far more difficult and longer venture, than simply chasing the Indians away, as was done in North America. This fact probably accounts somewhat for the slower advancement of South America, but advance it has, until today it is among the most modern of nations, a magnificent monument, not to the might and swordly power of man, but to his ingenuity and perseverance."

BEGGARS' GOLD

"South America has been de-golden chair because of its lack of scribed as a 'beggar sitting on a golden chair.' Because of its lack of sufficient capital, foreign companies have been granted concessions to work out numerous natural resources.

"Many of these concessions are mutually beneficial to all concerned. However, this does not go to say that there have never been any exploitations of such grants.

During the Krueger (late match king suicide) concession, a box of matches cost 10 cents; and if you desired to have an automatic cigarette lighter in, for instance, your automobile, you paid fancy fees for this privilege, due to the fact that you were therefore avoiding the use of Mr. Krueger's matches.

"Many of these concessions have been granted for very long periods many of them for as long as 999 years. South Americans think that such concessions should not have been granted for so long a time. One day the causes that necessitated these grants will no longer exist. Countries will be able to develop their own natural resources. When such time shall arrive an extremely delicate situation will develop.

Going to town with Luckies

of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco

Over a period of years, certain basic advances have been made in the selection and treatment of cigarette tobaccos for Lucky Strike Cigarettes.

They include preliminary analyses of the tobacco selected; use of center leaves; the higher heat treatment of tobacco ("Toasting"); consideration of acid-alkaline balance, with consequent definite improvement in flavor; and controlled uniformity in the finished product.

All these combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

WITH the recent defeat handed them by the "Dukes" of Duquesne at Pittsburgh, the Villanova College varsity quintet has run up a streak of five consecutive losses. Making a total of six dropped in nine starts.

Now we don't expect a team to go through the season with an undefeated record, although it would be appreciated, but, we most assuredly want to see a team play the ball that it is capable of doing. Our own personal view is that the Villanova varsity has not been playing the brand of basketball that is in it.

We base our presumption on past performances of the members of the squad. Four seniors are included on the squad's roster, and their ability is a known fact. The other members of the club have been elevated from last year's wonder freshman clan.

There is no particular need to mention each player individually, but from observation and final tabulations on the scoreboards we feel justified in saying that several of the men are not doing their share toward the betterment of the team.

There are enough games left on the schedule for them to try to snap out of the rut which they have fallen into, let's all hope that they do, otherwise the night of March 2nd will find many a Wildcat rooter trodding his way home with the sad realization that the Owls have tucked away a victory.

—V—

The boxers have been given a target to shoot at, in the way of a silver loving cup. The cup goes to the candidate who shows the most improvement during the course of the season.

This was made possible through the kind efforts of Dr. D'Eliscu, a former Olympis coach, and now athletic director at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy.

—V—

It has been quite a surprise to the authorities on intramural sports here with both the increased interest and number of candidates for the various dayhop squads. For at one juncture last year the committee was very much in favor of dropping the dayhop group for lack of interest. The response during the current season has been so spontaneous that the authorities have had to organize two groups to take care of the commuters. The Mendel faction wound up its first-half drive in the basketball loop directly behind the winning Austin Hall club. The Commerce and Finance team, although not so fortunate as their brother-riders, were in the thick of the race throughout.

Now in the second-half race both these teams are waging a battle for the uppermost positions in the clague. The organization of the "train and trolley" boys has served to uncover several outstanding players.

WILDCAT BOXER TO RECEIVE CUP

Dr. D'Eliscu Makes Award To Candidate Showing Best Improvement

Candidates for the boxing squad here have been afforded new opportunities through the efforts of Dr. Francesco D'Eliscu, director of athletics at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy. He has donated a beautiful silver cup, which will be awarded to the individual who aspires to the boxers' squad here. The award will be made according to the improvement shown by the winner during the season.

Dr. D'Eliscu is a well-known figure in the sports world. He was a member of the United States Olympic coaching staff in 1928 and 1932, as an assistant to Lawson Robertson, head track coach of the team; and is again expected to accompany the team in their invasion into Germany next summer.

There will be no partiality shown, and points will probably be awarded by Coach Ray Gadsby.

Members of Villanova Squad Share Optimistic View For Meet

SALA FAVORED TO WIN

After scouting the Pennsylvania University boxing team as it was defeated by a strong Harvard club, Ray Gadsby, the new Villanova coach, assumed a rather optimistic outlook concerning the meeting between Penn's scrappers and the Villanova varsity mittmen on Saturday, February 15.

He remarked that if the boys come along as they have and show the same steady improvement, Villanova has more than just a chance of defeating the Quakers.

Ray very naturally is counting on Tony Sala, inter-collegiate lightweight champion, for one victory. The rest of the squad is expected to pick up enough points to eke out a win.

However, even in defeat the Penn team showed good form, and the Wildcats will be extended to the very limit before they gain victory.

Especially in the lower weights did the Quakers excel. Between them Loman Esterson, 115-pounder, and Sid Elfant, lightweight scrapper, gained 2 of Penn's two and a half points.

The remainder of the Quakers' points was garnered by Sol Maksik, 165-pound ex-football halfback, who drew with Harvard's Peter Olney. Maksik is considered Penn's current best, but he was the victim of an unfortunate occurrence. He failed to hear the bell ending the first round, landing several

ENGINEERS CONDUCT BOWLING TOURNEY

Phi Kappa Pi Inaugurates Annual Affair For Its Members

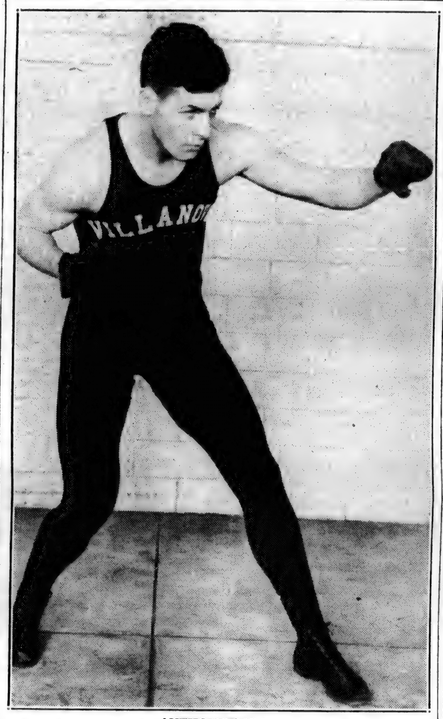
Plans have been completed for a bowling tournament to be held by the Phi Kappa Pi, Engineering Fraternity, in the College gymnasium this week. The tournament began Monday and will continue throughout the remainder of the week. The tournament, open to all members of the fraternity will indulge in the sport of "ten pins."

The matches began Monday and will continue throughout the remainder of the week. The initial elimination matches will consist of three games, the winners being moved into the semi-finals and the finals. The final matches will determine a bowling champion who will receive an award from the fraternity.

All information and schedules for the matches will be posted on the bulletin boards in the dining hall and in the Pie Shop. Contestants are requested to take note of the materials on these boards. Members who have not as yet made arrangements to participate in this tournament and who wish to enter, will leave their names with Frank Rodgers, Senior Engineer.

This tournament has been sponsored by the fraternity with the expectation that a bowling team representing Villanova College will be entered in the Intercollegiate Bowling tournaments held annually.

Intercollegiate Champ Named Captain



ANTHONY SALA,

captain-elect of the 1936 Wildcat gridders, assumed a new responsibility last Friday afternoon when he was appointed to captain Villanova's third boxing team. Tony brought fame to Villanova from foreign shores last year when he won the intercollegiate 175-pound championship tourney conducted at Penn State.

Ten-Man Team Will Be Chosen From Multitude Of Promising Candidates

"Green and inexperienced but a grand bunch of fellows and gluttons for hard work." With these words, Ray Gadsby gives us the general idea of the 1936 Villanova boxing team. Ray, then went on giving us the following data on his team.

In the 115 pound class, the leading candidate is John Noll, a fast little scrapper whose fists spell disaster for all opponents. In the 125 pound division there are two boys who are fighting it out for that berth, Tanzola and Pantaleo. Tanzola is of the Gene Tunney type, a fast boxer but not so hard a hitter, while Pantaleo is a vicious slugger, in the words of Ray Gadsby, a "miniature Dempsey." Another man in the same division is Jim Lyons, who is improving steadily but as yet is not on a par with either Pantaleo or Tanzola.

Quinn, a big strapping six footer and Badamo, a short, husky bruiser, are waging a merry battle for varsity position in the 135 pound class, these two men who are the very opposite in build have left the coach in a quandry as to who is the better man.

The 147 pound class has as its leading and only candidate, Krutulis, a big boy of the slugger-boxer type. Coach Gadsby complains of the scarcity of candidates in this division and urges more boys to come out. Yauch, an out-and-out slugger, is the logical man in the 155 pound division, but his work is being cut out for him because of Claude La Daw, of Wayne, Pa., and Joe Carroll, who are giving him a hard fight for that position. Yauch and La Daw are sluggers, while Carroll is a long gangling boxer.

165 Pound Class Weak

The scarcity again shows itself in the 165 pound class. There are but two candidates in this division, Paul Jarosik and Pat Vassalluzzo. Jarosik, a bruising killer type, looms as the man in this class, but Vassalluzzo is coming along rapidly and in a few weeks should give Jarosik a stiff fight for that berth.

Not much need be said about the 175 pounder for Tony Sala is the only candidate in this division and of course he is the logical man for this berth.

In the heavyweight class, there are three very good men, Mulvihill, a big 200 pounder, Volpe, who tips the beam at 197 pounds and Krzywicki who weighs 203 pounds. From these men, Coach Gadsby will pick his heavyweight.

There are also several promising Freshmen, but who as yet are not quite ready for varsity competition. They are, Tyrrell, 135 pounds, Quigley, 145 pounds, and Buzz Davis, freshman football man who weighs 175 pounds.

KITTEN CAGE TEAM TAKES TWO MORE VICTIMS IN STRIDE

Teachers Humbled By 35 - 22 Count; Naval Hospital Routed, 42 - 21

VIGILANTE, DUBINO STAR

By vanquishing West Chester Teacher's Freshmen and the U. S. Naval Hospital teams, the Villanova Frosh extended their winning streak to seven consecutive victories. West Chester fell last Wednesday on their home court 35-22 and the Navy boys were conquered Saturday afternoon on the Alumni gym floor by a 42-21 count.

While the score indicates a one-sided battle, the Thirty-Niners had their hands full in subduing the Teachers. It was not until late in the game that the Villanovans were able to widen the margin of victory.

Scoring in this game was started when Shello dropped a field goal in for the West Chester lads. One

Mendel "Commuters" in Front With Residents Close On Heels

Last Tuesday the quintet from Austin met and defeated the C. and F. five to inaugurate the second-half schedule. The final score was 28-22 but the play was much closer than the six-point difference would indicate. Conte played his first game for Austin since he changed from Fedigan and contributed eight points to the Austinites' total. There is a rumor around that Conte found a softer mattress over amongst the Austinites and hence moved his belongings over to Austin.

Tuesday evening Alumni fell before the smooth teamwork of the Mendel commuters. Play was close and the number of fouls scored proved to be the deciding factor, Mendel scored four one-pointers to one for Alumni and came out on top, 20-17. Stan Bobrowski, of Alumni, carried off high scoring honors with 10 markers, while Gene Barr, of the Day Hops, followed with eight counters.

In the second game of Tuesday night's bargain bill the Mendel Boarders eked out with a win over the Fedigan five by the close score of 30-29. The first half ended with the Frosh leading 18-14, but the quintet from Fedigan rallied in the second half. However the game was over before they could pass the Mendelites. Costello, of Mendel, rang up six field goals to carry off high-scoring honors. A notable incident in this game was the fact that Mendel scored no foul shots. This is usually their forte

DOUBLEHEADER AT ARENA

Villanova College's varsity basketball team will encounter the Manhattan College five this Friday night at the Arena in Philadelphia. This meeting will be a part of a double-header arranged by Messrs. Hare and Irish.

The second half of the bill will find Temple's Owls and the Pitt quintet meeting in an Eastern Intercollegiate Conference game.

In the Limelight

By PAT M. VASSALLUZZO

THIS is the story of an alright guy. It is the story of the Falcon who became a Wildcat.

Mike O'Meara has had an eventful career in both baseball and basketball. Although Philadelphia does not present many opportunities for developing the abilities of athletic-minded youngsters, Mike did find both the place and time to learn the rudiments of basketball and baseball in and around Artic Philadelphia.

Before we go into the life history of the Malaria Parasite (pardon, dear readers, we just can't get our miners away from biology). What we meant to say was the life history of Mike O'Meara. Well, as we said, dear readers (both of you) before we take up the past history of this Villanova athlete, we should explain what we mean by the statement that Mike changed from a Falcon to a Wildcat. Don't get us wrong, we are not pro-evolutionists. Mike simply participated in athletics at Northeast Catholic High School, whose teams are known as the Falcons. Upon graduating he entered Villanova and became a Wildcat.

Michael A. O'Meara was born in Philadelphia (and here's a lesson in history), the first capitol of the United States of America, the third largest city in the country and the best residential metropolis (outside of Camden). Everyone knows or heard about Camden; you know, where all the dance marathons are held. Mike was born the day before the anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America. To be exact he was born 439 years and 364 days after the discovery of America. That would make it October 11, 1914.

The first educational institution Mike entered after his nativity was the Nativity. That is, the Nativity B.V.M., located in North Philadelphia. It was here that he began scholastic competition in basketball.

At Northeast Catholic Mike played three years of basketball as a forward, two years of football at end position, and three seasons of baseball. Mike played first-base on the diamond. Folks here at Villanova only know O'Meara as a nice fellow and a darn good athlete. In his high school days Mike was known and considered as a stiff pain in the neck by all rival basketball guards.

This does not come from our hero; but from someone who went to different schools together with him: "O'Meara was practically the whole basketball team at North Catholic High and was largely responsible for his team's nosing out West Catholic for the Philadelphia Catholic League Championship, and winning the State Championship in 1932."

It is no wonder then that Coach "Doc" Jacobs made sure that Mike did not leave his home town to enroll at some other college. You know that is what usually happens. Oftimes coaches have star athletes right in their own backyard and let them get away. One need only gaze upon the long list of famous stars at Villanova that hail from New England and other distant parts and you will no doubt wonder how coaches of the various institutions in those areas let these fellows get away.

So, directly upon leaving high school Mike matriculated at Villanova. In his freshman year here at Villanova he played forward on the basketball team, and the frosh team of that year was said to be one of the best. (Although they say the same thing every year, that year's team was good.)

In his sophomore year Mike went out for the varsity team, and although competition was keen he became a very active member of the same; playing in the majority of the games.

The following season found Mike at a regular forward berth. It was not rare to find headlines reading something like this after a game: "O'Meara leads Wildcat's Scoring," etc., Mike played consistently throughout the season and was one of the leading scores on the Wildcat quintet. When baseball season came along in the spring Mike reported as a candidate for an outfield position on the varsity nine. Here too he won a regular berth and played throughout the season.

Senior finds Mike still going great guns for the Wildcat quintet and one of the best gatherers on the squad. At the close of the basketball season he will again report for the baseball nine, where there is little chance of his being replaced as a regular garden-man.

Although most of his time was taken up with athletics, Mike found some time to take part in social affairs at Villanova. He was a member of the Junior Dinner Dance Committee.

Mike is like the postman who takes a walk on his day off. He spends his vacations playing baseball for a first class Philidelphia team. It is no wonder then that he is always in fine physical condition.

O'Meara will be through here at Villanova this coming June. Being enrolled in the Arts School he will naturally receive an A.B. degree. Mike would not disclose whether he intended to teach or continue in the athletic field; but we are sure that no matter which of the two careers he chooses he will be successful.

Forty-Four Points Piled Up by Wildcat Mermen to Defeat Teachers

Villanova College's swimming team turned back West Chester State Teachers' College for the second time this season in the college pool on Wednesday, February 5. The score was 44-22.

The Wildcat mermen took firsts in five of the seven events and established a new pool record in an exhibition 150-yard medley relay.

Bill Leahy and Toby Greco won very close races. Leahy won over Joe Duffy, another Blue and White standard bearer by a second in the 50-yard freestyle. He won the event in 27 seconds. Toby Greco beat Bill Britt in the 100-yard breaststroke, by a fraction. He was clocked in 1:18.

Tommy Carbine assured Villanova victory when he defeated Jack Bailey, another Wildcat merman, by a few yards in the 220-yard freestyle. His time was 2:47. Wilmer Booth placed first in the 100-yard backstroke in 1:13.

Villanova's relay team, composed of Booth, Duffy, Cousart and Leahy, won the first event of 200 yards in 1:50.5.

The diving event was won by Kent, of West Chester State Teachers College, with a score of 72.40. Conrad, a team mate of Kent, placed second, scoring 61.05 points. Jim Gallager, Villanova entrant, placed third with a score of 36.65. Malcomb Stuber gave the Teachers their second victory of the afternoon by winning the 100-yard freestyle in 1:03. Cantor, of the Main Liners, placed second followed by Bickel, of the eTachers. Jim Cousart placed first in this event for the Blue and White team but was disqualified for not touching on the second turn.

Greco, Booth, and Leahy composed the medley relay team which set a new pool record of 1:35.3. This event did not count in the scoring of points.

This was the 'Cats third victory in as many starts. The team has been built up to a winning combination under the supervision of Coach Martin Gill.

200-yard relay — Won by Villanova (Booth, Leahy, Cousart and Leahy); second, West Chester (Conrad, Shellenberger, Stuber and Gray). Time, 1.50.5.

50-yard freestyle—Won by Leahy, Villanova; second, Duffy, Villanova; third, Gray, West Chester. Time, 27 seconds.

100-yard breaststroke — Won by Greco, Villanova; second, Britt, Villanova; third, Lefkowits, West Chester. Time, 1.18.

220-yard freestyle — Won by Carbine, Villanova; second, Bailey, Villanova; third, Otwell, West Chester. Time 2.47.

100-yard backstroke — Won by Booth, Villanova; second, Britt, Villanova; third, Gray, West Chester. Time, 1.13.

100-yard freestyle — Won by Stuber, West Chester; second, Canter, Villanova; third, Bickel, West Chester. Time, 1.03.

150-yard medley relay—Won by Villanova (Greco, Booth and Leahy); second, West Chester. Time, 1.35.3 (new pool record).

ONE DEFEAT AT HOME

Penn State's wrestling team, under Charlie Speidel, has lost only one home meet in seven years. That meet was lost to Navy in Recreation Hall, 1931. The Nittany Lion grapplers have not been defeated either at home or away since midseason in 1934. Their string of victories has now reached 10 in a row. Two meets have already taken place this year.

DID YOU KNOW that Jay Berwanger, All - American backfield star from the University of Chicago, was tendered an offer of seven grand to play for the Chicago Bears of the National Professional League . . . But turned a deaf ear saying he would not play for less than $10,000 . . . Needless to say the Bear officials let the matter drop . . . And there will be a wholesale clean-up of the Athletic department at the University of Wisconsin . . . With most of the pressure falling upon the gridiron forces . . . The Badgers finished behind the "eight ball" during the season just closed and it was found out that the players were given coffee between the halves . . . That was O. K. but it was discovered that the "Java" was spiked with a shot of brandy . . . Maybe it was a lack of brandy that annoyed the players and only whetted their palates . . . There is a possibility of Red Grange being selected for the coaching position left vacant by Gil Dobie at the Ithaca institution . . . Despite the fact that Grange is not a college graduate, it does not necessarily hold that he cannot impart football knowledge . . . Red starred for the University of Illinois before taking a fling at professional football where he proved a great performer . . . At present, Grange is on the coaching staff of the Chicago Bears, having given up active playing . . . The big Red of Cornell will give them all plenty to worry about next season with a galaxy of Frosh stars coming up . . . And Dobie, now coach of Boston College will have the Eagles right up in the front rank . . . Believe it or not "Big" Walt Burlington, burly 200 pound Frosh basketeer is the most improved player on the squad . . . And the yearlings are still undefeated with seven straight under their belt, and shows signs of completing the season without a defeat . . . I have been promising to do this for a long time . . . That is to give "Doctor" John Marmaduke Nevins a little recognition in this column . . . "Jake," as he is often called, takes care of the aches and pains of the Villanova athletes . . . And does a fine job of it . . . Enough of that . . . But you never knew that his middle name was Marmaduke, did you? . . . Well, that will be all for the nonce . . . See you all next week.

foul and a double-decker put the Kittens in the lead and from then on one team and then the other forged ahead until half-time, when the teams left the floor with the visitors on the long end of a 14-12 score.

With the beginning of the second half the hosts assumed a 17-14 lead which they held for a short time until the victor's high-powered offensive began to click, and eleven points were rolled up while the homesters were able to garner only one. From there on to the end of the game the superiority of the Main Liners was very evident, and their sixth victory was assured.

Vigilante Leads

Vigilante, with 11 points, led the scoring, he was followed by Krutulis and Blitz, each with nine counters. Rough play marked the contest as twenty-one points were scored via the free-throw line. Blitz was most proficient in this department making seven of his nine markers from the foul circle. Montgomery was banished by Referee Redman on personal fouls in the second half.

Defensively the Little Wildcats were almost impregnable in the field, allowing the losers only five goals throughout the entire game.

In their seventh conquest, played at home, the victors treated their visitors from the Naval Hospital rather roughly, running rough-shod over them in the second half after being held to a six-point lead in the first period.

Wanamaker opened the action with three counters, but Bruaat promptly put the sailors back in the running with a twin-pointer, but this noble effort was nullified by a drive put on by the Main Liners who ran the score to twelve points, before Crumpler's foul started the gobs on a rally which tightened the score at 12-9. One more marker was chalked up by the Navy lads while the victors tallied four.

Again the Kittens showed their worth as a second-half team by running up fifteen counters to the opposition's three. With a twenty point lead, the home boys were content to coast along, merely maintaining their large margin lead, ending the fracas with a score double that of the vanquished, 42-21.

Dubino's even dozen points led the winner's scoring. Montgomery was next in line with an even dozen counters. Bruaat paced the losers with four field goals.

Andy Stopper, Val Rizzo, and Mike Garbarik, footballers, were ready to aid the Villanova cause, had the need arisen.

punches after the bell. This round was enough to give Olney a draw.

Captain Bernie Rothschild, 155-pounder, though defeated in the Harvard meet, is another of Penn's big hopes.

New Candidates Show Form

The Villanova outlook has been improved considerably by the addition to the boxers of a few new candidates. The most promising of these newcomers is Johnny Krutulis, frosh basketeer, who is expected to be a point-getter in the 145-pound class.

Coach Gadsby is counting on the heavier men to sweep their bouts in the Penn meet. The Wildcat heavyweight representative selected from last night's Intramural tournament, should have a comparatively easy time of it, judging from the fate of the Quaker heavyweight against Harvard.

Penn's above the average strength in the lower weights is what stands between Villanova and victory. Still the coach has high hopes that his lighter men will come through in the fashion he expects. If they do, a victory for Villanova on the 15th is very likely.

Prof. August Kunzenbacher, of the college science faculty, presented an instructive and entertaining film on slow motion phenomena to a combined Science and Arts seminar on last Thursday. This motion picture was filmed at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the purpose of demonstrating the speed of cemeras used in slow motion production.

Preceding the screen presentation, Prof. Kunzenbacher explained the mechanism of these speed cameras in contrast to the every-day synchronized reels. As explained, the ordinary camera photographs 16 pictures a second, each being taken by an opening of the lens. The high speed types take as many as 3000 to 6000 pictures a second thus making shutters an impossibility. The latter types operate without shutters and without a stop in the reeling of the film. The high speed cameras also require a special light which is furnished by mercury vapor are lights that emit one one-thousandth of a second flash somewhat resembling lightning.

The film flashed on the screen illustrated the results of these high velocity pictures reproduced on the screen at a speed of 16 feet per second, thus effecting slow motion. The many objects photographed for slow motion contained such examples as the flight of a fly, homing pigeon, and the common mosquito. These pictures plainly showed the adaptability of these animals for flight and suggested the future possibility of accurate study. The bursting of a soap bubble at 1200 pictures per second was also visualized by the lenses.

Yearly, films of this sort are presented to the seminar students by Prof. Kunzenbacher and the event has become an anticipated pleasure to the upperclassmen and a welcome surprise to the first-year men. Prof. Kunzenbacher is as equally noted for his chemistry and physics research as he is for experimental photography.

a home-and-home basis on March 18, while a debate in the Villanova amphitheatre has been arranged with Pennsylvania on March 27.

Debates with La Salle, St. Joseph's and St. Francis are still pending, while other schools are expected to be contacted in the near future.

As yet no definite teams have been assigned for the debates but a selection from Messrs. Richard L. G. Deverall, John L. Stahman, Edward J. Arnade, Joseph P. O'Laughlin, Anthony K. Differ, William B. Corkill, John L. Simons and John J. McDevitt will probably be made. These students have been working hard and are nearly ready to pro and con the topic of this year's intercollegiate question: Resolved, That Congress Shall Be Allowed to Over-ride Any Decision of the Supreme Court Declaring an Act of Congress Unconstitutional.

NAMED ON "ENGINEER" STAFF

Eugene Barr and Joseph Shea, both junior chemical engineers, who have been appointed associate editor and business manager respectively, of the "Villanova Engineer." Mr. Barr succeeds John Schlatterback and Mr. Shea follows the footsteps of Louis Marcotte.

Yearlings Extend Streak of Victories

but they missed their opportunities to score these one-pointers.

Fedigan lost their second one-point decision in two days when the Mendel Day Hop five outscored them 23-22. The half ended with Fedigan trailing 12-10. The second half was all Fedigan's, but their 12-11 margin in this half did not bring their final total up high enough. Once more Gene Barr was outstanding for the Day Hops when he scored 14 points. His nine points in the second half kept Mendel in the game and finally brought them out on top.

On Thursday afternoon the C. and F. five could not cope with the deadly eyes of the Alumni marksmen and fell by the overwhelming count of 37-22. Stan Bubrowski, who has displayed the most outstanding improvement over his first-half form, once more dominated the scoring column with his 12 points.

Carl Pantaleo, also of Alumni, followed close behind with 11 markers. Alumni cannot be counted out of the race since their last defeat was a thrilling battle with the Mendel Day Hops that may have swayed in either direction.

In the first game on Thursday night the outstanding surprise of the tournament occurred when the Mendel Day Hops emerged with their third victory, when they defeated the Austinites, 30-17.

At the end of the first half the Day Hops led 14-7, and an emergency call was sent out for Totin by Coach Robinson. The second half started with this star in the lineup but the Day Hop five really started to click and from here on it was no contest but a real slaughter.

Beitenmiller, of Mendel, almost equalled the Austin total. As he scored five field goals for 10 points, Gene Barr took second high-scoring honors with eight points, six of these markers were scored from the foul line, setting a record for the tournament.

If Austin continues to play as badly as they did last Thursday they can be counted out of the second-half battle right now.

Following this "walkaway" a thrilling game was played between the Mendel Reserves and the Fedigan five. Fedigan dropped this close one by a two-point margin, 30-28.

Dunigan, of Mendel, was the outstanding player on the floor defensively and offensively. He put three long shots in from more than half the length of the court. To these "hawkers" he added three other field goals of various lengths to contribute a total of 12 points to his team's score.

Fedigan has dropped the three games they have played to date, two of them by a one-point margin.

This week's schedule should pretty well decide the second-half battle as several crucial games are scheduled.

Applications for Graduate Study

California, Princeton, Cornell, Fordham, Chicago and Catholic University.

Other institutions offering similar assistance to graduate students are: Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, Jefferson Medical College, Dartmouth and Lafayette Colleges.

Members of the Senior Class are urged to see Mr. Paetrus F. Banmiller, Registrar, as soon as possible, since applications must be filed in the Dean's offices of the various schools on or before March 1, 1936.

Robert McGrory, editor, and his staff members, wish to take this opportunity of expressing their gratitude and appreciation for the cooperation of the students at the individual sittings, and promise that the yearbook will see publication earlier this year than ever before.

and decide on those potential fraternity members. As a result only four science freshmen were definitely appointed to the fraternity, while the greater number of applicants will be selected this week.

The following are the four who were admitted: Martin B. Kassell, Lawrence C. Knaphle, James E. Kutz and John C. Urie.

Those to be decided on are: Walter L. Balaity, George White, Charles A. Scowron, William J. Ward, Jr., Witold Krzywicki, Jose Gonzales, Pasquale Vassalluzzo, Bartholomeo A. Passannante, Robert Howe, James U. Meiler and Rene' Cailliet.

Leon Finkman, Patrick A. McLaughlin, Albert Zogby, Alfred A. Fracchia and Louis Rizzo DeCavalcante are yet to be interviewed.

It is expected by the admission board that an official list of the selected freshmen will be posted by the end of this week.

In behalf of the student body, the VILLANOVAN takes this opportunity to extend heartfelt sympathy to William O. Monroe on the death of his grandfather, Mr. H. B. Washington.

CANDIDATES NEEDED FOR COLLEGE PAPER

Positions for VILLANOVAN Departments Are Still Open to Students

Candidates for positions in the Circulation, and Arts and Photography departments have not responded as well as they might have reacted to the call at the beginning of the present school year. The VILLANOVAN Circulation manager, (Basil W. Dobrowolski, and the VILLANOVAN Arts and Photography editor, Pasquale Guarini, have expressed their desire for the application of students for positions in these departments.

The Arts and Photography department is in great need of men in view of the fact that the work of this department is becoming an integral part of the school publication. It must be mentioned, however, that Mr. Guarini has been helped by John Bruno, a Junior in the Science School, in the featured Campus Celebs. At present, the Arts and Photography department is competently represented by John Bruno, Pasquale Linguiti, another Junior Science student, and Mr. Guarini himself.

The Circulation department also has not as yet received sufficient men to perform its various labors.

THIS is the story of an alright guy. It is the story of the Falcon who became a Wildcat.

Mike O'Meara has had an eventful career in both baseball and basketball. Although Philadelphia does not present many opportunities for developing the abilities of athletic-minded youngsters, Mike did find both the place and time to learn the rudiments of basketball and baseball in and around Artic Philadelphia.

Before we go into the life history of the Malaria Parasite (pardon, dear readers, we just can't get our miners away from biology). What we meant to say was the life history of Mike O'Meara. Well, as we said, dear readers (both of you) before we take up the past history of this Villanova athlete, we should explain what we mean by the statement that Mike changed from a Falcon to a Wildcat. Don't get us wrong, we are not pro-evolutionists. Mike simply participated in athletics at North east Catholic High School, whose teams are known as the Falcons. Upon graduating he entered Villanova and became a Wildcat.

Michael A. O'Meara was born in Philadelphia (and here's a lesson in history), the first capitol of the United States of America, the third largest city in the country and the best residential metropolis (outside of Camden). Everyone knows or heard about Camden; you know, where all the dance marathons are held. Mike was born the day before the anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America. To be exact he was born 439 years and 364 days after the discovery of America. That would make it October 11, 1911.

The first educational institution Mike entered after his nativity was the Nativity. That is, the Nativity B.V.M., located in North Philadelphia. It was here that he began scholastic competition in basketball.

At Northeast Catholic Mike played three years of basketball as a forward, two years of football at end position, and three seasons of baseball. Mike played first base on the diamond. Folks here at Villanova only know O'Meara as a nice fellow and a darn good athlete. In his high school days Mike was known and considered as a stiff pain in the neck by all rival basketball guards.

This does not come from our hero; but from someone who went to different schools together with him. "O'Meara was practically the whole basketball team at North Catholic High and was largely responsible for his team's rousing out West Catholic for the Philadelphia Catholic League Championship, and winning the State Championship in 1932."

It is no wonder then that Coach Obie Trebbs made sure that Mike did not leave his home town to enroll at some other college. You know that is what usually happens. Offtimes coaches have star athletes right in their own backyard and let them get away. One need only gaze upon the long list of famous stars at Villanova that hail from New England and other distant parts and you will no doubt wonder how coaches of the various institutions in those areas let those fellows get away.

So, directly upon leaving high school Mike matriculated at Villanova. In his freshman year here at Villanova he played forward on the basketball team, and the frosh team of that year was said to be one of the best. (Although they say the same thing every year, that year's team was good.)

In his sophomore year Mike went out for the varsity team, and although competition was keen he became a very active member of the same; playing in the majority of the games.

The following season found Mike at a regular forward berth. It was not rare to find headlines reading something like this after a game: "O'Meara leads Wildcat's Scoring," etc., Mike played consistently throughout the season and was one of the leading scores on the Wildcat quintet. When baseball season came along in the spring Mike reported as a candidate for an outfield position on the varsity nine. Here too he won a regular berth and played throughout the season.

Senior finds Mike still going great guns for the Wildcat quintet and one of the best gatherers on the squad. At the close of the basketball season he will again report for the baseball nine, where there is little chance of his being replaced as a regular garden-man.

Although most of his time was taken up with athletics, Mike found some time to take part in social affairs at Villanova. He was a member of the Junior Dinner Dance Committee.

Mike is like the postman who takes a walk on his day off. He spends his vacations playing baseball for a first class Philadelphia team. It is no wonder then that he is always in fine physical condition.

O'Meara will be through here at Villanova this coming June. Being enrolled in the Arts School he will naturally receive an A.B. degree. Mike would not disclose whether he intended to teach or continue in the athletic field, but we are sure that no matter which of the two careers he chooses he will be successful.

WEST CHESTER SUNK BY 'CAT NATATORS

Forty-Four Points Piled Up by Wildcat Mermen to Defeat Teachers

Villanova College's swimming team turned back West Chester State Teachers' College for the second time this season in the college pool on Wednesday, February 5. The score was 44-22.

The Wildcat mermen took firsts in five of the seven events and established a new pool record in an exhibition 150-yard medley relay.

Bill Leahy and Toby Greco won very close races. Leahy won over Joe Duffy, another Blue and White standard bearer by a second in the 50-yard freestyle. He won the event in 27 seconds. Toby Greco beat Bill Britt in the 100-yard breaststroke, by a fraction. He was clocked in 1:18.

Tommy Carbine assured Villanova victory when he defeated Jack Bailey, another Wildcat merman, by a few yards in the 220-yard freestyle. His time was 2:47. Wilmer Booth placed first in the 100-yard backstroke in 1:13.

Villanova's relay team, composed of Booth, Duffy, Cousart and Leahy, won the first event of 200 yards in 1:50.5.

The diving event was won by Kent, of West Chester State Teachers College, with a score of 72.40. Conrad, a team mate of Kent, placed second, scoring 61.05 points. Jim Gallager, Villanova entrant, placed third with a score of 36.65. Malcomb Stuber gave the Teachers their second victory of the afternoon by winning the 100-yard freestyle in 1:03. Cantor, of the Main Liners, placed second followed by Bickel, of the eTachers. Jim Cousart placed first in this event for the Blue and White team but was disqualified for not touching on the second turn.

Greco, Booth, and Leahy composed the medley relay team which set a new pool record of 1:35.3. This event did not count in the scoring of points.

This was the 'Cats third victory in as many starts. The team has been built up to a winning combination under the supervision of Coach Martin Gil.

200-yard relay — Won by Villanova (Booth, Leahy, Cousart and Leahy); second, West Chester (Conrad, Shellenberger, Stuber and Gray). Time, 1:50.5.

Dive—Won by Kent, West Chester, 72.40; second, Conrad, West Chester, 61.05; third, Gallacher, 36.65.

50-yard freestyle—Won by Leahy, Villanova; second, Duffy, Villanova; third, Gray, West Chester. Time, 27 seconds.

100-yard breaststroke — Won by Greco, Villanova; second, Britt, Villanova; third, Letkowitz, West Chester. Time, 1:18.

220-yard freestyle — Won by Carbine, Villanova; second, Bailey, Villanova; third, Otwell, West Chester. Time 2:47.

100-yard backstroke — Won by Booth, Villanova; second, Britt, Villanova; third, Gray, West Chester. Time, 1:13.

100-yard freestyle — Won by Stuber, West Chester; second, Cinter, Villanova; third, Bickel, West Chester. Time, 1:05.

150-yard medley relay—Won by Villanova (Greco, Booth and Leahy); second, West Chester. Time, 1:53.3 (new pool record).

ONE DEFEAT AT HOME

Penn State's wrestling team, under Charlie Speidel, has lost only one home meet in seven years. That meet was lost to Navy in Recreation Hall, 1931. The Nittany Lion grapplers have not been defeated either at home or away since midseason in 1931. Their string of victories has now reached 10 in a row. Two meets have already taken place this year.

Here and There

By EDWARD L. COLLINS

DID YOU KNOW that Jay Berwanger, All - American backfield star from the University of Chicago, was tendered an offer of seven grand to play for the Chicago Bears of the National Professional League . . . But turned a 'deaf ear saying he would not play for less than $10,000 . . . Needless to say the Bear officials let the matter drop . . . And there will be a wholesale clean-up of the Athletic department at the University of Wisconsin . . . With most of the pressure falling upon the gridiron forces . . . The Badgers finished behind the "eight ball" during the season just closed and it was found out that the players were given coffee between the halves . . . That was O. K. but it was discovered that the "Java" was spiked with a shot of brandy . . . Maybe it was a lack of brandy that annoyed the players and only whetted their palates . . . There is a possibility of Red Grange being selected for the coaching position left vacant by Gil Dobie at the Ithaca institution . . . Despite the fact that Grange is not a college graduate, it does not necessarily hold that he cannot impart football knowledge . . . Red starred for the University of Illinois before taking a fling at professional football where he proved a great performer . . . At present, Grange is on the coaching staff of the Chicago Bears, having given up active playing . . . The big Red of Cornell will give them all plenty to worry about next season with a galaxy of Frosh stars coming up . . . And Dobie, now coach of Boston College will have the Eagles right up in the front rank . . . Believe it or not "Big" Walt Burlington, burly 200 pound Frosh basketeer is the most improved player on the squad . . . And the yearlings are still undefeated with seven straight under their belt, and shows signs of com leting the season without a defeat . . . I have been promising to do this for a long time . . . That is to give "Doctor" John Marmaduke Nevins a little recognition in this column . . . "Jake," as he is often called, takes care of the aches and pains of the Villanova athletes . . . And does a fine job of it . . . Enough of that . . . But you never knew that his middle name was Marmaduke, did you? . . . Well, that will be all for the nonce . . . See you all next week.

Frosh Win Seventh Consecutive Game

foul and a double-decker put the Kittens in the lead and from then on one team and then the other forged ahead until half-time, when the teams left the floor with the visitors on the long end of a 14-12 score.

With the beginning of the second half the hosts assumed a 17-14 lead which they held for a short time until the victor's high-powered offensive began to click, and eleven points were rolled up while the homesters were able to garner only one. From there on to the end of the game the superiority of the Main Liners was very evident, and their sixth victory was assured.

Vigilante Leads

Vigilante, with 11 points, led the scoring, he was followed by Krutulis and Blitz, each with nine counters. Rough play marked the contest as twenty-one points were scored via the free-throw line, Blitz was most proficient in this department making seven of his nine markers from the foul circle. Montgomery was banished by Referee Redman on personal fouls in the second half.

Defensively the Little Wildcats were almost impregnable in the field, allowing the losers only five goals throughout the entire game.

In their seventh conquest, played at home, the victors treated their visitors from the Naval Hospital rather roughly, running rough-shod over them in the second half after being held to a six-point lead in the first period.

Wanamaker opened the action with three counters, but Bruaat promptly put the sailors back in the running with a twin-pointer, but this noble effort was nullified by a drive put on by the Main Liners who ran the score to twelve points, before Crumpler's foul started the gobs on a rally which tightened the score at 12-9. One more marker was chalked up by the Navy lads while the victors tallied four.

Again the Kittens showed their worth as a second-half team by running up fifteen counters to the opposition's three. With a twenty point lead, the home boys were content to coast along, merely maintaining their large margin intact, ending the fracas with a score double that of the vanquished, 42-21.

Dubino's even dozen points led the winner's scoring. Montgomery was next in line with an even dozen counters. Bruaat paced the losers with four field goals.

Andy Stopper, Val Rizzo, and Mike Garbark, footballers, were ready to aid the Villanova cause, had the need arisen.

punches after the bell. This round was enough to give Olney a draw.

Captain Bernie Rothschild, 155-pounder, though defeated in the Harvard meet, is another of Penn's big hopes.

New Candidates Show Form

The Villanova outlook has been improved considerably by the addition to the boxers of a few new candidates. The most promising of these newcomers is Johnny Krutulis, frosh basketeer, who is expected to be a point-getter in the 145-pound class.

Coach Gadsby is counting on the heavier men to sweep their bouts in the Penn meet. The Wildcat heavyweight representative selected from last night's Intramural tournament, should have a comparatively easy time of it, judging from the fate of the Quaker heavyweight against Harvard.

Penn's above the average strength in the lower weights is what stands between Villanova and victory. Still the coach has high hopes that his lighter men will come through in the fashion he expects. If they do, a victory for Villanova on the 15th is very likely.

Prof. August Kunzenbacher, of the college science faculty, presented an instructive and entertaining film on slow motion phenomena to a combined Science and Arts seminar on last Thursday. This motion picture was filmed at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the purpose of demonstrating the speed of cemeras used in slow motion production.

Preceding the screen presentation, Prof. Kunzenbacher explained the mechanism of these speed cameras in contrast to the every-day synchronized reels. As explained, the ordinary camera photographs 16 pictures a second, each being taken by an opening of the lens. The high speed types take as many as 3000 to 6000 pictures a second thus making shutters an impossibility. The latter types operate without shutters and without a stop in the reeling of the film. The high speed cameras also require a special light which is furnished by mercury vapor arc lights that emit one one-thousandth of a second flash somewhat resembling lightning.

The film flashed on the screen illustrated the results of these high velocity pictures reproduced on the screen at a speed of 16 feet per second, thus effecting slow motion. The many objects photographed for slow motion contained such examples as the flight of a fly, homing pigeon, and the common mosquito. These pictures plainly showed the adaptability of these animals for flight and suggested the future possibility of accurate study. The bursting of a soap bubble at 1200 pictures per second was also visualized by the lenses.

Yearly, films of this sort are presented to the seminar students by Prof. Kunzenbacher and the event has become an anticipated pleasure to the upperclassmen and a welcome surprise to the first-year men. Prof. Kunzenbacher is as equally noted for his chemistry and physics research as he is for experimental photography.

a home-and-home basis on March 18, while a debate in the Villanova amphitheatre has been arranged with Pennsylvania on March 27.

Debates with La Salle, St. Joseph's and St. Francis are still pending, while other schools are expected to be contacted in the near future.

As yet no definite teams have been assigned for the debates but a selection from Messrs. Richard L. G. Deverall, John L. Stahman, Edward J. Arnade, Joseph P. O'Laughlin, Anthony K. Differ, William B. Corkill, John L. Simons and John J. McDevitt will probably be made. These students have been working hard and are nearly ready to pro and con the topic of this year's intercollegiate question: Resolved, That Congress Shall Be Allowed to Over-ride Any Decision of the Supreme Court Declaring an Act of Congress Unconstitutional.

NAMED ON "ENGINEER" STAFF

Eugene Barr and Joseph Shea, both junior chemical engineers, who have been appointed associate editor and business manager respectively, of the "Villanova Engineer." Mr. Barr succeeds John Schlatterback and Mr. Shea follows the footsteps of Louis Marcotte.

Yearlings Extend Streak of Victories

but they missed their opportunities to score these one-pointers.

Fedigan lost their second one-point decision in two days when the Mendel Day Hop five outscored them 23-22. The half ended with Fedigan trailing 12-10. The second half was all Fedigan's, but their 12-11 margin in this half did not bring their final total up high enough. Once more Gene Barr was outstanding for the Day Hops when he scored 14 points. His nine points in the second half kept Mendel in the game and finally brought them out on top.

On Thursday afternoon the C. and F. five could not cope with the deadly eyes of the Alumni marksmen and fell by the overwhelming count of 37-22. Stan Bubrowski, who has displayed the most outstanding improvement over his first-half form, once more dominated the scoring column with his 12 points.

Carl Pantaleo, also of Alumni, followed close behind with 11 markers. Alumni cannot be counted out of the race since their last defeat was a thrilling battle with the Mendel Day Hops that may have swayed in either direction.

In the first game on Thursday night the outstanding surprise of the tournament occurred when the Mendel Day Hops emerged with their third victory, when they defeated the Austinites, 30-17.

At the end of the first half the Day Hops led 14-7, and an emergency call was sent out for Totin by Coach Robinson. The second half started with this star in the lineup but the Day Hop five really started to click and from here on it was no contest but a real slaughter.

Beltenmiller, of Mendel, almost equalled the Austin total. As he scored five field goals for 10 points, Gene Barr took second high-scoring honors with eight points, six of these markers were scored from the foul line, setting a record for the tournament.

If Austin continues to play as badly as they did last Thursday they can be counted out of the second-half battle right now.

Following this "walkaway" a thrilling game was played between the Mendel Reserves and the Fedigan five. Fedigan dropped this close one by a two-point margin, 30-28.

Dunigan, of Mendel, was the outstanding player on the floor defensively and offensively. He put three long shots in from more than half the length of the court. To these "hawkers" he added three other field goals of various lengths to contribute a total of 12 points to his team's score.

Fedigan has dropped the three games they have played to date, two of them by a one-point margin.

This week's schedule should pretty well decide the second-half battle as several crucial games are scheduled.

Applications for Graduate Study

California, Princeton, Cornell, Fordham, Chicago and Catholic University.

Other institutions offering similar assistance to graduate students are: Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, Jefferson Medical College, Dartmouth and Lafayette Colleges.

Members of the Senior Class are urged to see Mr. Paetrus F. Bannmiller, Registrar, as soon as possible, since applications must be filed in the Dean's offices of the various schools on or before March 1, 1936.

and decide on those potential fraternity members. As a result only four science freshmen were definitely appointed to the fraternity, while the greater number of applicants will be selected this week.

The following are the four who were admitted: Martin B. Kassell, Lawrence C. Knaphle, James E. Kutz and John C. Urie.

Those to be decided on are: Walter L. Balaity, George White, Charles A. Scowron, William J. Ward, Jr., Witold Krzywicki, Jose Gonzales, Pasquale Vassalluzzo, Bartholomeo A. Passannante, Robert Howe, James U. Meiler and Rene' Cailliet.

Leon Finkman, Patrick A. McLaughlin, Albert Zogby, Alfred A. Fracchia and Louis Rizzo DeCavalcante are yet to be interviewed.

It is expected by the admission board that an official list of the selected freshmen will be posted by the end of this week.

CANDIDATES NEEDED FOR COLLEGE PAPER

Positions for VILLANOVAN Departments Are Still Open to Students

Candidates for positions in the Circulation, and Arts and Photography departments have not responded as well as they might have reacted to the call at the beginning of the present school year. The VILLANOVAN Circulation manager, Basil W. Dobrowolski, and the VILLANOVAN Arts and Photography editor, Pasquale Guarini, have expressed their desire for the application of students for positions in these departments.

The Arts and Photography department is in great need of men in view of the fact that the work of this department is becoming an integral part of the school publication. It must be mentioned, however, that Mr. Guarini has been helped by John Bruno, a Junior in the Science School, in the featured Campus Celebs. At present, the Arts and Photography department is competently represented by John Bruno, Pasquale Laguiti, another Junior Science student, and Mr. Guarini himself.

The Circulation department also has not as yet received sufficient men to perform its various labors.

In behalf of the student body, the VILLANOVAN takes this opportunity to extend heartfelt sympathy to William O. Monroe on the death of his grandfather, Mr. H. B. Washington.

STUDENT HAS PET BOA CONSTRICTOR

Attentions Required by Snake Prove Irksome to College Roommate

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 10—Snakes have been seen in fraternity houses before this ,but Josephine, young imperial boa constrictor now doubling as a pet and scientific guinea pig for a Cornell fraternity man, is real,

Non-poisonous, too young to hug after the fashion of her kind, but plenty old enough to bite, Josephine was a gift from Dr. Harry Eno, of Colon, Panama, to Frank Trevor, a senior from Syracuse, N. Y.

Boas thrive in a temperature of around 80 degrees, and until his roommate rebelled, Trevor kept his quarters at tropical temperature. He solved the problem by building a snake box with an electric thermostat.

Petting soothes Josephine, but left alone she hunts for a tree. As a substitute she climbs whatever furniture she can find. Once she was lost for two days. Trevor found her asleep in a waste paper box.

When Trevor graduates he plans to take Josephine to Camp Woodland, a Boy Scout organization, where he already has a snake where he is nature director and house with 300 specimens.

REPRIMANDED BY SUPREME COURT

Absent-Minded Professor Fails to Heed Letters From August Body

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 10—The absent-minded professor joke was revived last week. Ralph J. Baker, Harvard professor and member of the bar of the United States Supreme Court, had mislaid a check for $15.45 mailed to him by a court clerk as part of a fee for his appearance before the tribunal in 1934. Because the check hadn't been cashed, it was impossible to close the court's record in the case.

Four letters of inquiry were sent to the professor; he answered none of them. Finally he was threatened with disbarment, and that stirred him to action.

Dropping all else, he searched through his papers for four hours, found the check, cashed it and wrote an apology to the clerk and the justices.

Collegiate World

By COLLEGIATE DIGEST and Associated Collegiate Press

East to West:

A columnist in the student paper at Brown University devotes several paragraphs to the "coyaotes" which roam the Western plains, and "menace the lumberjacks."

("Kiyutes" wouldn't be so bad, but "coyaotes"—Good Lord!)

And then we notice in the Princeton paper that a correspondent declares, "out West when they see a man driving recklessly, they toot their horn at him three times. He feels ashamed and toots back three times, and goes on with everyone feeling he has been sufficiently punished."

One boy the principal couldn't lick.

He's Robert Wadlow, 17 years years old, who has just been graduated from high school in Alton, Ill. He is going to enter college next fall to study law. We don't know for sure, but we imagine Robert is being deluged by offers from college basketball coaches right now.

For Robert is 8 feet 4 inches in height and weighs 390 pounds.

Bobbie is still growing. Doctors think he may become the tallest man in recorded history.

SEES DECREASE IN ENDOWMENTS

Decline Is Attributed to the Constantly Rising Taxes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 10—Gather ye rosebuds while ye may, sums up the advice to the private colleges of America just offered by William Pearson Tolley, president of Allegheny College here. Endowments are due to become a rarity on the American scene, he warns.

"Regardless of the party in power," President Tolley said, "taxes will grow steadily higher, the number of great estates steadily smaller and the surplus out of which come the gifts to colleges, schools, churches and other institutions will gradually disappear.

The change will not assume alarming proportions for about a decade, he said.

RESEARCH WORKERS FORM DEATH CLUB

Strange Pact Revealed in Speech by One of Its Members

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 10—Even more grisly than the famous Civil War veterans' "Last Man" Club, members of which met annually to drink a toast to their dead comrades, until but one was left, has been organized by a group of Canadian scientists.

In the distant future a medical paper will be published by an old scientist in which he will give the cause of the death of 29 of his colleagues.

Dr. C. H. Best, professor of physiology in the University of Toronto, revealed in the strange pact in the course of a recent speech.

Thirty research workers in the School of Hygiene have an annual physical examination. They examine each other and from each other they draw a sample of blood which is chemically analyzed.

SCHOOL FOR POLICE REORGANIZED HERE; TO BEGIN MARCH 5

College Again Offers Facilities To Train State And Local Officers

STATE AND NATIONAL EXPERTS ARE TEACHERS

Almost Unlimited Curriculum Available to Members Of Police School

In response to the great interest shown at the last Police School held at Villanova College by the Delaware County police, a larger school has been organized to take care of the scientific police education of the members of the police forces of Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery and Philadelphia counties.

Villanova College has again generously offered its facilities in preparing the police officers who are members of the newly formed Police School of Eastern Pennsylvania. The value of any police department depends upon the ability of its personnel to prevent crime and to protect life and property; to apprehend the guilty; and to secure sufficient evidence in order that a conviction may be obtained.

Classes Begin March 5

The general fundamental course will begin on Thursday, March 5, and will be held during the late afternoon (4—6 P. M.) every Tuesday and Thursday thereafter during March, April and May. The courses offered in this school require 50 hours of class work and the officers who attend at least three-fourths of all sessions in the general course will be granted certificates of attendance at the end of the course. PRAYERS FOR DEAD

Spiritual Bouquets for Deceased Parents Will Be Filled Out Tomorrow at Noon

Spiritual bouquets for the deceased parents of students are being drawn up by the Student Council in conjunction with Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., chaplain of the college.

The card is so arranged that the prayers offered for the spiritual comfort of the deceased may be filled in with the regular chapel exercises.

The cards, according to Fr. Brown, will be ready to be filled out tomorrow at noon, and may be found in the dining hall under the care of the Student Council.

L. K. D. Lays Final Plans For Friday Night Social

Pre-Med Reunion Dance Features Last Social Event on Program Before Lent; Advance Sale Warrants Success

Final plans for the Lambda Kappa Delta Reunion Dance, to be held this Friday night, were discussed at the last meeting of the held Saturday, this imports that organization. As no classes will be those students who attend the affair will not be troubled with a wearying attempt to awaken the next morning in time for classes.

It was announced to the members that purchase had been made from the senior class of its curtain for the ceiling of the gymnasium, where the dance is to take place. With this central decoration as a hub the committee intends to change slightly and improve the adornments of the gym in such a fashion as to equal if not surpass similar work done by the senior class for the Senior Ball.

Tickets were also issued to various members of the organization, namely: dance committee chairman, William Welsh, James Keegan and Edward McLaughlin, who are supplying tickets to the Dayhops; William Keffer, covering residents in Mendel and Alumni Hall; Gerald Piserschia, contacting Fedigan Hall boarders, and Joseph Toland, invading Austin Hall.

Admission to the hop, including tax, was set at $1.50.

It was thought appropriate, after discussion, that the affair should be informal, in this fashion permitting those persons who care to wear formal attire, to do so, and yet enabling those who do not wish to wear formal dress to attend in suitable dress.

Favors, it is expected, will also be distributed among the fair sex who will be in attendance Friday night. What form these will take remains unknown, inasmuch as the dance committee desires to have this issue remain as a pleasant surprise for the young ladies.

Discussion also centered about the matter of supplying fraternity members with transportation to and from the hop. It was decided that those members who own cars will cooperate with thase who do not by providing them with the use of their automobiles. This, of course, will increase the sale of tickets by removing many potential "dance-goers'" objections to attend because of incapacity to provide their companions with suitable transportation.

The Villanovans who, rumor has it, have improved greatly in style and performance since they last played at a campus affair, will supply the mellow harmony and rhythm for the hop.

At the last meeting, also, freshmen science men who were recent-

Representatives from Princeton, Penn State, Lehigh, Drexel, P. M. C., N. Y. U., Johns Hopkins, and the entire electrical group from Villanova are expected to attend the convention.

A. FITZPATRICK AND J. CHAPPLE NAMED PROM CO-CHAIRMEN

Traditional Junior Week to Begin May 4th Under General Chairmanship Of John Burke

PROMENADE DATE IS SET FOR MAY 8

By JAMES P. TOFANI

A notification unprecedented in the history of the college was issued by William B. Cleary, president of the Junior Class, when he disclosed the appointment of co-chairmen for the Junior Promenade.

John F. Chapple, of the Business School, and Aloysius L. Fitzpatrick, of the School of Technology, received the appointments.

Simultaneously with this publication, Mr. Cleary revealed that John J. Burke, of the School of Arts and Philosophy, has been selected as chairman of Junior Week, and will be at the head of the entire proceedings.

Junior Week, one of the most memorable occasions in the life of a college student, and which also proves to be the most colorful affair of the scholastic year, has been definitely set as the first week of May, commencing on Monday, May 4, and coming to a grand climax on Friday evening, May 8, the date of the Junior Prom.

Junior Week will get underway with Mothers' Day, Monday, May 4. This day has been set aside as the occasion for the mothers of the students to visit the campus. Thomas Kennedy, of the Business School, has been chosen chairman of Mothers' Day Committee.
